Introduction to the electronic text edition (2009)

It is with great pleasure that I offer this electronic edition of Jacob Boehme's work "The Aurora".
It was his first book, remaining unfinished, after which followed "The Three Principles of the Divine Essence", and "Threefold Life of Man". It is a book that introduces many of his ideas, and some of his explanations about nature can only be found in this, his first book. There are many themes in common with the theosophical neo-platonic tradition of Ammonius Saccas, Plotinus, Porphyry, Iamblichus and Proclus, as well as with the Kabbalistic tradition. Hierarchies, the emanational generation of Cosmos, angelic kingdoms, trinities, signatura, ideation, duality, transformation can all be found with Boehme, as with the other traditions. Keep in mind that Jacob Boehme uses a very veiled style of writing. He had to do that, in order to survive the narrow-minded world of the fundamentalist Christians, at war with each other at that time.
He certainly acknowledged the idea of the potential Christ within the human being (indeed, the New Testament refers to this possibility too), a transformation and realization possible for those oriented to the right way of life.
The main purpose of this edition is to provide a searchable text for the researcher and student of Boehme and enable search-engines to index Boehme's writings, in order to make his texts easily retrievable. It is a complete text, including the preface of John Sparrow, Jacob Boehme's preface and a brief contents of this book. All footnotes have been kept. Italics are from Sparrow's hand. The other editors have added some words in square brackets, as I myself have done too.

Boehme's work deserves to be available freely, after about four hundred years. It is still relevant today, because it is process oriented and process philosophy (Whitehead, Peirce, etc.) is getting more attention now, promising some solutions to philosophical problems, like ontological ones, that have plagued science for a long time since quantum mechanics started to be developed. Psychologists can also benefit greatly from the insights into human nature that Boehme offers to the careful reader.

Lastly, I wish you an inspirative study of this great work.

TO THE READER

THE books of this author, that are already published, declare sufficiently the high worth of his deep writings: But of all the benefits that do accrue thereby it is one inestimable excellency of them that they help the minds of all sorts of people, that will take pains to read and consider them, in the understanding of the holy Scriptures: and that satisfactorily and convincingly, without need of any reference to the vast commentaries of authors, either in the learned or modern tongues. And they will help men to be able to discern the truth in the various expositions and opinions of all parties; also to still the differences, debates, controversies, disputes and contests; that all may be satisfied in a loving, friendly way, and so agree in one and the same truth together.

And among many differences in opinion that spring up there is one weighty and remarkable arisen, since the Light within, and Christ within, hath been pressed more than ordinary; one sort being judged to deny a Christ without, and the other, a Christ within; whereas it might be considered [1 Cor. i. 13.] that Christ is not divided, though he be everywhere in all places, and in all things, and yet but once manifested in the likeness of sinful flesh [Rom. viii. 3.]; suffering, dying, rising from the dead, ascending into glory.

Yet he that is not partaker of the same Christ within, or is not made conformable in his soul and spirit to him in his suffering, death and resurrection, in this life, in some measure, shall never be partaker with him in his glory in the life to come. But if we suffer with him [Rom. viii.17], we shall also be glorified with him at his appearing. Paul's desire to know nothing but Christ [1 Cor. ii. 2.], and him crucified, among the Corinthians, was not to know them to crucify Christ, but the virtue and power of Christ crucified in them. And if the same Christ that suffered at Jerusalem were not in every one, the wickedest man in the world could not crucify to himself the Lord of Glory [Heb. vi. 6.]. And what Christ did in the flesh once, always had and hath its powerful effect in the spirit of every soul that is united to him within itself, and not otherwise.

Therefore we should learn to understand how it is Christ that was the Lamb [Rev. xiii. 8.] slain from the beginning of the world; and then also in Abel when he was slain by Cain; also in his own body when Jesus himself was nailed on the cross and gave up the ghost, and still suffers and is slain [Eph. v. 30.] in his members; and how he will say at the Judgment, when all shall appear, from Adam to the last man that is born of woman, whatsoever is [Matt xxv. 40, 45] done to the least of those that believe in him, it is done to Christ himself in them; and not that he will take it as done to him, only as his words are commonly expounded, but it is really done to him. His flesh is meat indeed, and his blood [John vi. 55.] is drink indeed, and they that did not eat and drink it, though it were within them (otherwise they could not do so) had no part in him. And this he said when [he] himself was conversant with his disciples before his suffering and death. Therefore there cannot be a Christ within, and a Christ without, but one and the same Christ, within and without, then, now, and always, from eternity to eternity.

There is another great difference: concerning Perfection, and the attaining to it in this life; one sort condemning the other, for speaking that which they understand to be spoken in the Scripture. But they do not endeavour to reconcile the meaning of those texts which seem so extremely to differ.

For Perfection: Be ye perfect, as your [Matt. v. 48.] heavenly Father is perfect. Job was a perfect and upright man. If any man sin not in word he is a perfect man. And there is mention made of the perfect law of liberty [James i. 25.] Also, he that is born of God sinneth not, neither can he, because the seed of God remaineth in him. As many as be perfect, let them be thus minded, [Phil. iii. 15] viz. to press for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

On the other side: There is none righteous, no, not one; there is not a man that sinneth not; in many things we offend all. And the Apostle John, who no doubt was then born of God, saith: If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and there is no truth in us—if we say, not if he or they say, or whosoever saith. And while he was in the instant of high revelations, he fell down before the Angel to worship him, thinking it had been God; but the Angel said to him, See thou do it not, for I am thy fellow-servant.

And these great differences cannot be reconciled by the distinction of a time or condition of men unconverted, before they have attained perfection, before they are righteous, or before they are sanctified. But they may be decided by the understanding, what it is that sinneth in man, and what it is in man that is perfect and cannot sin. For as the soul in this life entereth into the one or the other through obedience to it, that soul is either righteous and perfect, or wicked and imperfect, as the Scriptures testify: And every one that shall be presented perfect, is to be presented perfect in Christ Jesus, so that our perfection consisteth in him, not in self. And so the gifts of God are perfect, or else we could not be saved by faith, for that is not of ourselves, but is the gift of God.
And therefore it may well be said by the Apostle Paul, after his high revelation, I know that in me, that is, in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing. Dwelleth—not hath dwelt, or did dwell before his conversion, or at the beginning of the writing of that Epistle, but at that instant dwelleth in him no good thing in his flesh. Also, says he, I do find a law in my members rebelling against the law of my mind, and leading me into captivity to the law of sin; so that the good which he would do, that he did not, but the evil which he would not do, that he did. To will was present with him, but how to perform it, that he did not know, and then says, So in my mind I serve the law of God, which is perfect, but in my flesh I serve the law of sin. Also the Apostle John saith, Let no man deceive you, he that doth righteousness, is righteous. And the Apostle Paul saith, As many as are led by the spirit of God they are the sons of God. And, His servants ye are to whom ye obey, whether of obedience unto righteousness or of sin unto death. Also it is said, The soul that [Ezek. xviii. 20] sinneth it shall die. If a righteous man (which is indeed a perfect man so long as he is a servant to righteousness) departeth from his righteousness, and doth that which is wicked, in the wickedness which he doth he shall die: and yet that which is perfect cannot die.

And on the other side: If a wicked man turn from his wickedness and doth the thing which is good and righteous, in the righteousness which he doth he shall live, saith the Lord. Thus a righteous man can sin, and a wicked man can do that which is righteous; yet it is the soul in the wicked man that turneth and doth righteousness in the mind, and the will, and the spirit, and the heart, and the life, through Christ in the soul. And it is the soul in the righteous man that doth that which is wicked, and the mind, and will, and spirit, and heart, and life, through the power of sin, corruption and imperfection, also of the flesh or the body of death, which is this mortal flesh and blood.

Therefore we should not let sin reign in our mortal bodies, that we obey sin in the lusts thereof; but we should strive after perfection, that Christ may be formed in us. We should give God our hearts, and he will cleanse them for us, and make us after his own heart, and will make our hearts, desires and minds pure, and then they are perfect; for nothing that is impure, and so, imperfect, can enter into the kingdom of God. Thus in our minds, If we do the will of our Father which is in heaven, we shall know of the words of Christ, whether they be of God or no—which they that heard them from his own mouth, and did not so, could not know.

But we are not to condemn those that have not attained to our measure of light, grace, knowledge or perfection; but to let our light so shine before men, that they may see our good works, and glorify our Father which is in heaven. And then they will say, God is in us of a truth: they will be able to understand it. If we be strong we should help those that are weak in light or understanding, and should declare the Gospel to those that sit most in darkness and in the shadow of death; and guide one another's feet into the way of peace. And then we shall be like him who is in our hearts, meek and lowly; and so we shall find rest unto our souls. And then, when he who is now our life shall appear, we shall also appear with him in glory.

And when we have received the unction of the Holy One in our souls, we are then come to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to the Church of the first-born which are written in heaven. And yet some that were so did not know by what death they should glorify God. And in death the body is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption; sown in dishonour, raised in glory; sown in weakness, raised in power; sown in imperfection, raised in perfection; for this mortal must put on immortality. Thus, though we are risen with Christ in our souls, spirits and minds, serving the law of God in this life with a perfect heart—nay, though sin dwell in our flesh, yet if we let it not reign in our mortal or imperfect bodies, so that we obey it not in the lusts thereof—then the Holy Spirit dwelleth in our minds, and in our bodies, which are the temples of the Holy Ghost. But if we let sin reign, then our souls and bodies are dens of thieves and murderers, and the habitations of all devils.

This for the present is my understanding, which I pray may be enlightened and helped by the Father of Lights, from whom is every perfect gift to myself and all mankind, my brethren—who have several measures of the same light, and divers gifts by the same spirit, of which I desire to be made partaker from themselves; and shall highly rejoice myself therein, with them. But the ground to the understanding of the things here mentioned, and of all things contained in the Scriptures, is exactly described in this author's writings. For they discover both where the things themselves are to be found, in which are hidden all divine and natural Mysteries, and likewise shew, as with a finger, how those secret things have proceeded to their being and manifestation, from the infinite Incomprehensibility, wherein nothing can be perceived—and yet all things have proceeded from thence; and how they have come to be as they are, to the discerning of what the effable, manifested, revealed God is, and what all creatures whatsoever are, we ourselves amongst the rest, and how we may attain to the true, only, and eternal happiness and blessedness of life everlasting, with and in God.

And can there be anything more useful, beneficial, necessary and worthy than this? Also further, by his writings we may come to understand how Christ is the Saviour of all men: and yet all will not attain salvation. Though it be confessed, and must be granted, that eternal salvation is attained by some infants, also by some innocent, ignorant persons of years that have been born of Heathenish, of Jewish and of Christian parents, being such as have served God according to the law of their forefathers, with an upright conscience; as Paul, who was a Jew; and so the eunuch, servant to Candace, Queen of Ethiopia, a stranger; and Cornelius, the Centurion; and all others fearing God, and working righteousness, in every nation are accepted of him, though they know nothing, as the Apostles knew it, of the great and common salvation that hath appeared to all men.

For, if any be cleansed from his sins, it is done by the blood of Jesus Christ, which cleanseth us from all sin; and this is effected in us and for us, though we know not of it, nor how it is done.

And indeed, had not the Holy Scripture mentioned this thing concerning the blood of Christ, it had not been possible for any man, but such as the Prophets and Apostles were, to have procured any that are now called Christians to believe and confess it.

Neither can any one understand this, though he read of it in the Scriptures, but by the Holy Spirit within himself, which proceedeth from the Father and the Son in the soul of every one; and by the Word in the heart, the Word of faith, which is God and Christ, even that true, divine Light which lighteth every one that cometh into the world.

The same also may be said concerning all those that have been, are, or shall be saved, though they attain not in this life the understanding of the Mysteries of salvation, as those did who wrote the Holy Scriptures; neither can any one understand them as they did, but by the same gift of the Holy Spirit in the soul.

Therefore let none boast that he is not born among those that are called Heathen, but among those that were outwardly called Jews of old, or Christians now, or of the Church of Rome, or Protestants, or of the reformed religion, or Presbyterians, Independents, Separatists, Seekers, or Perfectists; though every one of these has outwardly a high prerogative and excellency above the Heathen, yet their lives and fruits which do not exceed the lives and fruits of the Heathen will rise up in judgment against themselves. But let every soul in love rejoice with all other souls in this: that God is our Father, in whom we live and move and have our being, ruling in our souls, and manifesting his infinite grace and mercy, and bringing all things to pass according to his inconceivable wisdom and goodness, and according to the purpose of his good will towards men, which is his eternal Gospel: To those that hearken and yield to his will and word of life always calling, in the soul of every one (or else none could be condemned for neglecting and contemning his call, as some will be), also provoking the soul to forsake that which it perceiveth to be evil, and embrace and co-work with that which it perceiveth to be good, holy and divine within itself.
Therefore also let every soul grope after God in its heart, that it may feel and know him, whom to know is life eternal; and feel the hope of enjoying the inestimable good things that are laid up for them that love God, though few here know anything thereof; and yet he will certainly give them unto us at that day, which [he] himself hath appointed, which day will also assuredly come, though no man knoweth when, nor what, it will be or bring forth, but he to whom God doth reveal it.

And, indeed, the writings of such persons, whose understandings have been filled with spiritual, divine Wisdom, are to be prized above all others. And though it be an exceeding happiness and joy to us that God hath bestowed so large understanding on those that have written the Scriptures, therefore we ought diligently and frequently to read and deeply consider them; yet, in most of the Mysteries thereof the meaning remaineth very dark to us—we having so little knowledge of the things spoken of. Therefore, in exceeding love of the Scriptures, how highly should we value and esteem the writings of this author, Jacob Behme, which disclose the very things which are but briefly hinted at therein, and this so fundamentally as to satisfy all the objections of reason that can be made; and which also direct us plainly in the way to find the infallible Conductor, the Holy Spirit, which will open our understandings to discern those hidden Mysteries mentioned in the Scriptures so long ago (that we, through patience and comfort of them, might have hope), and yet but darkly, of purpose that some things should be kept secret from the beginning of the world, and not be revealed till the due time and season in every age, and some not till this last age, which is appointed for the manifesting of all Mysteries.
And because this author could not so deeply and fundamentally disclose these Mysteries except in such significant, though hard, terms of expression as he useth, therefore he wrote for the satisfaction of his loving friends some explanatory Tables, and a Clavis [Key], which are already printed in English, yet still, for all that, they are accounted very difficult to be understood.

And I also, who have much and studiously traced his writings over, have found them difficult—but far exceeding in recompense the utmost pains that I could possibly bestowed upon them. I find, also, that the understanding of them cometh by degrees, and frequent loving conversation in all the parts and pieces he hath written. Yet, also I must say, that this book, Aurora, hath conduced more to open my mind to the understanding of all his writings, and of all Mysteries, both natural and divine (and so, consequently, of the Holy Scriptures) than any other helps and books which I could ever meet withal besides.

Which the Reader will also perceive, by the diligent perusal of this book, in a continued order, from the beginning onwards, and find whatsoever his heart desireth or ever longed for, and that it is, as this author says near the end of the Preface to this book,

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

And though it was not quite finished at the time when he wrote it, nor ever after, being it was taken away and kept from him, till he had written several complete treatises; and so in them the defect of the Aurora was supplied in abundant measure, for instead of thirty sheets which that book wanted to the end, there are written of the same Mysteries—and at a time when he had fuller knowledge and also leave to declare his knowledge and set it down in writing — more than three hundred sheets of paper, which contain all Mysteries in succinct terms, very deeply expressed. But in his Aurora the ground of those terms is largely and plainly described in a childish way, after the manner of the infancy of his high manifestation; so that it is a large and most clear A B C, being the fitter and plainer for beginners, and with which his other books may the easier be understood; and it is a summary contents of all his Mysteries, and may serve instead of a manuduction, introduction and key, to unlock all the difficult expressions in his other books.

And that, because it explains the first ground concerning the seven properties of the eternal nature (which here he calleth the seven qualifying or fountain spirits or qualities, which are the seven spirits of God, in, and from, and to all eternity), with notes of reference to the book of The Three Principles, and to The Threelfold Life of Man, which are the supply to the want of finishing this book, and which he wrote down with his own hand, in their several proper places by way of exposition, in a manuscript of Michael von Endern's, his own written copy being kept from him by Gregory Richter, the Superintendent at Görlitz. The Aurora was published in print, with many whole verses and lines left out, in 1634, printed in High Dutch, but the beforementioned notes were added by the author in the year 1620, and are here inserted, with alphabetical marks,* in this translation into English, which is made from a copy taken from that of his own hand-writing, which was kept laid up for twenty-seven years together, till the 26th of November in the year 1641, when it was brought to light by D. P. S., a Burgomaster at Görlitz, and presented to George Pflugden, in Dresden, Marshal of the house of the Prince Elector of Saxony, but is now in the hands of a worthy person in Holland, and lately printed in High Dutch. And so the rest of this author's manuscripts in his hands will be printed by degrees, in nine parts, in the same order in which the author wrote them, this \textit{Aurora} being the first.

* In the present reprint the alphabetical marks are omitted. The notes added by J. B. in 1620 are quoted and set within square brackets in the text.—[EDS.]

But the author was resolved to leave it unfinished, to remain as an eternal remembrance of the endeavour to suppress and quash this revelation in its first dawning: which will also be manifested at the last day, when all things shall appear to be judged whether they be good or evil; and everything receive its just recompense of reward.

Therefore, dear Reader, in true, sincere love to thee as to myself I commend this book, \textit{Aurora}, to thy reading, whosoever thou art; desiring thy prayers, that is, thy good desires, that I, with thee, may be received into the grace and mercy of the almighty, omnipresent God, whose whole fulness is always with and in himself, everywhere; and so be protected through this miserable pilgrimage, under corruption, in the vale of sinful flesh, and that most hurting us, in the greatest pleasure, honour, pomp, riches and fulness of worldly content, in this transitory life, till we awake and meet together in the everlasting joy of our ever-blessed God, who filleth us throughout, and all things else, with himself, within and without, which we should perceive, if we would learn to distinguish him from the creature in everything.

I willingly yield myself to be thine, though with the acknowledgement that I am one of the unworthiest of the children of men.

JOHN SPARROW.

To the Reader

Jacob Behme's Preface, being a brief information concerning the Two Qualities, the Evil and the Good in Nature, from the beginning to the end

The Contents of this book Aurora

Rev. i . 4 .

4. John to the Seven Churches in Asia, Grace be unto you, and Peace from him which is, and which was, and which is to come, and from the seven Spirits which are before his Throne.

Rev. 4. part of the 3. verse.
& 5, to the 11.
3. And there was a Rainbow, round about the Throne, in sight like unto an Emerald.

5. And out of the Throne proceeded Lightenings and Thundrings, and Voyces: and there were seven Lamps of Fire Burning before the Throne, which are the Seven Spirits of God.

6. And before the Throne there was a Sea of Glass like unto Crystal: and in the midst of the Throne and round about the Throne, were four Beasts full of Eyes before and behind.

7. And the First Beast was like a Lyon, and the Second Beast like a Calf, and the Third Beast had a Face as a Man, and the Fourth Beast was like a flying Eagle.

8. And the Four Beasts had each of them six wings about him, and they were full of Eyes within, and they rest not Day and Night, saying, Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.
9. And when those Beasts give glory and honour and thanks to him that sate on the Throne, who liveth for Ever and Ever, 10. The Four and twenty Elders fall down before him that sate on the Throne, and worship him that liveth for Ever and Ever, and cast their Crowns before the Throne, saying,

11. Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive Glory and Honour and Power; for thou hast Created all things, and for thy Pleasure they are and were Created.

Rev. 5. 6, 8, to the 10.

6. And I beheld, and Lo, in the Midst of the Throne and of the Four Beasts, and in the midst of the Elders stood a Lamb as it had been slain, having seven Horns, and seven Eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the Earth.

8. And when he had taken the Book, the four Beasts and four and twenty Elders fell down before the Lamb, having Every one of them Harps and Golden Vialls full of Odours, which are the Prayers of Saints.

9. And they sung a New Song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the Book, and to Open the Seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy Blood, out of Every Kindred, and Tongue, and People, and Nation.

10. And hast made us unto our God Kings and Priests, and we shall reign on the Earth.

Isaiah 9. 2.
2. The People that walked in Darkness, have seen a great Light: they that dwell in the Land of the shadow of Death, upon them hath the Light shined.

Matth. 4. 16.

16. The People which sate in Darkness saw great Light: and to them which sate in the Region and shadow of Death, Light is sprung up.

J. B. PREFACE FOR THE AURORA

To the Courteous Reader

1. COURTEOUS Reader, I compare the whole Philosophy, Astrology, and Theology, together with their mother, to a goodly tree which groweth in a fair garden of pleasure.

2. Now the earth in which the tree standeth affords sap continually to the tree, whereby the tree hath its living quality: But the tree in itself groweth from the sap of the earth, becomes large, and spreadeth itself abroad with its branches: And then, as the earth worketh with its power * upon the tree, to make it grow and increase, so the tree also worketh continually with its branches, with all its strength, that it might still bear good fruit abundantly.

* "power" (Kraft), "virtue." In the great majority of cases where Sparrow uses the word "power," the original, Kraft, is best rendered by the word "virtue," as St Martin has done.

3. But when the tree beareth few fruit, and those but small, shrivelled, rotten, and wormeaten, the fault doth not lie in the will of the tree, as if it desired purposely to bear evil fruit, because it is a goodly tree of good quality. But here lieth the fault: because there is often great cold, great heat, and mildew, caterpillars and other worms happen to it; for the quality in the deep, from the influence of the stars, spoileth it, and that maketh it bear but few good fruit.

4. Now the tree is of this condition, that the bigger and older it is, the sweeter fruit it beareth: In its younger years it beareth few fruit, which the crude and wild nature of the ground or earth causeth, and the superfluous moisture in the tree: And though it beareth many fair blossoms, yet the most of its apples fall off whilst they are growing; unless it standeth in a very good soil or mould. Now this tree also hath a good sweet quality; but there are three others, which are contrary to it, namely, the bitter, the sour, and the astringent.

5. As the tree is, so will its fruit be, till the sun worketh on them and maketh them sweet; so that they become of a pleasant taste, and its fruit must also hold out in rain, wind and tempest.

6. But when the tree groweth old, that its branches wither and the sap ascendeth no more, then below the stem or stock there grow many suckers; at last from the root twigs grow also, and transfigure the old tree, shewing that it also was once a green twig and young tree, and is now become old. For nature, or the sap, struggleth so long till the stock groweth quite dry; and then it is to be cut down and burnt in the fire.

* "struggleth" (wehret sich), "resisteth" or "persisteth"; the real meaning implies both renderings. St M. has, "se conserve."

7. Now observe what I have signified by this similitude: The garden of this tree signifieth the world; the soil or mould signifieth nature; the stock of the tree signifieth the stars; by the branches are meant the elements; the fruit which grow on this tree signify men; the sap in the tree denoteth the pure Deity. Now men were made out of nature, the stars, and elements; but God the Creator reigneth in all: even as the sap doth in the whole tree.

 "men were made out of nature," etc. Note by St Martin: "The author does not invariably use the word 'nature,' as applying to the actual and visible world."

8. But there are two qualities in nature, even until the Judgment of God: The one is pleasant, heavenly and holy; the other is fierce, wrathful, hellish and thirsty.

9. Now the good one qualifieth and worketh continually with all industry to bring forth good fruit, and the Holy Ghost reigneth therein, and affords thereunto sap and life: the bad one springeth and driveth with all its endeavour to bring forth bad fruit continually, to which the devil affordeth sap and hellish flame. Now both are in the tree of nature, and men are made out of that tree, and live in this world, in this garden, between both, in great danger; suddenly the sun shineth on them; by and by, winds, rain, and snow fall on them.

10. That is, if man elevateth his spirit into the Deity, then the Holy Ghost moveth, springeth and qualifies in him: But if he permit his spirit to sink into the world, in lust towards evil, then the devil and hellish sap stir and reign in him.

11. Even as the apple on the tree become th corrupt, rotten and worm-eaten, when frost, heat, and mildew fall on it, and easily falls off and perisheth: So doth man also when he suffers the devil to rule in him with his poison.

12. Now as in nature there are, spring up and reign, good and bad; even so in man: But man is the child of God, whom God hath made out of the best kernel of nature, to reign in the good, and to overcome the bad: Though evil sticketh unto man, even as in nature the evil hangeth on the good, yet he can overcome the evil if he elevateth his spirit in God; for then the Holy Ghost stirs and moveth in him, and helps him to overcome.

13. As the good quality in nature is potent to overcome the evil, for the good quality is and cometh from God, and the Holy Ghost is the Ruler therein, even so is the fierce wrathful quality powerful to overcome in a malicious wicked soul: For the devil is a potent ruler in the wrath or fierceness, and is an eternal prince of the same.

* " in the wrath," etc. Note by St Martin: " By the word 'wrath,' the author understands the eternal power itself, as separated from lore, justice and light."

14. But man, through the fall of Adam and Eve, hath cast himself into fierce wrathfulness, so that the evil hangeth on him; otherwise his moving and driving  would be only in the good. But now his moving and driving are in both. And it is as St Paul saith, Know ye not, that to whom you yield yourselves servants in obedience, his servants ye are, to whom ye obey, either to sin unto death, or to the obedience of God unto righteousness.

 "his moving and driving" (sein Quell und Trieb), "his source and motive power." St M. has "son impulsion," "his impelling power." In the next par. and in several which follow, Sparrow renders the word Trieb, "impulse," or "inclination"; of these, the former is the better of the two.

15. But because man hath an impulse or inclination to both good and evil, he may lay hold on which he pleaseth; for he liveth in this world between both, and both qualities, the good and the bad, are in him; in whichever man moveth, with that he is endued, either with a holy, or with a hellish power. For Christ saith, My Father will give the Holy Ghost to those that ask Him. [Luke xi. 13]

16. Besides, God commanded man to do good, and forbad him to do evil; and now doth daily call and cry aloud, preach and exhort man unto good; whereby we see well enough that God willeth not evil, but his will is, That his kingdom should come, and his will be done, on earth as it is in heaven. But now man is poisoned through sin, that the fierce wrathful quality, as well as the good, reigneth in him, and he is now half dead, and in his gross ignorance can no more know God his Creator, nor nature and its operation: Yet hath nature used its best endeavours from the beginning till now, to which God hath given his Holy Ghost, so that it [nature] hath at all times generated * wise, holy, and understanding men, who learned to know nature, and their Creator, and who always in their writings and teachings have been a light to the world, whereby God hath raised his Church on earth, to his eternal praise. Against which the devil hath raged, and spoiled many a noble twig, through the wrathful fierceness in nature, whose prince and god he is.

* "generated," lit., "generated and prepared," i.e. guided and instructed.

17. For nature hath many times prepared and fitted a learned judicious man with good gifts, and then the devil hath done his utmost to seduce that man, and bring him into carnal pleasures, into pride, into a desire to be rich, and to be in authority and power. Thereby the devil hath ruled in him, and the fierce wrathful quality hath overcome the good; his understanding and his knowledge and wisdom have been turned into heresy and error, and he hath made a mock of the truth, and been the author of great errors on earth, and a good leader of the devil's host.

18. For, ever since the beginning, the bad quality in nature hath wrestled with the good, and doth still wrestle, and hath elevated itself, and spoiled many a noble fruit even in the mother's womb, as it plainly appeareth, first by Cain and Abel, who came from one womb. From his mother's womb Cain was a despiser of God, and proud; but Abel, on the contrary, was a humble man, and one that feared God.

19. The same is seen also in the three sons of Noah; as also by Abraham's sons, Isaac, and Ismael, especially by Isaac's in Esau and Jacob, who struggled and wrestled even in the mother's womb: therefore said God, Jacob have I loved, and Esau have I hated; which is nothing else but that both qualities in nature have vehemently wrestled the one with the other.
20. For when God at that time moved in nature, and would reveal himself unto the world through righteous Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and would raise a Church to himself on earth for his glory, then in nature malice also moved, and its prince Lucifer. Seeing there was good and bad in man, therefore both qualities could reign in him, and therefore there was born at once in one womb an evil man and a good man.

21. Also it is clearly seen by the first world, as also by the second, even unto the end of our time, how the heavenly and the hellish kingdoms in nature have always wrestled the one with the other, and stood in great travail, even as a woman in the birth. This doth most clearly appear by Adam and Eve. For in Paradise there grew up a tree of both qualities, of good and bad, wherewith Adam and Eve were to be tempted, to try whether they would hold out in the good quality in the angelical kind and form. For the Creator forbad Adam and Eve to eat of the fruit: But the evil quality in nature wrestled with the good, and brought Adam and Eve into a lust and longing to eat of both. Thereupon they presently came to be of a bestial form and kind, and did eat of good and bad, and must increase and live in a bestial manner; and so many a noble twig begotten or born of them perished.

22. Afterwards it is seen how God wrought in nature, when the holy fathers in the first world were born: As Abel, Seth, Enos, Kenan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Henoch, Methusalah, Lamech, and holy Noah. These made the name of the Lord known to the world, and preached Repentance: For the Holy Ghost wrought in them.

23. On the contrary, the hellish god also wrought in nature, and begot mockers and despisers, first Cain and his posterity: And it was with the first world as with a young tree, which groweth, is green, and blossometh fairly, but bringeth little good fruit, by reason of its wild kind. So nature in the first world brought forth but little good fruit, though it blossomed fair in worldly knowledge, and luxury or wantonness, which could not apprehend the Holy Spirit, who wrought in nature then, as well as now.

24. Therefore said God, It repents me, that I have made man, and he stirred up nature so, that all flesh which lived on dry land died, excepting the root and stock, that remained in virtue: and so he hath hereby dugged the wild tree, and manured it, that it should bear better fruit. But when the same sprang up again, it brought forth good and bad fruit again: Among the sons of Noah there were found again mockers and despisers of God, and there grew hardly any good branch on the tree, which brought forth any holy and good fruit: The other branches were bearing also, and brought forth wild Heathen.

25. But when God saw that man was thus dead in his knowledge, he moved nature again, and shewed unto man how there was good and bad therein, that man should avoid evil, and live unto the good; and he caused fire to fall down out of nature, and fired Sodom and Gomorrah, for a terrible example to the world. But when the blindness of men grew predominant, and they refused to be taught by the spirit of God, he gave laws and precepts unto them, shewing how they should behave themselves, and confirmed the laws and precepts with wonders, and with signs, lest the knowledge of the true God should be quite extinct. But for all this, the light did not manifest itself, for the darkness and wrathful fierceness in nature struggled against it, and the prince of darkness ruled powerfully.
26. But when the tree of nature came to its middle age, then it began to bear some mild and sweet fruit, to shew that it would henceforth bear pleasant fruit. Then were born the holy prophets, out of the sweet branch of the tree, who taught and preached of the light, which hereafter should overcome the wrathful fierceness in nature. And then there arose a light in nature among the Heathen, so that they knew nature, and her operation, although this was a light in the wild nature only, and was not yet the holy light.

27. For the wild nature was not yet overcome, and light and darkness wrestled so long the one with the other, till the sun arose, and with its heat forced this tree, so that it did bear pleasant sweet fruit; that is, till there came the Prince of Light, out of the heart of God, and became man in nature, and wrestled in his human body, in the power of the divine light, in the wild nature. That same Prince and Royal Twig grew up in nature, and became a tree in nature, and spread its branches abroad from the east to the west; and encompassed the whole nature, and wrestled and fought with the fierce wrath which was in nature, and with the prince thereof, till he overcame and triumphed, as a king in nature, and took the prince of wrath or fierceness captive in his own house.

28. This being done, there grew out of the Royal Tree, which was grown in nature, many thousand legions of precious sweet twigs, all which had the scent and taste of that precious tree. Though there fell upon them rain, snow, hail and tempestuous storms, so that many a twig was torn and beaten off from the tree, yet still others grew in their places. For the wrath or fierceness in nature, and the prince thereof, raised great tempests, with hail, thunder, lightning and rain, so that many glorious twigs were torn from the sweet and good tree.

29. But these twigs were of such a pleasant, sweet and delightful taste, that no human nor angelical tongue is able to express it: For there was great power and virtue in them, so that they were good to heal the wild Heathen. Whatever Heathen did eat of the twig of this tree was delivered from the wild nature in which he was born, and became a sweet branch in this precious tree, and sprang in that tree, and bore precious fruit, like the Royal Tree. Therefore many Heathen hastened to the precious tree, where the precious twigs lay, which the prince of darkness, by his storms and tempestuous winds, had torn off; and whatever Heathen did smell at the twig so torn off was healed of his wild wrath or fierceness, which he had brought from his mother into the world.

30. But when the prince of darkness saw that the Heathen strove and contended about these twigs, and not about the tree, therein he found great loss and damage, and then he ceased with his storms toward the east and south, and placed a merchant under the tree, who gathered up the twigs which were fallen from the precious tree: And when the Heathen came, and enquired after the good and virtuous twigs, then the merchant presented and offered them for money, to make gain of the precious tree. For this the prince of wrath or fierceness required at the hands of his merchant, because the tree was grown upon his ground and land, and spoiled his soil.

31. So when the Heathen saw that the fruit of the precious tree was put to sale, they flocked to the merchant, and bought of the fruit of the tree; and they came to buy also from foreign islands, even from the ends of the world. Now when the merchant saw that his wares were in request and esteem, he plotted how he might gather a great treasure to his master, and so sent factors abroad everywhere, to offer his wares to sell, praising them highly: But he sophisticated the wares, and sold other fruit instead of the good, which were not grown on the good tree; this he did to increase his master's treasure.

32. But the Heathen, and all the islands and nations which dwelt on the earth, were all grown on the wild tree, which was good and bad, and therefore were half blind, and did not discern the good tree (which, however, spread its branches from the east to the west) else they would not have bought of the false wares.

33. But because they knew not the precious tree, which spread its branches over them all, all of them ran after and to the factors, and bought of them mixed false wares instead of good, and supposed they served for health: But because all of them longed after the good tree, (which, however, moved over them all), many of them were healed, because of their great desire they had to the tree. For the fragrancy of the tree, which moved over them, healed them of their wrath or fierceness and wild nature, and not the false wares of the factors: this continued a long time.

34. Now when the prince in the darkness, who is the source of wrath or fierceness, malice and perdition, perceived that men were healed of their poison and wild nature by the fragrancy of the precious tree, he was enraged, and planted a wild tree towards the north, which sprang up and grew in the fierceness or wrath of nature, and made proclamation, saying: This is the Tree of Life; he that eateth of it, shall be healed and live
35. For in that place, where the wild tree grew, was a wild place, and the people there had the true light of God from the beginning, even unto that time, and to this day, though unknown: and the tree grew on the mount Hagar in the house of Ismael the mocker. But when proclamation was made of the tree, Behold, this is the Tree of Life! then the wild people, who were not born of God, but of the wild nature, flocked unto the tree, and loved the wild tree, and did eat of its fruit.

36. And the tree grew to a mighty bigness, by the sap of wrath or fierceness in nature, and spread abroad its branches, from the north to the east and west: But the tree had its source and root from the wild nature, which was good and bad; and as the tree was, so were its fruits. But though the men of this place were grown out of the wild nature, yet the tree grew over them all, and grew so huge, that it reached with its branches even unto the esteemed precious land or country under the holy tree.

37. But the cause that the wild tree grew to such a huge bigness, was because the nations under the good tree all ran after the factors who sold the false wares, and did eat of the false fruits, which were good and bad, and supposed they were healed thereby, and meddled not with the holy, good, effectual tree.

38. In the meanwhile they grew more blind, weak and impotent, and were disabled to suppress the growing of the wild tree towards the north: For they were too weak and impotent, and they saw well enough that the tree was wild, and bad; but they wanted strength, and could not suppress the growing of the tree.
39. Yet if they had not run after the false wares those factors sold, and had not eaten of the false fruits, but rather eaten of the precious tree, then they might have gotten strength to oppose the wild tree. But because they ran a whoring after the wild nature in human conceits and opinions, in the lusts of their hearts, in a hypocritical way, therefore the wild nature did predominate over them, and the wild tree grew high and large over them, and spoiled them with its wild rankness.

40. For the prince of wrath or fierceness in nature gave his power to the tree, to spoil men that did eat of the wild fruits of the factors: Because they forsook the Tree of Life, and sought after their own cleverness, as mother Eve did in Paradise, therefore their own innate quality predominated in them, and brought them into strong delusions, as St Paul saith. [2 Thess. ii. 11] And the prince of wrath or fierceness raised wars and tempests from the wild tree towards the north, against the people and nations that were not born of the wild tree; and the tempest that came from the wild tree overthrew them in their weakness and faintness.

41. And the merchant under the good tree dissembled with the nations of the south and west, and towards the north, and commended his wares hugely, and cunningly deceived the simple ones; and those that were witty, he made them his factors, that they also might have their livelihood or livings out of it, and he brought it so far that nobody saw or knew the holy tree any more, and so he got all the land to himself, and then made proclamation, 1 am the stock of the good tree, and stand on the root of the good tree, and am engrafted into the Tree of Life, buy my wares which I sell: and then you shall be healed of your wild birth, and live for ever.

42. I am grown out of the root of the good tree, and the fruit of the holy tree is in my power, and I sit on the throne of the divine power; I have power in heaven and on earth, Come unto me, and buy for money the fruit of life.

43. Whereupon all nations flocked to him, and did buy and eat, even till they fainted: All the kings of the south, the west, and towards the north, did eat the fruits of the factor, and lived under a great impotence; for the wild tree of the north grew more and more over them, and made waste of them a long time. And there was a miserable time upon earth, such as never was since the world stood; but men thought that time to be good, so terribly had the merchant under the good tree blinded them.

44. But in the evening God in his mercy took pity on man's misery and blindness, and stirred up the good tree again, even that glorious divine tree, which did bear the fruit of life; then there grew a twig nigh unto the root, out of that precious tree, and was green, and to it was given the sap and spirit of the tree, and it spoke with the tongue of man, and shewed to every one the precious tree, and its voice was heard in many countries.

45. Then men resorted thither to see and to hear what was the matter, and there was shewn unto them the precious and vigorous Tree of Life, of which men had eaten at the beginning, and were delivered of their wild nature. And they were mightily rejoiced, and did eat of the Tree of Life with great joy and refreshing, and so got new strength from the Tree of Life, and sang a new song concerning the true real Tree of Life, and so were delivered from their wild birth, and then hated the merchant and his factors, as also their false wares.

46. But all those came that did hunger and thirst after the Tree of Life, and those that sat in the dust, and they did eat of the holy tree, and were healed of their impure birth and wrath, or fierceness of nature, in which they lived; and so were engrafted into the Tree of Life. But only the factors of the merchant came not, and his and their dissemblers, and those that made their gains with false wares, and had gathered treasure together, for they were drowned and quite dead in the gain of the merchant's whoredom, and lived in the wild nature; and so their anguish and shame (which was discovered) kept them back, because they went a whoring so long with the merchant, and seduced the souls of men; notwithstanding they glori ed that they were engrafted into the Tree of Life, and lived in sanctity by a divine power, and hawked about the fruit of life.

47. Now because their shame, deceit, covetousness, knavery and wickedness were discovered, they waxed dumb, and stayed behind; they were ashamed,* and repented not of their abominations and idolatry, and so went not with the hungry and thirsty to the Fountain of Eternal Life; and therefore they grew faint in their thirst, and their torment riseth up from eternity to eternity, and they are gnawed in their conscience.

* "they were ashamed," etc., lit., "they were ashamed to repent." St M. has, "ils n'osaient pas faire pénitence," "they did not dare [or venture] to repent."

48. Now the merchant, seeing that the deceit of his false wares was discovered, grew very wroth, and despaired, and bent his bow against the holy people, who would buy no more of his wares, and so destroyed many of the holy people, and blasphemed the green twig that was grown up out of the Tree of Life. But then the great prince Michael, who standeth before God, came and fought for the holy people, and overcame.

49. But the prince of darkness perceiving that his merchant had a fall, and that his deceit was discovered, raised a tempest from the north out of the wild tree against the holy people, and the merchant of the south made an assault upon them: then the holy people grew hugely in their blossom, even as it was in the beginning, when the holy and precious tree grew, and that overcame the wrath or fierceness in nature and its prince; thus it was at that time.

50. Now when the noble and holy tree was revealed to all nations, so that they saw how it moved over them and spread its fragrancy over all people, and that any one that pleased might eat of it, then the people grew weary of eating its fruit, which grew on the tree, and longed to eat of the root of the tree; and the cunning and wise people sought after the root, and contended about the same: so the strife was great about the root of the tree, insomuch that they forgot to eat of the fruit of the sweet tree, by reason of the controversy about the root of the tree.

51. Now they minded neither the root nor the tree, but the prince of darkness had another design, intending something else; when he saw that they would eat no more of the good tree, but contended about the root, he perceived that they were grown very weak and faint, and that the wild nature predominated in them again.

52. Therefore he stirred them up to pride, so that every one supposed that he had the root at hand, every one must look after and hear him and reverence him: Whereby they built their palaces and great houses, and served in secrecy their idol, Mammon; whereby the lay people were troubled and caused to offend, and so lived in carnal pleasures, in the desire of the wild nature, and served their belly in wantonness, though they fell into misery, relying upon the fruit of the tree, which moved over them all, that thereby they might be healed.

53. In the meanwhile they served the prince of darkness according to the impulse of the wild nature, and the precious tree stood there only for a May-game or mocking-stock, and many lived like wild beasts, and led a wicked life, in pride, pomp, stateliness and lasciviousness, and the rich consumed the labour and sweat of the poor, and oppressed him in addition.

54. All evil actions were approved of for bribery: The laws issued forth out of the evil quality in nature, and every one strove after riches and goods, after pride, pomp and stateliness; there was no deliverer for the poor; scolding, railing, cursing and swearing were not disapproved nor held vicious, and so they defiled themselves in the wrathful or fierce quality, even as a swine tumbleth in the dirt and mire.

55. Thus did the shepherds with the sheep: they retained no more than the bare name of the noble tree; its fruit, virtue and life were only a cover to their sins. Thus the world lived at that time, saving a small remnant or number, which were generated in the midst among the thorns in great tribulation and contempt, out of all nations upon the earth, from the east to the west.

56. There was no difference, they all lived upon the impulse of the wild nature, in impotence, even to a small number, which were delivered out of all nations, as it was before the deluge, and before the growing of the noble tree in nature; and thus it was also at that time.

57. But why men, in the end, did long so eagerly after the root of the tree, is a mystery,* and hitherto it was concealed from the wise and prudent; neither will it rise up to the height, but in the deep, in great simplicity.

* "a mystery, and hitherto," etc. A free but correct rendering would be: "a mystery which hitherto was concealed from the wise and prudent; neither will it be made manifest openly to the high-minded, but open out in the depth of humility in great simplicity."

58. As indeed the noble tree with its kernel and heart hath always been concealed from the worldly wise, though they supposed they stood, some at the root, and some at the very top of the tree; yet this was no more than a shining mist before their eyes.

59. But the noble tree, from the beginning till now, strove in nature to its utmost, that it might be revealed to all people, [of all] tongues, and languages, against which the devil in the wild nature raged, and fought like a fierce lion.

60. But the noble tree bore the more and the sweeter fruit, and revealed itself more and more against all the fury and madness of the devil, even to the end: and then it was light. For there grew at the root of the noble tree a green twig, which gat the sap and life of the root, to which was given the spirit of the tree; so that it transfigured or made clearly manifest the noble tree in its glorious virtue and power, and nature also, in which it grew.
61. Now when this was done, then both the gates of nature, the knowledge of the two qualites of good and bad, were opened, and so the Heavenly Jerusalem was manifested, and the kingdom of hell also, to all men upon earth. And the light and voice was heard in the four winds, and the false merchant in the south was quite revealed, and his own hated him, and rooted him out from the whole earth.

62. This being done, the wild tree towards the north withered, and all people beheld with wonder or great astonishment the holy tree, even in foreign islands. And the prince in the darkness was revealed, and his mysteries were discovered, and his shame, ignominy and perdition the men upon earth did see and know, for it was light.

63. This lasted but a short time; for men forsook that light, and lived in carnal pleasures, to their own perdition: For as the gate of light had opened itself, so did the gate of darkness also; and from them both went forth all manner of powers and arts that were therein.

64. For as men had lived from the beginning in the growth of the wild nature, and hunted after earthly things only, so in the end things were not mended, but rather grew worse.

65. In the middle of this time were raised many great stormy winds from the west towards the east and north: But from the north there went forth a great stream of water towards the holy tree, and spoiled many twigs in the holy tree, and in the midst of the stream it was light, and so the wild tree towards the north withered.

66. Then the prince in the darkness was enraged in the great motion of nature. For the holy tree moved in nature, as one that would by and by be elevated and kindled in the \textit{glorification} of the holy divine \textit{Majesty}, and cast the wrath or fierceness from it, which had so long stood against it, and had wrestled with it.

67. In like manner the tree of darkness, wrath, fierceness and perdition moved furiously, as one that would be kindled by and by, and therein the prince with his \textit{legions} went forth to spoil the noble fruit of the good tree.

68. And it stood horribly in nature in the fierce quality, in that quality wherein the prince of darkness dwelleth, to speak after the manner of men; even as when men see terrible and cruel weather coming on, which maketh a horrible appearance, with lightning and tempestuous winds, at which men stand terrified.

69. On the other side, in the good quality in which the \textit{holy tree of life} stood, all was pleasant, sweet and delightful, like a heavenly joy fulness. These two moved furiously the one against the other, till the whole nature was kindled of both qualities in one moment.

70. The tree of life was kindled in its own quality by the fire of the \textit{Holy Ghost}, and its quality burnt in the fire of heavenly joyfulness, in an unsearchable light and glory.

71. All \textit{voices} of the heavenly joyfulness, which have been from eternity in the good quality, qualified, mixed or harmonized in this fire; and the light of the Holy Trinity shone into the tree of life, and replenished or filled the whole quality in which it stood.

72. The tree of the fierce quality, which is the other part in nature, was kindled also, and burnt in the fire of \textit{God's wrath} in a hellish flame; and the fierce source rose up into eternity, and the prince of darkness with his legions abode in the fierce wrathful quality, as in his own kingdom.

73. In this fire were consumed the earth, the stars, and the elements, for all were on fire at once, each in the fire of its own quality, and all became separable.* For the Ancient of Days moved himself in it, wherein every power, and all the creatures, and whatsoever can be named, even the powers of heaven, of the stars, and of the elements, became thin again, and were fashioned according to that form which they were in from the beginning of the creation. **

* "all became separable": St M. has, "dissolved."

 "For the Ancient of Days," etc., lit., "For the Ancient of Days moved himself, in whom are all powers [virtues], all creatures and all that can be named; and the powers of heaven, of the stars and of the elements became thin again," etc. The word "dünnne," "thin," is rendered "simple" by StM.

74. Only the two qualities, good and bad, which have been in nature the one in the other, were separated, and the bad one was given to the prince of malice and wrath, or fierceness, for an eternal habitation; and that is called Hell, or a Rejection, which in eternity no more apprehends or toucheth the good quality, but is an oblivion of all good, and that to its eternity.

75. In the other quality stood the Tree of eternal Life, and its source and offspring descended from the Holy Trinity, and the Holy Ghost shone into the same. And all men came forth which descended from the loins of Adam, who was the first man, each in his virtue, and in that quality in which each did grow on earth.
76. Those that on earth had eaten of the good tree, which is called JESUS CHRIST, in them flowed the mercy of God unto eternal joy; they had in them the power of the good quality, they were received into the good and holy quality, and they sang the song of their Bridegroom, each in his voice, according to his own holiness.

77. But those that were born in the light of nature, and of the Holy Ghost, and on earth never fully knew the Tree of Life, but were grown in its power, which overshadowed all men upon earth, as very many nations, heathen, and babes, which were also received into the same power wherein they were grown, and wherewith their spirit was clothed, they sang the song according to their power and measure in the noble Tree of eternal Life; for every one was glorified according to his power, virtue, measure and proportion.

78. The holy nature generated joyful, heavenly fruit, even as on earth it had generated fruit in both the qualities, which were both good and bad, so now it generated heavenly fulness of joy.

79. Those men who were now like angels, did each eat the fruit of his quality, and they sang the song of God, and the song of the Tree of eternal Life.

80. And that was in the Father as a holy play, a triumphing joy; for to that end all things at the beginning were made out of the Father, and now they abide so to all eternity.

81. But those who were grown on earth in the power of the tree of wrath, that is, those whom the fierce quality had overcome, and who were withered in the wickedness of their spirit, in their sins, all those came forth also, each in his power or faculty; and they were received into the kingdom of darkness, and each was invested in that power in which he was grown up; and their king is called Lucifer, viz. one expelled or driven forth from the light.

82. The hellish quality brought forth fruit also, as it had done upon earth; only, the good was severed or parted from it, and therefore now it brought forth fruit in its own quality. And these men (who were now like the spirits), did each eat the fruit of his quality, and so did the devils also.

83. For as there is a difference in men upon earth in their qualities, and all are not of one quality, condition or disposition, even so among the rejected reprobate spirits; and so also in the heavenly pomp in angels and men; and that lasteth unto its eternity. AMEN.

84. Courteous Reader, This is a short information concerning the two qualities in nature from the beginning to the end, how there arose from thence two kingdoms, a heavenly and a hellish, and how they stir in this time and strive the one against the other, and what the issue of it will be in the time to come.
THE CONTENTS OF THIS BOOK

By Way of Introduction

TO this book I have given this name,

The ROOT or MOTHER of Philosophy, Astrology, and Theology.

And that you may know what it doth treat of,

Observe,

I.

1. In the Philosophy it treateth of the divine power.
   I. What God is.
   II. How in the being of God, is created nature, the stars and the elements.
   III. From whence every thing hath its original.
   IV. How heaven and earth were created.
   V. How angels, men, and devils were created.
   VI. How heaven and hell, and whatever is creaturely, were created, and what the Two Qualities are in nature.

   All out of a true ground in the knowledge of the spirit, by the impulse and motion of God.

II.

2. In the Astrology it treateth,
   I. Of the powers of nature, of the stars and of the elements.
   II. How all creatures proceeded from thence.
   III. How the same do impel and rule all.
   IV. And work in all, and how good and bad are wrought by them in men and beasts.
   V. Whence it cometh that good and bad are, and reign in this world.
VI. And how the kingdoms of heaven and of hell consist therein.

3. My purpose is not to describe the course, place and name of all stars, and what is their annual conjunction, opposition, quadrate, or the like, and what they yearly and hourly operate, which, by a long process of time, and by diligent contemplation, observation, deep sense, calculation and computation, hath been observed by wise, skilful and expert men, who were rich and large in spirit.

4. Neither have I studied or learned the same, and I leave that to the learned to discourse of; my intention is to write according to the spirit and sense, and not according to speculation.

III.

5. In the Theology it treateth,
   I. Of the kingdom of Christ, what constituteth the same.
   II. How it is set in opposition to the kingdom of hell.
   III. How in nature it fighteth and striveth against the kingdom of hell.
   IV. How men, through faith and spirit, are able to overcome the kingdom of hell, and triumph in divine power and obtain eternal blessedness, and all this as a victory in the battle.
   V. How man, through the operation or working in the hellish quality, casts himself into perdition.
   VI. And what the issue of both will be at last.

6. The supreme title is AURORA, that is, The Dawning of the Day in the East, or Morning Redness in the rising of the SUN.
   It is a secret Mystery, concealed from the wise and prudent of this world, of which they themselves shall shortly be sensible: But to those who read this book in singleness of heart, with a desire after the Holy Spirit, who place their hope in God only, it will not be a hidden secret, but a manifest knowledge.

7. I will not explain this title, but commit it to the judgment of the impartial Reader, who wrestleth in the good quality of this world.

8. Now if Mr Critic, who qualifyeth or worketh with his wit in the fierce quality, gets this book into his hand, he will oppose it, as there is always a stirring and opposition between the kingdom of heaven and the kingdom of hell.

I. First, he will say that I ascend too high into the Deity, which is not a meet thing for me to do.

II. Then, secondly, he will say that I boast of the Holy Spirit, and that I had more need to live accordingly, and make demonstration of it by wondrous works or miracles.

III. Thirdly, he will say that I am not learned enough.

IV. Fourthly, he will say that I do it in a vainglorious way.

V. Fifthly, he will be much offended at the simplicity of the author; for in the world it is usual [or customary] to be mindful only of high things, and to be irritated by simplicity.

9. To these partial, worldly critics I set in opposition the patriarchs of the first world, who were mean despised men, against whom the world and the devil raged, as in the time of Henoch. When the holy fathers first preached [or when they began to preach] powerfully of the name of the Lord, they did not ascend with their bodies into heaven, and behold all with their eyes: yet the Holy Ghost revealed himself in their spirits.
10. Afterwards, it is seen in the next world among the holy patriarchs and prophets, who were all mean simple men, and some of them were herdsmen.

11. And when the MESSIAH, CHRIST, the Champion in the battle in nature, assumed the humanity, though he was the King and Prince of men, yet in this world he kept himself in a low estate and condition, and was a stranger to the world. And his Apostles were poor despised fishermen.

12. Nay, Christ himself returneth thanks to [Matt. xi. 25.] his heavenly Father, that he hath concealed these things from the worldly wise men, and revealed them unto babes.

13. Besides, it is seen how they also were poor sinners, having the impulses both of good and of bad in nature. And yet they reproved and preached against the sins of the world, yea, against their own sins, which they did by the impulse of the Holy Spirit, and not in vainglory.

14. Neither had they any ability from their own strength and power to teach of God's Mysteries in that kind, but all was by the impulse of God.

15. So neither can I say anything of myself, nor boast or write of anything, save this: that I am a simple man, and, besides, a poor sinner, and have need to pray daily, Lord, forgive us our sins; and to say with the Apostle, O Lord, thou hast redeemed us with thy blood.

16. Neither did I ascend into heaven, and behold all the works and creatures of God; but the same heaven is revealed in my spirit, so that in the spirit I know the works and creatures of God.

17. Besides, the will to that is not my natural will, but it is the impulse of the spirit; and for it I have endured many an assault of the devil.

18. The spirit of man is descended not only from the stars and elements, but there is hidden therein a spark of the light and power of God.

19. It is not an empty word which is set down [Gen. i. 27] in Genesis, God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him. For it hath this sense and meaning, viz. that he is created out of the whole being of the Deity.

20. The body is from the elements: therefore it must have elemental food.

21. The soul hath its original, not only from the body, though it taketh its rise in the body, and hath its first beginning in the body; yet in it it hath also its source from without, by and from the air; and so the Holy Ghost ruleth in it, in that manner as he replenisheth and filleth all things, and as all things are in God; and so God himself is all.

22. Seeing then in the soul the Holy Spirit is creaturely, viz. the propriety or portion of the soul, therefore it searcheth even into the Deity, and also into nature; for it hath its source and descent from the being of the whole Deity.

23. When it is kindled or enlightened by the Holy Ghost, then it beholdeth what God its Father doth, as a son beholdeth what his father doth at home in his house.

24. It is a member or child in the house of the heavenly Father.
25. As the eye of man seeth even unto the stars, from whence it hath a finite original and beginning, so also the soul seeth even into the divine being wherein it liveth.

26. But the soul having its source also out of nature, and that in nature there is good and bad, and that man hath cast himself, through sin, into the fierceness or wrath of nature, so that the soul is daily and hourly defiled with sins, therefore it knoweth but in part.

27. For the wrath or fierceness in nature reigneth now also in the soul. The Holy Ghost doth not go into the wrath or fierceness, but reigneth in the source of the soul, which is in the light of God, and fighteth against the wrath or fierceness in the soul.

28. Therefore the soul cannot attain unto any perfect knowledge in this life, till at the end, when light and darkness are separated, and wrath or fierceness is, with the body, consumed in the earth, then the soul seeth clearly and perfectly in God its Father.

29. But when the soul is kindled or enlightened by the Holy Ghost, then it triumpheth in the body, like a huge fire, which maketh the heart and reins tremble for joy.

30. There is not presently a great and deep knowledge in God its Father, but its love towards God its Father triumpheth thus in the fire of the Holy Spirit.

31. The knowledge of God is sown in the fire of the Holy Ghost, and at first is as small as a grain of mustard-seed, as Christ makes the [Matt xiii.] comparison. Afterwards it groweth large like a tree, and spreadeth itself abroad in God its Creator.

32. Just as a drop of water in the ocean cannot avail much; but if a great river runneth into it, that maketh a great commotion.

33. Time past, present, and to come, as also depth and height, near and afar off, are all one in God, one comprehensibility.

34. The holy soul of man seeth the same also, but in this world in part only. It happeneth sometimes that it seeth nothing at all, for the devil doth assault it furiously in the fierce wrathful source that is in the soul, and oftentimes covereth the noble mustard-seed; therefore man must always be at strife [or in conflict].

35. In this manner, and in this knowledge of the spirit, I will write in this book concerning God our Father, in whom are all things, and who himself is all; and will handle how all is become separable and creaturely, and how all is impelled and moveth in the whole tree of life.

36. Here you shall see, 1. The true ground of the Deity; 2. How all was one being, essence or substance before the time of this world; 3. How the holy angels were created, and out of what; 4. How the terrible fall happened, of Lucifer, together with his legions; 5. How heaven, earth, stars and the elements were made; 6. How metals, stones and the creatures in the earth are generated; 7. How the birth of life is, and the corporeity of all things; 8. What the true heaven is, in which God and his saints do dwell; 9. What the wrath of God is, and the hellish fire; 10. And how all is become kindled and inflamed.*
In brief, how, and what, the essence of all being is.
* "kindled and inflamed " (anzündlich), " inflammable." Man.

37. The first seven chapters treat very plainly and comprehensibly of the being of God, and of angels, by similitudes, that the Reader may, from one step to another, at last come to the deep sense and true ground.

38. In the eighth chapter beginneth the depth in the divine being, and so on, the further the deeper.

39. Special points are often repeated, and described still more deeply, for the Reader's sake, and by reason of my slow and dull apprehension.

 See Ch. X. par. 41 et seq., and Ch. XXI. par. 66.

40. That which you do not find sufficiently explained in this book, you will find more clearly in the second and third books. [Of the Three Principles and Of the Threefold Life of Man.]

41. For corruption is the cause why we know but in part, and have not perfect knowledge at once.

42. Yet this book is THE WONDER OF THE WORLD, which the holy soul will understand well enough. Thus I commit the Reader into the meek and holy love of God.
THE FIRST CHAPTER

Of Searching out the Divine Being in Nature: Of both the Qualities, the Good and the Evil.

1. THOUGH flesh and blood cannot conceive or apprehend the being of God, but the spirit only when enlightened and kindled from God:
2. Yet if a man will speak of God, and say what God is, then,
   I. A man must diligently consider the powers in nature.
   II. Also the whole creation, heaven and earth.
   III. The stars, the elements, and the creatures that are proceeded from them. As also the holy angels, devils, and men; moreover, heaven and hell.

Of the Two Qualities in One.

3. In this consideration are found two qualities, a good one and an evil one, which are in each other as one thing in this world, in all powers, in the stars and the elements, as also in all the creatures; and no creature in the flesh, in the natural life, can subsist, unless it hath the two qualities.

What a Quality* is.

4. Now here a man must consider what the word quality meaneth or is. A quality is the mobility, boiling, springing and driving of a thing.

* The understanding of the thing here called quality is the foundation of that whole revelation of Jacob Behme's, and of all Mysteries of which his writings are only a description. For all along, the seven qualities are called sometimes seven sources, seven species, kinds, manners, circumstances, conditions, powers, operations or faculties of a thing. Also [the seven qualities are sometimes called] the qualifying or fountain spirits, which give, model, image or frame the power, virtue, colour, taste, figure, shape, constitution, substance, essence and distinct being of all things, whichever were, are, shall be or can be, in, from and to all eternity, in God and in all creatures, in heaven, in hell or in this world; also the forms or properties of nature, which is the Salitter or power of God. And so they are the seven spirits of God, as in the Revelation of John i. 4; iii. 1; iv. 5; v. 6. [J. Sparrow.]

Of Heat.

5. As for example, heat, which burneth, consumeth and driveth forth all whatsoever that cometh into it which is not of the same property; and again, it enlighteneth and warmeth all cold, wet and dark things; it compacteth and hardeneth soft things.

Of Light and Fierceness.

6. Heat containeth likewise two other kinds in it, namely, (1) Light, and (2) Fierceness; of which take notice in this manner. The light, or the heart of the heat, is in itself a pleasant, joyful glance or lustre,* a power of life, an enlightening and glance of a thing which is afar off, which light is a piece or source of the heavenly kingdom of joy.

* "glance or lustre" (Anblick), "sight."

7. For it maketh living and moving all things in this world. All flesh, trees, leaves and grass grow in this world in the power of the light, and have their life therein, viz. in the good.

8. Again, heat containeth also a fierceness or wrath, which burneth, consumeth and spoileth; this wrath or fierceness springeth, driveth and elevateth itself in the light, and maketh the light moveable.

9. Heat wrestleth and fighteth together in its twofold source as one thing: It is also one thing, but it hath a double source: the light subsisteth in God without heat, but it doth not subsist so in nature.

10. For all qualities in nature are one in another as one quality, in that manner as God is all, and as all things descend and come forth from him:
For God is the heart or fountain of nature, + from him cometh all.

+ " God is the heart or fountain of nature," etc. Note by Saint Martin: " Here, by the word ' nature,' must be understood, not actual nature, but an anterior nature. The author holds as a fundamental principle that there is a perfectly harmonized and eternal nature, out of which has arisen, violently, the temporal, fugitive and disordered nature wherein we live. At times he uses a qualifying expression to indicate the distinction; but often, as in the present case, he suppresses the qualificative.
Again, he refers in turns, but without warning, to eternal and then to actual nature, as can be seen in the next par., and the reader is left in uncertainty as to his meaning. A little attention, however, will prevent error. This work cannot be read lightly; it must be devotedly studied if it is to be understood."

11. Now the heat reigneth and predominateth in all powers in nature, and warmeth all, and is one source or spring in all; for if it were not so the water would be too cold, and the earth would be congealed, and there would be no air.

12. The heat is predominant in all, in trees, herbs and grass, and maketh the water moveable, so that through the springing of the waters, herbs and grass grow out of the earth. Heat is therefore called a quality, because it operateth, moveth and boileth (or welleth up) in all, and elevateth all.

13. But the light in the heat giveth power to all qualities, so that all grow pleasant and joyful: Heat without light availeth not the other qualities, but is a perdition to the good, an evil source or spring; for all is spoiled in the fierceness or wrath of the heat. Thus the light in the heat is a quick spring or living fountain, into which the Holy Ghost entereth, but the Holy Ghost entereth not into the fierceness or wrath.

14. Yet the heat maketh the light moveable, so that it springeth and driveth forth; as is seen in winter, when the light of the sun is likewise upon the earth, but the hot rays of the sun cannot reach into the earth, and that is the reason why no fruit groweth in winter.

Of the Qualification of the Cold Quality.

15. Cold is a quality also, as well as heat; it qualifieth or operateth in all creatures whatsoever that come forth in nature, and in all whatsoever that move therein, in men, beasts, fowls, fishes, worms, leaves and grass.

16. Heat is set in opposition unto it, and qualifieth therein, as if it were one and the same thing; but cold opposeth the fierceness or rage of the heat, and allayeth the heat.

17. Cold containeth also two sorts or species* in it, which are to be observed, viz. It mitigateth the heat, maketh all things pleasant, and is in all creatures a quality of life; for no creature can subsist without cold; for it is a springing, driving mobility in every thing.
18. The other kind or species is fierceness; for where this getteth power it suppresseth all, and spoileth all, even as the heat doth; no life could subsist in it if the heat did not hinder that. The fierceness of cold is a destruction to every life, and the house of death, even as the hot fierceness also is.

Of the Qualification of the Air and the Water.

19. Air hath its original from heat and cold; for heat and cold work powerfully * and replenish all, whereby is caused a lively and stirring motion; but when cold allayeth or mitigateth the heat, then both their qualities are rarefied and made thin; and the bitter quality attracteth or concreteth them together, so that they become dewy.

* " work powerfully " (treiben gewaltig von sich), i.e. " produce an out-going impelling force."

20. But the air hath its original and greatest motion from heat, and the water hath its original and greatest motion from cold.

21. Now these two qualities wrestle continually the one with the other, the heat consumeth the water, and the cold condenseth or crowdeth the air. Now air is the cause and spirit of every life and motion in the world, be it in flesh or in any of the vegetables; all whatever is hath its life from the air, and nothing whatsoever that moveth and is in this world can subsist without air.

22. Water also springeth in every living and moving creature in this world. In the water consisteth the body of everything, as the spirit consisteth in the air, be it in animals [or in flesh] or in vegetables.

23. These two [air and water] are caused by heat and cold, and qualify or mix * and operate together as one thing.

* "qualify or mix" (qualificiret unter einander), "qualify between themselves." The idea is that of interaction.

24. Now in these two qualities two other species or kinds are to be observed, viz. a living operation and a dead operation. The air is a living quality, if it be temperate or moderate in a thing, and the Holy Ghost reigneth in the calmness or meekness of the air; and all the creatures rejoice therein.

25. + But there is a fierceness or wrath also in it, so that it killeth and destroyeth by its terrible disturbance. But the qualification taketh its original from the fierce disturbance or elevation, so that it moveth and driveth in every creature, from whence life hath its originals and doth exist; and therefore both of them must be in this life.

+ "But the air also containeth a fierceness or wrath, so that it killeth and destroyeth by its violence" [St. M. has "furious impetus"]. "Nevertheless the qualification ariseth from this furious impetus; and thus in all things there is a motion and a stimulus whence life ariseth and wherein it consisteth, therefore both qualities must be in this life."

26. The water also hath a fierce deadly spring, for it killeth and consumeth; and so all things that have a life and being must rot and perish in the water.

27. Thus heat and cold are the cause and original of water and air, in which everything acteth and standeth; every life and mobility standeth therein. Of this I shall write plainly, concerning the creation of the stars.

Of the Influences of the other Qualities in the Three Elements, Fire, Air, and Water.

Of the Bitter Quality.

28. The bitter quality is the heart in every life; for as it attracteth together the water in the air, and also dissipateth the same, so that it [the water] becometh separable; so also in other creatures, and in the vegetables of the earth. For leaves and grass have their green colour from the bitter quality.

29. Now if the bitter quality dwelleth meekly and gently in any creature, then is it the heart or joy therein; for it dissipateth all other evil influences, and is the beginning or cause of joy or of laughing.

30. * For the bitter quality, when stirred, causeth the creature to tremble and be joyful, and to be lifted up in its whole body; for the stirring of the bitter quality is, as it were, a glimpse or ray of or from the heavenly kingdom of joy, an exaltation of the spirit, a spirit and virtue in all plants of the earth, a mother of life.

* A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow's rendering.

31. The Holy Ghost springeth, moveth and driveth vehemently in this quality, for this quality is a part of the heavenly joyfulness, as I shall demonstrate afterwards.
32. But it hath also in it another species or kind, namely, the fierceness or wrath, which is the very house of death, a corruption of all good, a perdition and destruction of the life in the flesh.

33. For if it be too much elevated or too preponderant in any creature, and be inflamed in the heat, then flesh and spirit separate, and the creature loseth its life and must die; for then it moveth and kindleth the element fire; and in the great heat and bitterness no flesh can subsist. But if it be kindled in the element water, and springeth [becometh active] therein, it causeth debility and sickness* in the flesh, and finally death.+

* The German word Siechtage, translated "debility and sickness," implies lingering sickness, and is aptly rendered des langueurs by St Martin.

+ The last clause of this par. does not appear in Sparrow's translation. It is in the German eds. of 1682, 1715, and 1730, but not in 1656, nor in Schiebler's ed.

Of the Sweet Quality.

34. The sweet quality is set opposite to the bitter, and is a gracious, amiable, blessed and pleasant quality, a refreshing of the life, an allaying of the fierceness. It maketh all pleasant and friendly in every creature; it maketh the vegetables of the earth fragrant and of good taste, affording fair, yellow, white and ruddy colours.

35. It is a glimpse and source of meekness, a pleasant habitation of heavenly joyfulness, a house or mansion of the Holy Ghost, a qualification of love and mercy, a joy of the life.
36. But, on the other side, it hath also a fierce or wrathful source, a source of death and corruption. For if it be kindled in the bitter quality in the element water, then it breedeth diseases, and the blotchy plague* or pestilence, and corruption of the flesh.

* *"blotchy plague" (aufgeschwollene Pestilentz), lit., "swollen plague." St M. renders this, "des enflures et des maladies pestilentielles," "swellings and plague-like [i.e. infectious] sicknesses."

37. But if it be kindled in the heat and bitterness, then it infecteth the element air, whereby is engendered a sudden spreading plague and sudden death.

Of the Sour Quality.

38. The sour quality is set opposite to the bitter and the sweet, and is a good temper to all, a refreshing and cooling when the bitter and the sweet qualities are too much elevated or too preponderant. It is a longing delight in the taste, a pleasure of life, a stirring, boiling, flowing joy + in everything; a desire, longing and lust of joyfulness, a still joy or habitation of the spirit. Thus it is a temperature to all living and moving creatures.

39. It containeth also a source of evil and corruption: For if it predominate too much, or stirreth too much in anything, so that it be inflamed, then it engendereth sadness and melancholy.

40. In the water it causeth a stink, putridness and rankness,* a forgetfulness of all good things, a melancholy or sadness of life, a house of death,
a beginning of sorrow and an end of joy.

* "putridness and rankness" (rühricht und brüchicht),
" active and swamp-like." The idea is that of fermentation.

Of the Astringent or Saltish Quality.

41. The saltish quality is a good temperature [or temper] in the bitter, the sweet and the sour, making every thing pleasant; it opposeth the rising of the bitter quality, as also of the sweet and the sour, lest they should be inflamed: it is a sharp quality, a delight in the taste, a source of life and joy.

42. It containeth also fierceness and corruption:
Being inflamed in the fire it engendereth a hard, tearing and stony nature, a fierce, wrathful source, a destruction of life, whereby the stone or gravel is engendered in the flesh, causing great pain and torment to the flesh.

43. But if it be inflamed in the water, then it engendereth in the flesh, scabs, sores, pox, leprosy, and is a mourning house of death, a misery and a forgetting of all good things.
THE SECOND CHAPTER

An Introduction, shewing how men may come to apprehend The Divine, and the Natural, Being. And further of the two Qualities.

1. ALL whatsoever that hath been mentioned above is called quality, because it qualifieth, operateth or frameth all in the deep above the earth, also upon the earth and in the earth, in one another, as ONE thing, and yet hath several distinct virtues and operations, and but one mother, from whence descend and spring all things.

2. All the creatures are made and descended from these qualities, and live therein as in their mother; and the earth and stones descend or proceed from thence also; and all that groweth out of the earth liveth and springeth forth out of the virtue of these qualities; no rational man can deny it.

3. Now this twofold source, good and evil, in everything, is caused by the stars; for as the creatures in the earth are, in their qualities, so also are the stars.

4. For from its twofold source, * everything hath its great mobility, running, springing, driving and growing, + For meekness in nature is a still rest, but the fierceness in every power maketh all things moveable, running and generative.

* " from its twofold source," St M. further brings out the meaning by the following rendering: " de ta double impulsion particulière," " from its particular twofold impulse."

+ "its great mobility, running... driving." St M. has: "sa grandeactivité, son cours... son stimulant," "its great activity, its course... its stimulus."
5. For the driving qualities cause a lust in all creatures unto evil and good, so that all [things] are desirous one of another, to copulate and increase, decrease, grow fair, perish, love and hate.

6. In every creature in this world there is a good and evil will and source; in men, beasts, fowls, fishes, worms, and in all that is upon the earth; in gold, silver, copper, tin, iron, steel; wood, herbs, leaves and grass; as also in the earth, in stones, in the water, and in all whatsoever that can be thought of.

7. There is nothing in nature wherein there is not good and evil; everything moveth and liveth in this double impulse, working or operation, be it what it will.

8. But the holy angels, and the fierce wrathful devils, are here to be excepted; for these are severed apart: Each of these liveth, qualifieth and ruleth in his own peculiar quality.

9. The holy angels live and qualify in the light, in the good quality wherein the Holy Ghost reigneth. The devils live and reign in the fierce wrathful quality, in the quality of fierceness and wrath, destruction or perdition.

10. Yet both of these, the good and the evil angels, were made out of the qualities of nature from whence all things existed, only they differ in their qualifying, or in their condition.

11. The holy angels live in the power of meekness, of the light and joyfulness: The devils live in the power of the rising or elevating quality of fierceness, terror and darkness, and cannot comprehend the light, into which condition they precipitated and cast themselves through their pride and elevation of themselves; as I shall shew afterwards, when I shall write of the creation.

12. If thou wilt not believe that in this world all descendeth or cometh from the stars, I will demonstrate it to thee, if thou art not a blockhead, but hast some little reason and understanding left; therefore take notice of that which followeth.

13. First behold the sun; it is the heart or king of all stars, and giveth light to all stars from the east to the west; it enlighteneth and warmeth all, all liveth and groweth by its power; besides, the joy of all creatures consisteth in its virtue.

14. If that should be taken away or become extinct, then all would be dark and cold; neither would there grow any fruit, and neither man nor beast could propagate and increase, because their heat would be extinguished and their seed would be cold and torpid.

15. If thou wilt be a philosopher and naturalist, and search into God's being in nature, and discern how all is come to pass, then pray to God for the Holy Spirit, to enlighten thee with it.

16. For in thy flesh and blood thou art not able to apprehend it, and though thou dost read it, yet it is but as a fume or mist before thine eyes.
17. In the Holy Ghost alone, who is in God, and also in the whole nature,* out of which all things were made, in him alone canst thou search into the whole body or corporeity of God, which is nature; as also into the Holy Trinity itself.

* "the whole nature." This expression is, in this and most other instances, rendered by St M.: "la nature universelle," "universal nature."

18. For the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Holy Trinity, and reigneth and ruleth in the whole body or corpus of God; that is, in the whole nature.

19. Even as the spirit of man ruleth and reigneth in the whole body, in all the veins, and replenisheth the whole man; even so the Holy Ghost replenisheth the whole nature, and is the heart of nature, and reigneth in the good qualities of everything.

20. Now, if thou hast that spirit in thee, so that it enlighteneth, filleth and replenisheth thy spirit, then thou wilt understand what followeth in this writing.

21. But if not, then it will be with thee as it was with the wise Heathen, who gazed and stared on the creation,* and would search and sift it out by their own reason; and though with their fictions and conceits + they came before God's countenance or face, yet they were not able to see it, but were stark blind in the knowledge of God.

* "gazed and stared on the creation" (sich in der Schöpfung vergaffeten), "became enamoured with the creation," i.e. fell under the spell of the creation.

+ "fictions and conceits" (Dichten), "romance" or "allegories";
the word is by no means used in an abusive sense.

22. As the Children of Israel in the desert could not behold the countenance of Moses, and therefore, when he drew near to the people, he must put a veil before his face.

23. The cause of this was, that they neither understood nor knew the true God and his will, who, notwithstanding, walked among them; and therefore that veil was a sign and type of their blindness and misunderstanding.

24. As little as a piece of work can apprehend him that made it, so little also can man apprehend and know God his Creator, unless the Holy Ghost enlighten him; which happeneth only to those that rely not upon themselves, but set their hope, will and desires upon God alone, and move in the Holy Ghost, and these are one spirit with God.

25. Now if we consider rightly of the sun and stars, with their corpus or body, operations and qualities, then the very divine being may be found therein, and we may find that the virtues of the stars are nature itself.

26. If the whole wheel, circumference or sphere of the stars be well considered, then it is soon found that the same is the mother of all things, or the nature out of which all things are come, and wherein all things stand and live, and whereby everything moveth; all things are made of these powers, and therein they all abide eternally.

27. Though indeed they shall be changed at the end of this time, when good and evil shall be separated. So in like manner angels and men, in the [particular] virtue of nature, out of which they had gotten their first beginning, shall subsist in God eternally.

28. But here thou must elevate thy mind in the spirit, and consider how the whole nature, with all the powers which are in nature, also the wideness, depth and height, also heaven and earth, and all whatsoever is therein, and all that is above the heavens, is together the body or corporeity of God; and the powers of the stars are the fountain veins in the natural body of God in this world.

29. Thou must not conceive that in the body of the stars is the triumphing Holy Trinity, God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, in which there is no evil, for it is the light-holy, eternal fountain of joy, which is indivisible and unchangeable, which no creature can sufficiently apprehend or express; which dwelleth and is above the body of the stars in itself, whose depth no creature is able to measure or fathom.

30. But we must not so conceive as if God were not at all in the corpus or body of the stars, and in this world: For when we say, ALL, or from eternity to eternity, or All in All, then we understand the entire GOD.

31. For a similitude or example take man, who is made after the image or similitude of God, as it is written [Gen. i. 27].

32. The interior or hollowness in the body of man is, and signifieth, the deep between the stars and the earth.

33. The whole body with all its parts signifieth heaven and earth.
34. The flesh signifieth the earth, and is also from earth.

35. The blood signifieth the water, and is from the water.

36. The breath signifieth the air, and is also air.

37. The windpipe and arteries wherein the air qualifieth or operateth, signify the deep between the stars and the earth, wherein fire, air and water qualify in an elementary manner, and so the warmth, the air, and water, qualify also in the windpipe and arteries, as they do in the deep above the earth.

* "The windpipe and arteries." Curiously enough, the original has here the word "Blase" bladder, which St M. has rendered literally. It is, however, clear from the context that J. B. meant the breathing organs, and used the word Blase on account of its likeness to the verb "blasen," to blow.

38. The veins signify the powerful flowings out + from the stars, and are also the powerful outgoings of the stars; for the stars with their powers reign in the veins, and drive forth the form, shape and condition in men.

+ "powerful flowings out" (Kraftgänge), or "powerful currents," or again, "passages." The German word applies both to the "flowing" and to the channel for the same.

39. The entrails or guts signify the operation of the stars, or their consuming of all that which is proceeded from their power, for whatsoever they themselves have made that they consume again, and remain still in their virtue and power; and so the guts also are the consuming of all that which man thrusteth and stuffeth into his guts, even all whatsoever growtheth from the power of the stars.

40. The heart in man signifieth the heat or the element of fire, and it is also the heat; for the heat in the whole body hath its original in the heart.

41. The windpipe and arteries signify the element of air, and the air ruleth also therein.

42. The liver signifieth the element of water, and it is also the water; for from the liver cometh the blood in the whole body into all the members. The liver is the mother of the blood.

43. The lungs signify the earth, and are also of the same quality.

44. The feet signify near and afar off; for near and afar off are all one in God: And so man by means of his feet can come and go near and far off; let him be where he will, he is in nature neither near nor afar off; for in God these are one thing.

45. The hands signify God's omnipotence; for as God in nature can change all things, and make of them what he pleaseth, so man also can with his hands change all things which grow in or proceed from nature, and can make with his hands out of them what he pleaseth: He ruleth with his hands the work and being of the whole nature, and so they very well signify the omnipotence of God.

Now observe here further,

46. The whole body to the neck signifieth and is the round circle or sphere of the stars, as also the deep within or between the stars, wherein the planets and elements reign.

47. The flesh signifieth the earth, which is congealed, and hath no motion; and so the flesh in itself hath no reason, comprehensibility or mobility, but is moved only by the power of the stars, which reign in the flesh and veins.

48. No more could the earth bring forth any fruit, nor could there grow any metals, as gold, silver, copper, iron or stones, if the stars did not work in them; nor could there grow any grass without the operation of the stars.

49. The head signifieth heaven; the same is grown on the body, by the veins, passages and going forth of powers; and so all the powers come again from the head and brain into the body, into the fountain-veins or arteries of the flesh.

50. Now heaven is a pleasant palace of joy, wherein all the powers are, as they are in the whole nature in the stars and elements, but not so hard working and springing. For every power of heaven hath but one species, kind or form of power, springing very bright and meek, not promiscuously evil and good one in another, as in the stars and elements in the whole nature, but very pure.

51. It is made out of the midst of the waters, but not qualifying in such a manner as the water in the elements, for fierceness or wrath is not therein. However, heaven belongeth to nature, because the stars and elements have their original and power from the heaven.

52. For heaven is the heart of the water. Likewise, in all creatures, and in all that is in this world the water is the heart thereof, and nothing can subsist without water, be it in the flesh or out of the flesh, in the vegetables of the earth or in metals and stones, in everything the water is the kernel or the heart.

53. So heaven is the heart in nature, wherein all the powers are, as in the stars and elements, and it is a soft, supple and meek matter of all powers, as the brain in man's head is.

54. Now heaven kindleth with its power the stars and elements, so that they move and work: And so the head of man is also like heaven.

55. For as in heaven all powers are meek and full of joy,* and as heaven hath a closure or firmament above the stars, and yet all powers go forth from heaven into the stars, so the brain also hath a closure or firmament between it and the body, and yet all the powers go forth from the brain into the body, and into the whole man.

* "full of joy" (freudenreich... und qualificiren), "full of joy and qualify," i.e. qualify [operate] in joy.

56. The head containeth the five senses, viz. seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting and feeling, wherein the stars and elements qualify, and therein existeth the sidereal or heavenly, starry or astral and natural spirit in men and beasts; in this flow forth good and evil, for it is the house of the stars.

57. Such power the stars borrow from heaven, that they can make in the flesh a living and moving spirit in man and beast. The moving of the heaven maketh the stars moveable, and so the head also maketh the body moveable.

58. Now open here the eyes of thy spirit, and behold God thy Creator.
Question.
Here now the question is, From whence hath heaven, or whence borroweth it, this power, that it causeth such mobility in nature?

Answer.
59. Here you must lift up your eyes beyond nature, into the light-holy triumphing divine power, into the unchangeable Holy Trinity, which is a triumphing, springing, moveable being, and all powers are therein, as in nature.

60. For this is the eternal mother of nature, of which heaven, earth, stars, elements, angels, devils, men, beasts, and all have their being; and therein ALL standeth.

61. When we nominate heaven and earth, stars and elements, and all that is therein, and all whatsoever is above the heaven, then thereby is nominated the total God, who hath made himself creaturely in these above-mentioned beings, in his power which goeth forth from him.

62. But GOD in his TRINITY is unchangeable, and whatever there is in heaven and upon earth and above the earth, hath its spring, source and original from the power which proceedeth from God.

63. Yet you must not therefore conceive that in God there is good and evil, for God himself is the good, and hath the name from good, which is the triumphing eternal joy: Only all the powers which you can search out in nature, and which are in all things, proceed from him.

Question.
64. Now perhaps you may say, Is there not good and evil in nature? And seeing everything cometh from God, must not then the evil also come from God?

Answer.
65. Behold, there is a gall in man's body, which is poison, and man cannot live without this gall; for the gall maketh the astral spirits moveable, joyous, triumphing or laughing, for it is the source of joy.

66. But if it be inflamed or kindled in one of the elements, then it spoileth the whole man, for the wrath in the astral spirits cometh from the gall.

67. That is, when the gall overfloweth and runneth to the heart, then it kindleth the element of fire, and the fire kindleth the astral spirits which reign in the blood in the veins and in the element of water; and then the whole body trembleth by reason of the wrath and the poison of the gall.

68. Such a source hath joy, and from the same substance also as the wrath. That is, when the gall in the loving or sweet quality is inflamed, in that which man is in love withal, then the whole body trembleth for the joy; in which many times the astral spirits are affected also, when the gall is overflown, and is kindled in the sweet quality.

69. But it hath no such substance in God, for he hath not flesh and blood, but he is a Spirit, [John iv. 24.] in whom all powers are; as we pray in the Lord's prayer, Thine is the power. [Matt vi. 13.]

70. As it is written of him, He is Wonderful, [Isaiah ix. 6.] Counsel, Power, Champion, Eternal Father, Prince of Peace.

71. The bitter quality is in God also, but not in that manner as the gall is in man, but it is an everlasting power, in an elevating, triumphing spring or source of joy.

72. And though it is written in Moses, I am [Exod. XX. 5.] an angry, zealous God [Deut iv. 24], yet the meaning of it is not that God is angry in himself, and that there ariseth a fire of anger in the Holy Trinity.

73. No; that cannot be, for it is written, against those that hate me* in that same creature, the fire of anger riseth up.

* " against those that hate me," etc. Sparrow has given a literal translation of the German. St M. has, "as to them that hate me, it is in them that the fire of anger riseth up."

74. If God should be angry in himself, then the whole nature would be on fire, which will come once to pass on the last day, in nature, but not in God, in God the triumphing joy will burn; it was never otherwise from eternity, nor will it ever be otherwise.

75. The elevating, springing, triumphing joy in God maketh heaven triumphing and moveable, and heaven maketh the stars and elements moveable, and the stars and elements make the creatures moveable.

76. Out of the powers of God are the heavens proceeded; out of the heaven are the stars; out of the stars are the elements; out of the elements are the earth and the creatures come to be.

77. Thus all had its beginning, even to the angels and devils, which, before the creation of heaven, stars and the earth, were produced from the same power from which the heaven, the stars and the earth were produced.

78. This is a short entrance or introduction, shewing how one must consider the divine and the natural being. Henceforth I will describe the true ground and depth concerning what God is, and how all things are framed in God's being.

79. This indeed hath been partly concealed from the beginning of the world to this time, and man with his reason could not comprehend it.

80. But seeing God is pleased to reveal himself in simplicity in this last time, I shall give way to his impulse and will; I am but-a very little spark of light. AMEN.
THE THIRD CHAPTER

Of the most blessed Triumphant, Holy, Holy, Holy Trinity, GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, ONE only God.

1. COURTEOUS Reader, here I would have you faithfully admonished to let go your opinion and conceit, and not yield to the spell of the Heathenish wisdom, nor be offended at the simplicity of the author: for this work comes not from his reason, but from the impulse of the spirit.

2. Only be thou careful to get into thy spirit the Holy Ghost, who issueth forth from God, and he will lead thee into all truth, and reveal himself unto thee.

3. Then thou wilt see well enough in his light and power; even into the holy Trinity, and understand those things which are written hereafter following.

Of GOD the FATHER.

4. When our Saviour JESUS CHRIST taught his disciples to pray, he said; [Matt. vi. 9.] When ye pray, say thus: Our Father, which art in heaven.

5. The meaning is not as if heaven could comprehend, encompass or contain God the Father; for heaven itself is made by the divine power: for Christ saith, My Father is greater than all.

6. And God saith in the Prophet, Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool. What house would you build for me? I compass the heaven with a span, and the earth with three fingers. Also, I will dwell in Jacob, and Israel shall be my tabernacle.

7. But in that Christ calls his Father a heavenly Father, his meaning is that his Father's lustre and power appear and shine very bright and pure in heaven; and that above the circle or enclosure which we behold with our eyes, and which we call heaven, doth appear the totally triumphing Holy Trinity, The Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

8. Thereby Christ also distinguisheth his heavenly Father from the father of nature, which is indeed the stars and the elements; these are our natural father, out of which we are made, and by whose impulse we live here in this world, and from whence we have our food and nourishment.

9. Therefore God is our heavenly Father, in that our soul continually longeth after him, and is desirous of him, yea it thirsteth and hungereth continually after him.

10. The body hungereth and thirsteth after the father of nature, viz. the stars and the elements, and that father feedeth and nourisheth the body.

11. But the soul thirsteth after the heavenly holy Father, and he giveth meat and drink to it, feeding it with his holy Spirit, and the spring, source or fountain of joy.

12. Yet we have not two fathers, but one only: For heaven is made by his power, and the stars are made out of his wisdom which is in him, and which proceedeth forth from him.

Of the Substance and Property of the Father.

13. When we consider the whole nature and its property, then we see the Father.

14. When we behold heaven and the stars, then we behold his eternal power and wisdom: So many stars stand in the whole heaven that they are innumerable and incomprehensible to reason, and some of them are not visible, so manifold and [so] various is the power and wisdom of God the Father.

15. But every star in heaven differeth in its power and quality, which also maketh so many distinctions in and among the creatures upon the earth, and in the whole creation.

16. All the powers which are in nature proceed from God the Father; all light, heat, cold, air, water; and all the powers of the earth, bitter, sour, sweet, astringent, hard and soft, and more than can be reckoned; all have their beginning from the Father.

17. Therefore if a man would liken the Father to anything, he should liken him to the round globe of heaven.

18. Thou must not conceive here that every power which is in the Father standeth in a peculiar severed or divided part and place in the Father, as the stars do in heaven.

19. No, the spirit sheweth that all the powers in the Father are one in another as one power.

20. A resemblance, image or figure whereof we have in the Prophet Ezekiel, [Chap. 1] who seeth the Lord in the spirit and resemblance like a wheel, having four other wheels one in another, the four being like one another; and when they moved they went straight forward, which way soever the wind did sit or blow, and that way they all went forward, having no cause of returning.
21. Thus it is with God the Father; for all the powers are in the Father, one in another, as one power; and all powers consist in the Father, in an unsearchable light and clarity or brightness and glory.

22. Yet thou must not think that God, who is in heaven and above heaven, doth there stand and hover, like a power and quality which hath in it neither reason nor knowledge.

23. As the sun which turneth round in its circle, and poureth forth from itself heat and light, whether it be for benefit or hurt to the earth and creatures, which indeed would be for hurt if the other planets and stars did not hinder.

24. No, the Father is not so, but he is an all-mighty, all-wise, all-knowing, all-seeing, all-hearing, all-smelling, all-feeling, all-tasting God, who in himself is meek, friendly, gracious, merciful and full of joy, yea joy itself.

25. And he is thus from eternity to eternity unchangeable: He never changed himself in his being, neither will he change himself in all eternity.

26. He is proceeded or born of nothing, but he himself is all, in eternity; and all whatsoever is, is come from his power, which from eternity goeth forth from him.

27. His immensity, height and depth, no creature, no nor any angel in heaven, can search into, but the angels live in the power of the Father, very meekly and full of joy, and they always sing in the power of the Father.
Of GOD the SON.

28. If a man will see God the Son, he must once more look upon natural things, otherwise I cannot write of the Son: The spirit indeed beholdeth him, but that can neither be spoken nor written; for the divine being consisteth in power, which can neither be written nor spoken.

29. Therefore, if we intend to speak of God, we must use similitudes. For we live in this world as men who know but in part, and are made of that which is but in part. Therefore I cite the Reader into the life to come, where and when I shall speak more properly and more clearly of this high article.

30. In the meanwhile the loving Reader is to attend to the sense and meaning of the spirit, and then, if he hath but any hunger in him, he will not fail to get a little refreshing.

Now observe,

31. The Turks and Heathen say, God hath no Son: Set wide open your eyes here; and do not make yourselves stark blind, and you will see the Son.

32. The Father is all, and all power subsisteth in the Father: He is the beginning and the end of all things; and besides and beyond him is nothing; and whatever is, is from the Father.

33. For before the beginning of the creation of the creatures there was nothing but GOD only; and where there is nothing, out of that, nothing will be. All things must have a cause or root, or else nothing will be.
34. Yet you are not to think that the Son is another God than the Father. Neither should you think that the Son is without or apart from the Father, and that he is a severed part or divided piece, as when two men stand the one by the other, where one comprehendeth not the other.

35. No, the Father and the Son are not of such a substance, or such a kind of thing; for the Father is not an image, to be likened to anything; the Father is the fountain of all powers, and all the powers are one in another as one power, and therefore he is said to be ONE only GOD.

36. Otherwise, if his powers were divided, then he were not all-mighty, but now he is the selfsubsisting, all-mighty and all-powerful God.

37. And the Son is the Heart in the Father; all the powers which are in the Father are the propriety of the Father; and the Son is the Heart, or the kernel or pith in all the powers in the whole Father, and he is the cause of the springing joy in all powers in the whole Father.

38. From the Son, who is the Father's Heart in all his powers, the eternal joy ariseth and springeth in all the powers of the Father; such a joy as no eye hath seen, nor ear heard, neither hath ever entered into the heart of any man, as [1 Cor. ii.9.] St Paul saith.

39. But if a man here on earth is enlightened with the Holy Ghost from the fountain of JESUS CHRIST, so that the spirits of nature, which signify the Father, are kindled in him, then there ariseth such a joy in his heart, and it goeth forth into all his veins, so that the whole body trembleth, and the soulish, animal spirit triumpheth, as if it were in the holy Trinity, which is understood only by those who have been guests in that place.

40. This is but a type [see ch. 4. v.15] or glimpse of the Son of God in man, whereby faith is strengthened and preserved: For the joy cannot be so great in an earthen vessel as in a heavenly, wherein the perfect power of God is, fully.

        Now here I must write a Similitude.

41. I will shew thee a similitude in nature, signifying how the holy being in the holy Trinity is.

42. Consider heaven, which is a round globe, having neither beginning nor end, for its beginning and end are everywhere, which way soever you look upon it: So is God, who is in and above the heaven, he hath neither beginning nor end.

43. Now consider further the circle or sphere of the stars, they denote the various powers and wisdom of the Father, and they also are made by the power and wisdom of the Father.

44. Now the heaven, the stars, and the whole deep between the stars, together with the earth, signify the Father.

45. And the seven planets signify the seven spirits of God, or the princes of the angels, among which also lord LUCIFER was one before his fall; all [these] were made out of the Father in the beginning of the creation of angels, before the time of this world.*

* " before the time of this world." At the end of this par. St M. has the following note: " The author was imbued with the ideas which were prevalent until the time of Herschel, in relation to the seven planets. Many assert that up to that astronomer's discovery, only six were known. But others declare that even in the event of many other planets being discovered, they would nevertheless, as a whole, remain the organ of seven powers which rule temporal (actuelle) nature as well as eternal nature, and that the only error would consist in the application made of this number seven."

46. Now observe: The sun stirreth in the midst, in the deep between the stars, in a round circle, and is the heart of the stars, and giveth light and power to all the stars, so tempering the power of the stars that all becometh pleasant and joyful.

47. It enlighteneth also the heaven, the stars, and the deep above the earth, working in all things that are in this world, and is the king and the heart of all things of this world, and so rightly signifieth the Son of God.

48. For as the sun standeth in the midst, between the stars and the earth, enlightening all powers, and is the light and heart of all the powers, and is all the joy in this world, besides, all beauty and pleasantness standeth in the light and power of the sun.

49. Even so the Son of God in the Father is the Heart of the Father, and shineth in all the powers of the Father; his power is the moving springing joy in all the powers of the Father, and shineth in the whole Father, as the sun doth in the whole world.

50. If the earth should be taken away, which signifieth the house of misery, of trouble, or of hell, then the whole deep would be light in one place as well as in another: as indeed, from the lustre of the Son of God, the whole deep in the Father is as light in one place as in another.

*" light... light." The German gar lichte is adjectival, and is rendered by St M., "luminous." In the New Testament, "full of light" renders exactly the meaning implied here: "Thy whole body shall be full of light," Matt. vi. 22.

51. As the sun is a self-subsisting creature, power and light, which shineth not forth from or out of all creatures, but in and into all creatures, and all creatures rejoice in its power.

52. So the Son in the Father is a self-subsisting Person, and enlighteneth all the powers in the Father, and is the Father's joy or Heart in his centre, or in the midst of him.

Observe here the great Mystery of God.

53. Further, the sun is made or generated from all the stars, and is a light taken from the whole nature, and shineth again into the whole nature of this world; it is united with the other stars, as if itself together with all the stars were but one star.

54. So the Son of God is continually generated from all the powers of his Father from eternity, and is not made, but is the heart and lustre shining forth from the powers of his heavenly Father; a self-subsisting Person, the centre or body of the lustre in the deep.

55. For the Father's power generateth the Son continually from eternity to eternity; but if the Father should cease to generate, then the Son would be no more: Also, if the Son should shine no more in the Father, then the Father would be a dark valley: And then the Father's power would not rise from eternity to eternity, and so the divine being would not subsist.

56. Thus the Father is the self-subsisting being * of all powers, and the Son is the Heart in the Father, which is generated continually out of all the powers of the Father, who again enlighteneth
the powers of the Father.

* " the self-subsisting being" (das selbständige Wesen). St
M.'s rendering is, " l'essence radicale," " the root-essence."

57. Do not conceive that the Son in the Father is so mixed that his Person can neither be seen nor known: No; for if it were so then it were but one Person.

 At the end of this par., and referring to pars. 56 and 57, St M. adds: " This passage, as well as others on the divine Persons, has been developed to a considerable extent, elucidated and greatly improved upon in other works of the author.
It must be looked upon as provisional."

58. For as the sun shineth not from or out of the other stars, though it had its original from the other stars, so also the Son shineth not from or out of the powers of the Father, as to his body or corporeity.

59. Though he is generated continually out of the powers of the Father; yet he shineth back again into the powers of the Father, for he is another Person than the Father, but not another God.

60. He is eternally in the Father, and the Father generateth him continually from eternity to eternity, and the Father and the Son are ONE God, of an equal being in power and omnipotence.

61. The Son seeth, tasteth, heareth, feeleth, smelleth and comprehendeth all, as the Father doeth; in his power all liveth and is, whatsoever is good, as in the Father; but that which is bad or evil is not in him.
Of GOD the HOLY GHOST.

62. God the Holy Ghost is the third Person in the triumphing holy Deity, and proceedeth from the Father and the Son, and is the holy moving spring or fountain of joy in the whole Father.

63. He is a pleasant, meek, quiet wind, or whispering breath, or still voice, out of all the powers of the Father and of the Son; as on mount Horeb with the prophet Elijah, and on Whitsunday or the Day of Pentecost with the Apostles, may be perceived.

64. Therefore if we would describe his Person, substance and property from the true ground, it must be represented in a similitude. For the spirit cannot be written down, being no creature, but the moving, flowing, boiling power of God.

65. Consider the sun and stars again: The stars being many and several, inexpressible and innumerable, signify the Father: out of the stars the sun is come to be; for God hath made it out of them, and it signifieth the Son of God.

66. From the sun and stars proceed the four elements, fire, air, water and earth, as hereafter I shall demonstrate plainly, when I shall write of the creation.

Now observe:

67. The three elements, fire, air and water, have a threefold moving or qualification, but proceed from one body; and consider, the fire or heat swells and flies aloft from the sun and stars; and from the heat the air swells [or expands itself] and flies* aloft; and from the air comes the water.

* "swells and flies" (empöret sich), "rises aloft". In the 1715 and 1730 eds. there is added—presumably from Gichtel's MS. notes to his 1682 ed.—("gebäret"), "generateth itself forth." Thus, "empöret (gebäret) sich."

68. And in this motion or qualification consisteth the life and spirit of all creatures, and whatever can be named in this world; and that signifieth the Holy Ghost.

69. And as the three elements, fire, air and water, proceed from the sun and stars, and are one body in one another, and cause the living motion, and the spirit of all the creatures of this world.

70. So the Holy Ghost proceedeth from the Father and the Son, and causeth the living motion in all the powers of the Father.

71. And as the three elements move in the deep, as a self-subsisting spirit, and cause heat, cold and clouds, and flow forth from the power of all the stars; and as all the powers of the sun and stars are in the three elements, as if they themselves were the sun and stars, from whence is the life and spirit of all creatures, and doth consist therein; just so the Holy Ghost proceedeth from the Father and the Son, and moveth in the whole Father, and is the spirit and life of all the powers of the whole Father.

Observe here the deep Mystery.

72. All the stars which men see, and those which they do not see, they all signify the power of God the Father; and out of these stars is generated the sun, which is the heart of all the stars.
73. Also there goeth forth into the deep from all the stars the power which is in every star: And the power, heat and shining of the sun goeth likewise into the deep.

74. In the deep the power of all stars, together with the heat and lustre of the sun, are all but one thing, a moving, boiling, hovering, like a spirit or matter; * only it hath not reason, for it is not the Holy Spirit. And thus also the fourth element must adhere or belong to a natural spirit, or it is not capable of reason.

* "a moving, boiling, hovering, like a spirit or matter"
(eine bewegende Wallung gleich eines Geistes oder einer Materia), "a moving undulation [i.e. a wave-like motion] like that of a spirit, or of a substance."

[75. "Thus God the Father goeth forth in his deep out of all his powers, and generateth the splendour, the Heart, or the Son of God in his centre."

76. Which may be likened to the round globe of the sun, which shineth upwards, downwards, and on every side; and so the splendour, together with all the powers, goeth forth from the Son of God in the whole Father.

77. Now in the whole deep of the Father, externally, without the Son, there is nothing but the manifold and immeasurable or unsearchable power of the Father.

78. And the unsearchable power and light of the Son is, in the deep of the Father, a living, all-powerful, all-knowing, all-hearing, all-seeing, all-smelling, all-tasting, all-feeling spirit, wherein is all power, splendour and wisdom, as in the Father and the Son.
79. And as in the four elements there is the power and splendour of the sun and all the stars, so it is in the whole deep of the Father, and that is, and is rightly called, the Holy Ghost, which is the third self-subsisting Person in the Deity.

Of the Holy TRINITY.

80. Now when we speak or write of the three Persons in the Deity, you must not conceive that therefore there are three Gods, each reigning and ruling by himself, like temporal kings on the earth.

81. No: such a substance and being is not in God; for the divine being consisteth in power, and not in body or flesh.

82. The Father is the whole divine power, whence all creatures have proceeded, and hath been always, from eternity: He hath neither beginning nor end.

83. The Son is in the Father, being the Father's Heart or light, and the Father generateth the Son continually, from eternity to eternity; and the Son's power and splendour shine back again in the whole Father, as the sun doth in the whole world.

84. The Son is also another Person than the Father, but not externally, without or severed from the Father, nor is he any other God than the Father is; his power, splendour, and omnipotence, are no less than the whole Father.

85. The Holy Ghost proceedeth from the Father and the Son, and is the third self-subsisting Person in the Deity. As the elements in this world go forth from the sun and the stars, and are the moving spirit which is in everything in this world,

86. So the Holy Ghost is the moving spirit in the whole Father, and proceedeth or goeth forth from eternity to eternity continually from the Father and the Son, and replenisheth the whole Father; he is nothing less or greater than the Father and the Son; his moving power is in the whole Father.

87. All things in this world are according to the similitude of this Ternary. Ye blind Jews, Turks and Heathen, open wide the eyes of your mind: in your body, and in every natural thing, in men, beasts, fowls and worms, also in wood, stone, leaves and grass, I will shew you the likeness of the Holy Ternary in God.

Objection.

88. Ye say, There is but one being in God, and that God hath no Son.

Answer.

89. Open your eyes, and consider yourselves: Man is made according to the similitude, and out of the power, of God in his Ternary. Behold thy inward man, and then thou wilt see it most plainly and clearly; if thou art not a fool and an irrational beast; therefore observe,

90. In thy heart, in thy veins, and in thy brain, thou hast thy spirit; and all the powers which move in thy heart, in thy veins, and in thy brain, wherein thy life consisteth, signify God the Father.
91. From that power springeth up thy light, so that thou seest, understandest and knowest in the same power what thou art to do; for that light glimmereth in thy whole body; and the whole body moveth in the power and knowledge of the light, which signifieth God the Son; for the body helpeth all the members in the knowledge of the light.

92. For as the Father generateth the Son out of his power, and as the Son shineth back in the whole Father; so in like manner the power of thy heart, of thy veins, and of thy brain generateth a light which shineth in all thy powers in thy whole body. Open the eyes of thy mind, consider it, and you will find it so.

93. Now observe: As from the Father and the Son there goeth forth the Holy Ghost, who is a self-subsisting Person in the Deity, and moveth in the whole Father, so also out of the powers of thy heart, veins and of thy brain, goeth forth the power which moveth in thy whole body; and out of thy light, in the same power, goeth forth reason, understanding, skill and wisdom to govern the whole body, and to distinguish all whatsoever is externally without the body.

94. And both these* are but one, in the government of thy mind , viz. [they are] thy spirit, which [spirit] signifieth God the Holy Ghost. And the Holy Ghost from God ruleth in this spirit in thee, if thou art a child of light, and not a child of darkness.

* "both these," i.e. the two "powers" of par. 93—"the power which moveth in thy whole body," and "reason, understanding, skill," etc.
 The German substantive rendered by Sparrow "mind" in this par. is Gemüthe, mind, soul, heart, feeling, disposition. The word is specifically applicable to the organ of feeling, rather than to mind, as "mind" is ordinarily understood.

95. For in respect of this light, understanding and government, is man distinguished from the beasts, and is an angel of God; as I shall clearly shew when I write of the creation of man.

96. Therefore observe exactly, and take notice of the order of this book, and then thou wilt find whatsoever thy heart desireth or ever longed for.

97. Thus you find in man three fountain-springs. First, the power in thy whole mind , which signifieth God the Father. Then secondly, the light in thy whole mind, enlightening the whole mind, which signifieth God the Son. Then thirdly, there goeth forth out of all thy powers, and out of thy light also, a spirit which hath understanding.

98. For all the veins, together with the light in thee, as also thy heart and thy brain, and all whatsoever is in thee, make or constitute that spirit; and that is thy soul; and it well signifieth the Holy Ghost, which goeth forth from the Father and the Son, and reigneth in the whole Father; for the soul of man reigneth in the whole body.

99. But the body or the bestial flesh in man signifieth the dead corrupted earth, which man through his fall hath so framed to himself; of which more shall be spoken in its due place.
100. ["The soul containeth the first principle; and the soul's spirit the second principle in Ternario sancto, in the holy Ternary; and the outward spirit, viz. the astral, containeth the third Principle of this world."]

* In Sparrow's translation this par. is not marked as one of the additions by J. B. himself in 1620. In the German ed. of 1656 the par. is treated as an addition, and no alteration was made by Gichtel in the ed. of 1682.

101. Thus you find also the Ternary of the Deity in beasts; for as the spirit of a man is, and existeth, so is it also in a beast, and therein is no difference. **

 "for as the spirit of a man is," etc. Sparrow has given a literal translation of the German. The par. could be rendered thus: "for the spirit ariseth and existeth in a beast just in the same manner as in a man."

102. But the difference lieth in this, that man is made by God himself out of the best kernel or pith of nature, to be his angel and similitude, and God ruleth in man with his holy spirit; so that man can speak, discourse, distinguish and understand all things.

103. But a beast is made of the wild nature of this world; the stars and elements have generated beasts through their motion, according to the will of God.

104. So existeth the spirit in birds, fowls and worms also; and all hath its threefold source in similitude to the Ternary in the Deity.

105. You see also the Ternary of the Deity in wood and stones, as also in herbs, in leaves and in grass, only these are all earthly.
106. However, nature generateth nothing in this world, be it what it will, and though perhaps it should stand or continue but scarce a minute, yet it is all generated in the Ternary, or according to the similitude of God.

107. Now observe: In wood, stone or herbs there are three things contained, nor can anything be generated or grow if but one of the three should be left out.

108. I. First, there is the power, from which a body comes to be, whether wood, stone or herbs. II. After that, there is a sap in that thing, which is the heart of the thing. III. Thirdly, there is in it a springing, flowing power, smell or taste, which is the spirit of the thing, whereby it groweth and increaseth. Now if any of these three fail, the thing cannot subsist.

109. Thus you find in everything a similitude of the Ternary in the divine being, look upon what you will; let no man make himself so stark blind as to think otherwise, or to think that God hath no Son and no Holy Ghost.

110. I shall make this more plain and clear when I come to write of the creation; for I do not borrow of other men in my writings: And though indeed I quote many examples and testimonies of God's saints, yet all is written by God in my mind, so that I absolutely and infallibly believe, know and see it; yet not in the flesh, but in the spirit, in the impulse and motion of God.

111. It is not so to be understood that my reason is greater or higher than that of all other men living; but I am the Lord's twig or branch, and am a very mean and little spark of his; he may set me where he pleaseth, I cannot hinder him in that.
112. Nor is this my natural will, that I could do it by my own small ability; for if the spirit were withdrawn from me, then I could neither know nor understand my own writings; and I must on every side fight and struggle with the devil, and lie open to temptation and affliction as well as other men.

113. But in the following chapters you will soon see the devil and his kingdom laid naked; his pride and reproach shall suddenly be discovered.
Of the creation of the Holy Angels. An Instruction or open Gate of Heaven.

1. THE learned, and almost all writers, have very much encumbered and mightily troubled their heads, to search, contrive and conceive in nature (and have brought forth many and sundry opinions) concerning how and of what the holy angels were created: And on the other side, what was that horrible fall of the great prince Lucifer, or how he became so base a wicked and fierce wrathful devil, from whence that evil quality should spring, or what drove him to it.

2. And though this ground and great mystery hath remained hidden from the beginning of the world, and that human flesh and blood is not able to conceive or apprehend it,

3. Yet God, who created the world, will reveal himself now at the end; and all great mysteries will be manifested or revealed, to intimate that the great Day of Revelation and final Judgment is near, and daily to be expected.

4. On which will be restored again all that which hath been lost through Adam, and in which the kingdom of heaven, and the kingdom of the devil, in this world, shall be severed asunder.

5. But how all this will be done God will reveal in the highest plainness and simplicity, so that no man will be able to oppose him.

6. Therefore every one should lift up his eyes, for his redemption draweth near, and not seek after riotous living and vain show, supposing it to be the best life here; whereas in their arrogance they sit in the midst of hell, to wait upon Lucifer as his guard.

7. Which they themselves shall suddenly be sure to see, with great terror, anguish and eternal despair, as also to their shame and scorn: of which the devils are a terrible example, who were once the fairest and brightest angels in heaven, as I shall reveal, write and manifest here following. I will suffer God's impulse, I am not able to withstand it.

Of the Divine Quality.

8. Since thou hast perceived, in the third chapter, the ground of the Ternary in the divine being, I shall here shew plainly the power and operation, as also the qualities or qualification, in the divine being; or from what the angels were properly and peculiarly created, or what their body and power are.

9. As I said before,* all the powers or virtues are in God the Father, and no man with his sense and thoughts can reach to apprehend it. But in the stars and the elements, as also by all the creatures in the whole creation of this world, a man may clearly know it.

* Lit., " as I said before, all virtue is in God the Father, which [virtue] no man can, with his senses, reach to apprehend. But in the stars... this can be clearly known [or recognized]," or "one may clearly know [or recognize this]." In the original the two " its " do not appear to refer to the same antecedent. The first is a feminine, and refers to "virtue" (Kraft); the second a neuter, which grammatically must refer to the whole statement, "all virtue is in God the Father." St M., too, takes Kraft to imply a plural meaning, " powers "; and then, for Sparrow's " it," " it," writes " them."
10. All power and virtue is in God the Father; and proceedeth also forth from him, as light, heat, cold, soft, gentle, sweet, bitter, sour, astringent or harsh, sound or noise, and much more that is not possible to be spoken or apprehended. All these are in God the Father, one in another as one power, and yet all these powers move in his exit or going forth.

11. But the powers in God do not operate or qualify in the same manner as in nature in the stars and elements, or in the creatures.

12. No, you must not conceive it so: For lord Lucifer by his elevation made the powers of impure nature thus burning, bitter, cold, astringent, sour, dark and unclean.

13. But in the Father all powers are mild and soft, like heaven, and very full of joy, for all the powers triumph in one another, and their voice or sound riseth up from eternity to eternity.

14. There is nothing in them but love, meekness, mercy, friendliness or courtesy; even such a triumphing, rising source or fountain of joy, wherein all the voices of heavenly joyfulness sound forth, so that no man is able to express it, nor can it be likened to anything.

15. But if a man will liken it to anything, it may nearest be likened * to the soul of man, when kindled or enlightened by the Holy Ghost.

* See Chap. 3, v. 40.

16. For then it is thus joyful and triumphing, and all powers rise up in it and triumph, and so raise the bestial body that it trembleth: This is a true glimpse of the divine quality, as the quality is in God. But in God all is spirit.
17. In God the quality of water is not of such a running and qualifying condition or manner as it is in this world, but is a spirit, very bright, clear and thin, wherein the Holy Ghost riseth up, a mere power.

18. The bitter quality qualifieth in the sweet, and in the astringent (or harsh and sour) quality, and the love riseth up therein from eternity to eternity.

19. For the love in the light and clarity or glorious brightness goeth forth from the Heart or Son of God, in all the powers of the Father, and the Holy Ghost moveth in them all.

20. And this, in the deep of the Father, is like a divine SALITTER [SALNITRUM], which I must needs liken to the earth, which before its corruption was even such a Salitter.

21. But not so hard, cold, bitter, sour and dark, but like the deep, or like heaven, very clear and pure, wherein all powers were good, fair and heavenly; but that prince Lucifer thus spoiled them, as you will perceive here following.

22. This heavenly Salitter or powers one in another generate heavenly joyful fruits and colours; all manner of trees and plants, on which grow the fair, pleasant and lovely fruits of life.

23. There spring up also in these powers and virtues all manner of blossoms and flowers, with fair heavenly colours and smells.

24. They are of several tastes, each according to its quality and kind, very holy, divine and full of joy.
25. For every quality beareth its own fruit: as in the corrupted murderous den or dark valley and dungeon of the earth there spring up all manner of earthly trees, plants, flowers and fruits,

26. Also within the earth grow curious precious stones, silver and gold; and these are a type of the heavenly generating or production.

27. Nature laboureth with its utmost diligence upon this corrupted dead earth, that it might generate heavenly forms and species or kinds; but it generateth only dead, dark and hard fruits, which are no more than a mere shadow or type of the heavenly.

28. Moreover, its fruits are altogether fierce or biting, bitter, sour, astringent or harsh and hot, also cold, hard and naught; they have scarce any spark or spice of goodness in them.

29. Their sap and spirit is mixed with hellish quality, their scent or smell is a very stink. Thus hath lord Lucifer caused them to be; as I shall clearly shew hereafter.

30. Now when I write of trees, plants and fruits, you must not understand them to be earthly, like those that are in this world; for it is not my meaning that there shall grow in heaven such dead, hard trees of wood, or such stones as consist of an earthly quality.

31. No, but my meaning is heavenly and spiritual, yet truly and properly such: I mean no other thing than what I set down in the letter.

32. In the divine pomp and state two things are especially to be considered: First, the Salitter or the divine powers, which are moving, springing powers.
33. In that same power groweth up and is generated fruit according to every quality and species or kind, viz. heavenly trees and plants, which without ceasing bear fruit, blossom fairly, and grow in divine power, so joyfully that I can neither speak it nor write it down;

34. But stammer it like a child that is learning to speak, and can by no means rightly call it forth to be known as the spirit giveth it.

35. The second form or property of heaven in the divine pomp or state is Mercurius or the sound, as in the Salitter of the earth there is the sound, whence there groweth gold, silver, copper, iron and the like; of which men make all manner of musical instruments for sounding or for mirth, as bells, organ-pipes and other things that make a sound: There is likewise a sound in all the creatures upon earth, else all would be in stillness and silence.

36. By that sound all powers are moved in heaven, so that all things grow joyfully, and generate very beautifully: And as the divine power is manifold and various, so also the sound or Mercurius is manifold and various.

37. For when the powers spring up in God they touch and stir one another, and move one in another, and so there is a constant harmony, mixing or concert, from whence go forth all manner of colours.

38. In those colours grow all manner of fruits, which rise or spring up in the Salitter, and the Mercurius or sound mingleth itself therewith, and riseth up in all the powers of the Father, and then sounding and tunes rise up in the heavenly joyfulness.
39. If you should in this world bring many thousand sorts of musical instruments together, and all should be tuned in the best manner, most artificially, and the most skilful masters of music should play on them in concert together, all would be no more than the holdings and barkings of dogs, in comparison with the divine music, which riseth up through the divine sound and tunes from eternity to eternity.

40. Further, if thou wilt consider the heavenly divine pomp, state and glory, and conceive how it is, and what manner of sprouting, branching, delight and joy there is in it,

41. View this world diligently, and consider what manner of fruit, sprouts, and branches grow out of the Salitter of the earth, from trees, plants, herbs, roots, flowers, oils, wine, corn and whatever else there is that thy heart can find out; all is a type of the heavenly pomp.

42. For the earthly and corrupt nature hath continually laboured from the beginning of its creation to this day to bring forth heavenly forms or shapes in the earth, as also in man and beasts; as men very well see that every year new arts are invented and brought to light, which hath been constantly so from the beginning to this time.

43. But yet nature hath not been able to bring forth heavenly power, virtue and qualities, therefore its fruit is half dead, corrupt and impure.

44. You must not think that in the divine pomp there come forth beasts, worms and other creatures in flesh, as in this world they do: No; but I mean only the wonderful proportion, power, virtue and comeliness of feature in them.
45. Nature laboureth with the utmost diligence in its power to produce heavenly figures, shapes or forms; as we see, in men, beasts, fowls and worms, as also in the increase or growth of the earth, that all things are done, shew and appear most perfectly and ingeniously.

46. For Nature would fain be delivered from this vanity, that it might procreate heavenly forms in the holy power.

47. For in the divine pomp go forth likewise all manner of sprouting and vegetation of trees, plants and all manner of fruit; and every one beareth its own fruit, yet not in an earthly quality and kind, but in a divine quality, form and kind.

48. Those fruits are not of so dead, hard, bitter, sour and astringent a relish for food; nor do they rot and grow stinking, as those in this world do, but all consist in holy divine power.

49. Their constitution or composition is from divine power, from the Salitter and Mercurius of the divine pomp, and they are the food of the holy angels.

50. If man's abominable fall had not spoiled it he would have been feasted in such a manner in this world, and would have eaten in a twofold manner such fruits as indeed were presented to him in Paradise.

51. But the infectious lust, evil attraction or impulse of the devil, who had infected and spoiled the Salitter of which Adam was made, that brought man into an evil longing or lust to eat of both the qualities, the evil and the good, whereof I will write clearly here following, and demonstrate it.
Of the Creation of Angels.

52. The spirit sheweth plainly and clearly that, before the creation of angels, the divine being, with its rising and qualifying, was from eternity, and remained so in the creation of angels, as it is also at this day, and will so continue in and to eternity.

53. The space, room or place of this world, together with the creaturely heaven, which we behold with our eyes, as also the space or place of the earth and stars, together with the deep, was in such a form as still at this day it if in, aloft, above the heavens, in the divine pomp.

54. But it was [or became] in the creation of the angels, the kingdom of the great prince Lucifer: ["Understand according to the second Principle, out of which he was thrust forth into the outermost, which also is the very innermost of all."]

55. Who, by his proud elevation in his kingdom, kindled the qualities or the divine Salitter out of which he was made; ["Understand the centre of his nature, or the first Principle;"] and set it on fire.

56. Supposing thereby he would grow hugely and highly light and qualifying above the Son of God. But he became a fool; therefore this place or space, in its burning quality, could not subsist in God, whereupon the creation of this world ensued.

57. But this world at the end, in God's appointed time, will be set again into its first place, as it was before the creation of angels; and lord Lucifer will have a hole * or dungeon for his eternal habitation therein, and he will remain eternally in his kindled quality, which will be an eternal, base, filthy, reproachful habitation, an empty, void dark valley or dungeon, a hole of fierceness or wrath.

* "a hole" (eine Höle), "a hollow place," "a cavern."

Now observe,

58. God in his moving created the holy angels at once, not out of a strange matter, but out of himself, out of his own power and eternal wisdom.

59. But the philosophers had this opinion: as if God had made the angels out of the light only; but they erred therein, for the angels were made not only out of the light, but out of all the powers of God.

60. As I have shewn before, there are two things especially to be observed in the deep of God the Father; first, that the power, or all the powers of God the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, are very lovely, pleasant and various, and yet are all one in another as one power.

61. As the powers of all the stars rule in the air, so also in God; But with its operation every power in God sheweth itself severally and distinctly.

62. Then afterwards, that the sound is in every power, and the tone or tune of the sound is according to the quality of every power; and therein consisteth the total heavenly kingdom of joy. From this divine Salitter and Mercurius all angels are made, viz. out of the body of nature.

Question.

63. But thou mayest here ask, How are they made or generated, or in what way and manner?

Answer.

64. If I had the tongue of an angel, and thou hadst an angelical understanding, we might very finely discourse of it. But the spirit only seeth it, and the tongue cannot advance towards it. For I can use no other words than the words of this world; but now the Holy Ghost being in thee, thy soul will well apprehend it.

65. For behold, the total holy Trinity hath with its moving composed, compacted or figured a body or image out of itself, like a little god, but not so fully or strongly going forth as the whole Trinity, yet in some measure according to the extent and capacity of the creatures.

66. For in God there is neither beginning nor end; but the angels have a beginning and end,* but not circumscriptive, apprehensive, palpable or conclusive ; for an angel can sometimes be great, and suddenly little again; their alteration is as swift as man's thoughts are. All qualities and powers are in an angel, as they are in the whole Deity.

* "the angels have a beginning and end." Note by St M.: "that is to say, an origin and a scope of operation."

 "circumscriptive, apprehensive, palpable or conclusive" (abmesslich oder begreiflich), "measurable or palpable." St M. translates: "que l'on ne peut mesurer ni circonscrire," "which cannot be measured nor circumscribed."

67. But thou must rightly understand this: They are made and compacted together, or figured, out of the Salitter and Mercurius, that is, out of the exit or excrescence.*

* "the exit or excrescence" (der Ausgang), "the efflux." St M. has, "l'effluve," the effluence.
68. Consider this similitude: Out of the sun and stars go forth the elements, and they make in the Salitter of the earth a living spirit, and the stars remain in their circle or sphere, and that spirit likewise getteth the quality of the stars.

69. But now the spirit, after its compaction, is a severed distinct thing, and hath a substance of its own, as all the stars have; and the stars also are and remain severed and distinct things, each of them is free to itself.

70. Nevertheless the quality of the stars reigneth in the spirit; yet the spirit can and may raise or demerse itself * in its own qualities, or may live in the influences of the stars, as it pleaseth: It is free, for it hath got for its own the qualities which it hath in itself.

* "raise or demerse itself," or "assert or sink itself." St M. renders this, " se corroborer ou s'affoiblir," " assert itself or weaken."

71. And though it had them at the beginning from the stars, yet they are now its proper own: Just as a mother when she hath the seed in herself, as long as she hath it in her, and that it is a seed, it is hers; but when the seed is become a child, then it is no more the mother's, but is the child's proper own.

72. And though the child be in the mother's house, and the mother nourish the child with her food, and the child could not live without the mother, yet both the body and the spirit, which are generated out of the seed of the mother, are the child's proper own, and it retaineth its corporeal right to itself.

73. And in this manner it is with the angels, they also are all composed, framed or figured out of the divine seed, but every one hath its own body to itself. Though they are in God's house, and feed on the fruit of their mother, out of which they were made, yet the bodies are their proper own.

74. But the quality externally without them, or externally without their bodies, viz. their mother, is not their propriety, as also their mother is not the child's propriety; also the mother's food is not the child's propriety; but the mother giveth it to the child out of love, seeing she hath generated the child.

75. She may well also thrust the child out of her house, when the child is stubborn, and will not be obedient, and may withdraw her food from it, which also thus befell the principality of Lucifer.

76. Thus God may withdraw his divine power, which is externally without the angels, when they elevate themselves against him; but when that is done, a spirit must pine away and perish.

77. As when the air, which also is man's mother, is withdrawn from a man, he must needs die; so also the angels cannot live without their mother.
THE FIFTH CHAPTER

Of the Corporeal Substance, Being and Propriety of an Angel.

Question.

1. NOW here the question is, What manner of body, form or shape hath an angel, or what figure is it of?

Answer.

2. As man is created to be the image and similitude of God, so also are the angels, for they are the brethren of men, and men in the resurrection will have no other form or image than the angels have, as our King CHRIST himself testifieth. (Matt. xxii. 30)

3. Besides, the angels never shewed themselves in any other form or shape to men here on earth, than in a human form and shape.

4. Therefore seeing that in the resurrection we shall be like the angels, the angels must needs be shaped and figured like us, or else we must assume to ourselves another image or shape in the resurrection, which would be against and contrary to the first creation.

5. Thus also, on mount Tabor, Moses and Elias appeared [Matt. xvii.], in their own form and shape, to the disciples of Christ, though they had been a long time in heaven before.

6. And Elias was taken up into heaven alive [Kings ii. 12], with his living body, and yet had now no other form or shape than he had when he was on earth.
7. Also when Christ went to heaven, two angels hovered in the clouds, [Acts i. 11] and said to the disciples, Ye men of Israel, what do you look after?
This JESUS shall come again, as you have seen HIM go away to heaven.

8. Thus it is plain and clear enough that he will come again in the same form at the last day, with a divine and glorified body, as a Prince of the holy angels, which will be the men-angels.

9. The spirit also testifieth clearly that angels and men have one and the same image; for out of the same place wherein Lucifer sat, and out of which he was made, God hath made another angel instead of expelled Lucifer and his legions, which angel was ADAM, if he had but persevered in his clarity, brightness or glory.

10. But there is yet a sure hope of resurrection, and then we shall get the angelical clarity or glory and purity again.

Question.
11. Now thou wilt ask, How then are the angels created according to the image of God?

Answer.
12. First, the compacted, figured body is indivisible and incorruptible, and not to be felt by man's hands; for it is constituted or composed out of the divine power, and that power is so knit and bound together that it can never be destroyed again.

13. For as none, no not anything, can destroy the whole Deity, so also there is not anything that can destroy an angel; for every angel is formed, figured, set together or composed out of all the powers of God, not with flesh and blood, but out of the divine power.

14. First, the body is out of all the powers of the Father, and in those powers is the light of God the Son; now the powers of the Father and of the Son, which are in an angel creaturely, generate an understanding spirit, which riseth up in that angel.

15. First of all, the powers of the Father generate a light, whereby an angel seeth into the whole Father, whereby he can see the outward power and operation of God, which is externally without its own body, and thereby can see its fellow-brethren, and can see and enjoy the glorious fruit of God, and therein consisteth its joy.

16. At first that light came out of the Son of God in the powers of the Father, into the angelical body creaturely, and is the body's proper own, which cannot be withdrawn from it by anything, unless itself extinguished it, as Lucifer did.

17. Now all the powers, which are in the whole angel, generate that light; and as God the Father generateth his Son to be his Heart, so the power of the angel also generateth its son and heart in itself, and that again enlighteneth all powers in the whole angel.

18. After that there goeth forth out of all the powers of the angel, and also out of the light of the angel, a fountain, which springeth or welleth up in the whole angel; and that is its spirit, which riseth up into all eternity; for in this same spirit is all perception and all knowledge [i.e. understanding] of all powers and of all types and modes [of life] which are in the whole [universal] God.
19. For that spirit springeth up out of all the powers of the angel, and goeth up into the mind, where it hath five open doors; there it can look round about and see whatsoever is in God, and also whatsoever is in itself.

20. And so it goeth forth from all the powers of the angel, as also from the light of the angel; as the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son, and filleth the whole corpus or body.

Now observe the great Mystery.

21. There are two things to be observed in God; the first is the Salitter, or the divine powers, out of which is the body or corporeity; and the second is the Mercurius, tone, tune or sound: thus also it is, in like manner and form, in an angel.

22. First there is the power, and in the power is the tone or tune, which, in the spirit, riseth up into the head, into the mind,* as in man in the brain; and in the mind it [the tone] hath its open doors or gates; but in the heart it hath its seat and its origin, where it springeth [or ariseth] from all the powers.

* " into the head, into the mind." J. B. does not here use Kopf, the usual word for head, but Haupt. " Mind " = Gemüthe. See Ch. 3, par. 94.

23. For the fountain of all powers floweth in [or to] the heart, as it doth also in man, and in the head it hath its princely seat, where it seeth all, smelleth all, and feeleth all.

24. And now when it seeth and heareth the divine tone, tune and sound rise up, which is externally without it, then is its spirit affected and kindled with joy, and elevateth itself in its princely seat, and singeth and ringeth forth very joyful words concerning God's holiness, and concerning the fruit and vegetation of the eternal life.

25. Also concerning the ornament, colours and beauty of the eternal joy, and concerning, the amiable blessed glance or gracious aspect and countenance of God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; also concerning the excellent fraternity, fellowship and communion of angels, concerning the continual everlasting joy fulness, concerning the holiness of God, and concerning the angels' own princely government.

26. In brief, concerning all powers, and that which proceedeth from all God's powers; which, in regard of the untowardness of my corruption in the flesh, I cannot write, I would much rather be there present myself.

27. But what I cannot write here I will commit to thy soul to consider further of it, and at the Day of the Resurrection you shall see it most plainly and clearly.

28. You should not here scorn my spirit, for it is not sprung forth from the wild beast, but is generated from my power and virtue, and enlightened by the Holy Ghost.

29. Here I write not without knowledge; but if thou, like an epicure and fatted swine of the devil, from the devil's instigation, shouldst mock at these things and say:

30. The fool surely hath not gone up to heaven and seen or heard them, these are mere fables; then, in the power of my knowledge, I would have you warned, and cited before the severe judgment of God.
31. And though in my body I am powerless to bring thee there, yet That from which I have my knowledge is mighty and potent enough to cast thee even into the abyss of hell.

32. Therefore take warning, and consider that thou also belongest to the angelical choir, and read the following hymn with longing delight, and then the Holy Ghost will be awakened and stirred up in thee, and thou also wilt get a desire and longing after the heavenly chorus and choir of dancing. Amen.

33. The musician hath wound up his pegs, and tuned his strings; the Bridegroom cometh. When the round beginneth take heed thou dost not get the hellish gout in thy feet, lest thou be found incapable or unfit for the angelical dance, and so be thrust out from the wedding, seeing thou hast on no angelical garment.

34. Surely the gate will be locked upon thee, and so thou wilt not enter in any more, but wilt dance with the hellish wolves in the hellish fire; truly thou wilt then forget to mock, and sorrow will gnaw thee.

Of the Qualification of an Angel.

Question.
35. The question now is, What manner of qualification hath an angel?

Answer
36. The holy soul of a man, and the spirit of an angel, are and have one and the same substance and being, and there is no difference therein, but only in the quality itself, or in their corporeal government; that which qualifieth outwardly, or from without, in man by the air hath a corrupt earthly quality, yet on the other side, hidden from the creatures, it hath also a divine and heavenly quality.

37. But the holy soul understandeth it well, as the kingly prophet David saith,[Psalm civ. 3] The Lord rideth on the wings of the wind. In the angel the divine property qualifies only in perfect holiness, divinity and purity.*

* The last clause of this par. does not appear in Sparrow's translation. It is in all the German eds. except 1656 and Schiebler's ed.

Question.

38. But a simple man may ask, What do you mean by the word qualifying, or what is that?

Answer.

39. I mean thereby the power, which in the body of the angel entereth in from without, and cometh forth again; as in a similitude, when a man fetcheth breath and breatheth it forth again; for therein standeth the life both of the body and of the spirit.

40. The quality from without kindleth the spirit in the heart, in the first fountain, whereby all the powers in the whole body become stirring, and then that quality in the corporeal spirit, which is the natural spirit of an angel or a man, riseth up into the head, where it hath its princely seat or throne and government, and there it hath its counsellors, whose advice it taketh.

41. The first counsellor is the eyes; they are affected with everything they look upon, for they are the light.

42. For as the light goeth forth from the Son of God in the whole Father into all the powers, and affecteth all the powers of the Father, and on the other side all the powers of the Father affect the light of the Son of God wherefrom ariseth the Holy Spirit: *

* The words printed in italics are not in Sparrow's translation, nor in the German ed. of 1656, nor in Schiebler's ed.
They are in all other German eds.

43. So do the eyes work in the thing they look upon, and the thing worketh again in the eyes, and the counsellor, the eyes, bringeth it into the head before the princely seat or throne; and there it is to be approved of.

44. Now if the spirit is pleased therewith, then it bringeth the same to the heart, and the heart giveth it to the passages or issuings forth of the powers or fountain-veins in the whole body; and then the mouth and hands and feet fall to work.

45. The second counsellor is the ears, which have their rise also from all the powers in the whole body through the spirit; their fountain is Mercurius or the sound, which ariseth from all the powers.

46. * And as in all the powers of God the Mercurius riseth and soundeth, wherein the heavenly tone, tune or joy consisteth, and the tone or tune goeth forth out of all the powers, and so in the attraction of the spirit in God is elevated or raised up:

* "Likewise it is from all the powers of God that the Mercurius riseth and soundeth, wherein the heavenly tone or joy consisteth. The tone or tune goeth forth from all the powers, and riseth up in the attraction (Zusammenfüngung) of the spirit in God; and when one power stirreth the other and soundeth, then the tone or tune goeth forth and riseth up again in all the powers of the Father, and all the powers of the Father are again affected therewith, whereby they are always impregnated with the tone and continually generate it again in every power " (St Martin).

47. And when one power toucheth or stirreth the other, and tuneth or soundeth, then the tune or sound goeth forth, and riseth up again in all the powers of the Father; and so all the powers of the Father are affected therewith, whereby they are always impregnated with the tune, and continually generate it again in every power:

48. Thus the second counsellor in the head is the ears, they stand open, and in all that soundeth the sound goes forth through them.

49. Now where the Mercurius soundeth and is elevated or predominant, there the Mercurius of the spirit goeth also in, and is thereby affected, and bringeth it [the sound] before the princely throne in the head, where it is to be approved by the other four counsellors.

50. And if the spirit is pleased therewith, then it [the spirit] bringeth the same before its mother into the heart, and the heart, or the fountain of the heart, giveth it [the sound] to all the powers in the whole body; and then the mouth and hands lay hold on it.

51. But if the whole princely council in the head be not pleased, so that it [the sound] is approved, then it [the princely council] lets that go again, and bringeth it [the sound] not to the mother, the heart.

52. The third princely counsellor is the nose; there the fountain riseth up from the body in the spirit into the nose, and there it hath two open doors or gates.
53. As the excellent, precious and amiable blessed savour or smell goeth forth from all the powers of the Father and of the Son, and tempereth itself with all the powers of the Holy Ghost, whence the Holy Spirit and most precious savour riseth up from the fountain of the Holy Ghost; and floweth or boileth in all the powers of the Father, and kindleth all the powers of the Father, whereby they are impregnated again with the amiable blessed savour or saving smell, and so generate it in the Son and Holy Ghost:

54. So also in angels and men, the power of the smell riseth up out of all the powers of the body by and through the spirit, and cometh forth at the nostrils of the nose, and is affected with all smells or savours, and bringeth them through the nostrils of the nose, which is the third counsellor, into the head, before the princely seat or throne.

55. And there it is to be proved whether the smell be a good smell or savour, pleasing to man's constitution and complexion, or no: If it be good, then the counsellor bringeth the same to its mother, that the smell may be brought to effect; if it be not good, then is it expelled and thrust away.

56. And this counsellor of the smell, which is generated out of the Salitter, is also mixed with Mercurius, and so belongeth to the heavenly joyfulness, and is a glorious, excellent and fair fountain in God.

57. The fourth princely counsellor is the taste on the tongue, which also ariseth from all the powers of the body through the spirit into the tongue: for all fountain-veins of the whole body go into the tongue, and the tongue is the sharpness or taste of all the powers:

58. Just as the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son, and is the sharpness or proof of all powers, and in his moving or rising up bringeth all that which is good again into all the powers of the Father, whereby the powers of the Father are impregnated again, and so continually generate the taste.

59. But that which is not good the Holy Ghost speweth out, as a loathsome abomination, as it is written in the Apocalypse [Rev. iii 16]; and as he spewed out the great prince Lucifer in his pride and perdition; for the Holy Ghost could no more endure to taste the fiery proud stinking quality. And thus it happens to all proud stinking men.

60. O man, let this be told thee, for the spirit is earnestly jealous in this thing especially: Desist from pride; or else it will be with you as it befell the devils. There is no jesting or trifling herein; the time is very short, thou wilt suddenly taste it, I mean the hellish fire.

61. Now as the Holy Ghost proveth all, so the tongue also proveth all tastes: and if the same pleaseth the spirit, then the spirit bringeth the same into the head, to the other four counsellors before the princely seat, and there it is proved whether it be profitable or wholesome for the qualities of the body.

62. If so, then is it brought to the mother, the heart, which giveth it to all the veins or powers of the body, and then the mouth and hands lay hold of it.

63. But if it be not good, then the tongue spits or speweth it out, before it comes to the princely council.
64. But though the taste be pleasant to the tongue, and is a good taste, but yet is not serviceable and useful for the whole body, then it is rejected nevertheless, when it comes before the council, and the tongue must spit or spew it out, and touch it no more.

65. The fifth princely counsellor is the feeling; which fifth counsellor ariseth also from all the powers of the body in the spirit, into the head.

66. As all powers go forth from God the Father and Son, in the Holy Ghost, so one toucheth another, from whence existeth the tune or Mercurius, so that all the powers sound and move themselves.

67. Else if one did not touch another, nothing would stir at all, and so this touching maketh the Holy Ghost stir, so that he riseth up in all the powers, and toucheth all the powers of the Father, wherein then existeth the heavenly joyfulness or triumphing, as also tuning, sounding, generating, blossoming and vegetation or springing, all which hath its rising from this, that one power toucheth another.

68. For Christ saith in the Gospel [John v. 17], I work, and my Father worketh also. And he meaneth this very touching and working, in that every power goeth forth from him, and generateth the Holy Ghost, and in the Holy Ghost all the powers are already clearly stirred, by the going forth of the Father.

69. Therefore the Holy Ghost floweth, boileth and riseth up from eternity to eternity, and kindleth again all the powers of the Father, and maketh them stirring, so that they are always impregnated.
70. In such manner it is also in angels and men: for all powers in the body (Corpus) arise, and touch one another, or else angels and men could feel nothing.

71. But if one member be too much stirred, it crieth to the whole body for help, and the whole body stirs, as if it were in a great commotion or uproar, as if the enemy were at hand, and cometh to help that member, and to deliver and release it from the pain.

72. This you may see if a finger be but hurt, crushed or wounded, or any other member of the body, be it which it will; presently the spirit in that place runneth suddenly to the mother, the heart, and complaineth to the mother; and if the pain do but a little exceed, then the mother rouseth up and awakeneth all the members of the body, and all must come to help that member.

Now observe,

73. Thus one power continually toucheth and stirreth another in the whole body, and all the powers rise up into the head before the princely council, which princely council proveth the stirring of all the powers.

74. Now if one member stirreth too much, and at any time hurteth a princely counsellor; (as by seeing, it would be in love with that which it ought not to be in love withal):

75. As lord Lucifer did, who saw the Son of God, and fell in love with that high light, and moved and stirred himself so very much, intending to be equal with him, or indeed to be higher and brighter than he; such stirring or meddling the counsellors reject.
76. Or if one member would stir and move too vehemently by hearing, and would fain hear false and wicked tongues in talking lies and fictions, and bring that to the heart, this also is rejected by the counsellors.

77. Or if it would by the smelling get a longing or lusting after that which is none of its own. As lord Lucifer did also, who longed after the holy savour or sweet smell of the Son of God, and intended in his elevation and kindling to smell and savour yet more pleasantly.

78. In that manner he also deceived our mother Eve, saying,[Gen. iii 5] If she did but eat of the forbidden tree, then she should be wise or witty, and be like God; but this smelling or stirring the council likewise rejecteth.

79. Or if by tasting it should fall into a desire and longing to eat that which is not of the quality of the body, or is none of its own; as mother Eve in Paradise fell a longing to eat of the devil's crab-apples, and did eat thereof; such stirring in lust the council also rejecteth.

80. In short, there are therefore five in the princely council, that one should advise another, and every one is of a peculiar sundry quality; and that compacted or concreted spirit which is generated out of all the powers is their king or prince, and he sitteth in the head in the brain of a man, and in an angel in that power which is instead of the brain of a man, and in the head also, upon his princely throne, and executeth everything which was concluded and decreed by the whole princely council.*

* "and he sitteth in the head in the brain of a man," etc.
" In man, he sitteth in the head, in the brain; and in an angel he sitteth also in the head, upon his princely throne, in that power which is instead of the brain of a man, and executeth everything, etc. (St Martin).
THE SIXTH CHAPTER

How an Angel, and how a Man, is the Similitude and Image of God.

1. BEHOLD! as the being or essence in God is, so also is the being in man and in angels; and as the divine body is, so also is the angelical and the human body or corporeity.

2. But with this difference alone, that an angel, and a man, is a creature, and not the whole being, but a son of the whole being, whom the whole being hath generated; and therefore it is fit that it should be in subjection to the whole being, seeing that it is the son of the body of the whole being.

3. Now if the son resist and oppose the father, it is but right that the father should cast him away out of the house, seeing the son sets himself against him that hath generated him, and from whose power he is become a creature.

4. For if any one make somewhat out of that which is his own, he may, if it doth not prove according to his will, do with it what he pleaseth, and make it either a vessel of honour or of dishonour; which was done even so to Lucifer.

Now observe:

5. From all qualities the whole divine power of the Father speaketh forth the WORD; that is, the Son of God.

6. Now that voice, or that WORD which the Father speaketh, goeth forth from the Father's Salitter or powers, and from the Father's Mercurius, sound or tune: This the Father speaketh forth in himself, and that WORD is the very splendour or glance proceeding from all his powers.
7. But when it is spoken forth it stayeth or sticketh no more in the powers of the Father, but soundeth or tuneth back again in the whole Father in all powers.

8. Now that WORD which the Father pronounceth or speaketh forth hath such a sharpness, that the tone of the WORD goeth swiftly in a moment through the whole deep of the Father, and that sharpness is the Holy Ghost.

9. For the WORD which is spoken forth or outspoken abideth as a splendour or glorious edict or proclamation before the king.

10. But the tone or sound, which goeth forth through the Word, executeth the edict of the Father, which he had outspoken through the Word; and that is the birth or geniture of the holy Trinity.

11. Now behold! An angel, and a man also, is thus: The power in the whole body hath all the qualities, as it is in God the Father.

12. And as all the powers in God the Father rise up from eternity to eternity, so all the powers rise up also in an angel, and in a man, into the head; for higher they cannot rise; for they are but creatures that have a beginning and end.

13. And in the head is the divine council-seat or throne, and [the throne] signifieth God the Father, and the five senses or qualities are the counsellors, which have their influences out of the whole body, out of all the powers.

14. * The five senses always hold counsel in the power of the whole body, and when a conclusion is formed, the same is uttered [or pronounced] by the united council [lit. judge] in its [the council's] centre, or in the midst of the body, as a word, in the heart; for the heart is the fountain-spring of all powers, whence the word itself taketh its rise [or ariseth].

* In this par. a new translation has been substituted for Sparrow’s original rendering.

15. * Then the word standeth in the heart as a self-subsisting person, compacted from all the powers [combined]; it is a word and representeth or denoteth God the Son. Then [also] it riseth up from the heart into the mouth and upon the tongue, which [latter] is the sharpness, and sharpeneth the word, so that it soundeth, and differentiateth it according to the five senses.

16. From what quality soever the word taketh its original, in that quality it is thrust forth upon the tongue, and the power of the distinction or difference goeth forth from the tongue; and that signifieth the Holy Ghost.

17. For as the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son, and distinguished and sharpeneth all, and effecteth or produceth that which the Father speaketh through the Word:

18. So also the tongue sharpeneth, articulateth and distinguisheth all that which the five senses in the head bring through the heart on to the tongue; and the spirit goeth forth from the tongue through the Mercurius or tone in that place, as it was decreed or concluded by the council of the five senses, and executeth it all.

Of the Mouth.
19. The mouth signifieth that thou art an unalmighty son of thy Father, whether thou art an angel or a man. For through the mouth thou must draw into thee the power of thy Father, if thou wilt live.

20. An angel must do so, as well as a man, though indeed he needs not to use the element of air in that manner as a man doth; yet he must attract into himself, through the mouth, the spirit from which the air in this world existeth.

21. For in heaven there is no such air, but the qualities are very meek and joyful, like a pleasant cheering breath of wind, and the Holy Ghost is among all the qualities in the Salitter and Mercurius.

22. This the angel also must make use of, or else he cannot be a moveable creature, for he must also eat of the heavenly fruit through the mouth.

23. Thou must not understand this in an earthly manner; for an angel hath no guts, neither flesh nor bones, but is constituted or composed by the divine power in the shape, form and manner of a man, and hath all members like man, except the members of generation, and the fundament or going out of the draff, neither hath an angel need of them.

24. For man first gat his members of generation and fundament in his doleful and lamentable fall. An angel sendeth forth nothing but the divine power, which he taketh in at his mouth, wherewith he kindleth his heart, and the heart kindleth all the members, and that he sendeth forth from himself again at the mouth, when he speaketh and praiseth God.

25. But the heavenly fruits which he eateth are not earthly; and though they are in such a form and shape as the earthly, yet they are mere divine power, and have such a pleasant lovely taste and smell that I cannot liken it to anything in this world; for they taste and smell of the Holy Trinity.

26. Thou must not think that they are there only as it were a type or shadow of things; no; for the spirit sheweth plainly that in the heavenly pomp, in the heavenly Salitter and Mercurius, grow divine trees, plants, flowers, and all sorts of whatever is in this world but as a type and resemblance: As the angels are, so are the vegetation and fruits, all from the divine power.

27. These heavenly sprouts and springings thou must not wholly liken to this world: For there are two qualities in this world, a good and an evil; and many things grow through the power of the evil quality, which doth not so in heaven.

28. For heaven hath but one form or manner:
nothing groweth there which is not good. Lord Lucifer alone hath deformed and dressed this world in that manner: Therefore was mother Eve ashamed, when she had eaten of that which was dressed by the evil quality; in like manner also she was ashamed of her members of generation, which she had caused by the biting of this apple.

29. The angelical and heavenly fruit hath not such [an evil quality or] substance: Indeed it is most certain and true that there are all manner of fruits in heaven, and not types and shadows merely: Also that the angels pluck them with their hands, and eat them, as we that are men do, but they need not any teeth to do it withal, neither have they any, for the fruit is of a divine power.

30. Now all this, whatsoever an angel maketh use of, which is externally without him, for the supporting his life, is not his corporeal propriety, as if he had it by a natural right, but the heavenly Father giveth it to the angels in love.

31. True it is that their body is their own propriety, for God hath given it to them for a propriety. Now whatsoever is given to any one for his own, or for propriety, that is his by right of nature, and he doth not deal righteously who taketh it from him again, unless [he doth so] upon condition and agreement; and thus neither doth God [take things away again]. Therefore an angel is an eternal incorruptible creature, which standeth or subsisteth in all eternity.

32. But what would the body profit him, if God did not feed it, for then it would have no mobility, and would lie still like a dead block. Now, therefore, the angels are obedient to God, and humble themselves before the powerful God; they honour, laud and praise him in his great deeds and works of wonder, and sing continually of God's holiness, because he feedeth them.

Of the Gracious, Blessed, and Joyful Love of the Angels towards God, from a true Ground.

33. The right love in the divine nature cometh from the fountain of the Son of God. Behold, thou child of man, let this be told thee: The angels know already what is the right love toward God, but thou needest it in thy cold heart.

34. Observe, when the gracious, amiable, blessed, joyful glance and light, together with the sweet power out of the Son of God, shineth into all powers in the whole Father, then all the powers are kindled by the gracious, amiable, blessed, lovely light and sweet power, in a triumphing and joyful manner.

35. So also when the gracious, amiable, blessed and joyful light of the Son of God shineth on the loving angels, and casteth its beams into their heart, then all the powers in their body are kindled, and there riseth up such a joyful love-fire, that for great joy they sing and ring forth praises, and [there riseth up] that which neither I nor any other creature is able to express.

36. With this song I would have the Reader cited into the other life, where he will have experience thereof: I am not able to set it down in writing.

37. But if thou wilt have experience of it in this world, give over thy hypocrisy, bribery and deceit, and thy scorning; and turn thy heart in all seriousness to God: Repent thee of thy sins, with a true intention and resolution to live holily, and pray to God for his holy spirit.

38. Wrestle with him, as the holy patriarch Jacob did, [Gen. xxxii.] who wrestled with him all the night, till the dawning of the day, or morning redness broke forth, and would not give over till God had blessed him. Do thou so likewise with him, and the Holy Ghost will get a form in thee.

39. If thou holdest on in thy earnestness, and wilt not give over, then will this fire come suddenly upon thee, like lightning, and shine into thee; and then thou wilt well experience that which I have here written, and wilt easily believe that which is in my book.

40. Thou wilt also become quite another man, and wilt think thereon all the days of thy life; thy delight will be more in heaven than on earth.
41. For the conversation of the holy soul is in heaven, and though indeed it converseth in the body on earth, yet it is always continually with its Redeemer JESUS CHRIST, and eateth as a guest with him. Note this!
THE SEVENTH CHAPTER

Of the Court, Place and Dwelling, also of the Government of Angels, how these things stood at the Beginning, after the Creation, and how they became as they are.

1. HERE the devil will oppose like a snarling dog, for his shame will be discovered; and he will give the Reader many a sore stroke, and always put him in doubt that these things are not so.

2. For nothing doth torment the devil more than when his glory is upbraided to him, by signifying what a glorious king and prince he hath been: When this is objected to him, then he is in a rage and madness, as if he would storm and overflow all the world.

3. If this chapter should be lighted upon by a Reader in whom the fire of the Holy Spirit should be somewhat weak, I fear the devil would be very busy to set upon him, tempting him to doubt whether the things set down here be so or no, that the devil's kingdom might not stand so very naked, nor his shame be so quite discovered.

4. Now if he can but suppose that he will bring it to pass to be doubted of in any heart, he will not fail to use his utmost skill, pains and labour therein. Already I see very well that he hath it in his purpose.

5. Therefore I would have the Reader warned that he be diligent in the reading hereof, and patient so long till he cometh to the reading of the creation and of the government of this world, then he will find it plainly and clearly demonstrated from nature.
Now observe:

6. When God Almighty had decreed in his council that he would make angels or creatures out of himself, then he made them out of his eternal power and wisdom, according to the form and manner of the Ternary in his Deity, and according to the qualities in his divine being.

7. At first he made three kingly governments or dominions, answerable to the number of the Holy Trinity, and each kingdom had the order or ordinance, power and quality of the divine being.

8. Now elevate thy sense, thoughts and spirit into the deep of the Deity, for here a gate is opened. The place or space of this world, the deep of the earth, and above the earth even to heaven, as also the created heaven, which was made out of the midst [or center] of the waters, which moveth above the stars, and which we behold with our eyes, whose depth we cannot sound or reach with our sense, all this place or room together was one kingdom, and Lucifer was king therein, before his being thrust out.

9. The other two kingdoms, that of Michael and that of Uriel, are above the created heaven, and are like that other kingdom.

10. These three kingdoms together contain such a deep as is not of any human number, nor can they be measured by anything.

11. Yet you must know that these three kingdoms have a beginning and an end; but that God, who hath made these three kingdoms out of himself, is infinite, and hath no end.

12. Yet without and beyond and besides these three kingdoms there is likewise the power of the Holy Trinity, for God the Father hath no end.

13. But thou art to know this Mystery: that in the centre or midst of these three kingdoms is generated the splendour or Son of God.

[14. "This needs explanation: Read the second (The Three Principles) and the third part (The Threesfold Life) of these writings, where it is described more fundamentally: for nothing that is divisible, measurable or circumscriptive is here meant or understood, only it was in simplicity and plainness so set down at the first, because of the slow and dull apprehension."]

15. And the three kingdoms are circular round about the Son of God, neither of them is farther from or nearer to the Son of God, for one is equally as near about the Son of God as another.

16. From this fountain [or tree], and from all the powers of the Father, goeth forth the Holy Ghost, together with the light and power of the Son of God, in and through all angelical kingdoms or dominions, and without, beyond and besides all the angelical kingdoms; which no angel or man is able to dive or search into.

17. Neither have I any purpose to consider of it further, much less to write; but my revelation reacheth even into the three kingdoms, like an angelical knowledge.

18. But not in my reason or apprehension, nor in perfection like an angel, but in part, and so long only as the spirit tarrieth in me, further I know it not.

19. When he parteth from me I know nothing but the elementary and earthly things of this world: but the spirit seeth even into the depth of Deity.
Question.

20. Now one may ask, What manner of substance or thing is it, that the Son of God is [thus] generated in the centre or midst of these three kingdoms? Surely one angelical host must needs be nearer unto him than another, seeing their kingdom hath so great a deep?

21. Then, also, the glory, clarity or brightness and power of the Son of God would not be so great without, beyond or besides those kingdoms, as in, with and among those that are near him, and as in the angelical circuit or court.

Answer.

22. The holy angels were made to be creatures from God, that they should praise, sing, ring forth and jubilate before the Heart of God, (which is the Son of God), and increase the heavenly joy.

23. Where else then should the Father place them, than before the gate of his Heart? Doth not all joy of man, which is in the whole man, arise from the fountain of the heart? So then in God also there ariseth the great joy out of the fountain of his Heart.

24. Therefore hath he created the holy angels out of himself, which are as it were little gods, answerable to the being and qualities of the whole God, that in the divine power they should act forth the praise, and sing and ring forth in the power, and increase the arising joy from the Heart of God.

25. But the splendour and the power of the Son of God, or Heart of God, which is the light or source and fountain of joy, taketh up his fairest and most joyful original in the centre or midst of these kingdoms, and shineth into and through all the angelical gates.

26. Thou must understand this properly, what the meaning of it is: For when I speak by way of similitude, and liken the Son of God to the sun, or to a round globe, it hath not that meaning as if he were a circumscriptive fountain, which can be measured, or whose depth, beginning or end could be fathomed. I write so by way of similitude only, till the Reader can come to the true understanding.

27. For the meaning here is not that the Son of God should be generated in the centre or midst of these angelical gates only, and nowhere else without, beyond or besides these angelical gates.

28. For the powers of the Father are everywhere, from and out of which the Son is generated, and from which the Holy Ghost goeth forth; how then should he be generated in the centre of these angelical gates only?

29. This therefore is the only ground and meaning, that the holy Father, who is ALL, would have in these angelical gates his most joyful and most richly loving qualities, out of which is generated the most joyful and most richly loving light, word, heart, or fountain of powers; and therefore hath he created his holy angels in this place for his joy, honour and glory.

["30. In the abyssal or bottomless eternity
"indeed, it is [the same] in one place as in another;
"but where there are no creatures nothing can be
"known, except by the spirit in its wonders."]

31. And this is the select place of the glory of God, which God the Father, in himself, hath made choice of, wherein his holy WORD or Heart is generated in highest glory, clarity or brightness, power and triumphing joy.

32. For observe this mystery: The light, which is generated out of the powers of the Father, who is the true fountain of the Son of God, is generated also in an angel, and in a holy man, so that in the same light and knowledge he [the Son of God] triumpheth in great joy.

33. How then is it that the light should not be generated everywhere, in the whole Father? For its power is ALL, and everywhere, even there, where our heart and senses or thoughts cannot reach.

34. So now, where the Father is, there also is the Son and the Holy Ghost; for the Father everywhere generateth the Son, his holy WORD, power, light and sound, and the Holy Ghost goeth everywhere forth from the Father and the Son, even within all the angelical gates, and also without, beside * or beyond the angelical gates.

* "beside." See note to par. 46.

35. Now if a man likeneth the Son of God to the globe of the sun, as I have often done in the foregoing chapters, that is spoken in the way and manner of natural similitudes; and I was constrained to write so, because of the lack of understanding of the Reader, that so he might raise his sense or thoughts in these natural things, and climb from step to step, from one degree to another, till he might come into the high Mysteries.

36. But it hath not this meaning, that the Son of God is a circumscribed, compacted, figured image, like the sun.

37. For if it were so, then must the Son of God have a beginning, and the Father must have generated him in time, and then he could not be the eternal, almighty Son of the Father; but the Son would be like a king, who had yet a greater king above him, who had generated him in time, and in whose power it was to alter and change him.

38. This would be such a Son as had a beginning, and his power and splendour would be like the power of the sun which goeth forth from the sun, the body or globe of the sun standing still in its place: If this were so, then indeed one angelical gate [or port] would be nearer to the Son of God than another.

39. But here I will shew to thee the highest gate of the divine Mystery, and thou needest seek no higher; for there is no higher.

Observe:

40. The Father's power is all, in and above all heavens, and the same power everywhere generateth the light. Now this UNIVERSAL POWER is, and is called, the universal power of the Father; and the light which is generated out of that universal power is, and is called, the Son.

41. But it is therefore called the Son, in that it is generated out of the Father, so that it is the Heart of the Father in his powers.

42. And being generated, it is another person than the Father is; for the Father is the power and the kingdom, and the Son is the light and the splendour in the Father, and the Holy Ghost is the moving or exit * out of the powers of the Father and of the Son, and formeth, figureth, frameth and imageth all.

* "exit" (Ausgang), "effluence"; rendered by St M., " expansion."
43. As the air goeth forth from the power of the sun and stars, and moveth in this world, and causeth that all creatures are generated, and that the grass, herbs and trees spring and grow, and causeth all whatsoever is in this world to be:

44. So the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son, and moveth or acteth, formeth or frameth and imageth all that is in the whole God.

45. All growing or vegetation and forms in the Father arise and spring up in the moving of the Holy Ghost; therefore there is but ONE only GOD, and three distinct Persons in one divine being, essence or substance.

46. Now if a man should say the Son of God were an image, circumscriptive or measurable like the sun, then the three Persons would be only in that place where the Son is, and his splendour or shining would be without or beyond him, and as gone forth from the Son; and the Father would be one, only externally, without or beside * the Son, and then the power of the Father, which would be afar off and wide distant from the Son, would not generate the Son and Holy Ghost, externally, without and beyond the angelical gates; and so there would be an un-almighty being, externally, without or beside this place of the Son; and, moreover, the Father would be a circumscribed or measurable being.

* "beside." In par. 34 the word used in the original is "ausser," "without," i.e. out of. In par. 46, "ausserhalb," " without," i.e. outside of. The latter term St M. translates, "détaché," "apart from."
47. Which is not so: But the Father everywhere generateth the Son out of all his powers, and the Holy Ghost goeth everywhere forth from the Father and the Son, and so there is but ONE only God in one being, with three distinct persons.

48. Of which you have a similitude in the precious gold ore, or a gold-stone unseparated. First there is the matter, that is, the Salitter and Mercurius, which is the mother or the whole stone, which generateth the gold everywhere in the whole stone; and in the gold is the glorious power or virtue of the stone.

49. Now the Salitter and Mercurius signify the Father, the gold signifieth the Son, and the power or virtue signifieth the Holy Ghost: In such a manner also is the Ternary in the holy Trinity, only that all moveth and goeth forth therein universally.

50. In a gold-stone men find also a little piece of it in some place, wherein there is more and purer gold, than in another not discerned, though there is gold in the whole stone or ore.

51. Thus also is the place or space in the centre or midst of the angelical gates a more pleasant, more gracious, amiable and blessed place to the Father, wherein his Son and Heart is generated in the most richly and fully loving manner, and wherein the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son in the most richly and fully loving manner.

52. Thus you have the right ground of this Mystery, and you ought not to think that the Son of God was generated of the Father at once, at a certain time, as one that hath a beginning, and that he standeth now as a king, and would be worshipped.

53. No; this would not be an eternal Son, but one that had a beginning, and was under, beneath or inferior to the Father that had generated him.

54. Neither would he be all-knowing, for he could not know how it was before his Father had generated him.

55. But the Son is generated continually from eternity unto eternity, and shineth continually from eternity into the powers of the Father again, whereby the powers of the Father are always from eternity to eternity continually impregnated with the Son, and generate him continually.

56. Out of which the Holy Ghost continually existeth from eternity to eternity, and so continually from eternity to eternity goeth forth from the Father and the Son, and hath neither beginning nor end.

57. And this being is not so in one place only of the Father, but everywhere in the whole Father, who hath neither beginning nor end; into which no creature can reach with its senses or thoughts.

Of the Nativities or Genitures of the Angelical Kings, and how they came to be.

[58. "This also is more fundamentally described in the second and in the third book."]

59. The person or the body of a king of angels is generated out of all the qualities, and out of all the powers of his whole kingdom, through the moving, welling-up spirit of God; and therefore such a one is their king, in that his power reacheth into all the angels of his whole kingdom, and he is the head and general or leader, the most beautiful and most powerful Cherubim or throne angel. Such a one was lord Lucifer also before his fall.

[60. "This also is more fundamentally described in our second and third books; viz. in "the Three Principles of the Divine Being, and "in the Threefold Life of Man."]

Of the Ground or Foundation, and Mystery.

61. If a man would find out the Mystery, and the deepest ground, he must diligently and exactly view and consider the creation of this world, the government or dominion, and rule or order, as also the qualities of the stars and the elements.

62. Although these are of a corrupted and twofold being, which is not living, nor hath understanding; for it is but the corrupt Salitter and Mercurius, in which king Lucifer kept house, wherein is both evil and good; though it be indeed the real power of God, which before its corruption was bright and pure, as now it is, in heaven.

63.* These powers of the stars and elements, did the Creator, after the horrible fall of Lucifer's kingdom, bring together again into the same order as that in which the kingdom of the angels stood in the divine pomp before this fall.

* A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow's original rendering.
64. Only thou must not think that the angelical kingdom with its creatures was so rolled, wheeled and turned round about, as now the stars are, which are only powers, and in regard of the birth or geniture of this world are thus wheeled or turned about, whose birth or geniture standeth in the moving, boiling anguish in evil and good, in corruption and redemption, till the end of this enumeration, or till the last day.

Now observe:

65. The sun standeth in the centre or midst of the deep, and is the light or heart which proceeded out of all stars: For when, in the kingdom of Lucifer, before the creation of the world, the Salitter and Mercurius was thin or dim, and had qualified the one with the other, then God extracted the heart out of all the powers, and made the sun thereof.

66. Therefore the sun is the most shining and the brightest of all, and re-enlighteneth all the stars [planets] again; all the stars work in its power, and it itself hath the power of all the stars; it kindleth all the powers of the stars with its splendour and heat, and so every star receiveth from the sun, according to its power and condition or kind.

67. Thus also is the frame and constitution of the angelical kingdom: The sun signifieth the supreme throne-angel, the Cherubim or king in an angelical kingdom: Such a one as lord Lucifer was before his fall: He had his seat in the centre or midst of his kingdom, and reigned by his power in all his angels.

68. Just as, in the Salitter and Mercurius, the sun ruleth in all the powers of this world, that is, in softness and hardness, in sweetness and sourness, in bitterness and astringency, in heat and cold, in air and water.
69. As is apparent in winter, when there is so hard cold or frost that the water becometh ice; though the sun shineth somewhat warm through all the cold frost, yet for all its beams, by which it shineth on them, water freezeeth into snow and ice.

70. But here I will shew thee the right Mystery. Behold, the sun is the heart of all powers in this world, and is compacted, framed or composed out of all the powers of the stars, it re-enlighteneth all the stars, and all the powers in this world, and all powers grow active, operative or qualifying in its power.

72. As the Father generateth his Son, that is, his heart or light out of all his powers, and that light which is the Son generateth the life in all the powers of the Father, so that in the same light, in the Father's powers, goeth forth all manner of growing, vegetation, springing, ornaments and joy; so is the kingdom of angels also constituted, all according to the similitude and being of God.

73. A Cherubim or leader of a kingdom of angels is the fountain or heart of his whole kingdom, and is made out of all the powers out of which his angels are made, and is the most powerful and the brightest of them all.

[74. "The angelical king is the centre or fountain; as Adam's soul is the beginning and centre of all souls. And, as from the place of the sun "was created and generated the planetic wheel " or sphere, wherein each star is desirous of the
75. For the Creator hath extracted the heart out of the Salitter and Mercurius of the divine powers; ["Understand he hath composed it by the Fiat, viz. the centre of nature."]

76. And the Creator hath formed out of that the Cherubim or king, that the Cherubim or king might press or penetrate again with his power into all the angels, and affect them all with his power.

77. Just as the sun with its power presseth into all the stars, and affecteth them all; or as the power of God the Son presseth into all the powers of God the Father, whereby they are all affected, wherein the birth or geniture of the heavenly joyfulness springeth up.

78. In this form, condition and manner it is with the angels also. All the angels of one kingdom signify the many and various powers of God the Father; the angelical king signifieth the Son of the Father, or the heart out of the powers of the Father, out of which the angels are made; the exit out of the king of angels, or his going forth into his angels,* or his affecting of his angels, signifieth God the Holy Ghost.

* "the exit out of the king of angels, or his going forth into his angels." "The exit" (Ausgang) is rendered by St M., "l'expansion," and "going forth into," "l'imprégnation." The original has, "Ausgang... Inficirung" "going out... going into." See Ch. 8, par. 65.

79. As the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son, and affecteth all the powers of the Father, as also all heavenly fruits and forms, from whence all hath its rising, and wherein the heavenly joyfulness doth consist:

80. Just in such a manner is the operation or power of a Cherubim or throne - angel, which worketh or operateth in all his angels, as the Son and Holy Ghost operate in all the powers of the Father; or as the sun operateth in all the powers of the stars [planets].

81. Whereby all angels obtain the will of the throne-angel, and are all obedient to him; for they all work in his power which is in them all.

82. For they are the members of his body; as all the powers of the Father are members of the Son, and he is their heart; and as all heavenly forms and fruits are members of the Holy Ghost, and he is their heart, in whom they rise up.

83. Or as the sun is the heart of all the stars, and as all stars are members of the sun, and work one among another as one star, and yet the sun is the heart therein; though indeed there are many and various powers, yet all work in the power of the sun, and all hath its life from the power of the sun; look on what you please, be it in animals, in metals or in vegetables of the earth.
THE EIGHTH CHAPTER

Of the whole Corpus or Body of an Angelical Kingdom.

The Great Mystery.

1. THE angelical kingdoms are throughout formed according to the Divine Being, and they have no other form or condition than the Divine Being hath in its Trinity.

2. This only is the difference: that their bodies are creatures, which have a beginning and an end, and that the kingdom where their locality, habitation or court is, is not their corporeal propriety, or proper own, having it for their natural right, as they have their bodies for a natural right.

3. But the kingdom belongs to God the Father, who hath made it out of his powers, and he may set it and dispose it which way he pleaseth; otherwise their body is made according to all, and out of all, the powers of the Father.

4. Their power generateth the light and knowledge in them. As God generateth his Son out of all his powers; and as the Holy Ghost goeth forth out of all the powers of the Father and the Son; so also in an angel: the spirit goeth forth from their heart, from their light and from all their powers.

Now observe:

5. As the condition and constitution of an angel is, in his corporeal body, with all the members thereof, such also is the condition of a whole kingdom, which together is as it were but one angel.
6. If a man rightly considereth all circumstances, he will find that the whole government in its locality, circumference or region in a kingdom, is of the same condition or constitution as the body (Corpus) of an angel, or as is the Holy Trinity.

7. All power is in God the Father, and he is the fountain of all powers in his deep; in him are light and darkness,* air and water, heat and cold, hard and soft, thick and thin, sound and tone, sweet and sour, bitter and astringent, and that which I cannot number or rehearse.

* "light and darkness." Here St M. refers the reader to pars. 9-16 of Ch. 4 for a better understanding of this statement.

8. I conceive of it only in my body,* for that is originally, from Adam to this time, made out of all powers, and according to the image of God.

* "I conceive of it only in my body" (allein an meinem Leibe nehme ichs ab), i.e. "from [a consideration of] my body alone [as apart from any other consideration] I take it to be so."

9. But here thou must not think that the powers in God the Father are in such wise, or qualify in such a corrupt manner and kind, as in man, which lord Lucifer hath so brought to pass; no, it is all very lovely, pleasant, delicious and joyful, very gentle, and meek or mild.

10. First there is the light (as I may naturally compare or resemble it) like the light of the sun, but not so intolerable as the light of the sun is to our corrupted perished eyes, but very lovely, pleasant and delightful, an aspect or glance of love.
11. But the darkness is hidden in the centre of the light, that is, when a creature, who is made out of the power of the light, would move and boil higher and faster in that light than God Himself doth, then in that creature that light would go out and be extinguished.

[12. "Understand, the creature kindleth the "fire, if its spirit elevateth itself beyond the "humility that is from love: Read the second "and third books, viz. The Three Principles, and "The Threefold Life of Man."]

13. And instead of light it hath darkness, and therein the creature is sensible, by experience, that there is a darkness hidden in the centre.

14. As when a man kindleth a wax candle it giveth light, but when it is put out, then is the snuff or candle darkness: Thus also the light shineth from all the powers of the Father; but when the powers are perished or corrupted, then the light is extinguished, and the powers would remain in darkness, as is apparent by Lucifer.

15. In God the air also is not of such a kind, but is a lovely, pleasant, still breath or voice, blowing or moving; that is, the exit, going forth or moving of the powers is the original of the air, in which the Holy Ghost riseth up.

16. Neither is the water of such a kind in God, but it is the source or fountain in the powers, not of an elementary kind, as in this world; if I should liken it to anything, I must liken it to the sap or juice in an apple, but very bright and lightsome, like heaven, which is the spirit of all powers.

17. It is lord Lucifer who hath thus spoiled it, that it rageth and raveth so in this world, which so runneth and floweth, and is so thick and dark, and moreover if it runneth not, it becometh stinking; of which I shall treat more largely when I shall write of the creation.

18. In God the heat is a most lovely, pleasant, soft, gentle, mild, meek warmth, an effluence or going forth of light, which expandeth itself, rising up from the light, wherein the source or fountain of love springeth up.

19. The cold also in God is not of such a kind, but is a cooling or refreshing of the heat, a mollifying or allaying of the spirit, a rising up, boiling or moving of the spirit.

   Note here the Depth.
20. In Moses God saith, when he gave the Law to the Children of Israel, I am an angry jealous God to those that hate me; afterwards he also calls himself a merciful God to them that fear him.

   Question.
21. Now the question is, What in heaven is the wrath of God? And whether God be angry in himself; or how is God moved to anger?

   Answer.
Here there are chiefly seven sorts of qualities or circumstances to be observed.

   I. Of the First Species or Circumstance.
22. First: In the divine power there is, hidden in secret, the astringent quality, which is a quality of the kernel, pith or hidden being, a sharp compaction or penetration in the Salitter, very sharp and harsh or astringent, which generates hardness, and also coldness; and when the astringent quality is kindled it generateth a sharpness like unto salt.
23. This astringent quality is one species or source of wrath in the divine Salitter; and when this source is kindled, which may be done by great motion or elevation, touching or stirring, then the astringent causeth, or qualifieth in, great coldness, which is very sharp, like unto salt, very hard, binding, knitting and attracting together like a stone.

24. But in the heavenly pomp or state it is not so elevating; * for it doth not elevate itself, neither doth it kindle itself; king Lucifer alone hath kindled this quality in his kingdom, through his elevation and pride, whence this quality is burning even till the last day.

* "it is not so elevating" (erheblich) or "predominant."
St M. has: "elle ne s'exalte pas," "it does not exalt itself."

25. And by this now, in the creation of this world, the stars and the elements, as also the creatures, tremble and burn; out of it existeth also the house of death and of hell, also an eternal, base, loathsome habitation for the kingdom of Lucifer, and for all Godless men.

26. In the heavenly pomp this quality generateth the sharpness of the spirit, out of which, and whereby, the creaturely being is so formed or constituted that a heavenly body may be framed, as also all manner of colours, forms and sprouts or vegetation.

27. For it is the contraction, compacting or imaging of a thing, and therefore it is the first quality, and a beginning of the angelical creatures, and of all images or likenesses which are in heaven, and all which are in this world, and all whatsoever that can be named or expressed.
28. But if it be kindled through exaltation, which those creatures that are created out of the divine Salitter alone can do (and only in their own kingdom), then it is a burning source-vein of the wrath of God.

29. For it is one of the seven spirits of God, in whose power standeth the divine being or essence in the whole divine power and heavenly pomp.

30. So if it be kindled, then it is a fierce source of wrath, and a beginning of hell, and a torment and woe of the hellish fire, also a quality of darkness; for therein are extinguished the divine love, and also the divine light.

[31. "It is a key which locketh in to the " chamber of death, and generateth death, from " whence proceed earth, stones and all hard " things."]

II. Of the Second Species or Circumstance.

32. The Second quality, or second spirit of God in the divine Salitter, or in the divine power, is the sweet quality, which worketh in the astringent, and mitigateth the astringent, so that it is altogether lovely, pleasant and mild or meek.

33. For it is the overcoming of the astringent quality, and is the very source or fountain of the mercy of God, which overcometh the wrath, whereby the astringent harsh source is mollified, and God's mercy riseth up.

34. Of this you have a similitude in an apple, which at first is astringent, harsh or chokey, but when the sweet quality forceth and overcometh it, then it is very soft, lovely and pleasant to eat: Thus it is in the divine power also.

35. For when men speak of the mercy of God the Father, they speak of his power, of his fountain spirits, of the qualities which are in the Salitter, out of which his most richly loving Heart or Son is generated.

36. The astringent or harsh quality is the heart, pith or kernel in the divine power, the contraction, compaction or imaging, forming or impression; for it is the sharpness and cold, as it is seen that the harsh astringent cold drieth the water, and maketh it sharp ice.

37. The sweet quality is the allaying or warming, whereby the harsh or astringent and cold quality becometh thin and soft, whence the water taketh its original.

38. Thus the astringent quality is and is called the heart; and the sweet is called barm or warm, or softening or mitigating: they are the two qualities out of which the Heart or son of God is generated.

39. For the astringent or harsh quality, in its stock or kernel, when it qualifieth or operateth in its own power, is a darkness: The sweet quality, in its own power, is a moving, boiling, warming and rising light, a source or fountain of meekness and well-doing.

40. But while both of them qualify or operateth the one in the other, in the divine power, as if they were but one power, they are a meek, mild, lovely, pleasant, merciful qualifying.

41. These two qualities are two of the spirits of God, among the seven qualifying or fountainspirits in the divine power.
42. Whereof you have an image in the Revelation of John, where he seeth seven golden candlesticks or lights before the Son of God, which signify the seven spirits of God, which shine in great clarity, brightness or lustre before the Son of God, out of which the Son of God is continually generated from eternity to eternity, and is the Heart of the seven spirits of God, and which I will here describe in order one after another.

43. You must here elevate your sense or mind in the spirit, if you intend to understand and apprehend it; or else in your own sense or mind you will be an astringent, hard, blind stock.

III. Of the Third Circumstance or Species.

44. The Third quality, or the third spirit of God in the Father's power, is the bitter quality; which is a penetrating or forcing of the sweet and the astringent or harsh qualities, and which is trembling, *penetrating and rising up.

* "trembling," rendered by St M., "vibrante," "vibrating" or "tense."

Observe here:

45. The astringent or harsh quality is the kernel or stock, and is sour or attractive; and the sweet is the light, mollifying and softening; and the bitter is penetrating or triumphing, which riseth up and triumpheth in the astringent or harsh quality, and in the sweet.

46. This is the source of joy, or the cause of the laughing, elevating joy, whereby a thing trembleth and jubilateth for joy; whence the heavenly joy existeth.
47. Moreover, it is the imaging or forming of all sorts of red colours in its own quality; in the sweet it imageth or formeth all sorts of white and blue; in the astringent, or harsh and sour, it formeth all sorts of green, dusky and mixed colours, with all manner of forms or figures and smells.

48. The bitter quality is the first spirit from whence mobility taketh its original, whence the life becometh stirring, and is well called Cor or the heart, for it is the trembling, shivering, elevating, penetrating spirit, a triumphing or joy, an elevating source of laughing; in the sweet quality the bitter is mollified, so that it becometh very richly loving and joyful.

49. But if it be moved, elevated and kindled too much, then it kindleth the sweet and the astringent or harsh qualities, and is like a tearing, stinging and burning poison, as when a man is tormented with a raging plague-sore, which maketh him cry out for woe and misery.

50. In the divine power this quality, when it is kindled, is the spirit of the zealous or jealous and bitter wrath of God, which is unquenchable, as may be seen by the legions of Lucifer.

51. Yet further: this quality, when it is kindled, is the bitter hellish fire, which putteth out the light, turning the sweet quality into a stink, causing a sharpness and tearing, a hardness and coldness in the astringent or harsh quality.

52. In the sour quality it causeth a rankness and brittleness, a stink, a misery, a house of mourning, a house of darkness, of death and of hell; an end of joy, which therein can no more be thought upon: For it cannot be quieted or stilled by anything, nor can it be enlightened again by anything; but the dark, astringent or harsh, stinking, sour, torn, bitter, fierce quality riseth up to all eternity.

Now observe:
53. In these three species or qualities standeth the corporeal being, or the creatural being of all creatures in heaven and in this world, whether it be angel or man, beast or fowl or vegetable, of a heavenly or of an earthly form, quality and kind, as also all colours and forms.

54. Briefly, whatsoever imageth itself, standeth in the power and authority of these three head qualities, and is formed by them, and also is formed out of their own power.

55. First, the astringent and sour quality is a body or source which attracteth the sweet power, and the cold in the astringent or harsh quality maketh it dry.

56. For the sweet quality is the heart of the water, for it is thin and light or bright, and is like heaven: and the bitter quality maketh it separable or distinct, so that the powers form themselves into members, and cause mobility in the body.

57. And when the sweet quality is dried, then it is a corpus or body, which is perfect, but wanting reason.

58. And the bitter quality penetrateth into the body, into the astringent or sour and into the sweet qualities, and frameth all sorts of colours according to that quality to which the body is most eagerly inclined, or according to that quality which is strongest in the body, according to that [strongest quality] the bitter quality frameth the body, with its colours, and according to that [same] quality the creature hath its greatest impulse and inclination, motion, boiling and will.

IV. Of the Fourth Circumstance or Species.

59. The Fourth quality, or the fourth fountainspirit in the divine power of God the Father, is the heat, which is the true beginning of life, and also the true spirit of life.

60. The astringent or harsh and sour quality, and the sweet, are the Salitter, which belongeth to the body, out of which the body is framed.

61. For coldness and hardness stand in the astringent quality, and are a contraction and drying; and in the sweet quality stand the water, and the light or shining-ness, and the whole matter of the body.

62. And the bitter quality is the separation and forming, and the heat is the spirit, or the kindling of the life, whereby the spirit existeth in the body, which [spirit] springeth or moveth in the whole body, and shineth out from the body, and also maketh the living motion in all the qualities of the body.

63. Two things chiefly are to be eyed in all the qualities: If you look upon a body you first see the stock or pith, or the kernel of all the qualities, which is framed or composed out of all the qualities; for to the body belong the astringent or harsh, sour, sweet, bitter and hot qualities; these qualities being dried together, make the body or stock.
The Great Mystery of the Spirit.

64. Now in the body these qualities are mixed, as if they all were but one quality; yet each quality moveth or boileth in its own power, and so goeth forth.

65. Each quality goeth forth from itself into the others, and toucheth or stirreth the others, that is, it affecteth* the others, whereby the other qualities get the will of this quality; that is, they prove the sharpness and spirit of this, as to what is in it, and always mix with it continually.

* "affecteth" (inficiret), "infecteth," implying interaction. This graphic expression of J. B. is, in most cases, translated by Sparrow in the above manner, though in a very few instances he uses "qualify" and "influence." St M. has "inquilifier" which is apparently of his own coining.

66. Now the astringent or harsh quality (together with the sour), always contracteth or attracteth the other qualities together, and so apprehendeth and retaineth the body and drieth it.

67. For it drieth all the other powers, and retaineth them all through its infection or influence; and the sweet softeneth and moisteneth all the others, and so blendeth and tempereth itself with all the others, whereby they become daintily pleasant and mild or soft.

68. The bitter maketh all the others stirring and moveable, and parteth or distinguisheth them into members; so that every member in this tempering obtaineth the fountain of all the powers, whence mobility existeth.

69. The heat kindleth all the qualities, out of which the light riseth up and expandeth itself aloft in all the qualities, so that they see one another: For when the heat worketh in the sweet moisture, then it generateth the light in all the qualities, so that one quality seeth the others. [see Ch.3 par. 67]

70. From whence the senses and thoughts exist, so that one quality seeth the others, which are also in it, and tempered with itself, and proveth them with its sharpness, so that there cometh to be but one will; which in the body riseth up in the first fountain-source or wellspring in the astringent or harsh quality.

71. There the bitter quality penetrateth in the heat through the astringent, and the sweet in the water letteth it easily or gently through; and there the bitter in the heat goeth through the sweet water forth from the body and maketh two open gates, which are the eyes, the first sense or sensibility.

72. You have an example and type or resemblance of this, if you behold and consider this world, especially the earth, which is of the kind and condition of all qualities, and all manner of figures or shapes are formed and imaged therein.

73. First the astringent quality is therein, which attracteth the Salitter together, and fixeth or maketh the earth firm and compact, so that it cometh to be a solid body, which holds together and doth not break asunder, and [the astringent quality] imageth, frameth or formeth therein all manner of bodies, according to the kind of each quality, viz. all manner of stones and ores of minerals, and all manner of roots, according to the condition or kind of each quality.

74. Now when these are imaged or formed, there it [the astringent quality] lieth as a corporeal, springing, boiling mobility, for it moveth or boileth through and in the bitter quality in itself, as in its own imaged, formed or framed body; but without the heat, which is the spirit of nature [or nature-spirit], it hath as yet no life to growing, vegetation, springing or spreading abroad.

75. But when the heat of the sun shineth upon the earth, then there spring and grow in the earth all manner of images or figures of ores or minerals, herbs, roots and worms, and all whatsoever is therein.

76. In the earth the heat of the sun kindleth the sweet quality of water, in all imaged or framed figures; and then through the heat the light cometh to be in the sweet water, and that enlighteneth the astringent or sour quality, and the bitter, so that they see in or by the light; and in that seeing the one riseth up into the other, and proveth the other, that is, in that seeing the one tasteth of the other's sharpness, from whence cometh the taste.

77. When the sweet quality perceiveth the taste of the bitter quality, it caggs * at it [checks or stops it], and giveth back; even as a man, when he tasteth astringent, harsh or bitter gall, openeth both the gums of his palate [throat or jaws] in his mouth in his cagging, and wideneth his palate more than it is of itself; and just so doth the sweet quality against the bitter.

* "caggs... cagging " (flend sich). The German verb, sich flennen, means, to make a wry face.

78. When the sweet quality thus stretcheth or wideneth itself, and retireth from the bitter, then the astringent always presseth after it, and would also fain taste of the sweet: and always maketh the body, that is behind it, and in it, to be dry; for the sweet quality is the mother of the water, and is very meek, mild, soft and gentle.

79. Now when the astringent or harsh and the bitter qualities get their light from the heat, then they see the sweet quality, and taste of its sweet water, and then they continually make haste after the sweet water, and drink it up, for they are very hard, rough and thirsty, and the heat drieth them quite up.

80. And the sweet quality always flieth from the bitter and the astringent, and always stretcheth its palate wider, and the bitter and the astringent continually hasten after the sweet, and refresh themselves from the sweet, and dry up the body.

81. Thus is the true springing or vegetation in nature, be it in man, beast, wood, herbs or stones.

Now observe the End of Nature in this World.

82. When the sweet quality thus flieth from the bitter, and from the sour and astringent, then the astringent and the bitter make all the haste they can after it, as their best treasure; and the sweet presseth vehemently from them, and striveth so much that it driveth and penetrateth through the astringent or harsh quality, and rends the body, and goeth forth from the body, out above the earth, and hasteneth so fast, till a long stalk growth up.

83. Then the heat above the earth presseth upon the stalk, and so the bitter quality is then kindled by the heat, and it [the stalk] receiveth a repulse from the heat, so that it is terrified, and the astringent quality drieth it.

84. Therein the astringent, the sweet, the bitter and the heat struggle together, and the astringent quality in its coldness continually maketh their dryness, and so the sweet withdraweth on the sides, and the others hasten after it.

85. But when it seeth that it is like to be taken or captivated (the bitter quality from within pressing so hard upon it, and the heat from without pressing upon it also), it maketh the bitter fervent or burning, and inflameth it, and there it [the sweet quality] leapeth, springing up through the astringent quality, and riseth up again aloft; so there cometh to be a hard knot behind it in that place where the struggling was, and the knot gets a hole or orifice.

86. But when the sweet quality leapeth or springeth up through the knot, then the bitter quality had so much affected or wrought upon it that it was all in a trembling; and as soon as it cometh above the knot it suddenly stretcheth itself forth on all sides, striving to fly from the bitter quality; and in that stretching forth its body keepeth hollow in the middle, and in the trembling, leaping or springing up through the knot, it still gets more stalk or leaves, and now is frolick or cheerily that it hath escaped the battle.

87. So when the heat from without thus presseth upon the stalk, then the qualities become kindled in the stalk, and press through the stalk, and so become affected or wrought upon in the external light of the sun, and generate colours in the stalk, according to the kind of its quality.
88. But so long as the sweet water is in the stalk, the stalk retaineth its greenish colour according to the kind of the sweet quality.

89. Such substance the qualities always bring to pass with the heat in the stalk, and the stalk always groweth farther, and always one storm or assault is held after another, whereby the stalk always getteth more knots, and still spreadeth forth its branches farther and farther.

90. In the meanwhile the heat from without always drieth the sweet water in the stalk, and the stalk is always smaller at the top; the higher it groweth the smaller it is, growing on so long till it can escape or run no farther.

91. And then the sweet quality yieldeth to be taken captive, and so the bitter, the sour, the sweet and the astringent reign jointly together, and the sweet stretcheth itself a little forth, but it can escape no more, for it is captivated or caught.

92. And then from all the qualities which are in the body, there groweth a bud or head, and there is a new body in the bud or head, which is formed or figured answerable or Uke to the first root in the earth, only now it gets another more subtile form.

* " subtile " (subtile), " delicate " or " fine," and implying the idea of their underlying positions.

93. And then the sweet quality extends itself gently or mildly, and there grow little subtile leaves in the head, which are of the kind of all the qualities, and then the sweet water is as it were a pregnant woman new with child, having conceived the seed, and it always presseth onward, till it openeth the head.
94. And then also the sweet quality presseth forth in little leaves, like a woman who is in travail and bringing forth, but the little leaves or blossoms have no more its colour and form, but the form of all the qualities; for now the sweet quality must bring forth the children of the other qualities.

95. And when this sweet mother hath brought forth the fair, green, blue, white, red and yellow flowers, blossoms or children, then she groweth quite weary, and cannot long nourish or nurse these children, neither can she have them long, seeing they are but her step-children, which are very tender.

96. And so when the outward heat presseth upon these tender children, all the qualities in the children come to be kindled, for the spirit of life qualifieth or floweth in them.

97. And seeing they are too weak for this strong spirit, and cannot elevate themselves, they yield or surrender their noble power, and that smells so lovely and with so pleasant a savour that it rejoiceth the very heart, and maketh it laugh; but they must wither and fall off, because they are too tender for this spirit.

98. For the spirit draweth from the head or bud into the blossoms, and the head or bud is formed according to the kind of all the qualities; the astringent quality attracteth or collecteth the body of the bud or head, and the sweet quality softeneth it and spreadeth it abroad, and the bitter quality parteth or distinguisheth the matter into members, and the heat is the living spirit therein.

99. Now all the qualities labour or work therein, and bring forth their fruit or children, and every child is qualified or conditioned according to the kind and property of all the qualities.

100. This they drive and act so long, till all the matter is quite dried, till the sweet quality or sweet water is dried up, and then the fruit falls off, and the stalk drieth also and falleth down.

And this is the End of Nature in this World.

101. Concerning this, much higher things are to be written, which you will find concerning the creation of this world: This is only brought in for a similitude, and described in the briefest manner.

102. Now the otier form of the qualities, or of the divine powers, or of the seven spirits of God, is especially to be observed or known by the instance or example of heat.

103. First there is the ground, or the corporeal being, although in the Deity, or in the creatures, it [the heat] hath no peculiar or several body, for all the qualities are one in another as one, however the operation of every quality is perceived in particular and severally.

104. Now in the body or fountain is the heat, which generateth the fire, and which is a form or kind of thing that a man can search into; and out of the heat goeth the light through all the spirits and qualities; and the light is the living spirit, which a man cannot search into.

105. A man can search into its will, and know what it willeth, or how it is: For it proceedeth in the sweet quality, and the light riseth up in the sweet quality in the sweet water, but not in the other qualities.

106. For example: If the sweet quality hath the predominance thou canst kindle all things in this world, and so make them burn and give light, but where the other qualities are predominant thou canst kindle nothing; for though thou mayest bring heat into a thing yet thou canst not bring the spirit into it, to make it give light. Therefore all qualities are the children of the sweet quality, or of the sweet water, because the spirit riseth up only in the water.

107. Art thou a rational man, in whom is the spirit and understanding? then look all about in the world, for there thou wilt find it thus.

108. Thou canst kindle wood that it give light, for the water is chief upper regent, or predominant therein; so likewise in all sorts of herbs on earth, wherein the sweet water is predominant.

109. Thou canst not kindle light in a stone, because the astringent or harsh quality is chief or predominant therein: neither canst thou kindle light in earth, unless the other qualities be first vanquished and boiled out of it, which is seen in gunpowder; yet this light is but a flash or a spirit of terror, wherein the devil in the anger of God representeth himself, which I will describe and demonstrate more largely in another place.

Objection.
110. But thou wilt say that a man cannot kindle the water to make it give light.

Answer.
111. Yes, dear man, here lieth or sticketh the Mystery. The wood which thou kindlest is not very fire, but a dark or opaque stock, still the fire and light take their original from thence.

112. But thou must understand this concerning the sweet quality of the water, and not concerning the stick or block; but it is to be understood concerning the unctuosity [oiliness] or fatness which is the spirit therein.

113. Now in the elementary water on earth the sweetness is not the chief or upper regent, but the astringent, bitter and sour quality; else the water were not mortal, but were as that water is out of which heaven is created.

114. That I will demonstrate to thee thus, viz. that the astringent, sour and bitter quality is predominant in the elementary water on earth.

115. Take rye, wheat, barley, oats, or what you will, wherein the sweet quality is predominant, soak or steep it in the elementary water, afterwards distil it, then the sweet quality will take away the predominancy from the others; and afterwards kindle that water, and then you will see the spirit which is remaining in the water of the unctuosness or fatness of the corn, which overcame the water.

116. This thou seest also in flesh: The flesh neither burneth nor shineth nor giveth light, but its fat burneth and shineth or giveth light.

Question.
117. Thou mayest perhaps ask, How comes that to pass, or in what manner is it so?

Answer.
118. Behold, in flesh the astringent or sour, and the bitter qualities are predominant; and in the fat the sweetness is chief and predominant; therefore fat creatures are always merrier and frolicker than the lean, because the sweet spirit floweth more abundantly in them than in the lean.

119. For the light of nature, which is the spirit of life, shineth more in them than in the lean: For in that light in the sweet quality standeth the triumphing or the joy, for the astringent or harsh and bitter qualities triumph therein, for they rejoice that they are refreshed, fed, given to drink and enlightened from the sweet and light quality.

120. For in the astringent or harsh quality there is no life, but an astringent, cold, hard death; and in the bitter quality there is no light, but a dark, bitter and raging pain, a house of trembling, horror, and fierce, wrathful, fearful misery.

121. Therefore when they are guests feasting at the sweet and light quality, then are they affected, and pleasant, very joyful and triumphing in the creature.

122. Therefore no lean creature is merry, unless it be that heat is predominant therein: That is, though it be lean, and hath little of the fat or oil in it, yet perhaps sweetness is very abundant there.

123. On the other side, many creatures have much fatness, and yet are very melancholy or sad, which is because their fatness is inclined to the condition of the elementary water, wherein the astringent or harsh, and bitter qualities are somewhat strong.
124. Art thou a rational man? then observe this: The spirit which moveth on high, aloft from the heat, taketh its exit, rising and shining in the sweet quality; therefore the sweet quality is its friendly or kind will, and reigneth in meekness; and meekness and humility are its proper house or habitation.

125. This is the pith or kernel of the deity, and therefore IT is called GOTT, GOD, because it is sweet, meek, friendly and bounteous or good, GUTIG; and therefore is IT called Barm-hertz-ig (warm-heart-ed or merciful), because its sweet quality riseth up in the astringent or sour and bitter qualities, and refresheth, moisteneth and enlighteneth them, that they might not remain a dark valley.

126. For understand but thy mother tongue aright; thou hast as deep a ground therein as is in the Hebrew or Latin: Though the learned elevate themselves in these, like a proud arrogant bride; it is no great matter, their art is now on the lees [Turba], or bowed down to the dust.

127. The spirit sheweth and declareth, that yet before the end, many a layman will know and understand more than now the wittiest or most cunning doctors know; for the gates of heaven set themselves open; those that do not blind themselves shall and will see it very well; the Bridegroom crowneth his bride. AMEN.*

* Between the 127th and the 128th pars. St M. inserts the following note:—

"One must presume that the following explanation has its origin in the 'mother-tongue,' which the author elsewhere calls 'language of nature.' It is possible that in the last analysis, words corresponding in meaning, but out of the most diverse languages, would shew relations, if not uniform, at least very close to a universal base, were our mind sufficiently open to grasp both the activity and the universality of the language of nature. Without this conjecture, the author's application of the latter to the German word 'barmhertzig' would repel the more superficial minds, since it could not take place in the case of French or any other ordinary language."
See par. 126. J. B. does not identify the two expressions, "mother-tongue" and "language of nature," since he compares his mother-tongue to Hebrew or Latin. The point is, that he means to shew how perfectly the "language of nature" is applicable to his "mother-tongue." St M. has no doubt been misled by the fact that Mutter-Sprache (mother-tongue), when translated into the French langue-mère, signifies root-language, and not native language.

BARM - HERTZ - IG. [warm-hearted or merciful]

128. Observe, the word BARM- is chiefly formed upon thy lips, and when thou pronouncest BARM- then thou shuttest thy mouth, and snarlest * in the hinder part of the mouth;

* "snarlest" (knarren) and "snarleth" (par. 129)—the 1730 ed. has "karren," which is obviously a misprint. The word denotes a rattling noise, and J. B. applies it to the rolling of the "r." In the second instance, however, "snarleth" is in the original "murret," which denotes a low growl or muttering sound. St M. gets over the difficulty by rendering the sentence, "vous retirez le son en arrière," "thou drawest back the sound," which elucidates the idea.

and this is the astringent quality, which environeth or encloseth the word; that is, it figureth, compacted or contracteth the word together, that it becometh hard, or soundeth, and the bitter quality separateth or cutteth or distinguished it.
129. That is, when thou pronouncest BAR, the last letter R snarleth and murmureth like a trembling breath, and thus doth the bitter quality, which is a trembling.

130. Now the word BARM- is a dead word, void of understanding, so that no man understands what it meaneth; which signifieth that the two qualities, astringent, and bitter, are a hard, dark, cold and bitter being, which have no light in them: And therefore a man cannot understand their power without the light.

131. But when a man saith BARM-HERTZ, he fetcheth or presseth the second syllable out from the deep of the body, out from the heart, for the right spirit speaketh forth the word Hertz, which riseth up aloft from the heat of the heart, in which the light goeth forth and floweth.

132. Now observe, when thou pronouncest BARM, then the two qualities, the astringent and the bitter, form, frame or compact together the word BARM, very leisurely or slowly; for it is a long, impotent, feeble syllable, because of the weakness of the qualities.

133. But when thou pronouncest - HERTZ - then the spirit in the word -HERTZ- (heart) goeth forth suddenly, like a flash of lightning, and giveth the distinction and understanding of the word.

134. But when thou pronouncest -IG, then thou catchest or captivatest the spirit in the midst of the other two qualities, so that it must stay there and form the word.

135. Thus is the divine power also; the astringent and bitter qualities are the Salitter of the divine omnipotence, the sweet quality is the pith or kernel of the Barm-hertz-ig-keit, warm-heart-ed-ness, or mer-ci-ful-ness, according to which the whole being, with all the powers, is called GOTT (GOD).

136. The heat is the kernel of the spirit, out of which the light goeth and kindleth itself in the midst or centre of the sweet quality, and becometh captivated by the astringent and bitter qualities, as in the midst or centre wherein the Son of God is generated, and that is the very Hertz (heart) of God.

137. The light's flame or flash, which in the twinkling of an eye, or in a moment, shineth into all the powers, even as the sun doth in the whole world, is the Holy Ghost, which goeth forth from the clarity or brightness of the Son of God, and is the flash of lightning and sharpness; for the Son is generated in the midst or centre of the other qualities, and is caught by the other qualities.

138. When the Father speaketh or pronounceth the WORD, that is, generateth his Son (which is always done for ever and eternally), then that Word first taketh its original in the astringent quality; therein it fixeth, conceiveth or compacteth itself; and in the sweet quality it taketh its fountain, spring or source, and in the bitter quality it sharpeneth and moveth itself, and in the heat it riseth up and kindleth the middle sweet fountain or source.

139. Now it burneth jointly or equally alike in all the qualities of the kindled fire, and the fire burneth forth from the qualities; for all qualities burn, and that fire is one fire, and not many several fires.
140. That fire is the very Son of God, who is thus generated always from eternity to eternity: This I can demonstrate by the heaven and the earth, the stars and the elements, and by all the creatures, stones, leaves and grass, yea in the devil himself; and that, not with dead, slight, insignificant arguments, void of understanding, but with clear, quick, living and invincible firm arguments, even above, beyond and to the refutation of all men's reason, convincingly and undeniably; and lastly, in opposition against all the devils and the gates of hell; and I would do it here, if it would not take up too much room.

141. Yet it shall be treated of all along in this whole book, in all the articles and parts thereof; but you shall find it more particularly in that part concerning the creation of the creatures, as also concerning the creation of heaven and earth and of all things, which will be fitter to be done then, and more easily apprehended by the Reader.

    Now observe:

142. Out of that fire goeth forth the flash or the light, and moveth or boileth in all the powers, and hath or containeth in itself the fountain and sharpness of all the powers, because it is generated, through the Son, out of all the powers of the Father; and so then it reciprocally maketh all the powers in the Father living and moving; and through that spirit are all the angels formed and imaged out of the Father's powers.

143. That spirit formeth and preserveth and supporteth all, all vegetation, all colours and all creatures, both in heaven and in this world, and above the heaven of heavens. For the birth or geniture of the holy Trinity above all is thus and no otherwise, neither will it be otherwise in all eternity.
144. But when the fire is kindled in a creature, that is, when a creature elevateth itself too high or too much (as Lucifer and his legions did), then the light extinguished or goeth out, and the fierce, wrathful and hot source, the source of the hellish fire, riseth up, that is, the spirit of the fire riseth up in the fierce quality.

145. Observe here the circumstances how this is done, or how it can come to be done. Therefore consider: an angel is formed, figured, composed or compacted together out of all powers, as I have described it at large.

146. Now when he elevateth himself, he elevateth himself first in the astringent quality, which he gripeth close together, as a woman who is in travail, and presseth himself, whereby the hard quality becometh so hard and sharp that the sweet water can force or prevail with it no more, and so can rise up no more meekly or mildly in the creature, but is captivated and dried up by the astringent quality, and changed into a hard, sharp, fierce coldness.

147. For it becometh too empty and dry by the astringent contraction, and loseth its bright lustre, and its unctuosity, fatness or oiliness (wherein the light spirit riseth up, which is the spirit of the holy angelical and divine life) becometh so hard compacted and pressed together by the astringent quality, whereby it is dried up like sweet dry wood.

148. So when the bitter quality riseth up in the exsiccated or dried sweet quality, then the sweetness cannot mollify it, and saturate it with its sweet light water, because it is dried up.
149. There the bitter quality raveth and rageth, and seeketh for rest and food, and finds it not, and moveth or boileth in the body as a lingering poison.

150. Now when the heat kindleth the sweet quality, and would mitigate its heat in the sweet water (whence it riseth up and shineth in the whole body), there it finds nothing but a hard, dry, sweet source or quality, there is no sap or moisture, the sap being quite exsiccated or dried up by the astringency.

151. Then the heat kindleth the sweet source or quality, with an intent to be refreshed, but there is no sap left, the sweet source or quality is now burning and glowing only, even as a hard, dried or burnt stone, and can no more kindle its light. And so the whole body remaineth now a dark valley, in which there is nothing but a fierce hard coldness in the astringent quality, and in the sweet quality a hard glowing fire only, wherein the fierce wrathful heat riseth up in all eternity, and in the bitter quality there is a raving, a raging, a stinging and a burning.

152. Thus you have here the true description of an expulsed angel or of a devil, as also the cause thereof, and that not written in a similitude only, but in the spirit, through that power out of which all things are come to be.

153. O man! behold thyself herein, look before thee and behind thee, nothing is in vain.

154. This great history or action, of how it came to pass and how it went, you will find it at large concerning the fall of the devil.
V. Of the Fifth Circumstance or Species.

155. The Fifth quality, or the fifth spirit of God among the seven spirits of God, in the divine power of the Father, is the gracious, amiable, blessed, friendly and joyful love.

156. Now observe what is the fountain of the gracious, amiable, blessed and friendly love of God; observe it exactly, for it is the very pith, marrow or kernel.

157. When the heat in the sweet quality riseth up, and kindleth the sweet source, fountain or spring, then that fire burneth in the sweet quality; now seeing the sweet quality is a thin or transparent lovely pleasant sweet fountain or spring-water, it allayeth the heat and quencheth the fire, and so there remaineth in the sweet fountainspring of the sweet water only the joyful light.

158. The heat is only a gentle soft warming, even as it is in a man who is of a sanguine complexion, wherein also the heat is only a friendly, cheerly wanning, if the party liveth temperately, and keepeth a due measure.

159. That friendly courteous love-light-fire goeth along in the sweet quality, and riseth up into the bitter and astringent qualities, and so kindleth the bitter and astringent qualities, feeding them with its sweet love-sap, refreshing, quickening and enlightening them, and making them living or lively, cheerful and friendly.

160. And when the sweet, light, love-power cometh to them, so that they taste thereof and get its life, O, there is a friendly meeting, saluting and triumphing, a friendly welcoming and great love, a most friendly and gracious, amiable and blessed kissing, and well-relishing taste.

161. There the Bridegroom kisseth his bride: O gracious amiable blessedness and great love! how sweet art thou? How friendly and courteous art thou? How pleasant and lovely is thy relish and taste? How ravishingly sweet dost thou smell? O noble light and bright glory, who can apprehend thy exceeding beauty? How comely adorned is thy love? How curious and dainty are thy colours? And all this eternally! Who can express it?

162. Or why and what do I write, I, whose tongue doth but stammer like a child that is learning to speak? With what shall I compare it? or to what shall I liken it? Shall I compare it with the love of this world? No, that is but a mere dark valley to it.

163. O immense greatness! I cannot compare thee to anything, but only to the resurrection from the dead; there will the love-fire rise up again in us, and embrace man courteously and friendly, and kindle again our astringent, bitter and cold, dark and dead quality, and embrace us most friendly.

164. O noble guest! O, why didst thou depart from us! O fierceness, wrath and astringency or severity, thou art the cause of it! O fierce wrathful devil! O, what hast thou done, who hast sunk down thyself and thy beautiful bright angels into darkness? Woe, woe for ever!

165. O, was not the gracious, amiable, blessed and fair love in thee also? O thou high and lofty-minded devil! Why wouldst thou not be contented? Wert thou not a Cherubim? and was there anything so beautiful and bright in heaven as thou? For what didst thou seek? Wouldst thou be the whole or total God? Didst thou not know that thou wert a creature, and hadst not the fan and casting-shovel in thy own hand or power?

166. O, why do I pity thee, thou stinking goat? O thou cursed stinking devil! how hast thou spoiled us? How wilt thou excuse thyself? What wilt thou object to me?

Objection.

167. Thou sayest, if thy fall had not been, man would never have been thought of.*

* "never have been thought of" (erdacht worden), "thought out". St M. renders the idea very well: "n'eût pas été conçu dans l'imagination divine," "would not have been conceived in the divine imagination."

Answer.

O thou lying devil! Though that should be true, yet the Salitter out of which man is made (which is also from eternity, as well as that out of which thou art made), had stood in eternal joy and bright glory, and had likewise risen up in God, and had tasted of the gracious, amiable, blessed love in the seven spirits of God, and enjoyed the heavenly joy.

168. O thou lying devil, stay but a little, the spirit will discover thy shame to thee; tarry but a little while longer, and thy pomp, pride * and pageantry will be at an end. Stay, the bow is bent, the arrow will hit thee, and then whither wilt thou fall? The place is ready provided and prepared, it wanteth only to be kindled; wilt thou bring fuel  lustily to it, that thou be not frozen with cold? Thou wilt sweat very hard: Dost thou suppose thou shalt obtain the light again? No, but hell fire. Smell thy sweet love, guess at it, what is that called? Gehenna; yes, that will be in love with thee eternally.
* "thy pomp, pride," etc., lit., "thy show will be over."
 "wilt thou bring fuel." The German form is more emphatic, being in the imperative mood, "only bring fuel," etc.

169. Woe, woe, poor miserable blinded man, why sufferest thou the devil to make thy body and soul so dark and blind? O temporal good, and the pleasure and voluptuousness of this life! thou blind whore, why dost thou go a wooing and a whoring to the devil?

170. O security! the devil watcheth for thee. O high-mindedness! thou art a hellish fire. O beauty, pomp or bravery! thou art a dark valley. O potency of dominion! thou art a raging and a tearing of the hellish fire. O self-vindication or vengeance! thou art the fierce wrath of God.

171. O Man! why will the world be too narrow for thee? Thou wilt needs have it all for thyself; and if thou hadst it, thou wouldst not have room enough. O, this is the devil's high-mindedness, who fell out of heaven into hell.

172. O man! alas, O man! why dost thou dance with the devil who is thine enemy? Art thou not afraid* that he will thrust thee into hell? Why dost thou go on so securely? Is it not a very narrow stick on which thou dancest? Under that small narrow bridge is hell! Dost thou not see how high thou art, and how dangerously and desperately thou goest? Thou dancest between heaven and hell.

* "art thou not afraid," or "dost thou not care," or "art thou not mindful."

173. O thou blind man! how doth the devil mock at thee? O, wherefore dost thou trouble heaven? Dost thou think thou wilt not have enough in this world? O blind man! is not heaven and earth thine? Nay, God himself too? What dost thou bring into this world, or what dost thou take along with thee at thy going out of it? Thou bringest a angelical garment into this world, and with thy wicked life thou turnest it into a devil's mask or visor.

174. O thou miserable man, return, the heavenly Father hath stretched forth both his arms and calleth thee; do but come, he will take thee into his love. Art thou not his child? He doth love thee. If he did hate thee, he must be at odds with himself. O no, it is not so: there is nothing in God but a merciful, amiable love and bright glory.

175. O ye watchmen of Israel! why do ye sleep? Awake from the sleep of whoredom, and dress or trim your lamps: The Bridegroom cometh, sound your trumpets.

176. O ye covetous, stiffnecked and drunken roisterers! how do you woo and go a whoring after the covetous devil? Thus saith the LORD, Will ye not feed my people which I have committed to your charge?

177. Behold I have set you upon Moses' chair, and entrusted you with my flock; but you mind nothing but the wool, and mind not my sheep, and therewith you build your great palaces. But I will set you on the stool of pestilence, and my own Shepherd shall feed my sheep eternally.

178. O thou fair world, how doth heaven complain of thee? How dost thou trouble the elements? O wickedness and malice! when wilt thou leave, and give over? Awaken! awaken! and bring forth, thou sorrowful woman; behold thy Bridegroom cometh, and requireth fruit at thy hands: Why dost thou sleep? Behold, he knocketh!

179. O gracious, amiable, blessed love and clear bright light, tarry with us, I pray thee, for the evening is at hand. O truth! O justice and righteous judgment! what is become of thee? Doth not the spirit wonder, as if he had never seen the world before now? O, why do I write of the wickedness of this World?
I must do it, the devil's and the world curseth me for it. Amen.

THE NINTH CHAPTER

Of the Gracious, amiable, blessed, friendly and merciful Love of God.
The Great, Heavenly and Divine Mystery.

1. BECAUSE I write here of heavenly and divine things, which are altogether strange to the corrupted, perished nature of man, the Reader doubtless will wonder at the simplicity of the author, and be offended at it.

2. Because the condition and inclination of the corrupted nature is to gaze on high things alone, like a proud, wild, wanton and whorish woman, who always gazeth in her heat or burning lust after handsome men, to act wantonness with them.

3. Thus also is the proud, corrupted, perished nature of man, it stareth only upon that which is glittering and in fashion in this world, and supposeth that God hath forgotten the afflicted, and therefore plagueth them so, because he mindeth them not.

4. Corrupt nature imagineth that the Holy Ghost regardeth only high things, the high arts and sciences of this world, the profound studies, and great learning.

5. But whether it be so or no, look but back, and then you will find the true ground. What was Abel? A shepherd. What were Enoch and Noah? Plain, simple men. What were Abraham, Isaac and Jacob? Herdsmen.

6. What was Moses, that dear man of God? A herdsman. What was David, when the mouth of the Lord called him? A shepherd.

7. What were the great and the small prophets? Vulgar, plain and mean people: some of them but country people and herdsmen, counted the underlings or footstools of the world: Men counted them but mere fools.

8. Though they did miracles and wonders, and shewed great signs, yet the world gazed on high things alone, and the Holy Ghost must be as the dust under their feet: For the proud devil always endeavoured to be king in this world.

9. How came our King JESUS CHRIST into this world? Poor, and in great trouble and misery, and had not where to lay his head.

10. What were his Apostles? Poor, despised, illiterate fishermen. And what were they that believed their preaching? The poorer and meaner sort of the people. The High Priests and Scribes were the executioners of Christ, [they] who cried out, Crucify him, crucify him.
11. What were they that in all ages of the Church of Christ stood by it most stoutly and constantly? The poor, contemptible, despised people, who shed their blood for the sake of Christ.

12. But who were they that falsified and adulterated the right, pure Christian doctrine, and always fought against and opposed it? Even the learned doctors and scribes, popes, cardinals, bishops, and great dons or masters and teachers. And why did the world follow after them, and depend on them? But because they had great respect, were in great authority and power, lived stately, and carried a port in the world. Even such a proud whore is the corrupt, perished human nature.

* "But because they had," etc. "Only because they had a high standing and made a great show before the world."

13. Who was it that purged out of the Churches in Germany the Pope's greediness of money, his idolatry, bribery, deceit and cheating? A poor despised monk or friar Luther. By what power and might? By the power of God the Father, and by the power and might of God the Holy Ghost.

Question.

14. Then what is yet concealed or remains hidden, the true doctrine of Christ?

Answer.

No; but the philosophy [Gnosis], and the deep ground of God; the heavenly delightful habitation and pleasure; the revelation of the creation of angels; the revelation of the horrible fall of the devil; from whence evil proceedeth; the creation of this world; the deep ground and mystery of man, and of all creatures in this world; the Last Judgment and change of this world; the mystery of the resurrection of the dead; and of eternal life.

15. This shall arise in the depth, in great plainness and simplicity. But why not in the height in art? [In order] that no man should dare to boast that he himself hath done it, and that hereby the devil's pride should be discovered and brought to nothing.

16. But why doth God so? Of his great love and mercy towards all people and nations, and to shew hereby that now is near at hand the time of the restitution of all whatsoever is lost, wherein men shall behold and enjoy the perfection, and move in the pure light and deep knowledge of God.

17. Therefore, beforehand, will arise the dawning of the day, or morning redness, whereby the day may be known or taken notice of.

18. He that will now sleep, let him sleep still; and he that will awake and trim his lamp, let him awake still: Behold the Bridegroom cometh, and he that is awake and is ready accompanieth him into the eternal heavenly wedding: But he that sleepest at his coming, he sleepest for ever, eternally in the dark prison of fierceness or wrath.

19. Therefore I would have the Reader warned that he read this book with diligence, and not he offended at the meanness or simplicity of the author, for God looketh not to high things, for He alone is high: But he careth for the lowly, how to help them.
20. If you come so far as to apprehend the spirit and sense of the author, then you will need no admonition, but will rejoice and be glad in this light, and thy soul will laugh and triumph therein.

21. Now observe, The gracious, amiable, blessed love, which is the fifth fountain-spirit in the divine power, is the hidden source, fountain or quality which the corporeal being cannot comprehend or apprehend, but only when it riseth up in the body, and then the body triumpheth therein, and behaveth itself friendly, lovely and courteously; for that quality or spirit belongeth not to the imaging or framing of a body, but riseth up in the body, as a flower springeth up out of the earth.

22. Now this fountain-spirit taketh its original at first out of the sweet quality of the water. Understand this, how it is, and observe it exactly.

23. First there is the astringent quality, then the sweet, and next the bitter: The sweet is in the midst between the astringent and the bitter. Now the astringent causeth things to be hard, cold and dark; and the bitter teareth, driveth, rageth and divideth or distinguished. These two qualities rub and drive each other so hard, and move so eagerly, that they generate the heat, which now in these two qualities is dark, even as heat in a stone is.

24. As when a man taketh a stone, or any hard thing, and rubbeth it against wood, these two things are heated: Now this heat is but a darkness, having no light therein: And so it is, in the divine power also.
25. Now the astringent and the bitter qualities, without the sweet water, rub and drive themselves so hard the one against the other, that they generate the dark heat, and so are kindled in themselves.

26. And this [process] together [with the agents therein] is the wrath or anger of God, the source and original of the hellish fire. As we see by Lucifer, who elevated and compressed himself so hard together with his legions, that the sweet fountain-water in him was dried up, wherein the light kindleth, and wherein the love riseth up.

27. Therefore now he is eternally an astringent, hard, cold, bitter, hot and sour stinking fountainsource: For when the sweet quality in him was dried up, it became a sour stink, a valley of misery, and a house of perdition and woe.

Now further into the Depth.

28. When the astringent and the bitter qualities rub themselves so hard the one upon the other that they generate heat (the sweet quality, the sweet fountain-water, being therein in the midst or centre, between the astringent and bitter qualities), the heat becometh generated between the astringent and the bitter qualities in the sweet fountain-water, through [by means of] the astringent and the bitter qualities:

29. There the light kindleth in the heat in the sweet fountain-water, and this is the beginning of life: For the astringent and bitter qualities are the beginning and cause of the heat and of the light also, and thus the sweet fountain-water becometh a shining light, like the blue or azure light of heaven.

30. And that bright light fountain-water kindleth the astringent and the bitter qualities, and the heat (which is generated by the astringent and the bitter qualities in the sweet water), \textit{riseth up} out of the sweet fountain-water through the astringent and bitter qualities, and in the astringent and bitter qualities the light \textit{first then} becometh dry and shining, as also moveable and triumphing.

31. And when the light riseth up out of the sweet fountain-water \textit{in the heat}, in the astringent and bitter qualities, then the bitter and astringent qualities \textit{taste} the light and sweet water, and the bitter quality \textit{catcheth} the taste of the sweet water, and in the sweet water is the \textit{light}, but only of a sky-colour or \textit{azure}, which is blue.

32. And then the bitter quality trembleth, and \textit{dissolveth} the hardness in the astringent quality, and the light becometh dry in the astringent, and shineth clear, \textit{much} brighter than the light of the sun.

33. In this rising up the astringent quality becometh meek, light, thin or \textit{transparent} and pleasant or lovely, and obtaineth its life, whose \textit{original} riseth up out of the heat in the sweet water, and this now is \textit{the true fountain or wellspring of love}.

34. How should love and joy \textit{not} be there, where life is generated in the very centre or midst of death, and light in the midst of darkness?

Thou askest, \textit{How comes that} to pass?

35. If \textit{my} spirit indeed did sit in \textit{thy} heart, and spring up in thy heart, then \textit{thy} body would find, feel and apprehend it.
36. But otherwise I cannot bring it into thy sense. Neither canst thou apprehend or understand it, unless the Holy Ghost kindle thy soul, so that this light itself shine in thy heart.

37. Then will this light itself be generated in thee, as in God, and rise up in thy astringent and bitter qualities, in thy sweet water, and triumph, as in God: Now when this is done, then will you first understand my book, and not before.

Observe:

38. When the light is generated in the bitter quality, that is, when the bitter and dry fountainsources catch the sweet fountain-water of life, and drink it, then the bitter spirit becometh living in the astringent spirit, and the astringent spirit, which is as a spirit impregnated with child,* is impregnated with life, and must continually generate the life.

* "a spirit impregnated with child," lit., "a pregnant spirit."

39. For the sweet water, and the light in the sweet water, rise up continually in the astringent quality, and the bitter quality triumpheth continually therein, and so there is nothing else but mere laughing and joy, and mere existing in love.

40. For the astringent quality loveth the sweet water.

41. First, because in the sweet water the spirit of light is generated, and saturateth or moisteneth the astringent, hard and cold qualities; also it enlighteneth them and warmeth them; for in water, light and heat the life consisteth.
42. Secondly, the astringent quality loveth the bitter, because the bitter quality in the sweet water, that is, in water, heat and light, triumpheth in the astringent quality, and maketh the astringent moveable or stirring, wherein the astringent also can triumph.

43. Thirdly, the astringent quality loveth the heat, because in the heat the light is generated, whereby the astringent quality is enlightened and warmed.

44. And the sweet quality also loveth the astringent.

45. First, because the astringent drieth it up,* that it becometh not thin or dim like the elementary water, and that its quality consisteth in power; and because in the astringent quality the light, which is [thus] generated therein, becometh shining and dry.

* St M. translates: "la qualité astringente la resserre," "the astringent quality contracts it."

46. Besides, the astringent quality is a cause of the heat which is generated in the sweet water, wherein the light riseth up, and wherein the sweet water standeth in great clarity, brightness or glory.

47. Secondly, the sweet quality also loveth the bitter, because it is a cause of the heat, and also because the bitter spirit triumpheth and trembleth in the sweet water, heat and light, and so maketh the sweet water moveable or stirring and living.

48. Thirdly, the sweet quality loveth heat exceedingly, so very much that I cannot compare it to anything; but you may take this for a similitude, though it comes very short of it:
Suppose that in two young people of a noble complexion, these being kindled in the heat and fervour of burning love the one to the other, there is such a fire as this: that if each could creep into the body and heart of the other, or if they could transmute themselves into one body, they would do it.

49. But this earthly love is only cold water, and is not true fire: A man cannot find any full similitude of it in this half-dead world. In all divine things that receive the true love-fire, the resurrection of the dead at the last day alone is a perfect similitude.

50. But the sweet quality doth thus love the heat because it generateth therein the light-spirit, which is the spirit of life. For life existeth in the heat, for if the heat were not, all would be a dark valley: Now so dear as the life is, so dear also is the heat to the sweet spirit, and the light in the heat.

51. And the bitter quality also loveth all the other fountain-spirits. And first the sweet. For in the sweet water the bitter spirit is refreshed, and therein it quencheth its great thirst; and its bitterness is therein mitigated; also it obtaineth its light-life therein: In the astringent it hath its body, wherein it triumpheth, cooleth and mitigateth itself; and in the heat it hath its power and strength, wherein its joy standeth.

52. And the hot quality also loveth all the other qualities; and the love is so great therein towards and in the others that it cannot be likened to anything, for it is generated from and out of the others.

53. The astringent and bitter qualities are the father of the heat, and the sweet fountain-water is its mother, which conceiveth, retaineth and generateth it: For the heat existeth through the astringent and bitter hard driving, which riseth up in the sweet quality, as in wood or fuel.

54. Wilt thou not believe this? Then open thy eyes, and go to a tree, look upon it, and bethink thyself; there you see first the whole tree, take a knife and cut a gash in it, and taste how it is;
then you first taste the astringent, harsh, choky quality, which draweth thy tongue together, and that also draweth and holdeth together all the powers of the tree.

55. Then you taste the bitter quality, which maketh the tree moveable or stirring, so that it springeth and growtheth green and flourisheth, and so getteth its branches, leaves and fruit.

56. After that you taste the sweet, which is very gentle and sharp; for it getteth the sharpness from the astringent and bitter qualities.

57. Now these three qualities would be dark and dead, if the heat were not therein: But as soon as the spring time cometh, that the sun with its beams reacheth and warmeth the earth, the spirit becometh living by the heat in the tree, and the spirits of the tree begin to grow green, flourish and blossom.

58. For the spirit riseth up in the heat, and all the spirits rejoice therein, and so there is a hearty love between them.

59. But the heat is generated through the power and impulse of the astringent and bitter qualities in the sweet water.
60. But they must use the heat of the sun to their kindling, because the qualities in this world are half dead, and are too weak; of which king Lucifer was the cause, which you will find, here following, concerning his fall, and concerning the creation of this world.

Of the friendly Love, gracious, amiable Blessedness and Unity of the Five Qualifying or Fountain-Spirits of God.

61. Though it be impossible for the hands of men to describe this sufficiently, yet the enlightened spirit of man seeth it; for it riseth up just in such a form and birth as the light [doth] in the divine power, and also in [such a form and birth as] the qualities which are in God [rise up].

62. Only this is to be lamented concerning man, that his qualities are corrupted, perished, and half dead; and therefore it is that man's spirit [in its] or his qualities [in their] rising or kindling in this world, can come or attain to no perfection.

63. On the other hand, it is highly to be rejoiced at, that man's spirit, in his necessity, becometh enlightened and kindled by the Holy Ghost: [just] as the sun kindleth the cold heat in a tree or herb, whereby the cold chilled heat becometh living.

Now observe:

64. As the members of man's body love one another, so do the spirits also in the divine power; there is nothing else but a mere longing, desiring, and fulfilling, as also a triumphing and rejoicing the one in the other: For through these spirits come the understanding and distinction in God, in angels, in men, in beasts, in fowls and in everything that liveth.

65. For in these five qualities rise up the seeing, smelling, tasting and feeling; and so a rational spirit cometh to be.

66. When the light riseth up, then one spirit seeth another.

67. When the sweet spring or fountain-water riseth up in the light, through all the spirits, then the one tasteth the other; and then the spirits become living, and the power of life penetrateth through all.

68. In that power the one smelleth the other; and through this qualifying influence and penetration the one feeleth the other.

69. So there is nothing else but a hearty, loving and friendly aspect or seeing, a pleasant smell, a good relishing or tasting, and a lovely feeling, a gracious, amiable, blessed kissing, a feeding upon and drinking of one another, and a lovely walking and conversing together.

70. This is the gracious, amiable, blessed BRIDE, which rejoiceth in her BRIDEGROOM; herein is love, joy and delight; here is light and brightness or clarity; here is a pleasant and lovely smell; here is a friendly and sweet taste.

71. And this for ever without end! How can a creature sufficiently rejoice therein? O dear love and gracious amiable blessedness! Surely thou hast no end. No man can see any end in thee, thy profound deep is unsearchable, thou art everywhere all over thus; only in the fierce devils art thou not thus, they have spoiled and perished thee in themselves.
Question.
72. Now thou wilt say, Where then are these gracious, amiable and blessed spirits to be met with? Do they dwell only in themselves in heaven?

Answer.
73. This is the other open gate of the Deity, here thou must set thy eyes wide open, and rouse up or awaken the spirit in thy half dead heart: for this is not an obscure fiction, contrivance or phantasy.

Observe:
74. The seven spirits of God, in their circumference and space, contain or comprehend heaven and this world; also the wide breadth and depth without and beyond the heavens, even above and beneath the world, and in the world, yea the whole Father, who hath neither beginning nor end.

75. They contain also all the creatures both in heaven and in this world; and all the creatures in heaven and in this world are imaged, fashioned or framed out of these spirits, and live in them as in their own propriety.

76. Their life and their reason is generated in them in such a manner as the divine being is generated, and also in the same power.

77. Out of and from the same body of the seven spirits of God are all things made and produced, all angels, all devils, the heaven, the earth, the stars, the elements, men, beasts, fowls, fishes; all worms, wood, trees, also stones, herbs and grass, and all whatsoever is.

Question.
78. Now thou wilt ask, Seeing God is everywhere, and is himself All, how cometh it then that there is in this world such cold and heat, such biting and striking among all creatures, and that there is almost nothing else but mere fierceness or wrath in this world?

Answer.

[79. "The cause is, that, without [apart from, "outside of] the light the first four forms of "nature are one at enmity against the other; "and yet they are the causes of life.""]

80. Behold here the wickedness and malice which is the cause; viz. when king Lucifer did sit in his kingdom, like a high-minded proud bride, then his circuit, circle or orb contained or comprehended the place or space where now is the created heaven, which is made out of the water:

81. And also the place of the created world, even unto heaven, as also the deep where now the earth is, all that was a pure and holy Salitter, wherein the seven spirits of God were complete and pleasant, as now [they are] in heaven, although they are still complete and full in this world. But observe the circumstances rightly.

82. When king Lucifer elevated himself, then he elevated himself in the seven qualifying fountain-spirits, and kindled them with his elevation, so that all was wholly burning, and the astringent quality was so hard and compact, that it generated stones; and it was so cold, that it made the sweet spring or fountain-water turn into ice.

83. And the sweet spring water became very thick and stinking, and the bitter quality became very raging, tearing and raving, whence poison was generated, and the fire or heat was violently and zealously or fervently burning and consuming, and so there was a very great distemper and confused mixture.

84. Upon this king Lucifer was thrust out of his royal place or kingly throne, which he had in that place where now is the created heaven, and thereupon instantly ensued the creation of this world.

85. And the hard, spoiled or corrupt matter, which had wrought forth itself in the kindled seven qualifying or fountain-spirits, was driven together, from whence the earth and stones came to be, and, after that, all the creatures were created out of the kindled Salitter of the seven spirits of God.

86. Now the qualifying or fountain spirits became so fierce and wrathful in their kindling, that the one continually spoileth the other with its evil corrupt quality or source, and so also now do the creatures, which were made out of the qualifying or fountain spirits, and live in the same impulse, the one biting, beating, worrying and annoying the other, all according to the kind or disposition of the qualities.

87. Upon this now the total or universal God hath decreed the Last Judgment, wherein he will separate the evil from the good, and set the good again in the meek, mild and pleasant delight, as it was before the horrible kindling of the devil, and will give that which is fierce or wrathful to king Lucifer for an everlasting habitation.

88. And then there will be two parts or divisions of this kingdom, the one men will get, with their King JESUS CHRIST; the other the devils shall have with all ungodly men and wickedness.

89. This is a short introduction, that the Reader might the better understand the divine Mystery; when I write concerning the fall of the devil, and concerning the creation of this world, you will find all more at large, particularly described. Therefore I would have the Reader admonished, that he read all in order, and so he will come to the true ground.

90. It is true, that from the beginning of the world it was not so fully revealed to any man; but seeing God will have it so, I submit to his will, and will see what God will do with it.

91. For his way which is before him is for the most part hidden from me: But following after him the spirit seeth, even into the highest and profoundest depth.

THE TENTH CHAPTER

Of the Sixth qualifying or fountain Spirit in the Divine Power.

1. THE Sixth qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power is the sound, tone, tune or noise, wherein all soundeth and tuneth; whence ensued speech, language, and the distinction of everything, as also the ringing melody and singing of the holy angels, and therein consisteth the forming or framing of all colours, beauty and ornament, as also the heavenly joyfulness.

Question.
2. But thou wilt ask, What is the tone or sound? Or how taketh this spirit its source and original?
3. All the seven spirits are generated one in another, the one continually generateth the other, not one of them is the first, nor is any one of them the last; for the last generateth as well the first as the second, third, fourth, and so on to the last.

4. But why one is called the first, another the second, and so on, that is in respect to that which is the first in order to the imaging, framing and forming of a creature.

5. For all the seven are equally eternal, and none of them hath either beginning or end; and therefore, in that the seven qualities are continually generating one another, and that none is without the other, it followeth that there is ONE Only Eternal Almighty GOD.

6. For, if anything be generated out of or in the divine being, that thing is not formed or framed by or through one spirit alone, but by all the seven.

7. And if a creature, which is like or as the whole being of God, spoileth, elevateth and kindleth itself in a qualifying or fountain spirit, it kindleth not one spirit alone, but all the seven spirits.

8. And therefore that creature is a loathsome abomination before the total God, and before all his creatures, and must stand in eternal enmity and ignominy or shame before God, and before all the creatures.

9. The tone or Mercurius taketh its original in the first, that is, in the astringent and hard quality.
Observe in the Depth:

10. Hardness is the fountain or well-spring of the tone, but it alone cannot generate the same, yet it is the father thereof, and the whole Salitter is the mother; otherwise, if the hardness were both father and mother of the tone, then a hard stone also must have a ringing sound. But a hard stone doth make only a noise, like a knocking, as a seed or beginning of a tone, and that it is, certainly.

11. But the tone of voice riseth up in the middle centre, in the flash or lightning, where the light is generated out of the heat, where the flash or lightning of life riseth up.

Observe how this is done:

12. When the astringent quality rubbeth itself with the bitter, so that the heat riseth up in the sweet spring or fountain-water, then the heat kindleth the sweet spring or fountain-water, like a flash of lightning, and that flash is the light; which in the heat goeth into the bitter quality, and there the flash is distinguished according to all the powers.

13. For all powers are discerned or distinguished in the bitter, and the bitter receiveth the flash of the light, as if it were horribly terrified, and goeth with its trembling and terror into the astringent and hard quality, and there it is bodily captivated.

14. And the bitter quality is now impregnated with the light, and trembleth in the astringent and hard quality, and stirreth therein, and is captured in the astringent quality, as in a body.

15. And now when the spirits do move and would speak, the hard quality must open itself; for the bitter spirit with its flash breaketh it open, and then there the tone goeth forth, and is impregnated with all the seven spirits, which distinguish the word, as it was decreed in the centre, that is, in the middle of the circle, whilst it was yet in the council of the seven spirits.

16. And therefore the seven spirits of God have created a mouth for the creatures, that when they [the creatures] would utter their voice, which is their speaking, or [when they would] make a noise,* they need not first tear themselves open; and therefore it is that all the veins and powers or qualifying [conditioning] or fountain spirits go into the tongue, that the tone or noise may come forth gently.

* " make a noise " (schallen), " sound."

_Here observe exactly the * Sense and Mystery._

* Mind or Meaning

17. When the flash riseth up in the heat, then first the sweet water catcheth or captivateth it, for therein it becometh shining. Now when the water catcheth the flash, that is, the birth of the light, then the sweet water is terrified, and being so thin and pliant or feeble, it yieldeth, very much trembling; for the heat riseth up in the light.

18. Now when the astringent quality, which is very cold, catcheth the heat and the flash, then it is terrified, as in a tempest of lightning; for when the heat cometh with the light into the hard cold, then it maketh a fierce flash, of a very fiery and light colour.
19. Then that flash retireth back, and the sweet water catcheth it, and riseth up in that fierceness, and in that rising and terrifying changeth itself into a green or azure or blue colour, and trembleth because of the fierce flash.

20. And the flash in itself keepeth its fierceness, from whence existeth the bitter quality, or the bitter spirit, which now riseth up in the astringent quality, and inflameth or kindleth the hardness with its fierce quality, and the light or flash drieth itself in the hardness, and shineth clear and bright, far brighter than the light of the sun.

21. But it is caught in the hard quality, so that it subsists in a bodily manner, and must shine so eternally, and the flash trembleth in the body, like a fierce rising up, whereby all the qualities are stirred, always and eternally.

22. And the flash of fire in the light trembleth and triumpheth thus continually, and the sweet water softenneth [or quencheth] the fire also continually* and the hardness is always the body, which retaineth, preserveth, and drieth it.

* The clause printed in italics is not in Sparrow's translation. It is here supplied from the German editions of 1682, 1715 and 1730. It is not in 1656, nor in Schiebler.

23. And this stirring in the hardness is the tone, so that [there is a] sound; and the light or flash maketh the ringing, and the sweet water maketh the ringing soft: so that a man can use the sound to the distinction of speech, or articulation of syllables.
Here observe yet more plainly the Nativity or Birth of the bitter Quality.

24. The original of the bitter quality is when the flash of life in the heat riseth up in the astringent quality; and now when the flash of fire in the mixture of the water cometh into the astringent quality, then the spirit of the fiery flash catcheth the astringent and hard spirit, and both these together are an earnest severe fierce quality, which rageth and teareth vehemently, like a fiery violent fierceness.

25. I can liken it to nothing else but to a thunder-clap, when the fierce fire first falls down, so that it dazzleth the sight; that fierce fire is like the manner of the conjunction of these two.

Now observe:

26. When the fire-spirit and the astringent spirit struggle and wrestle thus together, then the astringent maketh a vehement hard cold astriction, and the fiery maketh a terrible fierce heat.

27. Now the rising up of the heat and of the astriction maketh a trembling, fierce, terrible spirit, which raveth and rageth, as if it would tear the Deity asunder.

But thou must understand this, exactly and properly.

28. This is thus in the original of the quality in itself; but in the midst, in the rising up of this fierce spirit, this [same] spirit is caught and mitigated in the sweet water, where its fierce source or fountain is changed into a trembling, bitter, and greenish colour, like a greenish duskiness, and it retaineth in itself the condition and property of all three qualities, viz. of the fiery, the astringent and the sweet; and so from these three existeth the fourth quality, viz.
the bitter.

29. For from the fiery quality the spirit becometh trembling and hot, and from the astringent it becometh severe, astringent, hard and corporeal, so that it is a spirit which always subsisteth; and from the sweet it becometh meek or mild, and the fierceness changeth it into a gentle bitterness; which standeth now in the fountain or well-spring of the seven spirits of God, and helpeth continually to generate the other six spirits.

Understand this rightly.

30. It doth as well generate its father and mother, as its father and mother do generate it, for after that it is corporeally generated, it then, with the astringent quality, always generateth the fire again, and the fire generateth light, and the light is the flash, which always generateth the life again in all the qualifying or fountain spirits; whence the spirits have life, and always generate one another again.

31. But here thou must know that one spirit alone cannot generate another, neither can two of them do it, but the birth of a spirit standeth in the operation of all the seven spirits, six of them always generate the seventh, and so if one of them were not, then the others would not be either.

32. But that I sometimes take only two or three to the nativity or birth of a spirit, I do that because of my own weakness, for in my corrupted brain I cannot bear them all seven at once in their perfection.
33. I see them all seven very well, but when I speculate into them,* then the spirit riseth up in the middlemost fountain or well-spring, where the spirit of life generateth itself, which goeth now upwards, now downwards, it cannot apprehend all the seven spirits in one thought, or at once, but only in part.

* "but when I speculate into them"; text, "aber wenn ich speculire in sie." But when I look or gaze into them, to examine, inspect or observe them more closely or narrowly. (Speculate, 2. O.E.D.)

34. Every spirit hath its own quality or source, though indeed it is generated of the others; and so it is with the apprehension of man; he hath indeed the fountain of all seven spirits in him, but in what quality or fountain soever the spirit riseth up, the qualifying or fountain spirit thereof, wherein that same spirit is most strongly imaged, is that [one] which he comprehendeth most sharply in that rising up.

35. For even in the divine power one spirit, in its rising up [or ascension], doth not go through all the spirits equally at once; for when it riseth up, then indeed it toucheth or stirreth them all at once, but it is caught in its rising up, so that it must lay down its stateliness and pomp, and not triumph over all the seven.

[36. "It is the being or substance of the senses " and thoughts, otherwise, if a thought through the " centre of nature could penetrate all the forms, " then it were free from the band of nature."]

37. Thus also in man: When one qualifying or fountain spirit riseth up, then it toucheth all the others, and seeth all the others, for it riseth up in the middle or central fountain or well-spring of the heart, where, in the heat, the flash of light kindleth itself, wherein the spirit in its rising up, in the same flash, seeth through all the spirits.

38. But in our corrupted flesh it [the rising up] is only like a tempest of lightning: for if I could in my flesh comprehend the flash (which I very well see and know how it is), I could clarify or transfigure my body therewith, so that it would shine with a bright light and glory.
"For from the flash cometh the light of the Majesty."
And then it would no more resemble and be conformed to the bestial body, but to the angels of God.

39. But hearken, Friend, tarry yet a little while, and then give the bestial body for food to the worms: But when the total God shall kindle the seven spirits of God in the corrupted earth, then, if that same Salitter which thou sowest in the earth will not be capable of the fire, then thy qualifying or fountain spirits, which thou didst sow in thy life-time, and which are sown in thy departure from hence, will rise again in the same Salitter which thou hast sown, and will triumph therein, and become a body again.

40. But he that will be capable of the kindled fire of the seven spirits of God, he shall abide therein, and his qualifying or fountain spirits shall rise in hellish pain, which I shall demonstrate clearly in its due place.

41. I cannot describe unto thee the whole Deity by the circumference or extent of a circle, for it is immeasurable; but to that spirit which is in God's love it is not incomprehensible: That spirit comprehends it well, yet but in part; therefore take one part after another, and then you will see the whole.
42. In this corruption we cannot get higher than with such a revelation, neither doth this world enclose itself any higher, both as to the beginning and the end.

 "In this corruption we cannot get higher than with such a revelation." That is, man can get no higher knowledge of the whole Deity, or of this world as to its beginning and end, than is vouchsafed to him as a revelation by the spirit that is in God's love. "I cannot describe unto thee... the immeasurable, but that spirit which is in God's love... comprehends it well, but only piecemeal, part by part (aber nur Stückweise); therefore take one part after another, and then you will see the whole" (par. 41).

[43. "I would very fain see somewhat higher " in this my anxious generating or birth, whereby " my sick Adam might be refreshed.
44. "But I look round about me in all the " world, and can find out nothing; all is sick, " lame and wounded: moreover, blind, deaf and " dumb "].*

* In Sparrow's translation, and also in the German ed. of 1656, these pars, are treated as part of J. B.'s original text, but Gichtel, in the 1682 ed., prints them as additions by J. B. in 1620.

45. I have read the writings of very high masters, hoping to find therein the ground and true depth; but I have found nothing, but a half dead spirit, which in anxiety travaileth* and laboureth for health, and yet, because of its great weakness, cannot attain perfect power.

* "in anxiety travaileth." Sparrow invariably uses the later spelling, " travelleth." The German reads, " sich ängstet," "anxiously labours," i.e. frets or worries itself.

46. Thus I stand yet as an anxious woman in travail, and seek perfect refreshing, but find only the scent or smell or savour in its rising up, wherein the spirit examineth what power sticketh in the true cordial, and in the meanwhile refresheth itself in its sickness with that perfect smell or savour, till the true Samaritan doth come, who will dress and bind up its wounds and heal it, and bring it to the eternal inn or lodging, then shall it enjoy the perfect taste.

47. This herb, which I mean here, from whose fragrancy my spirit taketh its refreshing, every country ploughman doth not know it, nor every doctor, the one is as ignorant of it as the other; it growtheth indeed in every garden, but in many it is quite spoiled and bad: for the quality of the soil or ground is in fault. And therefore men do not know it, nay the children of this Mystery do hardly know it; although this knowledge hath been very rare, dear and precious, from the beginning of the world to this time.

48. Though in many men a source or fountain and quality hath risen up, but then suddenly pride pressed after it, and spoiled all; whereupon it [pride] was loath to write it down in its mothertongue; it supposed that was too childish a thing to do, it must shew it in a deeper language, that the world should see that it is manly; and for its advantage it kept it [the source or fountain and quality] in secret, and daubed it with deep strange names, that men might not know it; such a beast is the devil's disease of pride.

49. But hear, thou simple mother, who bringest all the children into this world, who afterwards in their rising up are ashamed of thee and despise thee, and yet are thy children whom thou hast brought forth.

50. Thus saith the spirit, which riseth up in the seven spirits of God, which is thy Father: Despair not, behold, I am thy strength, and thy power, I will fill to thee a mild draught in thy age.

51. Seeing all thy children despise thee, whom thou didst bear, and hast given them suck in their childhood, and who will not give thee any attendance, or minister to thee in thy high or old age:

52. Therefore I will comfort thee, and will give unto thee a young SON in thy high or old age; he shall abide in thy house as long as thou livest, and attend thee or minister to thee, and comfort thee against all the raving and raging of thy proud children.

Now here observe further concerning the Mercurius, Tone or Sound.

53. All qualities take their beginning-original [finite or transitory origin] in their middle or centre: Therefore observe where the fire is generated; for there riseth up the flash of the life of all the qualities, and it is caught in the water, so that it remaineth shining; and it is dried in the astringency, so that it remaineth corporeal, and becometh shining, bright and clear.

Observe here:
54. For instance: Kindle some wood, and then you will see the mystery: The fire kindleth itself in the hardness of the wood; and this is now the astringent hard quality, the quality or source Saturnus, which maketh the wood hard and dry.

55. But now the light, that is, the flash, doth not consist in the hardness, otherwise a stone also would burn and give light, but the light subsisteth only in the sap of the wood, that is, in the water [or oiliness].

56. Whilst there is sap in the wood the fire shineth as a shining light; but when the sap is consumed in the wood the shining light goeth out, and the wood becometh a glowing coal.

57. Now behold: the fierceness which riseth up in the light consists not in the water of the wood, but when the heat riseth up in the hardness, then is the flash generated, which the sap in the wood first catcheth, whereby the water becomes shining.

58. The fierceness or bitterness is generated in the midst or centre of the hardness, and the heat is generated in the flash, and therein also it subsisteth; and so far as the flash, that is, the flame of the fire reacheth, so far also reacheth the fierceness of the bitterness, which is the son of the hardness and heat.

59. But thou must know this mystery, that the bitterness is already in the wood, else the fierce bitterness would not so suddenly generate itself like lightning in the natural fire.

60. For as, when wood is kindled, the body of the fire generateth itself, in such a manner likewise is the wood generated in and above the earth.

61. But if the fierceness should be generated in the shining light, then surely it would reach as far also as the splendour or shining of the light, but it doth not so.
62. But thus it is; the flash is the mother of the light; for the flash generateth the light, and is the father of the fierceness, for the fierceness abideth in the flash as a seed in the father; and that flash generateth also the tone or sound.

63. When it goeth from the hardness and heat, then the hardness maketh a thumping, knocking sound in the flash, and the heat ringeth forth, and the light in the flash maketh the ringing clear, and the water mitigateth or softeneth it, and then in the astringency and hardness it is caught and dried up, so that it is a corporeal spirit in all the qualities.

64. For every spirit in the seven spirits of God is impregnated with all the seven spirits, and they all are one in another as one spirit, not one of them is without the others.

65. Only the birth therein is thus, and so the one generateth the other, in and through itself, and the birth lasteth or continueth thus from eternity to eternity.

66. Here I will have the Reader warned that he rightly consider the divine birth. Thou must not think that one spirit standeth by another, as you see the stars of heaven stand one by another.

67. But all the seven are one in another as one spirit; as this may be conceived in man, who hath several thoughts, because of the operation of the seven spirits of God, which keep and reside in the human body.

68. But you may say to me, Thou art foolish in this; for any member of the whole body hath the power of the other.*
69. Yet in what quality soever thou excitest or awakenest the spirit, and makest it operative or qualifying, according to that same quality the thoughts rise up, and govern the mind.

70. If thou stirrest or awakenest the spirit in the fire, then there riseth up in thee the bitter and harsh anger; for as soon as the fire is kindled, which is done in the hardness and fierceness, then springeth up the bitter fierceness or wrath in the flash.

71.* For when thou, in thy body, liftest thyself against anything whatsoever, be it in love or wrath, thou kindlest the quality of that against which thou liftest thyself; and that [kindled quality] burneth in the corporeal whole of thy spirit; but in the flash this same fountain-spirit awakeneth.

* A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow's rendering. "Quell­Geist" (fountain-spirit) has, in this particular par., been translated by St M. "spirit-source."

72. For when thou lookest upon anything which doth not please thee, but is against or contrary to thee, then thou raisest up the fountain of thy heart, as when thou takest a stone, and therewith striketh fire on a steel, and so when the spark catcheth fire in the heart, then the fire kindleth.

73. At first it gloweth, but when thou stirrest the source or fountain of the heart more violently, then it is as when thou blowest the fire, so that the flame is kindled; and then it is high time to quench it, else the fire will be too great, and then it burneth and consumeth, and doth hurt to its neighbour.

Question.

74. Thou askest, How can a man quench this kindled fire?

Answer.

75. Hearken, thou hast the sweet water in thee, pour that into the fire, and then the fire goeth out: If thou lettest it burn, then it consumeth in thee the sap that is in all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, so that thou wilt become dry.

76. When that is done, then thou art a hellish fire-brand, and a billet or faggot to lay upon the hellish fire, and then there is no remedy for thee eternally.

77. But when thou lookest upon a thing which pleaseth thee, and awakenest the spirit in thine heart, then thou kindlest the fire in thine heart, which burneth first in the sweet water like a glowing coal.

78. Whilst it is but glimmering it is only a gentle, soft, longing delight or pleasing lust in thee, and doth not consume thee; but if thou exhaltest thy heart still more, and thou kindlest the sweet quality or fountain, so that it becomes a burning flame, then thou kindlest all the qualifying or fountain spirits, and then the whole body bumeth, and so mouth and hands fall on to work.

79. This fire is the most dangerous and hurtful, and hath spoiled most since the world began, and it is a very hard matter to quench it; for when it is kindled it bumeth in the sweet water in the flash of life, and must be quenched through bitterness, which is scarce a water,* but much rather is a fire.

* "scarce a water" (gar ein elend Waster), "but poor [as] water." The word "elend" implies weakness and wretchedness.

80. Therefore also there followeth a heavy, sad, sorrowful mind, when one is to forsake that which burneth in his love-fire in the sweet fountain water.

81. But thou must know, that thou, in the government of thy mind, art thine own lord and master, there will rise up no fire to thee in the circle or whole circumference of thy body and spirit, unless thou awakenest it thyself.

82. It is true that all thy spirits spring and move in thee, and rise up in thee, and indeed always one spirit hath more power in thee than [in] another [man].

83. For if the government of the spirits were the same in one man as in another, then we should all have one will and form; but all seven are in the power of thy compacted incorporated spirit, which spirit is the SOUL.

[" 84. It hath in it the first Principle; the " spirit of the soul hath the second; and the astral " or starry spirit in the elements hath the third, " viz. this world.*"]

85. Now if a fire riseth up in one qualifying or fountain spirit, then that is not concealed or hidden from the soul, and it may instantly awaken the other qualifying or fountain spirits, which are contrary to the kindled fire, and may quench it.
86. But if the fire will be or becometh too big, then hath the soul a prison, wherein it may shut up the kindled spirit, viz. in the hard astringent quality, and the other spirits must be the gaolers, till their wrath is allayed, and the fire is extinguished.

Observe what that is.

87. When one qualifying or fountain spirit driveth thee too strongly, or presseth thee too hard to a thing which is against the law of nature, then thou must turn thine eyes away from it: If that will not help, then take that spirit and cast it into prison.

88. That is, turn thy heart away from temporal pleasure and voluptuousness, from fulness of eating and drinking, from the riches of this world, and think that to-day is the last day of the end of thy body; turn away from the wantonness of the world, and call earnestly to God, and yield or submit thyself to him.

89. When thou dost so, then the world mocketh thee, and thou art a fool to them. But bear this cross patiently, and let not the imprisoned spirit get out of prison again, but trust in God, and he will set upon thee the crown of the divine joy.

90. But if the spirit breaketh out of prison, then put it in again, make good thy part against it as long as thou livest, and if thou gettest so much advantage, that it doth not wholly kindle the source or fountain of thy heart, whereby thy soul would become a dry fire-brand of wood, each fountain or source having yet its sap, when thou departest from hence:

91. Then that kindled fire at the Last Judgment Day will not hurt thee; nor will it cleave or stick in thy sappy spirits; but after this anxious affliction and trouble thou wilt be, in the resurrection, a triumphing angel of God.

Question.
92. But now thou mayest say, Is there in God also a contrary will or opposition among or between the spirits of God?

Answer.
93. No: Though I shew here their earnest birth, how earnestly and severely the spirits of God are generated, whereby every one may very well understand the great earnest severity of God:

94. Yet it doth not therefore follow that there is a disunion or discord among them: for the very innermost, deepest birth* or geniture in the heart or kernel is only and altogether so, which no creature can apprehend in the body; but in the flash, where the hidden spirit is generated, there it will be apprehended; for that is also generated in such a manner, and in such a power as is here mentioned.

* "for the very innermost, deepest birth," etc. "For it is in the heart or kernel alone, that the innermost, deepest birth thus takes place [as above described], and no creature can apprehend it [this birth] in the body, but [only] in the flash, where," etc.

95. But unto me is opened the gate of my mind, so that I can see and discern it, else it would indeed remain concealed with me, and hidden to me, till the day of the resurrection from the dead: yea, it hath been concealed from all men since the beginning of the world; but I submit my will to God's will, let him do what he pleaseth.

96. In God all the spirits do triumph as one spirit, and one spirit always mitigateth or softeneth and loveth the others, so there is nothing but mere joy and delight: But their severe birth or geniture, which is effected or done in secret, must be so:  for life, understanding, and omniscience are thus generated; and this is an eternal birth or geniture, which is never otherwise.

 " must be so " = must be as it is, i.e. severe and secret.

97. Thou must not think that perhaps in heaven there is some manner of body which only is thus generated, which above all other things is called God.*

* " Thou must not think that perhaps in heaven there may be some [particular] manner of body thus generated, and above all things called God."

98. No; but the whole divine power which itself is heaven, and the heaven of all heavens, is so generated, and that is called GOD the Father; of whom all holy angels are generated, and live also in the same power; also the spirit of all angels in their body is always continually and eternally thus generated; in like manner also is [generated] the spirit of all men.

99. For this world belongeth as well to the body or corpus [substantiality] of God the Father as the heaven doth; but in the locality or space of this world the spirits were kindled through king Lucifer, in his elevation, so that all things in this world are as it were languid and half dead: And therefore it is that we poor men are so very much blinded, and live in such great and desperate danger.

100. Yet thou must not therefore think that the heavenly light in this world, in the qualifying or fountain spirits of God, is quite extinct:
No; there is only a darkness or dim obscurity upon it, so that we cannot apprehend it with our corrupted eyes.

101. But if God did once put away that darkness, which moveth about the light,* and that thy eyes were opened, then in that very place where thou standest, sittest or liest thou wouldst see the glorious countenance or face of God, and the whole heavenly gate.

* "moveth about the light" (über dem Lichte schwebet),
" moveth [floateth] above the light," or " over the light."

102. Thou needest not first to cast thine eyes up into heaven, for it is written: [1 Deut. xxx. ,14. Rom.x.8.]
The Word is near thee, viz. on thy lips, and in thy heart.

103. Yea, God is so near thee, that the birth or geniture of the Holy Trinity is done or wrought even in thy heart, yea, all the three Persons are generated in thy heart, even God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

104. Now when I write here concerning the midst or centre, that the fountain of the divine birth or geniture is in the midst or centre, the meaning is not that in heaven there is a peculiar or several place, or a peculiar several body, wherein the fire of the divine life riseth up, out of which the seven spirits of God go forth into the whole deep of the Father.

105. No; but I speak in a corporeal or angelical or human way that the Reader may the better understand it, in such a manner as the angelical creatures were imaged or framed, and as it is in God everywhere universally.
106. For thou canst not nominate* any place, either in heaven or in this world, wherein the divine birth or geniture is not thus, be it in an angel, or in a holy man, or anywhere else.

* "nominate," German ernennen, to nominate, to name; with a by-meaning of pick out, point out, indicate = (nominate, l. b., to give a name or names to; to provide with a name. Obs.). [O.E.D.]

107. Wheresoever one qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power is touched or stirred, let the place be where it will or the thing what it will (except in the devils, and all wicked, damned men), there is the fountain of the divine birth or geniture directly at hand, and there already are all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of God.

108. As when thou wouldst make a spacious, creaturely, circumscribed circle, and hadst the whole Deity peculiarly apart therein. Just as the Deity is generated in a creature, so it is also in the whole deep of the Father in all places and parts thereof, and in all things.

Note.

109. And in such a manner is God an allmighty, all-knowing, all-seeing, all-hearing, all-smelling, all-tasting, all-feeling God, who is everywhere, and proveth the hearts and reins of the creatures.

110. And in such a manner heaven and earth are his; also in such a manner all the devils, together with all wicked men, must be his eternal prisoners; and in the Salitter, which they have corrupted and kindled in their place or space, must endure eternal pain and torment, and moreover eternal shame and reproach.

111. For the total glorious face of God, together with all the holy angels, will shine bright and gloriously above them and under them, and round about them on every side.

112. And all holy angels, together with all holy men, will eternally triumph above them, below them and round about them, and for great joy, delight and pleasantness will sing of God's holiness, of their royal kingly government or regimen, and of the gracious, amiable, blessed fruit of the heavenly spring or vegetation; and that will go forth according to the qualities of the seven spirits of God, in many various voices.

113. On the contrary, the devils, with all wicked men, will be forced into a hole, where a hellish stink will well up and rise up, and the hellish fire, and the hellish coldness and bitterness, will burn after the manner of the kindled spirits of God, eternally in their body, as also in their courts, dominions, regions, space or circumference.

114. Nay, if they could be locked in or barred up in a hole, that the angry face of God might not touch them, then they might be quiet and contented, and would not be necessitated to endure eternal ignominy, shame and reproach.

115. But here is no help, their torment increaseth and becometh but the greater; the more they bewail it, the more doth the hellish fierceness or wrath kindle itself, they must lie in hell, as dead bones, like singed scorched sheep in the fire, their stink and abomination gnaweth them.

116. They dare not lift up their eyes for shame, for they see in their circumference, courts or regions, nothing else but only a severe judge; and above them, and on all sides of them, they see the eternal joy.
Not that they apprehend and behold it, but they have a kind of knowledge thereof in the Centre.

Here is lamentation and woe, yelling and crying, and no deliverance; it is with them as if it did continually thunder and lighten tempestuously.

For the kindled spirits of God generate themselves thus:
I. The hardness generateth a hard, raw, rough, cold and astringent quality.
II. The sweetness is grown faint, and gaspeth, like a glowing coal splits when there is no more sap in the wood, and there is no refreshment for it.
III. The bitterness teareth like a hot plague, and is as bitter as gall.
IV. The fire burneth as a fierce wrathful Sulphur.
V. Love is an enmity here.
VI. The sound is a mere beating, rumbling or cracking,* like the noise of a fire breaking forth out of a hollow place, as if it were great claps of thunder.

* "a mere beating, rumbling or cracking." In this, and in several similar sentences where Sparrow has used such terms as the above, the original is "Pochen," a word difficult to render in English, but highly suggestive. It describes above all else a pulsation; it might be the throbbing of an engine, or the beating of the human heart; it might be the hammering of a pounding-machine, or the ticking of the "deathwatch" insect; but in every case it denotes a regular, continuous motion and alternating sound, and this both as a technical term and as a figurative.

VII. The circuit, region, court or residence of the body of the seven is a house of mourning.

Their food is abomination, and growth from the fierceness of all qualities: Lamentation and woe, and that for ever without end; there is no time there; another king sitteth on their throne, which keepeth or holdeth a judgment for ever; they are only his footstool.

121. O beauty, pleasure and voluptuousness of this world! O riches and proud stateliness! O might and power! Thy unrighteous judgment and great pomp, with all thy pleasure and voluptuousness, lie all together on a heap, and are become a hellish fire!

122. Now eat and drink, now trim and dress thyself * therewith, and domineer therein, thou fair goddess, how art thou become a whore, and thy shame and reproach continue for ever!

* "trim and dress thyself" (schmincke dich), "paint thy face."
THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER

VII. Of the Seventh Qualifying or Fountain Spirit in the Divine Power.

1. THE Seventh spirit of God in the divine power is the corpus or body, which is generated out of the other six spirits, wherein all heavenly figures subsist, and wherein all things image and form themselves, and wherein all beauty and joy rise up.

2. This is the very spirit of nature, yea nature itself, wherein apprehensibility or comprehensibility consisteth, and wherein all creatures are formed in heaven and on earth. Yea heaven itself is therein formed; and all naturality in the whole God consisteth in this spirit.

3. If it were not for this spirit there would be neither angel nor man, and God would be an unsearchable being, subsisting only in an unsearchable power.

Question.
4. Now the question is: How is this form? Or in what manner is this so?

Answer.
If thou art a rational mercurial spirit, which presseth through all the seven spirits of God, and beholdeth, proveth and examineth them, how they are, then thou wilt, by the explanation of this seventh spirit, conceive and understand the operation and the being of the whole Deity, and apprehend it in thy sense or mind.

5. But if thou understandest nothing by this spirit, then let this book alone, and judge neither of the cold nor of the warmth therein: For thou art too hard bound and captivated in Saturnus, and art not a philosopher in this world.

6. Let thy judging alone, or else thou wilt receive thy evil wages for it; therefore I will have thee faithfully warned of it. Tarry till thou comest into the other life, for then the heavenly gate will be opened to thee, and then thou also wilt understand this.

Now observe the Depth.
7. Here I must lay hold on the whole divine body in the midst or centre at the heart, and explain the whole body, how nature is or existeth, and there you will see the highest ground, how all the seven spirits of God continually generate one another, and how the Deity hath neither beginning nor end.

8. Therefore behold and see the longing, desired pleasure of thy spirit, the eternal divine joyfulness, and the heavenly delight and corporeal joy, which in all eternity hath no end.

Now observe:
9. When the flash riseth up in the centre, then the divine birth standeth in its full operation:
In God it is continually and eternally thus; but not so in us poor fleshly children.

10. In this life the triumphing divine birth lasteth in us men only so long as the flash lasteth, therefore our knowledge is but in part, whereas in God the flash standeth unchangeably, always eternally thus.

11. Behold, all the seven spirits of God are generated alike together at once; none of them is the first, and none of them is the last; but we must have an eye to the kernel, and consider how the divine birth or geniture riseth up, otherwise man understandeth it not.

12. For the creatures cannot comprehend at once all the seven spirits, one in another, but they look upon them; but when one spirit is touched or stirred, then that toucheth or stirreth all the others, and then the birth or geniture standeth in full power.

13. Therefore it hath a beginning in man, but none in God; and therefore I must also write in a creaturely manner, or else thou canst not understand it.

14. Behold, without the flash all the seven spirits were a dark valley, but when the flash riseth up between the astringent and bitter qualities, in the heat, then it cometh shining in the sweet water, and in the flames of the heat it cometh bitter, and triumphing and living, and in the astringent it cometh corporeal, dry and bright.

15. Now these four spirits move themselves in the flash, for all the four become living therein, and so now the power of these four riseth up in the flash, as if the life did rise up, and the power which is risen up in the flash is the love, which is the fifth spirit.

16. That power moveth so very pleasantly and amiably in the flash, as if a dead spirit did become living, and was suddenly in a moment set into great clarity or brightness.

17. Now in this moving one power toucheth or stirreth another: First the astringent beateth or striketh,* and the heat maketh in that beating or stroke a clear ringing sound, and the bitter power divideth the ringing, and the water maketh it mild and soft, and mitigateth it; and this is the sixth spirit.
18. Now the tone in all the five spirits riseth up like a melodious pleasant music, and remaineth so standing; for the astringent quality exsiccath it or drieth it up.

19. So now, in the same sound that is gone forth (which now subsisteth, being dried) is the power of all the six qualifying or fountain spirits, and it is as it were the seed of the other six spirits, which they have there compacted or incorporated together, and made one spirit thereof, and which hath the quality of all the spirits: and that is the seventh spirit of God in the divine power.

20. Now this spirit subsisteth in its colour like azure or heaven-blue, for it is generated out of all the six spirits; and when the flash, which standeth in the midst or centre in the heat, shineth into the other spirits, so that they rise up in the flash and generate the seventh spirit, then the flash riseth up also in the birth of the six spirits together in the seventh.

21. But because the seventh hath no peculiar quality in itself, therefore the flash in the seventh cannot be brighter, but it receiveth from the seventh the corporeal being of all the seven spirits, and the flash standeth in the midst or centre of these seven spirits, and is generated from all the seven.

22. The seven spirits are the father of the light, and the light is their son, which they always continually generate thus from eternity to eternity, and the light enlighteneth and always eternally maketh the seven spirits living and joyful, for they all receive their rising and life in the power of light.

23. Again, they all generate the light, and all are together alike the father of the light, and the light generateth no one spirit, but maketh them all living and joyful, that they always continually stand in the birth.

24. Behold, I will shew it thee once more, that so by any means thou mayest apprehend it, that this high work may not take place in vain without profit to thee.

25. The astringent quality is the first spirit, and that attracteth or draweth together and maketh all dry: The sweet quality is the second spirit, and that softeneth or mitigateth the astringent: Now the third spirit is the bitter spirit, which existeth from the fourth and the first.

26. So when the third spirit in its rage rubs itself in the astringent, then it kindleth the fire, and then the fierceness in the fire riseth up in the astringent. In that fierceness now the bitter spirit becometh self-subsisting; and in the sweet it becometh meek or mild; and in the hard it becometh corporeal; and so now it subsisteth, and is also the fourth spirit.

27. Now the flash in the power of these four goeth forth in the heat, and riseth up in the sweet spring water or fountain; the bitter maketh it triumphing; the astringent maketh it shining, dry and corporeal; and the sweet maketh it meek and mild; and so it receiveth its first shining and lustre in the sweet; and here now the flash, or the light, subsisteth in the midst or centre, as a heart.
28. Now when that light, which standeth in the midst or centre, shineth into the four spirits, then the power of the four spirits riseth up in the light, and they become living, and love the light; that is, they take it into them, and are impregnated with it, and that spirit which is so taken in is the love of the life, which is the fifth spirit.

29. Now when they have taken the love into them, then they qualify, act or operate for great joy; for the one seeth the other in the light, and so the one toucheth or stirreth the other.

30. Then the tone riseth up; and the hard spirit beateth, striketh or thumpeth; * but the sweet maketh that beating or striking mild; and the bitter divideth it according to the condition or kind of every quality; the fourth causeth the ringing; the fifth causeth joyfulness; and the compacted incorporated sounding is the tone or tune, or the sixth spirit.

* "beateth, striketh or thumpeth" (pochet), "beating," etc.
(Pochen). See Ch. 10, par. 119.

31. In this tone riseth up the power of all the six spirits, and becometh a palpable body, to speak after an angelical manner, and subsisteth in the power of the other six spirits, and in the light; and this is the body of nature, wherein all heavenly creatures, ideas, figures and sprouts or vegetations are imaged or fashioned.

The Holy Gates.

32. But the light, which subsisteth in the midst or centre in all the seven spirits, and wherein standeth the life of all the seven spirits, whereby all seven become triumphing and joyful, and wherein the heavenly joyfulness rises up:

33. This is that which all the seven spirits generate, and that is the son of all the seven spirits, and the seven spirits are its father, which generate the light; and the light generateth in them the life; and the light is the heart of the seven spirits.

34. This light is the true Son of God, whom we Christians worship and honour, as the second Person in the Holy Trinity.

35. All the seven spirits of God together, are God the Father.

36. For no one spirit of them is alone or without the others; they all seven generate one another; for if one were wanting the others could not be.

37. But the light is another Person, for it is continually generated out of or from the seven spirits, and the seven spirits rise up continually in the light; and the powers of these seven spirits go forth continually in the glance or splendour of the light in the seventh nature-spirit [Or spirit of nature], and do form and image all in the seventh spirit; and this out-going or exit in the light is the Holy Ghost.

38. The flash or stock or pith or the heart, which is generated in the powers, remaineth standing in the midst or centre, and that is the Son; and the splendour or glance in all the powers goeth forth from the Father and the Son, in all the powers of the Father, and formeth and imageth all in the seventh nature-spirit, according to the power and operation of the seven spirits, and according to their distinction and impulse. This is the true Holy Ghost, whom we Christians honour and adore for the third Person in the Deity.

39. Thus, O blind Jew, Turk, and Heathen, thou seest that there are three Persons in the Deity, thou canst not deny it, for thou livest and art or hast thy being in the three Persons, and thou hast thy life from them and in them, and in the power of these three Persons thou art to rise from the dead at the last day, and live eternally.

Note.
40. Now if thou hast lived well and holily in this world, according to the law of nature, and hast not extinguished the clear flash, which is the Son of God, which teacheth thee the law of nature in thy seven qualifying or fountain spirits, and hast not put it out through a fierce elevation, which runneth on contrary to the knowledge of nature [or conscience], then wilt thou with all Christians live in eternal joy.

Note.
[41. "The law of nature is the divine ordinance " out of the centre of nature, he that can live " therein needs no other law, for he fulfilleth the "will of God."]

42. For it lieth not in thy unbelieving [or ignorance] to hinder it; thy unbelieving doth not take away or make void the truth of God: but faith bloweth up the spirit of hope, and testifieth that we are God's children. The faith is generated in the flash, and wrestleth so long with God till it overcometh and gets the victory.

43. Thou judgest us, and thereby thou judgest thyself, in that thou blowest up the zealous or jealous spirit in anger and wrath, which extinguisheth thy light. But if thou art grown on a sweet tree, and suppresseth the evil influence or suggestions, and livest well and holily in the law of nature, that sheweth thee very well what is right, if thou art not indeed grown out from a fierce or wrathful twig or branch.

44. "Here is meant or understood out of or from a quite Godless seed, whereout there often groweth a thistle; though yet there were a remedy, if the will were but once broken; but it is a rare and precious thing; however, indeed on a good tree it is often so, that some branches do also wither."

Note.
45. Moreover, thou art blind. For who shall separate thee from the love of God, in which thou art born or generated, and wherein thou livest, if thou perseverest and continuest therein till the end? Who shall separate thee from God, in whom thou hast lived here?

46. That which thou hast sown in the ground, that will spring up, be it rye, wheat, barley, tares or thorns; that which is not combustible or capable of the final or last fire, that will not burn at all: But God will not himself corrupt or spoil his good seed, but will husband, till and manure it, that it may bear fruit in the eternal life.*

* "husband, till," etc. (bauen), "build," i.e. develop, cultivate.

47. Seeing then all live and have their being in God, why do the weeds glory and boast against the wheat? Dost thou think that God is a dissembler, and that he regardeth or respecteth any man's person or name?
48. What man was the father of us all? Was it not Adam? And when his son Cain lived wickedly before God, why did not his father Adam help him? But here it may be said: [Ezek. xviii. 4,20]

He that sinneth shall be punished.

49. If Cain had not quenched or extinguished his light, who could have separated him from the love of God?

50. So thou also, thou boastest thou art a Christian, and knowest the light, why dost thou not walk therein? Dost thou think the name will make thee holy? Tarry, Friend, till thou comest thither into the other world, then thou wilt know it by experience. Behold! many a Jew, Turk, and Heathen, who had indeed their lamps well trimmed and furnished, will sooner enter into the kingdom of heaven than thou who boastest.

Question.

What prerogative or advantage then have the Christians?

Answer.

51. Very much; for they know the way of life, and know how they should rise from the fall: But if any will lie still, then he must be thrown into the ditch, and there must perish with all the Godless Heathen.

52. Therefore take heed what thou dost, and consider what thou art; thou judgest others, and art blind thyself.

53. But the spirit saith thou hast no cause for it, viz. to judge him who is better than thou: Have we not all one flesh, and our life subsisteth in God, be it in his love, or in his anger? For what thou sowest, that thou shalt reap.

Note.

54. God is not the cause thereof that thou art lost: For the law to do right or righteousness is written in nature, and thou hast that very book in thy heart.

55. Thou knowest very well that thou shouldst deal well and friendly with thy neighbour; also thou knowest well that thou shouldst not vilify thy own life, that is, thou shouldst not bemire and defile thy own body and soul, and lay open their shame.

56. Surely herein consisteth the pith and kernel, and the love of God. God doth not regard any man's name or birth, but he that moveth or acteth in the love of God moveth in the light, and the light is the heart of God. Now he that sitteth in the heart of God, who can spew him out from thence? No one; for he is begotten or generated in God.

57. O thou blind, half-dead world, cease from thy judging; O thou blind Jew, Turk, and Heathen, desist from thy calumniating, and submit thyself in obedience to God, and walk in the light, then thou wilt see how thou shouldst rise from thy fall, and how thou shouldst arm thyself in this world against the hellish fierceness and wrath, and how thou mayst overcome, and live with God eternally.

58. Most certainly there is but one God; but when the veil is put away from thy eyes, so that thou seest and knowest him, then thou wilt also see and know all thy brethren, whether they be Christians, Jews, Turks, or Heathen.

59. Or dost thou think that God is the God of Christians only? Do not the Heathen also live in God, [1 Acts x. 35] whosoever doth right or righteousness God loveth and accepteth him.

60. Or what didst thou, who art a Christian, know [as to] how God would redeem and deliver thee from evil? What friendship and familiarity hadst thou with HIM? or what covenant hadst thou made with HIM, when God caused his Son to become man, or be incarnate, to redeem mankind? Is he only thy king? Is it not written, [Haggai ii. 7] He is the comfort of all the Heathen.

61. Hearken, [Rom. v. 18] By one man sin came into the world, and pressed through one upon all. And through one came the redemption into the world, and pressed through one upon all. What therefore lieth in any man's knowledge? No! indeed, thou didst not know how God would deal with thee, when thou wast dead in sins.

62. Now as sin without distinction reigneth through one man over all, so mercy and redemption reign through one over all.

63. But unto those Heathen, Jews, and Turks, blindness did befall, yet for all that they stand in an anxious birth, and seek for a rest; they desire grace, though they seek not for it at the right mark, or in the right place or limit: but God is everywhere, and looketh upon the ground of the heart.

64. But if in their anxious birth the light be generated in them, what art thou that judgest them?

65. Behold! thou blind man, I will demonstrate this to thee thus: Go into a meadow, there thou seest several sorts of herbs and flowers; thou seest some that are bitter, some tart, sweet, sour, white, yellow, red, blue, green, and many various sorts.

66. Do they not all grow out of the earth? Do they not stand one by another? Doth the one grudge the beauteous form of the other?

67. But if one among them lifteth up itself too high in its growth, and so withereth, because it hath not sap enough, how can the earth help it? Doth it not afford its sap to that as well as to the others?

68. But if thorns grow among them, and the mower cometh to reap his crop, he cutteth them down together, but he casteth out the thorns, and they are to be burnt in the fire; but the various flowers and good crop he gathereth, and causeth it to be brought into his barn.

69. Thus it is also with men, there are diversities of gifts and accomplishments, endowments or aptitudes; one it may be is much lighter or brighter in God than another; but all the while they do not wither in the spirit they are not rejectable; but when the spirit withereth, then that is good and useful for nothing but for fuel, and is only as wood for the fire.

70. But if the Turks be of an astringent quality, and the Heathen of a bitter, what is that to thee? If the light becomes shining in the astringent and bitter qualities, then it gives light also.

71. But thou art generated in the heat, where the light riseth up in the sweet spring or fountainwater; have a care lest the heat burn thee; it is time, thou wouldst do well to quench that.

Question.
72. Thou sayest, Is it right then that the Heathen, Jews, and Turks, should persevere in their blindness?

Answer.
73. No; but this I say; How can he see, that hath no eyes? For what doth the poor lay or vulgar man know of the tumults which the priests have in their drunkenness? He goeth on in his simplicity, and generateth anxiously in his spiritual birth.

Question.
But then thou sayest, Hath God blinded the Turks, Jews, and Heathen?

Answer.
74. No; but when God kindled the light for them, then they lived after the pleasures, voluptuousness and lusts of their own hearts, and would not be led or directed by the spirit, and so the outward light extinguished.

75. But it is not therefore so totally extinguished that it could not be generated in man; for man is out of or from God, and liveth in God, be it either in love or in wrath.

76. Now if man be in a longing, should he not be impregnated in his longing? And so if he be impregnated once, then he can generate also. But as long as the outward light doth not shine to him, therefore he doth not know his [man's] Son, whom he hath generated.

77. But when the light shall arise on the last Judgment Day, then he will see HIM [Christ].

78. Behold, I tell thee a mystery: The time is already that the Bridegroom crowneth his bride!

79. Guess, Friend, where lieth the crown?
Towards the north; for in the centre of the astringent quality the light will be clear and bright.

80. But from whence cometh the Bridegroom? From the midst or centre, where the heat eenerateth the light, and goeth towards the north into the astringent quality; there the light groweth bright.

81. What do these towards the south? They are in the heat fallen asleep, but a stormy tempest will awaken them; among these many will be terrified to death.

82. Then what do those in the west? Their bitter quality will rub itself with the others, but when they taste the sweet water, then will their spirit be mild and meek.

83. But what do these in the east? Thou art a lofty proud bride from the beginning; the crown was always offered to thee from the beginning, but thou thoughtest thyself too fair already; thou livest as the rest do.

Of the Operation and Property of the Divine and Heavenly Nature.

84. Now if thou wilt know what kind or manner of nature there is in heaven, and what kind of nature the holy angels have; also what kind of nature Adam had before his fall, and what, properly, the holy, heavenly or divine nature is; then observe the circumstances exactly concerning this seventh qualifying or fountain spirit of God, as followeth.

85. The seventh qualifying or fountain spirit of God is the qualifying or fountain spirit of nature: for the other six do generate the seventh; and the seventh, when it is generated, is then as it were the mother of the seven, which encompasseth the other six, and generateth them again: for the corporeal and natural being consisteth in the seventh.

Observe here the Sense.
86. The six rise up in a full or a complete birth according to the power and condition of each of them, and when they are risen up, then is their power mingled one in another, and the hardness drieth it [the whole], and is as it were the whole being.

87. This corporeal exsiccation or drying, I call in this book the divine SALITTER, for it is therein [in the seventh fountain spirit of nature] the seed of the whole Deity, and it [the seventh spirit] is as it were a mother, which receiveth the seed, and always generateth fruit again, according to all the qualities of the seed.

88. Now in this rising up of the six spirits, there riseth up also the Mercurius, tone or sound of all the six spirits, and in the seventh nature-spirit it subsisteth as in the mother; and then the seventh generateth all manner of fruits and colours, according to the operation of the six.

[89. " By the word SALITTER, in this book, is understood how, out of the eternal centre of nature, the second Principle groweth and springeth up out of the first, just as the light springeth up out of the fire, wherein two spirits are understood, viz. first, a hot, second, an aerial one; whereas in the aerial life the true vegetation or growing consisteth, and in the fire-life is the cause of the quality.]

90. "So when it is written, the angels are "created out of God, then it is understood or "meant out of God's eternal nature, wherein is "understood or meant the seven forms, and yet
"the divine holy nature is not understood to be "in the fire, but in the light.

91. "Yet the fire giveth or holdeth forth to us
"a mystery of the eternal nature, and of the "Deity also, wherein a man is to understand
"two Principles of a twofold source, viz. I.
"a hot, fierce, astringent, bitter, anxious, con"suming one in the fire-source. And out of "the fire cometh II. viz. the light, which "dwelleth in the fire, but is not apprehended
"or laid hold on by the fire; also it hath another
"source than the fire hath, which is meekness,
"wherein there is a desire of love, where then,
"in the love-desire, another will is understood
"than that which the fire hath.

92. "For the fire will consume all, and causeth
"a high rising in the source, and the meekness
"of the light causeth entity or substantiality; viz.
"in the eternal light it causeth the water-spirit
"of eternal life; and in the third principle of "this world it causeth water, together with the "existency or original of the air.

93. "Thus the Reader is to understand this "book as concerning three Principles or births;
viz. one is the original of the eternal nature, in the eternal will or desire of God, which desire driveth itself on in great anguish till it cometh to the fourth form, viz. to the fire.

94. "Wherein the second, which is the light, existeth and replenisheth the eternal liberty besides or beyond nature, wherein we understand the holy Ternary in the light, without or beyond nature, in the power of the light, in the liberty, as another or second spring or source without being, and yet united with the fire's nature, viz. as fire and light together in one.

95. "The third Principle of this world is generated and created out of the first, that is, magically: As is clearly demonstrated in our second [Three Principles], and in our third book [Threefold Life], unto which this book is only an introduction, and is the first book, which was not sufficiently apprehended by the author at the first time, though it appeared clearly enough, yet all of it could not be conceived; also it was as when a torrent or stormy shower of rain passeth over a place, from whence vegetation and springing existeth; for therein is the seed of the whole Deity."

96. [See par. 88. ]

97. But here thou must know that the Deity doeth not stand still, but worketh and riseth up without intermission, as a pleasant wrestling, moving or struggling.

98. Like two creatures which in great love play together, embracing, struggling and wrestling the one with the other; now one is above, by and by the other, and when one hath overcome it yieldeth or giveth over, and letteth the other rise up again.

99. Thou mayest also understand it thus, in a similitude, as when seven persons had begun a friendly sport and play, where one gets the upper hand above another, and a third comes to help that one which is overcome; and so there is a pleasant friendly sporting among them; whereas indeed they all have one and the same agreement or love-will together, and yet strive and fight or vie one against another in a way of love, in sporting and pastime.

100. Thus also is the working of the six spirits of God in the seventh; suddenly one of them hath a strong rising up, suddenly another; and thus they wrestle in love one with another.

101. When the light riseth up in this striving, then the Holy Ghost moveth in the power of the light, in the play of the other six spirits, and so in the seventh spring up all manner of fruits of life, and all manner of colours and vegetations, or ideas and forms.

102. Now as that quality is which is strongest, so the body of the fruit is imaged, and the colours also; in this striving or wrestling the Deity formeth itself into infinite and unsearchable variety of kinds and manners of images or ideas.

103. For the seven spirits are the seven head sources or springs, and when Mercurius riseth up therein, that stirreth all, and the bitter quality moveth it, and distinguished it, and the astringent drieth it up.

[104. "Nature and the Ternary are not one and the same; they are distinct, though the Ternary dwelleth in nature, but un apprehended, and yet is an eternal band, as is plainly unfolded in our second and third books."]

Now observe here, how the Imaging in Nature is in the seventh Spirit.

105. The sweet water is the beginning of nature, and the astringent quality draweth or attracteth it together, that it becomes natural and creatural, to speak in an angelical way.
106. Now being drawn together, it looketh like azure or sky-colour blue, but when the light or flash riseth up therein, then it looketh like the precious jaspis or jasper stone, or as I may call it in my language, a glassy sea, on which the sun shineth, and that very clear and bright.

107. But when the bitter quality riseth up therein, then it divideth and formeth itself, as if it were alive or lively, or as if the life did rise up there, in a greenish flourishing manner and form, like a green flash of lightning, to speak after the manner of men, so that it dazzleth a man's eyes, and blindeth him.

108. But when the heat riseth up therein, then the green form inclineth to a half red or ruddy form, as when a carbuncle stone shineth from the green flash or beam of light.

109. But when the light, which is the Son of God, shineth into this sea of nature, then it getteth its yellowish and whitish colour, which I cannot compare to anything; you must be content to stay or tarry with this aspect or vision, till you come into the other life.

110. For this now is the true heaven of nature, which is out of or from God, wherein the holy angels dwell, and out of which they were created in the beginning.

111. Behold now, when the Mercurius or tone in this nature-heaven riseth up, there the divine and angelical joyfulness riseth up, for therein rise up forms, imagings, colours and angelical fruits, which blossom curiously, grow, spring, flourish and stand in perfection, as to all manner of bearing or fruit trees, plants and springing growths, of a gracious, comely, lovely, amiable, blessed prospect, vision or sight to be looked upon, with a most delicious, lovely, pleasant smell and taste.

112. But here I speak with an angel's tongue, thou must not understand it earthly, like unto this world.

113. It is with Mercurius in this manner or form also. Thou must not think that there is any hard beating, striking, toning or sounding, or whistling and piping in the Deity, as when one taketh a huge trumpet, and bloweth in it, and maketh it to sound.

114. O no, dear man, thou half dead angel, that is not so, but all is done and consisteth in power; for the divine being standeth in power. But the holy angels sing, ring and trumpet forth with clear and shrill sounding: for to that end God hath made them out of himself, that they should increase and multiply the heavenly joy: [And therefore were the angels made out of God.]

115. Also such an image was Adam, as God created him, before his Eve was made out of him; but the corrupted Salitter did wrestle with the well-spring of life in Adam, till it overcame. And so Adam became weary, which made him fall into a sleep. Here he was undone: And if the Barmhertzigkeit, or the mercy of God, had not come to help him, and made a woman out of him, he would have still continued asleep.

Of this we will speak in its proper Place.

116. This, as is mentioned above, is that fair, bright and holy heaven, which is thus in the total Deity, and which hath neither beginning nor end, whither no creature with its sense can reach.
117. Yet thou shouldst know this, that always in a place now one quality sheweth itself more powerfully than the others, now the second prevaileth, now the third, then now the fourth, now again the fifth, now the sixth, then again now the seventh.

118. Thus there is an eternal wrestling, working and friendly amiable rising up of love; where then in this rising up the Deity continually sheweth itself more and more wonderful, more incomprehensible and more unsearchable.

119. So that the holy angels cannot sufficiently rejoice themselves, nor sufficiently enough converse, walk and most lovingly sport therein, nor sufficiently enough sing that beautiful Te Deum Laudamus, We praise thee, O God, as to each quality of the great God, according to his wonderful revelation, and wisdom, and beauty, and fruit, and form.

120. For the qualities rise up eternally, and so there is not with them or among them either beginning, middle or end.

121. Although I have written here how all is come to be, and how all is framed, formed and imaged, and how the Deity riseth up, yet for all that thou must not think that it hath any rest, ceasing or extinction, and that afterwards it riseth up thus again.

122. O no: But I must write in part or by pieces, for the Reader's better understanding, that he might thereby apprehend somewhat, and so attain the sense and meaning thereof.

123. Nor must thou think that I have climbed up aloft into heaven, and beheld it with my carnal or fleshly eyes. O no; hear me, thou half-dead angel, I am as thou art, and have no greater light in my outward being than thou hast.

124. Moreover, I am a sinful and mortal man, as well as thou, and I must every day and hour grapple, struggle and fight with the devil who afflicteth me in my corrupted lost nature, in the fierce or wrathful quality, which is in my flesh, as in all men continually.

125. Now I get the better of him, now he is too hard for me; yet for all that he hath not overcome or conquered me, though he often getteth the advantage over me: For our life is as a perpetual warfare with the Devil.

[126. "This strife and battle is about that most high, noble, victorious garland, till the corrupted, perished Adamical man is killed and dead, in which the devil hath an access to man."

127. "Of which the sophister will know nothing; for he is not generated of God, but is born of flesh and blood: and though indeed the birth standeth open for and towards him, yet he will not enter; for the devil withholds him. "God blindeth none."

128. If he buffeteth me, then I must retire and draw back, but the divine power helpeth me again; then he also getteth a blow, and often loseth the day in the fight.

129. But when he is overcome, then the heavenly gate openeth in my spirit, and then the spirit seeth the divine and heavenly being; not externally without the body, but in the fountain or well-spring of the heart there riseth up the flash in the sensibility or thoughts of the brain, and therein the spirit doth contemplate or meditate.
130. For man is made out of all the powers of God, out of all the seven spirits of God, as the angels also are. But now seeing man is corrupted, therefore the divine birth doth not always spring, qualify or operate in him; no, nor in all men either: And though indeed it springeth in him, yet the high light doth not presently shine in all men; and though indeed it doth shine, yet it is incomprehensible to the corrupted nature.

131. For the Holy Ghost will not be caught, held or retained in the sinful flesh, but riseth up like a flash of lightning, as fire flashes and sparkles out of a stone, when a man strikes fire upon it.

132. But when the flash is caught in the fountain of the heart, then the Holy Ghost riseth up in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, into the brain, like the daybreak, dawning of the day, or morning redness: Therein sticketh the mark, aim or scope and knowledge.

133. For in that light the one seeth the others, feeleth the others, smelleth the others, tasteth the others, and heareth the others, and it is as if the whole Deity did rise up therein.

134. Herein the spirit seeth into the depth of the Deity; for in God, near and afar off is all one; and that same God, of whom I write in this book, is as well in his Ternary in the body of a holy soul, as in heaven.

135. From this God I take my knowledge, and from no other thing, neither will I know any other thing than that same God, and the same it is which maketh that assurance in my spirit, that I steadfastly believe and trust in him.
136. Though an angel from heaven should tell this [knowledge] to me, yet for all that I could not believe it; much less lay hold on it, for I should always doubt whether it were certainly so or no: But the sun itself ariseth in my spirit, and therefore I am most sure of it, and I myself do see the proceeding and birth of the holy angels, and of all things both in heaven and in this world.

137. For the holy soul is one spirit with God; though indeed it is a creature, yet it is like to the angels: Also the soul of man seeth much deeper than the angels; for the angels see only to * the heavenly pomp, but the soul seeth both the heavenly and the hellish, for it liveth between both.

* "see only to" (sehen allein bis in), "see only into," i.e. as far as into.

138. Therefore it must undergo * many hard bangs and pinches, and must every day and hour wrestle and struggle with the devil, that is, with the hellish qualities [Or devilish conditions, inclinations, and passions in us] and so it liveth in great danger in this world; therefore this life is very well called the valley of misery, full of anguish, a perpetual hurliburly, pulling and haling, worrying, warring, fighting, struggling and striving.

* "it must undergo," etc. (muss sich wol quetschen lassen), "it must suffer itself to be crushed." See Ch. 19, par. 121.

139. But the cold and half-dead body doth not always understand this fight of the soul: The body doth not know how it is with it, but is heavy and anxious; it goeth from one room or business to another; and from one place to another;
it seeketh for ease and rest.

140. When it cometh thither, where it would be, yet it findeth no such thing; then doubtings and unbelief fall in between and come upon it; sometimes it seems to it as if God had quite cast it off; but it doth not understand the fight of the spirit, how the same is sometimes down, and sometimes gets aloft.

141. What vehement and furious war and fight there is between the hellish quality and the heavenly, which fire the devils blow up, and the holy angels quench it, I leave to every holy soul to consider of.

142. Thou must know that I write not here as a story or history, as if it were related to me from another, but I must continually stand in that combat or battle, and I find it to be full of heavy strivings, wherein I am often struck down to the ground, as well as all other men.

143. But for the sake of the violent fight, and for the sake of the earnestness which we have together, this revelation hath been given me, and the vehement driving or impulse to bring it so to pass as to set all this down on paper.

144. But what the total sequel is, which may follow upon and after this, I do not fully know: Only sometimes, future Mysteries in the depth are shewn to me.

145. For when the flash riseth up in the centre, one seeth through and through, but cannot well apprehend or lay hold on it; for it happeneth to such a one as when there is a tempest of lightning, where the flash of fire openeth itself, and suddenly vanisheth.
146. So it goes also in the soul, when it presseth or breaks quite through in its flight or combat, then it beholdeth the Deity, as a flash of lightning; but the source, quality or fountain of sins covereth it suddenly again: For the Old Adam belongeth to the earth, and doth not, with this flesh, belong to the Deity.

147. I do not write this for my own praise, but to that end that the Reader may know wherein my knowledge standeth, that he might not seek that from me which I have not, or think me to be what I am not.

148. But what I am, that are all men, who wrestle in JESUS CHRIST our King for the crown of the eternal joy, and live in the hope of perfection; the beginning whereof is at the day of the resurrection, which is now shortly near at hand; which, in the circle of the rising or horizon of the east in the flash, is very well to be seen, in which nature sheweth itself as if it would be daybreak.

149. Therefore take heed, that you be not found asleep in your sins; truly the prudent and the wise will take notice hereof, but the wicked will continue in their sins.

150. They say, What ails the fool, when will he have done with his dreaming? This is because they are asleep in fleshly lusts. Well, well, you shall see what kind of dream this will be.

151. I would willingly take ease and rest in my meekness, if I were not put upon this work; but that God who hath made the world is too strong for me, I am the work of his hands, he may set me and place me where he will.
Though I must be a by-word and spectacle of scorn to the world and devils, yet my hope is in God concerning the life to come; in him will I venture to hazard myself, and not resist or strive against the Spirit. Amen.

THE TWELFTH CHAPTER

Of the Nativity and Proceeding forth or Descent of the Holy Angels, as also of their Government, Order, and Heavenly joyous Life.

[1. "VERBUM Domini, The Word of the Lord, by the Fiat (that is, the saying, Let there be angels), comprised the qualifying or fountain spirits into a will; and that "is the creation of the angels."]

Question.
2. Now the question is, What is properly an angel?

Answer.
Behold, when God [Schuff] created the angels, then he created them out of the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit, which is nature, or the holy heaven.

3. The word Schuff [created] thou must understand thus, as when a man says, drawn together [attracted], or driven together [compacted]; as the earth is driven or compacted together: In like manner, when the whole God did move himself, then the astringent quality drew or drove together the Salitter of nature, and dried it, and so the angels came to be: Now such as the quality was in every place, in its moving, such also was the angel.
Observe the Depth.

4. There are seven spirits of God, all these seven have moved themselves, and the light therein hath moved itself also, and the spirit, which goeth forth out of the seven spirits of God, hath moved itself also.

5. Now the Creator intended, according to his Ternary, to create three hosts, not one from another, but one by another,* as in a circle or sphere.

* " not one from another, but one by another " (nicht weit von einander, sondern eins am andern), " not far [apart] from one another, but close [together] to one another." Instead of " far " and " close," St M., to bring out the idea more clearly, prints " detachées " (detached) and " unies " (united).

6. Now observe: As the [seven] spirits were therein in their moving, boiling or rising up, so also were the creatures: In the midst or centre of each host was the heart of each host incorporated or compacted together, out of which an angelical or great or chief prince proceeded or came to be.

7. And as the Son of God is generated in the midst or centre of the seven spirits of God, and is the life and Heart of the seven spirits of God, so there was one angelical king created in the midst or centre of his circumference, sphere, extent or region out of nature, also out of nature's heaven, out of the power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, and that now was the heart in one host, and he had in him the quality, might, power and strength of his whole host, and was the fairest among them, or of them all.

8. Just as the Son of God is the heart and life and strength of all the seven spirits of God, so also is that one king of angels, in his host.

9. And as there are seven principal qualities in the divine power, out of which the Heart of God is generated; so there are also some mighty princely angels created in each host, according to each head or chief quality, the number of which I do not exactly know; and they are with or near * the king, and are leaders of the other angels.

* "with or near" (neben), "by the side of, close to, near."

10. Here thou must know that the angels are not all of one quality, neither are they equal or alike to one another in power and might: Indeed every angel hath the power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, but in every one there is somewhat of one quality more predominant and strong than another, and according to that quality is he also glorified.

11. For such as the Salitter was in every place, at the time of creation, such also was the angel that came forth; and according to that quality which is strongest in an angel, he is also named and glorified.

12. As [in] the flowers in the meadows, every one receiveth its colour from its quality, and is named also according to its quality, so are the holy angels also: Some are strongest in the astringent quality, and those are of a [dusky or grey] brownish light, and are nearest of quality to the cold.

13. So when the light of the Son of God shineth on them, then they are like a brownish or purple flash of lightning, very bright and clear in their quality.
14. Some are of the quality of the water, and those are light, like the holy heaven; and when the light shineth on them, then they look like a crystalline sea.

15. Some are strongest in the bitter quality, and they are like a green precious stone, which sparkleth like a flash of lightning; and when the light shineth on them, then they shine and appear as a greenish red, as if a carbuncle did shine forth from it, or as if the life had its original there.

16. Some are of the quality of heat, and they are the lightest and brightest of all, yellowish and reddish; and when the light shineth on them, they look like the flash or lightning of the Son of God.

17. Some are strongest in the quality of love, and those are a glance of the heavenly joyfulness, very light and bright; and when the light shineth on them, they look like light blue, of a pleasant gloss, glance or lustre.

18. Some are strongest in the quality of the tone or sound, and those are light or bright also; and when the light shineth on them, they look like the rising of the flash of lightning, as if something would lift itself aloft there.

19. Some are of the quality of the total or whole nature, as a general mixture; and when the light shineth on them, they look like the holy heaven, which is formed out of all the spirits of God.

20. But the king is the heart of all the qualities, and hath his circumference, court, [or province] quarters or residence in the midst or centre, like a fountain: As the sun standeth in the midst among the planets, and is a king of the stars, and the heart of nature in this world, so great also is a Cherubim or king of angels.

21. As the six planets with the sun are leaders of hosts, and give up or submit their will to the sun, that it may reign and work in them, so all the angels give up or submit their will to the king, and the princely angels are in council with the king.

22. But thou must know here that they all have a love-will one to another, none of them grudgeth the other his form and beauty; for as it goeth among the spirits of God, so it goeth among these.

* " none of them grudgeth the other," etc., " none grudgeth the other his form and beauty; for it is (or goeth) among them as among the spirits of God " (St Martin).

23. They all have jointly and equally the divine joy, and they equally enjoy the heavenly food, therein there is no difference.

24. Only in the colours and strength of power is there a difference, but no difference at all in the perfection; for every one hath in him the power of all the spirits of God; therefore when the light of the Son of God shineth on them, then each angel's quality sheweth itself by the colour.

25. I have reckoned up only some few of the forms and colours of them, but there are a great many more that might be written down, which I will omit for brevity's sake.

26. For as the Deity presenteth itself infinitely in its rising up, so there are unsearchable varieties of colour and form among the angels: I can shew thee no right similitude of it in this world, unless it be in a blossoming field of flowers in May, which yet is but a dead and earthly type.

Of the Angelical Joy.

Question.
27. Now it may be asked, What then is it that the angels do in heaven? Or to what end and purpose hath God created them?

Answer.
28. You may observe this, you greedy, covetous, griping persons, you who in this world seek after pride, state, dignity, honour, fame, glory, power, money and goods, and squeeze out the sweat and blood of the poor, oppressed and distressed, and spend their labours upon your gallantry, bravery and stateliness, and think yourselves better than plain and simple lay, vulgar people, and suppose it is what God hath created you for.

Question.
Why hath God created angel-princes and not made them all equal, or alike?

Answer.
29. Behold, God is the God of order; and as it is, and as it goeth and moveth in his government in himself, that is, in his birth or geniture, and in his rising up, so also is the order of the angels.

30. Now as there are in him chiefly seven qualities, whereby the whole divine being is driven on, and sheweth itself infinitely in these seven qualities, and yet these seven qualities are the chief or prime in the infiniteness, whereby the divine birth or geniture stands eternally in its order unchangeably:

31. And as in the midst or centre of the seven spirits of God the heart of life is generated, whence the divine joy riseth up; thus also is the order of angels.

32. The angel-princes were created according to the spirits of God, and the Cherubim according to the heart of God: And as the divine being worketh, so also do the angels.

33. That quality which riseth up in God's being, and chiefly sheweth itself in its working, as in the rising up of the tone or tune, or of the divine working, wrestling and fighting, that angelical prince who is most strongly addicted to that quality begins, in his rank or file and round, with his legions, with singing, ringing forth, dancing, rejoicing and jubilating.

34. This is heavenly music, for here every one singeth according to the voice of his quality, and the prince leadeth the choir or chorus, as a chanter or singing-master with his scholars; and the king rejoiceth and jubilateth with his angels, to the honour of the great God, and to the increasing and multiplying of the heavenly joys, and that is in the heart of God as a holy sport or scene; and to that end also are they created for the joy and honour of God.

35. Now when the heavenly music of the angel riseth up, then in the heavenly pomp, in the divine Salitter, there rise up all manner of vegetations, springings or sprouts, also all manner of figures, shapes or ideas, and all manner of colours;
for the Deity presenteth, sheweth or discovereth itself in endless and unsearchable varieties of kinds, colours, ideas, forms and joys.
36. Now, that qualifying or fountain spirit in the Deity which doth shew itself then specially or more distinctly with its rising up and love-wrestling, as if it had become the prince or chief of them, that very angel-prince belonging to it beginneth instantly his heavenly music with his own legions, according to his quality, with singing, ringing forth piping melody, and in all the manners of heavenly skill and art, which riseth up in the spirits of God.

37. But when the centre in the midst riseth up, that is, when the birth or geniture of the Son of God sheweth itself specially or more distinctly, as a triumph, then there rise up the music, melodies or joys of all the three kingly governments or royal regiments of the whole creation of all the angels.

38. What manner of joy this must be, let every soul consider: I, in my corrupted nature, cannot apprehend it, much less can I write it.

39. By this song I invite or cite the Reader into the other life; there he himself will also be of that choir or chorus, and then first will he give credit to this spirit. What he doth not understand here, that he will there behold [for himself].

40. Thou must know that this is not forged out of a stone; but when the flash riseth up in the centre, then the spirit seeth and knoweth it.

41. Therefore look to it, and be not too scornful in this place, else thou wilt be found a scorners and mocker before God, and then well mayest thou fare as king Lucifer did. Now it may be asked:
Question.
What then do the Angels when they sing not?

Answer.
42. Behold! what the Deity doth, that they do also, when the spirits of God lovingly generate one in another, and rise up one in another, as in a loving saluting, embracing, kissing and feeding one another; in which taste and smell the life riseth up, and the eternal refreshing; of which thou mayest read before at large.

43. Then the holy angels also walk and converse one with another friendly, graciously, amiably and blessedly in the heavenly circumference or region, and do behold the wonderful and pleasant form or prospect of heaven, and eat of the gracious, amiable, blessed and delicate fruits of life. Now thou wilt ask:

Question.
What do they talk of one with another?

Answer.
44. Behold! thou pompous, stately, lofty and proud man; the world is even too narrow for thee here, and thou Thinkest there is none like thee, or equal to thee: Bethink thyself in this, whether thou hast in thee the manner, quality or condition of an angel, or of a devil.

To whom now shall I liken the Angels?

Answer.
45. I will liken them to little children who walk in the fields in May, among the flowers, and pluck them, and make dainty garlands and posies, carrying them in their hands rejoicing, and always talk together of the several forms or shapes of beautiful flowers, leading one another by the hand when they go to gather flowers.
46. And when they come home, they show them to their parents; and the parents also rejoice in their children, and are merry and cheerly with them.

47. So do the holy angels likewise, they take one another by the hand, and walk together in the beautiful May of heaven, and parly or talk of the pleasant and fair spring or fruits in the heavenly pomp, and feed on the delicate, blessed fruits of God, and make use of the beautiful heavenly flowers for their play or sport in their scenes, and make beautiful garlands, and rejoice in the delicious pleasant May of God.

48. Here is nothing but a cordial or hearty loving, a meek and gentle love, a friendly, courteous discourse, a gracious, amiable and blessed society, where the one always delighteth to see the others, and [where they delight] to honour one another.

49. They know of no malice, cunning, subtlety or deceit; but the divine fruits and pleasant loveliness are common among them; one may make use of these things as well as the others, there is no disfavour or hatred, no envy, no contrary or opposite will, but their hearts are knit together in love.

50. In this the Deity hath its highest delight, as parents have in their children, that its dear and beloved children in heaven behave themselves so well and so friendly; for the Deity in itself playeth or sporteth thus also, one qualifying or fountain spirit [springeth up] in another.

51. Therefore the angels can do no other than their Father doth, as also our angelical King JESUS CHRIST testified, when he was with us on earth, as it is written in the Gospel, where he [John v. 19.] saith: Verily the Son can do nothing of Himself; but what he seeth his Father do, the Son doth also: Also, [Matt. xviii. 3] If you do not convert, and become like children, you cannot come into the kingdom of heaven.

52. Whereby he meaneth that our hearts should be knit together in love, as are the holy angels of God, and that we should deal friendly, courteously and kindly one with another, and love one another, and prefer one another in kindness and respect, as do the angels of God.

53. Not that we should deceive and belie one another, and tear the morsel out of others' mouths for very greediness and great covetousness, neither should one outbrave another in stateliness, fashions. and deportment, and so despise another who cannot use his bad, devilish, cunning policy and tricks.

54. O no! the angels in heaven do not so; but they love one another, and rejoice in the beauty and loveliness of others, and none esteemeth or accounteth himself more excellent than the others; but every one hath his joy in the others, and rejoiceth in another's fair beauty, comely form and loveliness, whence then their love one towards another riseth up, so that they lead one another by the hand, and friendly kiss one another.

Observe the depth.

55. As when the flash of life riseth up in the centre of the divine power, wherein all the spirits of God attain their life, and highly rejoice, there is a loving and holy embracing, kissing, tasting, touching or feeling, hearing, seeing and smelling, so also there is among the angels; when the one seeth, heareth, feeleth or toucheth another, then "there riseth up in his heart the flash of life, and the one spirit embraceth the other, as it is in the Deity.

Observe here the Ground and highest Mystery of God's Angels.

56. If thou wilt now know from whence their love, humility and friendliness come, which rise up in their heart, then observe that which followeth:

57. Every angel is constituted as the whole Deity is, and is as a little god. For when God constituted the angels, he constituted or framed them out of himself.

58. Now God is the same in one place as he is in another; God is everywhere the Father, and Son, and Holy Ghost.

59. In these three names and powers stand heaven and this world, and all whatsoever thy heart can think upon, and though thou shouldst draw a little circle, which thou canst hardly look into, or which thou canst hardly discern, even less than the smallest point thou canst imagine, yet even in that is the whole divine power; and the Son of God is generated therein, and the Holy Ghost therein goeth forth from the Father and the Son; if not in love, then in wrath, as it is written, [Psalm xviii. 26] With the holy thou art holy, and with the perverse thou art perverse.

60. They who stir up the wrath of God upon themselves, that wrath standeth also in all the spirits of God, in that place where it is awakened, stirred up or provoked. On the other side, where the love of God is awakened or stirred up, there it also standeth in the full birth or geniture of the whole Deity, of or in the place or thing wherein it is awakened.
61. Herein there is no difference, the angels are created, one as well as another, all out of the divine Salitter of the heavenly nature; only this is the difference between them, that when God constituted them, each quality in the great motion stood in the highest geniture or rising up.

62. Hence it is come to pass that the angels are of various and manifold qualities, and have several colours and beauties, and yet all out of or from God.

63. Yet every angel hath all the qualities of God in him, but one of them is strongest in him, after the same he is named, and in the same he is glorified.

64. Now, as the qualities in God always generate, rise up and heartily love the one the other, and the one always getteth its life from the other; and as the flash in the sweet water riseth up in the heat, from whence the life and the joy have their original; so it is also in an angel, his internal birth or geniture is no otherwise than the external, which is without [apart from] him in God.

65. As the Son of God, without or distinct from the angels, is generated in the middle or central fountain spring, in the heat, in the sweet water, out of or from all the seven spirits of God, and re-enlighteneth back again all the seven spirits of God, whence they have their life and joy:

66. So also, in like manner, the Son of God in an angel is generated in the angel's middle or central fountain spring of the heart in the heat, in the sweet water, and re-enlighteneth back again all the seven qualifying spirits of that angel.
67. As the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son, and formeth, imageth, figureth or frameth and loveth all; even so the Holy Ghost goeth forth in the angel, into his fellow brethren, and loveth them, and rejoiceth with them.

68. For there is no difference between the spirits of God and the angels, but only this, that the angels are creatures, and their corporeal being hath a beginning; but their power, out of which they are created, is God himself, and is from eternity, and abideth in eternity.

69. Therefore their agility is as nimble and swift as the thoughts of a man, wherever they would be, there also they are, instantly; moreover, they can be great or small, as they please.

70. This is the true being of God in heaven, yea heaven itself: If thy eyes were opened, thou wouldst see it plainly and clearly on earth, in that place where thou art at present.

71. For since God can let the spirit of man see it, which spirit is yet staying in the body, and can reveal or manifest himself to him in the flesh, surely he can well do it also when he is out of the flesh, if he pleaseth.

72. O thou sinful house of this world, how art thou encompassed with hell and death; awake, the hour of thy regeneration is at hand; the daybreak, the day-spring, dawning or morning-redness sheweth itself!

73. O thou foolish and dead world, why dost thou require or demand signs and wonders? Is thy whole body chilled and benumbed? Wilt thou not awake from sleep?
74. Behold, a great sign is given thee, but thou sleepest and seest it not: Therefore the Lord will give thee a sign in his zeal or jealousy, which thou hast awakened and provoked with thy sins.

Of the whole Heavenly Delightfulness and Habitation of all the Three Kingdoms of Angels.

75. Here the spirit sheweth that where every angel is constituted, stated or settled, there that place in the heavenly nature, wherein and out of which he is become a creature, is his own seat, which he possesseth by right of nature, as long as he abideth in God's love.

76. For it is the place which he hath had from eternity, before he was become a creature, and that Salitter stood in the same place out of which he existed, and therefore that seat remaineth to him, and is his by right of nature, as long as he moveth in God's love.

77. But thou must not think as if God were tied to it, and cannot or may not expel him from thence, if he should move or stir otherwise than God had created, settled or stated him at first.

78. For as long as he abideth in obedience and in love, the place is his, by right of nature; but when he exhalteth himself and kindleth that place in the wrathful fire, then he sets his Father's house on fire, and becomes a contrary will, or opposite to [against] the place out of which he is made, and maketh TWO out of that which was ONE before his exhaltation.

79. Now when he doth so, then he keeps his corporeal right of nature to himself, and that place also keepeth its own to itself: But seeing the creature, which hath a beginning, will oppose or set itself against the first being, which was before the creature was, and which had no beginning, and will needs spoil the place which is none of its making, wherein it was created a creature in the love, and will turn that love into a wrathfire, then it is only fair that the love should spew up the wrath-fire forth, together with the creature.

80. From hence also the RIGHTS [Laws] in this world exist, or have their original. For when a son resisteth his father, and striketh his father, then he loseth his paternal inheritance, and his father may thrust him out of his house; but so long as he continueth in obedience to his father, the father hath no right, authority or lawful power to disinherit him.

81. This worldly Right taketh its original from heaven; as also many other worldly rights, which are written in the books of Moses, take their beginning and original from the divine nature in heaven, which I shall demonstrate plainly in its due place, from the true ground in the Deity. Now one might object and say:

Objection.
Then an angel is fully bound and tied to that place in which he is created, and must not stir, nor can stir from thence.

Answer.
82. No: As little as the spirits of God are or will be tied in their rising up, that they should not move one among another, so little also are the angels quite [entirely] bound to their place.

83. For as the spirits of God rise up continually one in another, and have a sport or game of love in their birth or geniture, and yet every spirit keepeth his natural seat or place in the birth or geniture of God; wherein it never cometh to pass that the heat is changed into the cold, or the cold into the heat, but each keepeth its natural place or position, and the one riseth up in the other, from whence the life hath its original.

84. So the holy angels move, walk or converse in all the three kingdoms, one among another, whereby they conceive or receive their conceptions, one from the other; that is, from the other’s beauty, comely form, friendliness, courtesy and virtue every one receives his highest joy, and yet each keepeth for his own propriety his natural seat or place in which he is become a creature.

85. Like one in this world, when he hath a dear and near kinsman, who returns home from foreign parts of the world, whom he had a very hearty desire and earnest longing to see, there is joy and friendly saluting, and bidding welcome, also a friendly loving discourse or conference between them, and so he treateth this loving and welcome guest in the best manner that he can; yet this is but cold water, in respect of the heavenly.

86. Thus the holy angels do one towards another; when the army or company of one kingdom cometh to the other, or when the army or company of one princely quality cometh to an army or company of another princely quality, there is nothing but mere loving * entertainment, saluting and embracing reception; a very gracious, amiable and blessed discourse and friendly respect; a very gracious, amiable, blessed and loving walking and playing together; a most chaste and humble exercise; a friendly kissing, and leading one another up and down: here beginneth the lovely choir and set dancing.
* "nothing but mere loving," etc., lit., "nothing but pure love reception [or conception], gracious discourse and friendly deference; blessed intercourse, chaste and humble behaviour, friendly kissing and escorting [or leading], and here beginneth the lovely round dance."

87. Like little children, when they go in May among the flowers, where many often meet together; there they have a friendly talk, and pluck or gather flowers many and diverse.

88. Now when this is done, they carry those flowers in their hands, and begin a merry round dance, and sing from the joy of their hearts, and rejoice. Thus also do the angels in heaven, when the foreign armies or companies meet together.

89. For the corrupted nature in this world labours in its utmost power and diligence, that it might bring forth heavenly forms, and many times little children might be their parents' school-masters and teachers, if parents could but understand, or would but take notice of them: But nowadays the corruption is unfortunately with both young and old, and the proverb is verified,

Wie die Alten sungen,
so lerneten die Jungen.

As the old ones sing,
So th' young learn to ring.

90. By this high humility of the angels the spirit admonisheth the children of this world, that they should view and examine themselves, whether they bear such a love one to another. Whether there be such humility among them. What kind of angels do they think they are. And whether they are like to these or no: They have [or possess] the third angelical kingdom within themselves.

91. Behold, the spirit will here present a little before thy eyes what manner of love, humility and courteous friendliness there is in thee, thou fair angelical bride; behold, I pray thee, thy fair attire, What great joy may thy bridegroom take in thee, thou beloved angel, that dancest daily with the devil!

I.

92. First, If one be nowadays a little preferred or advanced, and getteth but a little while into an office, then others, that are in no preferment, are no more so good as he, or fit for his company he counteth the vulgar or layman his footstool, he instantly endeavoureth by cunning and craft to get the vulgar or layman's goods under his disposal; if he cannot compass it by tricks and designs, then he doth it by force, to satisfy his highmindedness.

93. If a simple man, that cannot place his words handsomely, cometh before him, then he taketh him up short, as if he were a dog; and if the man hath any business before him, then, in his eyes, only those of worldly esteem are in the right, and he lets them carry the cause, right or wrong: Take heed, Friend, what manner of princely angel indeed thou art; thou wilt find it well enough in the following chapter, concerning the fall of the devil; that will be thy looking-glass in which to see thyself.

II.

94. Secondly, If one nowadays hath learnt more in worldly sciences, or studied more than the vulgar or layman, in an instant no vulgar or layman is to be compared to him, because he [the layman] cannot express himself or speak according to art; nor [or, neither can he] follow the other's proud ways.

95. In brief, the simple plain man must be his fool, whereas he himself is indeed a proud angel, and is in his love but a dead man. This sort of party also will have its looking-glass in the following chapter.

III.

96. Thirdly, If one be richer nowadays than the other, then the poorer man is counted the fool; and if he can wear but better and more fashionable clothes or apparel than his neighbour, then the poorer man is no more worthy, or good enough to be in his company.

97. And so the old song is nowadays in full force and practice, which is this:

Der Reich den Armen zwinget,
Und ihm sein Schweisz abdringet, Dasz nur sein Grosche Klinget.

The rich man doth constrain the poor,
And squeezeth out his sweat so sore,
That's own great wealth abroad may roar.

These angels also are invited as guests to the next chapter for their looking-glass in which to see themselves.

IV.

98. Fourthly, There is for the generality such a devilish pride and stateliness, and such overtopping one another, such despising, belying, entrapping, circumventing, over-reaching, cheating, deceiving, betraying, extorting usury, coveting, envying, and hating one another, that the world burneth now as in the hellish fire: Woe, woe for ever!

99. O world, where is thy humility? Where is thy angelical love? Where is thy courteous friendliness? At that very instant when the mouth saith, God save thee! the heart thinks, Yes, beware.

100. O thou excellent angelical kingdom, how comely dressed and adorned wert thou once? How hath the devil turned thee into a murderous den? Dost thou suppose thou standest now in the flower of thy beauty and glory? No! thou standest in the midst of hell: If thine eyes were but opened, thou wouldst see it.

101. Or dost thou think that the spirit is drunken, and doth not see thee? O, it seeth thee very well: Thy shame standeth quite naked before God, thou art an unchaste, wanton, lascivious woman, and goest a whoring day and night, and yet thou sayest, I am a chaste virgin.

102. O, how fair a looking-glass art thou, in the presence of the holy angels; do but smell thy sweet love and humility, doth it not smell or savour just like hell? All these parties are invited as guests to the following chapters.

Of the Kingly Primacy, or of the Power and Authority of the Three Angelical Kings.

103. As the Deity in its being is threefold, in that the efflux out of the seven spirits of God sheweth and generateth itself as threefold, viz. Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God; wherein the whole divine power consisteth, and all whatsoever is therein; and they are the three Persons in the Deity, and yet are not a divisible being or essence, but in one another as one:

104. So also, when God moved himself and created the angels, there came to be three special angels out of the best kernel of nature, out of the being of the Ternary in the nature of God, and in such power, authority and might, as hath the Ternary in the seven spirits of God; for the Ternary of God riseth up in the seven spirits of God, and is again the life and heart of all the seven spirits.

105. Thus also are the three angelical kings risen up, each in the nature of his host or place, and a natural lord of his place over the government of his angels; but the Ternary of the Deity retaineth to itself that place which is unalterable or unchangeable; and the king retaineth the dominion of the angels.

106. Now, as the Ternary of the Deity is one only being or substance in all parts in the whole Father, and is united together, as the members in man's body, and all places are as one place, though one place may have a different function from the others, as also the members of men have; yet it is the one body of God:

107. So also are the three angelical kingdoms united one in another, and not each severed asunder: No angelical king ought to say, This is my kingdom; or that there ought no other king to come thereinto; though indeed it is his first beginning, original and natural inheritance, and remaineth also to be his: Yet all other kings and angels are his true natural brothers, generated out of or from one Father, and do inherit their Father's kingdom.
108. As the qualifying or fountain spirits of God have each of them the natural seat or possession of its birth or geniture, and retaineth its natural place to itself, and yet is, together with the other spirits, the one only God; so that if the other were not, that would not be either, and thus also they rise up one in the other:

109. So it is also with the chief or principal of the holy angels in his constitution; and is in no other manner than as it is in God; and therefore they live all friendly, peaceably and blessedly one with another in their Father's kingdom, as loving dear brethren; there are no bounds or bars how far any should go, and how far not.

Question.
Now the simple might ask, Upon what do the angels walk? Or upon what do they stay or set their feet?

Answer.
110. I will here shew thee the right ground, and it is no otherwise in heaven than as thou here findest in the letter, for the spirit looketh undisturbed into this depth, also it is very apprehensible.

111. The whole nature * of the heaven standeth in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, and in the seventh consisteth nature or the apprehensibility of all the qualities: This now is very lightsome and solid  as a cloud, but very transparent and shining, like a chrystalline sea, so that a man can see through and through it all: Yet the whole depth upward and downward is wholly thus.

* "The whole nature," etc., lit., "The whole [universal] nature of the heavens consisteth in the virtue of the seven fountain-spirits, and in the seventh is (bestehet) nature or the apprehensibility (Begreiflichkeit) of all the qualities." The word "Begreiflichkeit" may be translated "intelligibility" and "palpability."

 "lightsome and solid" (lichte und dicke), "light [loose, open, like transparent material] and thick [in the sense of a certain degree of density, but not in the sense of solidity]."

112. Now the angels also have such bodies, but more dry and close compacted or incorporated together, and their body also is the kernel of or out of nature, even the best or fairest splendour and brightness of or out of nature.

113. Now their foot doth stay upon the seventh spirit of God, which is solid * like a cloud, and clear and bright as a chrystalline sea, wherein they walk upward and downward, which way soever they please. For their agility or nimbleness is as swift as the divine power itself, yet one angel is more swift than another, and that according to the quality of each.

* "solid" (dicke). See par. 111 above.

114. In that seventh spirit of nature rise up also the heavenly fruits and colours, and whatsoever is apprehensible or comprehensible, and is like to such a form [Text: Forms] or manner as if the angels did dwell between heaven and earth in the deep, where they ascend and descend, and wherever they are, there their foot resteth, as if it stood upon the earth.

115. Antiquity hath represented the angels in pictures like men with wings, but they have no need of any wings, yet they have hands and feet as men have, but after a heavenly manner and kind.

116. At the day of the resurrection from the dead there will be no difference between the angels and men, they will be of one and the same kind of form; which I shall shew plainly in its due place; and our King JESUS CHRIST clearly testifieth the same, where he saith [Matt. xxii. 30], In the resurrection they are like the angels of God.

Of the great Glory, Brightness and Beauty of the Three Angelical Kings.

117. This is the very cudgel or club which is flung at the dog, to make him run away; because of this song lord Lucifer could tear off his beard with regret [and vexation].

Observe here the Depth.

Concerning the King or great Prince MICHAEL.

118. MICHAEL signifieth the great strength or power of God, and beareth the name operatively, actually and in deed: For he is incorporated or consolidated together out of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, as out of a kernel or seed of them, and standeth here now as in the stead of God the Father.

119. The meaning is not that he is God the Father, who consisteth in the seven spirits of the whole deep, and is not creaturely; but the meaning is, that in nature among the creatures there is also such a kind of creature, who is to reign among the creatures, who is like God the Father, as he is in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits.

119a. For when God made himself creaturely, then he made himself creaturely according to his Ternary: and as in God the Ternary is the greatest and chiefest, and yet his wonderful proportion, form and variety cannot be measured, in that he sheweth himself in his operation so various and manifold; so also hath he created three principal angel-princes, according to the highest primacy of his Ternary.

120. In accordance with that he created the princely-angels, according to the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, answerable to their quality, viz. GABRIEL, an angel or prince of the tone or sound, or of swift or speedy messages; as also RAPHAEL; and others besides in the kingdom of MICHAEL.

121. Thou must not understand this, as if these royal angels were to rule in the Deity, that is, in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of God, which are without or distinct from the creatures; no, but each over his creatures, or the creatures of his own dominion.

122. For as the Ternary of God reigneth over the infinite or endless being, and over the figures and several various forms or ideas in the Deity, and changeth, varieth and imageth or frameth the same:

123. So also are the three angelical kings lords over their angels, even to the heart and deepest ground, though they cannot corporeally or bodily vary or change themselves, as God himself can who hath created them; yet they rule them (viz. the angels) corporeally, and are bound or united to them, as body and soul are bound the one to the other.

124. For the king is their head, and they are the members of the king; and the qualifying [facultating, potentiating] or fountain princely angels are the king's counsellors, or officers [instruments in employment] in his affairs, like the five senses in man, or as the hands and feet, or the mouth, nostrils, eyes and ears, whereby the king
125. Now as all angels are bound to the king, so is the king also bound to God his Creator, as body and soul; the body signifieth God; and the soul signifieth the angelical king, who is in the body of God, and is become a creature in the body of God, and abideth eternally in the body of God, as the soul doth in its nest. And therefore also hath God so highly glorified him, as his own propriety, or as the soul is glorified in the body.

126. Thus the king or great prince Michael looks like God the Father in his glorification, clarity or brightness, and is a king and prince of God upon the mount of God, and hath his office in the deep wherein he is created.

127. That circumference or space, region or province, wherein he and his angels are created, is his kingdom, and he is a loving son of God the Father in nature, a creaturely son, in whom the Father delighteth.

128. Thou must not compare him with the Heart or light of God, which is in the whole Father, which has neither beginning nor end, no more than hath God the Father himself.

129. For this prince is a creature, and hath a beginning, but he is in God the Father, and is bound and united with him in his love, as his dearly beloved son, whom he hath created out of himself.

130. Therefore he hath set upon him the crown of honour, of might, power and authority, so that there is in heaven no higher nor more excellent nor mightier than he is, except God himself in his Ternary. And this is one king, rightly described, with a true ground in the knowledge of the spirit.

Of the second King LUCIFER, now so called, because of his Fall.

131. King LUCIFER, shut thy eyes here a little, and stop thy ears a little, that thou mayest neither hear nor see, or else thou wilt be horribly ashamed that another sitteth upon thy seat, and so thy shame shall be fully discovered yet before the end of the world, which thou hast kept so closely concealed in secret, and suppressed ever since the beginning of the world, wheresoever thou couldst: I will now describe thy kingly primacy, not for thee, but for the benefit of man.

132. This high and mighty, glorious and beautiful king, lost his right name in his fall: For he is now called LUCIFER, that is, one carried forth or expelled out of the light of God.

133. His name was not so at the beginning: for he was a creaturely prince or king of the heart of God in the bright light, even the brightest among the three kings of angels.

Of his Creation.

134. As Michael is created according to the quality, manner and property of God the Father, so was Lucifer created according to the quality, condition and beauty of God the Son, and was bound to and united with him in love, as a dear son or heart, and his heart also stood in the centre of light, as if he had been God himself; and his beauty or brightness transcended all.

135. For his circumference, conception or chief mother, was the Son of God, and there he stood as a king or prince of God.
136. His court, province, place, region or quarters, wherein he dwelt with his whole army or company, and wherein he is become a creature, and which was his kingdom, is the created heaven and this world, wherein we dwell with our King JESUS CHRIST.

137. For our King sitteth in divine omnipotence, where king Lucifer sat, and on the kingly throne of expelled Lucifer, and the kingdom of king Lucifer is now become HIS: O prince Lucifer, how dost thou relish that?

138. Now as God the Father is bound and united in great love with his Son, so was king Lucifer also bound with king Michael in great love, as one heart or one God, for the fountain or well-spring of the Son of God hath reached even into the heart of Lucifer.

139. Only, the light which he had in his body, he had for his own propriety, and while it shone with or agreeable to the light of the Son of God, which was externally without or distinct from him, they both qualified, incorporated and united together as one thing, though they were two, yet they were bound or united together, as body and soul.

140. And as the light of God reigneth in all the powers of the Father, so he also reigned in all his angels, as a mighty king of God, and wore on his head the fairest crown of heaven.

141. Here at present I will leave him a little scope, because I shall have so much to do concerning him in the next chapter. Let him make a show a little yet here in the crown, it shall suddenly be plucked away from him.
Of the third Angelical King, called URIEL.

142. This gracious, amiable, blessed prince and king hath his name from the light, or from the flash or going forth of the light, which signifieth rightly God the Holy Ghost.

143. For as the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the light, and formeth, figureth and imageth all, and reigneth in all, such also is the power and gracious, amiable blessedness of a Cherubim, who is the king and heart of all his angels; that is, when his angels do but behold him they are all then infected and touched with the will of their king.

144. For as the will of the heart infects and stirs all the members of the body, so that the whole body doth as the heart hath decreed or concluded; or as the Holy Ghost riseth up in the centre of the heart, and enlighteneth all the members in the whole body; so the Cherubim with his whole glance or lustre and will infects all his angels, so that they all are together as one body, and the king is the heart therein.

145. Now this glorious and beautiful prince is imaged and framed according to the kind and quality of the Holy Ghost, and is indeed a glorious and fair prince of God, and is united with the other princes in love, as one heart.

146. These are now the three princes of God in the heaven. And when the flash of life, that is, the Son of God, riseth up in the middle or central circle in the qualifying or fountain spirits of God, and sheweth itself triumphantly, then the Holy Ghost also riseth upwards triumphantly: In this rising up the Holy Trinity also riseth up in the heart of these three kings, and each of them triumpheth also according to his kind and quality.

147. In this rising up the armies or companies of all the angels of the whole heaven become triumphant and joyful, and that melodious TE DEUM LAUDAMUS (WE PRAISE THEE O GOD) riseth up.

148. In this rising up of the heart, the Mercurius in the heart is stirred up or awakened, as also in the whole Salitter of heaven there riseth up in the Deity the miraculous, wonderful and fair beautiful imaging of heaven, in several manifold various colours and manners, and each spirit presenteth itself in its own peculiar form.

149.* I can compare this to nothing, except to the finest of precious stones, such as the ruby, the emerald, the topaz, the onyx, the sapphire, the diamond, the jasper, the jacinth, the amethyst, the beryl, the sardonyx, the carbuncle and the like.

* A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow's rendering.

150. In such manner and colours the heaven of God's nature sheweth or presenteth itself in the rising up of the spirits of God: Now when the light of the Son of God shineth therein, then it is like a bright clear sea of the colours of the above-mentioned precious stones or jewels.

Of the wonderful Proportion, Alteration or Variation, and Rising up of the Qualities in the heavenly Nature.

151. Seeing then the spirit bringeth into knowledge the form and manner of heaven, I cannot choose but write it thus down, and let his will be done, who will have it so.

152. Although the devil will raise scorners and mockers to vilify it, I do not much regard that; I am satisfied with this gracious, amiable and blessed revelation of God; they may mock so long till they find it by experience with eternal shame, then the fountain of remorse or shame will surely gnaw them.

153. Also I have not gone up to heaven, and beheld it with my fleshly eyes, much less hath any told it me; for though an angel should come and tell it me, yet I could not apprehend or conceive it without enlightenment from God, much less believe it.

154. For I should always stand in doubt, whether it were a good angel sent of God or no, seeing the devil can transform or clothe himself in the form of an angel of light, to seduce men. [2 Cor. xi. 14.]

155. But because it is generated in the centre or circle of life, as a bright shining light, like unto the heavenly birth or rising up of the Holy Ghost, with a fiery driving or impulse of the spirit, therefore I cannot resist or withstand it, though the world always make a mock of me for it.

156. The spirit testifieth that there is yet a very little time remaining, and then the flash in the whole circle of this world will rise up, to which end this spirit is a forerunner, Messenger and proclaimer of the day.

157. Then whatsoever man is not found in the birth of the Holy Ghost at that time, in him the birth will never rise at all, but he abideth in the quality or source of darkness, as a dead, hard flint-stone, in which the source or quality of fierceness, wrath and corruption riseth up eternally.

158. There he will be a mocker eternally in the birth of the hellish abomination: for whatsoever quality the tree is of, such also is its fruit.

159. Thou livest between heaven and hell, into whichever thou sowest, in that thou shalt reap also, and that will be thy food in eternity: If thou sowest scorn and contempt, thou wilt also reap scorn and contempt, and that will be thy food.

160. Therefore, O Child of man! have a care, trust not too much upon worldly wisdom, it is blind, and is born blind; but when the flash of life is generated therein, then it is no more blind, but seeth.

161. For Christ saith [John iii. 3,7], "You must be born anew, or else you cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven."

162. Truly it must be generated in such a manner in the Holy Ghost: which riseth up in the sweet spring or fountain-water of the heart, in the flash.

163. Therefore hath Christ ordained or instituted the Baptism or New Birth or Regeneration of the Holy Ghost, in the water, because the birth of the light riseth up in the sweet water in the heart.

164. Which is a very great Mystery, and hath been also kept secret from all men since the beginning of the world till now: which I will demonstrate and describe plainly in its due place.
Now observe the Form and Posture of Heaven.

165. When thou beholdest this world thou hast a type of heaven.
I. The stars signify or denote the angels: for as the stars must continue unaltered till the end of this time, so the angels also in the eternal time of heaven must remain unaltered for ever.

166. II. The elements signify or denote the wonderful proportion, variety, change and alteration of the form and posture of heaven: For as the deep * between the stars and earth always alter and change in their form, suddenly it is fair, bright and light, suddenly it is lowery and dark, now wind, then rain, now snow, suddenly the deep is blue or azure, suddenly greenish, by and by whitish, then suddenly again dusky.

* " For as the deep," etc. Or, " For as the deep between the stars and the earth always changeth in its form, being now fair and bright, now dull [or dark]; now [there is] wind, now rain, now snow; now is the deep azure, now greenish, now whitish, or again dark."

167. Thus also is the change and alteration of heaven into many several colours and forms, but not in such a manner and kind as in this world, but all according to the rising up of the spirits of God, and the light of the Son of God shineth therein eternally: But the rising up in the birth differs in the degrees more at one time than at another. Therefore the wonderful wisdom of God is incomprehensible.

168. III. The earth signifieth or denoteth the heavenly nature, or the seventh spirit of nature, in which the ideas or images, forms and colours rise up.
169. IV. The birds or fowls, fishes and beasts, signify and denote the several forms or shapes of figures in heaven.

170. Thou art to know this, for the spirit in the flash testifieth the same, that in heaven there arise all manner of figures or shapes like the beasts, fowls, birds and fishes of this world, but in a heavenly form or manner, clarity or brightness and kind, as also all manner of trees, plants and flowers.

171. But as they rise, so they go away again, for they are not incorporated or compacted together, as the angels are: for these figures are so formed in the birth of the rising qualities, in the spirit of nature or nature-spirit.

172. If a figure be imaged in a spirit, so that it subsisteth; and if another spirit wrestleth with this, and gets the better, then it comes to be divided, and indeed changed or altered, all according to the kind of the qualities; and this is in God as a holy sport, play or scene.

173. Therefore also the creatures, as beasts, fowls or birds, fishes and worms in this world, are not created to an eternal being, but to a transitory one, as the figures in heaven also pass away.

174. This I set down here only for a manuduction or introduction: You will find it described more at large concerning the creation of this world.
THE THIRTEENTH CHAPTER

Of the terrible, doleful, and lamentable, miserable
Fall of the Kingdom of Lucifer.

1. IT WOULD have all proud, covetous, envious and wrathful men invited to look into this glass, and there they will see the original of their pride, covetousness, envy and wrath, also the issue and final requital or wages thereof.

2. The learned have produced many and various monsters concerning the beginning of sin, and original of the devil, and scuffled one with another about it; every one of them thought he had the axe by the handle, yet it continued hidden from them all till this very time.

3. But since it will henceforth be fully revealed, as in a clear looking-glass, therefore it may well be supposed or expected that the great day of the revelation of God is now near at hand, wherein the fierceness and the kindled fire will be separated from the light.

4. Therefore let none make himself stark blind, for the time of the restitution of whatsoever man hath lost is now near at hand: the day dawneth, or the morning-redness breaketh forth; it is high time to awake from sleep.

Question.
Now it may be asked, What is this source or fountain of the first sin of Lucifer's kingdom?

Answer.
5. Here we must again take in hand the highest depth of the Deity, and see out of what king Lucifer became a creature, or what was the first source or fountain of evil or malice in him.

6. The devil and his crew continually excuse themselves, and so do all wicked men who are begotten in corruption, saying, God doth them wrong in thrusting them out or rejecting them.

7. Nay, this present world doth dare to say that God hath decreed or concluded it so in his predestinate purpose and council that some men should be saved, and some should be damned; and they say, to that end also God hath rejected prince Lucifer, that he should be a spectacle of God's wrath.

8. As if hell, or malice and evil, had been from eternity, and that it was in God's predestinate purpose that creatures should and must be therein; and so they pull and hale and bestir themselves to prove it by Scripture, though indeed they have neither the knowledge of the true God, nor the understanding of the Scriptures, though also some erroneous things are brewed from the Scriptures.

9. Christ saith, The devil was a Murderer [John viii. 44] and liar from the beginning, and did not stand in the truth. But seeing these justifiers and disputers assist the devil so steadfastly, and pervert God's truth, and change it into lies, in that they make of God a thirsty and fierce wrathful devil, and such a one as hath created and still willeth evil, so all of them, together with the devil, are jointly murderers and liars.

10. For as the devil is the founder and father of hell and damnation, and hath himself built and prepared for himself the hellish quality to be his royal seat, so also such writers and scribblers are the master-builders of lies and damnation, who help to confirm and establish the devil's lies, and to make of the merciful, loving and friendly God, a murderer and furious destroyer, and so pervert and turn the truth of God into lies.

11. For God saith in the Prophet [Ezek. xxxiii. 11],
As true as I live, I have no delight or pleasure in the death of a sinner, but that he turn and live; and in the Psalms it is thus [Psalm v. 4.], Thou art not a God that hast pleasure in wickedness,

12. Besides, God hath given laws to man, and hath forbidden the evil, and commanded the good. Now if God would have the evil, and also the good, then he would be at odds with himself, and it would follow that there would be destruction or destructiveness in the Deity, one quality running counter against the other, and the one spoiling and corrupting the other.

13. Now how all this is come to pass, or how wickedness hath taken its first source, original and beginning, I will declare in the highest simplicity in the greatest depth.

14. To which end the spirit inviteth and citeth, summoneth or warneth all men that are seduced into errors by the devil, that they come and present themselves before the looking-glass of this school, wherein they shall see and inspect the murderous devil, even into his very heart.

15. Then he that will not take heed and beware of his lies, whilst he may very well do it, there is no remedy for him neither here nor hereafter: he that soweth and will sow with the devil, must reap with the devil also.

16. In the centre of the flash it is shewn that the harvest is white already, wherein every one will reap what he hath sown.
17. Here, my entrusted talent, which I have received, I will let out for interest, profit and increase, as I am commanded to do, and he that will deal with me * in this way of gain or usury, it shall be free for him, he may freely do it, whether he be a Christian, a Jew, a Turk or a Heathen; it is all the same to me; my warehouse shall stand open for every one, none shall be tricked or deceived, but shall be dealt with in all fairness.

* "deal with me," etc., lit., "deal with me and make the best of it [i.e. of the talent]."

18. Every one should here have a care to deal so well that he bring in some gain of use-money for his Master: for I am afraid that not every merchant will be fitted to deal with my wares; for to some they will be very strange and uncouth; neither will every one understand my language.

19. I would therefore have every one warned that he deal circumspectly and warily, and not be conceited that he is rich, and cannot grow poor; truly I have very admirable and wonderful wares to sell, every one will not have understanding and skill to know what to do with them.

20. Now if any one should in drunkenness or fulness * fall upon them, and plunge himself into perdition, let him bear his own blame; he hath need of a light in his heart, that his understanding and mind may be well governed.

* " in drunkenness or fulness " (in seiner vollen Weise), " as if in drunkenness [i.e. in the fulness of self-satisfaction]."

21. Else let him forbear to come into my warehouse, or he will but deceive his own expectation; for the ware which I have to sell is very precious and dear, and requireth a very sharp and acute understanding: Therefore have a care, and do not climb aloft where you see no ladder is, else you will fall.

22. But to me is shewn the ladder of Jacob, upon which I am climbed up, even into heaven, and have received my ware, to offer for sale: Therefore if any one will climbe up after me, let him take heed that he be not drunken, but he must be girt with the sword of the spirit.

23. For he must climbe through a horrible deep, a giddiness will frequently come into his head; and besides, he must climbe through the midst or centre of the kingdom of hell, and there he will feel by experience what a deal of scoffings and upbraidings he must endure.

24. In this combat I had many hard trials to my heart's grief: My sun was often eclipsed or extinguished, but did rise again; and the oftener it was eclipsed or put out, the brighter and clearer was its rising again.

25. I do not write this for my own praise, but that if it go so with you, you should not despair about it; for there belongeth and is requisite a mighty enduring hard labour and stoutness, for him that fighteth with the devil, between heaven and hell; for the devil is a potent prince.

26. Therefore have a care that thou put on the 1 corslet or coat of mail or habergeon [breast-plate] of the spirit, else do venture to come near my warehouse, or thou wilt deal wrongfully [evilly] with my wares.

27. Thou must renounce the devil and the world, if thou wilt enter into this fight, else thou wilt not overcome: But if thou overcomest not, then let my book alone, and meddle not with it, but stick to thy old matters, else thou wilt receive but evil wages for thy pains: Be not deceived, God will not be mocked.[Gal vi. 7.]

28. Truly it is a narrow and strait passage or entrance, through the gates of hell, for them that will press in to God; they must endure many pangs, crushings and squeezings from the devil.

29. For the human flesh is very young and tender, and the devil is rough and hard, also dark, hot, bitter, astringent and cold, and so these two are very ill matched.

30. Therefore I seriously exhort the Reader, and would have him faithfully warned, as it were with a Preface to this great Mystery, that if he do not understand it, and yet longeth and would fain have the meaning or understanding thereof, that he would pray to God for his Holy Spirit, and that he would enlighten him with the same.

31. For without the illumination thereof you will not understand this Mystery; for there is a strong lock and bar before it in the spirit of man, that must be first unlocked or opened; and that, no man can do, for the Holy Ghost is the only key to do it withal.

32. Therefore if thou wilt have an open gate into the Deity, then thou must move, stir and walk in God's love; this I have set down here for thy consideration.

Now observe:

33. Every angel is created in the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit [or faculty], which is NATURE, out of which his body is compacted or incorporated together, and his body is given him for a propriety, and the same is free to itself, as the whole Deity is free.

34. He hath no impulse or driving, without or distinct from himself; his impulse and mobility standeth in his body, which is of such a kind and manner as the whole God is; and his light and knowledge, as also his life, is generated in that manner as the whole divine being is generated.

35. For the body is the incorporated or compacted spirit of nature, and encompasseth or encloseth the other six spirits; these generate themselves in the body, just as it is in the Deity.

36. Now Lucifer had the fairest, most beautiful and most powerful body in heaven, of or among all the princes of God, and his light, which he hath, and which is continually generated in his body, that [light] hath incorporated itself with the Heart or Son of God, as if they were one thing.

37. But when he saw that he was so fair and beautiful, and found or felt his inward birth and great power or authority, then his spirit, which he had generated in his body, and which is his ANIMAL (or animated) or life-spirit, or son or heart, exalted itself, intending to triumph over the divine birth, and to lift up or extol itself above the Heart of God.

[Note, The author calls the soulish birth the ANIMAL birth, from anima, which signifieth the soul; but seeing the Scripture otherwise understandeth by the word animal the perished or corrupted soul, or animalem hominem, the animal man, or the corrupted natural man, that is, the Adamical bestial man, and so he being advertised of it, he altered that expression, and used it no more any further.] *
* The Note is printed by Gichtel in the 1682 edition, and is reproduced as a footnote by Schiebler. In the editions of 1715 and 1730 it is absent; but whenever the expression "animal spirit" occurs in the text, in this particular sense, it is invariably printed "animalischer (seelischer) Geist." See Ch. 15, pars. 42-49. In par. 42 Bohme himself has added a note on the meaning of this term.

Here observe the Depth.

38. In the middle or central fountain or wellspring, which is the heart, where the birth riseth up, the astringent or harsh quality rubs itself with the bitter and the hot; and there the light kindleth, which is the son, and of the son the light is always impregnated in its body, and that enlighteneth and maketh it living.

39. Now that light in Lucifer was so fair, bright and beautiful, that he excelled the bright form of heaven, and in that light was perfect understanding; for all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits generate that same light.

40. But now the seven qualifying or fountain spirits are the father of the light, and may permit or suffer the birth of as much light as they please; and the light cannot exalt or raise itself higher than the qualifying or fountain spirits will permit or give it leave.

41. But when the light is generated, then it enlighteneth all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, so that all seven are [become] understanding, and all seven do give their will to the birth of the light.

42. But now, every one hath power and might to alter its will in the birth of the light, according as there is need: Now if that be so, then the spirit cannot triumph thus, but must lay down its splendour.

43. Therefore it is that all seven spirits are in full power, every one of them hath the reins in its hand, that it may hold in and check the generated spirit from triumphing any higher than is fit for it.

44. But the seven spirits, which are in an angel, and which generate the light and understanding, are bound and united with the whole God, that they should not qualify any other way, either higher or more vehemently, than God himself; but that there should be one and the same manner and way between them both.

45. Seeing they are but a part or piece of the whole, and not the whole itself, for God hath therefore created them out of himself, that they should qualify, operate or act in such a manner, form and way as God himself doth.

46. But now the qualifying or fountain spirits in Lucifer did not so; but they, seeing that they sat in the highest primacy or rank, moved themselves so hard and strongly that the spirit which they generated was very fiery, and climbed up in the fountain of the heart, like a proud damsel or virgin.

47. If the qualifying or fountain spirits had moved, qualified or acted gently and lovely, as they did before they became creaturely (as they were universally in God, before the creation), then had they generated also a gentle, lovely, mild and meek son in themselves, which would have been like to the Son of God; and then the light in Lucifer and the light of the Son of God had been one thing, one qualifying, operating, acting and affecting, one and the same lovely kissing, embracing and struggling.

48. For the great light, which is the Heart of God, would have played meekly, mildly and lovingly with the small light in Lucifer, as with a young son, for the little son in Lucifer should have been the dear little brother of the Heart of God.

49. To this end God the Father hath created the angels, that as he is manifold and various in his qualities, and in his alteration or variegation * is incomprehensible in his love-play, so the little spirits also, or the little lights of the angels, which are as the Son of God, should play or sport very gently or lovely in the great light before the Heart of God, that the joy in the Heart of God might here be increased, and that so there might be a holy sport, scene or play in God.

* " alteration or variegation " (Veränderung), " transformation," i.e. power of transformation.

50. The seven spirits of nature in an angel should play and rise up gently in God their Father, as they had done before their creaturely being, and rejoice in their new-born son, which they have generated out of themselves, which is the light and understanding of their body.

51. That light should rise very gently or mildly in the Heart of God, and rejoice in the light of God, as a child with its mother; and so there should be a hearty loving and friendly kissing, a very meek and pleasant taste or relish.

52. In this the tone should rise up and sound, with singing and ringing forth, in praising and jubilating: also all the qualities should rejoice therein, and every spirit should exercise or practise its divine work or labour, as God the Father himself doth.

53. For the seven spirits had this in perfect knowledge, for they were united and actuated with God the Father, so that they could all see, feel, taste, smell and hear what God their Father did, or wrought and made.

54. But when they elevated themselves in a sharp or strong kindling, then they did against nature's right otherwise than God their Father did, and this was a stirring quality or rising up against or contrary to the whole Deity.

55. For they kindled the Salitter of the body, and generated a high triumphing son, which in the astringent quality was hard, rugged or rough, dark and cold, and in the sweet was burning, bitter and fiery; the tone was a hard fiery noise; the love was a lofty enmity against God.

56. Here now stood the kindled bride in the seventh nature-spirit, like a proud beast; now she supposed she was beyond or above God, nothing was like her now: Love grew cold, the Heart of God could not touch it, for there was a contrary will or opposition between them. The Heart of God moved very meekly and lovingly, and the heart of the angel moved very darkly, hard, cold and fiery.

57. The Heart of God should now unite and qualify with the heart of the angel, but that could not be; for there was now hard against soft, and sour against sweet, and dark against light, and fire against a pleasant gentle warmth, and a hard knocking * or rumbling against a loving melodious song.
* "hard knocking" (Pochen). See Ch. 10, par. 119.

Question.

Hearken, Lucifer, Where lieth the fault now, that thou art become a devil? Is God in fault, as thou lyingly sayest?

Answer.

58. O no, thou thyself art faulty, the qualifying or fountain spirits in thy body, which thou thyself art, have generated thee such a little son: Thou canst not say that God hath kindled the Salitter out of which he made thee, but thy qualifying or fountain spirits have done it; whereas thou wert clearly before a prince and a king of God.

59. Therefore, when thou sayest God created thee thus, or that he hath without sufficient cause spewed thee up out of thy place, then art thou a liar and murderer; for the whole heavenly host or army beareth witness against thee, that thou hast thyself erected and prepared this fierce quality for thyself.

60. If it be not so, then go before the face of God, and justify thyself. But thou seest it plain enough without that; and besides, thou darest not look on that matter: Wouldst not thou fain have a friendly kiss of the Son of God, that thou mightest once be eased or refreshed? If thou art in the right, then do but once look upon HIM: Perhaps thou mayest be made sound or whole again.

61. But stay a little, another sitteth on thy throne, he is kissed, and he is an obedient son to his Father, and doth as the Father doth.

62. Stay yet a little while, and the hellish fire will kiss thee; in the meanwhile make much of this Latin, till more groweth out of it; thou wilt suddenly lose thy crown. Now one might ask, What then, in Lucifer, is properly that Enmity against God, for which he was thrust and driven out of his Place?

63. Here I will shew you exactly the pith, kernel and heart of Lucifer, and then you will see what a devil is, or how he is become a devil. Therefore take heed, and do not invite or entertain him as a guest, for he is the arch-sworn enemy of God, and of all angels and men, and that in his eternity.

64. Now if thou understandest and apprehendest this aright, then thou wilt not make of God a devil, as some do, who say, God hath created the evil, and that his will is that some men should be lost; which men, that say so, help to increase the devil's lies, and bring upon themselves the severe judgment, by their perverting God's truths, and so turning them into lies.

Now observe:

65. The whole Deity hath in its innermost or beginning birth, in the pith or kernel, a very tart, terrible sharpness, in which the astringent quality is a very horrible, tart, hard, dark and cold attraction or drawing together, like winter, when there is a fierce, bitter, cold frost, when water is frozen into ice, and besides it is very intolerable.

66. Then think or suppose, if in such a hard winter, when it is so cold, the sun should be taken away, what kind of hard frost, and how very rough, fierce and hard darkness would it be, wherein no life could subsist.

67. After such a manner and kind is the astringent quality in the innermost kernel or pith in itself, and to itself alone, without the other qualities in God; for the austereness or severity maketh the attraction or drawing together, and fixation or glutinousness of the body, and the hardness drieth it up, so that it subsisteth as a creature.

68. And the bitter quality is a tearing, penetrating and cutting bitter quality or source: for it divideth and driveth forth from the hard and astringent quality, and maketh the mobility.

69. Between these two qualities is heat generated from its hard and fierce bitter rubbing, tearing and raging, which riseth up in the bitter and hard quality, as a fierce wrathful kindling, and presseth quite through, as a hard fiery noise.

70. From whence existeth the hard tone, and in that rising up or climbing, it is environed and fixed in the astringent quality, so that it becometh a body which subsisteth.

71. Now if there were no other quality in this body, which could quench the fierceness of these four qualities, then there would be a perpetual enmity therein. For the bitter would be against the astringent, in that it stormeth or teareth so vehemently therein, and breaketh open the astringent.

72. Then the astringent also would be against the bitter, in that it attracteth, draweth together and holdeth fast the bitter captive, that it could not have its own course.

73. The heat would be against both, in that with its fierce, wrathful kindling and rising up it maketh all hot, burning and raging, and is fully or totally against the cold.
74. So the tone would be a great enmity in all the others, in that it penetrateth forcibly through all, like a tyrant.

75. Thus, this is the very deepest and innermost hidden birth of God, according to which he calleth himself an angry zealous or jealous God, as may be seen by the Ten Commandments on mount Sinai.

76. In this quality standeth hell and eternal perdition, as also the eternal enmity and murderous den, and such a creature the devil is come to be.

77. But now, seeing he is a sworn arch-enemy of God, and though indeed the disputants and helpers of the devil will needs force it so in arguments (that God willeth the good and also the evil, and that he hath created some men to damnation), therefore and thereupon the spirit of God citeth them, upon pain of eternal enmity, to come before this looking-glass, wherein their heart shall be laid open; and they shall see what God is, and who the devil is, or how he is become a devil.

78. If thy heart be not bolted and barred up in death, through thy stubborn wilfulness and blasphemy, and drowned in horrible sins, purposing not to desist from them, or leave them, then awake, and behold; I take heaven and earth, also the stars and elements, and all the creatures, and man himself also in his whole substance, to witness, and so I will prove it also plainly and clearly in its due place, with all these forementioned things, especially when we come to treat of the creation of all the creatures.

79. If these things will not give thee satisfaction, then pray to God that he would open thy heart, and then thou wilt know and see heaven and hell, as also the whole Deity with all its qualities; and then no doubt thou wilt forbear, and justify the devil no more: I am not able to open thy heart for thee.

Now observe the true birth or geniture of God.
[Or the divine birth.]

80. Behold, as I have mentioned above, the birth or geniture of God in its innermost being, in these four qualities, is thus sharp or tart.

    Thou must understand it exactly.

81. The astringent quality is thus sharp in its own proper quality in itself, but it is not alone, or without the others; neither is it generated of or in itself, as being wholly free, but the other six spirits generate it, and they also hold it by the reins, and may let their reins and authority go as far only as they please.

82. For the sweet spring or fountain-water is suddenly a whip, scourge or lash upon the astringent quality, and mitigateth, softeneth or suppleth it, so that it groweth very thin, gentle, mild and soft, as also very bright.

83. But that it is thus sharp in itself, is to the end that a body may be imaged or framed through its attracting or drawing together, otherwise the Deity would not subsist, much less a creature.

84. In this sharpness God is an all-comprehensible, and all-fixing or all-fastening sharp God: for the birth, geniture and sharpness of God is thus everywhere.
85. But if I should describe the Deity in its birth or geniture in a small round circle, in the highest depth, then it is thus:

In a Similitude.

86. Suppose a WHEEL standing before thee, with seven wheels one so made in the other that it could go on all sides, forward, backward and cross ways, without need of any turning back or stopping.*

* See Ch. 19, par. 81 et seq.

87. In its going, that always-one wheel, in its turning about, generateth the others, and yet none of them vanish out of sight, but that all seven be visible or in sight.

88. The seven wheels always generating the naves in the midst or centre according to their turning about, so that the nave stand always free without alteration or removing, whether the wheels go forward or backward or cross ways or upward or downward.

89. The nave always generating the spokes, so that in their turning about they stand right and direct from the nave to the fellies of the wheel: and yet none of the spokes to be out of sight, but still turning about thus one with another, going whithersoever the wind driveth it, and that without need of any turning back or stopping.

Now observe what I shall inform you in the application of this.

90. The seven wheels are the seven spirits of God, the one always generating the others, and are like the turning about of a wheel, which hath seven wheels one in another, and the one always wheeleth itself otherwise than the others in its station or position, and the seven wheels are hooped round with fellies, like a round globe.

91. And yet that a man may see all the seven wheels turning round about severally apart, as also the whole fitness or compass of the frame, with all its fellies and spokes and naves.

92. The seven naves in the midst or centre being as it were one nave, which doth fit everywhere in the turning about, and the wheels continually generating these naves, and the naves generating the spokes continually in all the seven wheels, and yet none of the wheels, as also none of the naves, nor any of the fellies or spokes, to be out of sight, and as if this wheel had seven wheels, and yet were all but one wheel, and went always forward, whithersoever the wind drove it.

Now behold, and consider:

93. The seven wheels one in another, the one always generating the others, and going on every side, and yet none out of sight, or turning back; these are the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of God the Father.

94. They generate in the seven wheels in each wheel a nave, and yet there are not seven naves, but one only, which fitteth in all the seven wheels: This is the heart or innermost body of the wheels, wherein the wheels run about, and that signifieth the Son of God.

95. For all the seven spirits of God the Father generate continually in their circle, and that is the Son of all the seven spirits, and all those qualify or act in his light, and [the Son] is in the midst or centre of the birth, and holds together all the seven spirits of God, and they in their birth turn about therewith thus.

96. That is, they climb either upward or downward, backward or forward, or crossways, and so the Heart of God is always in the midst or centre, and fitteth itself to every qualifying or fountain
spirit.

97. Thus there is one Heart of God, and not seven, which is always generated from all the seven, and is the heart and life of all the seven.

98. Now the spokes, which are always generated from the naves and wheels, and which fit themselves to all the wheels in their turning, and are their root, stay and fastening in which they stand, and out of which they are generated, signify God the Holy Ghost, which goeth forth from the Father and the Son, even as the spokes go out from the nave and wheel, and yet abide also in the wheel.

99. Now as the spokes are many, and go always about with and in the wheel, so the Holy Ghost is the workmaster in the wheel of God, and formeth, imageth and frameth all in the whole or total God.

100. Now this wheel hath seven wheels one in another, and one nave, which fitteth itself to all the seven wheels, and all the seven wheels turn on that one nave: Thus God is one God, with seven qualifying or fountain spirits one in another, where always one generateth the others, and yet is but one God, just as these seven wheels are but one wheel.

Now observe:
101. The wheel in its incorporated structure and frame signifieth the astringent quality, which attracteth or draweth together the whole corporeal being of the Deity, and holdeth it, and drieth it, so that it subsisteth.

102. The sweet spring or fountain-water is generated by the driving about or rising up of the spirits, for when the light is generated in the heat, then the astringent quality is amazed or terrified for great joy, and this is a submitting or lying down or growing thin, and the hard corporeal being sinketh down like a meekness or mildness.

103. Now the terror * or the glance of the light riseth up in the astringent quality very gently and shivering, and trembleth, which now in the water is bitter, and the light drieth it, and maketh it friendly and sweet.

* " the terror " (der Schrack). This word, peculiar to Bohme, is very aptly rendered by St M., "explosion" or "bursting forth." In the next par. it is made identical with "flash," "Schrack oder Blitz."

104. Therein standeth life and joy; for the terror or flash riseth up in all the qualities, like the wheel before mentioned which turneth about, and then there all the seven spirits rise up one in another, and generate themselves, as in a circle, and the light is shining in the midst or centre of the seven spirits, and re-shineth back again in all the spirits, and all the spirits triumph therein, and rejoice in the light.

105. As the seven wheels turn about upon one nave, as upon their heart, which holds them, and they hold the nave, so the seven spirits generate the heart, and the heart holds the seven spirits, and so there arise voices, and divine joy fulness of hearty loving and kissing.
106. For when the spirits with their light move or boil, turn about and rise one in another, then the life is always generated; for one spirit always affordeth to the others its taste or relish, that is, it is affected by the others.

107. Thus one taste th and feeleth another, and in the sound one heareth another, and the tone presseth forth from all the seven spirits towards the heart, and riseth up in the heart in the flash of the light, and then rise up the voices and joyfulness of the Son of God; and all the seven spirits triumph and rejoice in the Heart of God, each according to its quality.

108. For in the light in the sweet water all astringency and hardness and bitterness and heat are mitigated and made pleasant, and so there is in the seven spirits nothing else but a pleasant striving, struggling and wonderful generating, like a divine holy sport or scene of God.

109. But their sharp or tart birth, of which I have written above, abideth hidden as a kernel, for it becometh mitigated by the light and the sweet water.

110. Just as a sour bitter green apple is forced by the sun, that it becometh very pleasant or lovely to be eaten, and yet all its qualities are tasted; so the Deity keepeth its qualities also, but striveth or struggleth gently, like a pleasant lovely sport or scene.

111. But if the qualifying or fountain spirits should extol or lift up themselves, and penetrate suddenly one into another, driving hard, rubbing and thronging, crowding or squeezing, then the sweet water would be squeezed out, and the fierce heat would be kindled, and then would rise up the fire of the seven spirits, as it did in Lucifer.
112. This is now the true birth or geniture of the Deity, which hath been so from eternity in all corners and places whatsoever, and abideth so in all eternity.

113. But in the kingdom of Lucifer, the destroyer, it is otherwise, as I have written above concerning the fierceness; and in this world, which is now half kindled also, it is likewise after another manner, and will be so till the day of the restitution; of which I shall write when I treat concerning the creation of this world.

114. Now in this glorious, lovely and heavenly Salitter or divine qualities, the kingdom of Lucifer also was created without any greater motion than in the others.

115. For when Lucifer was created, he was altogether perfect, and was the fairest prince in heaven, adorned and endued with the fairest clarity or brightness of the Son of God.

116. But if Lucifer had been spoiled or destroyed in the moving of the creation, as he pretendeth, then he had never had his perfection, beauty and clarity, but would have been presently a fierce dark devil, and not a Cherubim.

Of the glorious Birth and Beauty of King Lucifer.

117. Behold, thou murderous and lying spirit! here I will describe thy royal birth, how thou wert in thy creation, how God created thee, and how thou becamest so beautiful, and to what end God created thee.
118. If thou sayest any other thing than this, which heaven and earth and all the creatures testify, then thou liest; nay, the whole Deity testifieth against thee, that God created thee for his praise out of himself, to be a prince and king of God, as he did prince Michael, and prince Uriel.

Now observe:

119. When the Deity moved itself to creation, and would form, image or frame creatures in its body, it kindled not the qualifying spirits, else they would have burnt eternally, but it stirred them very gently or softly in the astringent quality.

120. That drew or attracted the divine Salitter together, and dried it, so that it became a body, and so the whole divine power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of that place or room, as far as that of the angels reached, was captivated in the body, and became the propriety of the body, which neither can nor will be destroyed again in eternity, but will remain the body's propriety or proper own in eternity.

121. Now the captivated or incorporated power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits had its propriety in the body, and is risen in the body, and hath generated itself in the same manner as the whole Deity generateth itself from all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits.

122. One quality hath always generated the others alike, and none of them have vanished or gone out of sight, just as it is in the whole God; and then the whole body, as it is also in the Ternary, generated itself just as the Deity generateth itself, without or distinct from the body in the Ternary.
123. But this I must mention here, viz. that Lucifer, the king, was incorporated together out of his whole kingdom, as the heart of the whole place or room thereof, so far as his whole angelical host or army reached when it was created, and so far as that circumference or circle, region or quarter reached, wherein he with his angels became a creature, and which God before the time of creation had enclosed or concluded as a room or space for a kingdom, whose circuit or extent comprehendeth heaven and this world, as also the deep of the earth, and of the whole circle, sphere or circumference of this whole world of the heavens and stars.

124. According to the qualities were his [Lucifer's] qualifying or fountain princes created, which are his kingly counsellors, and so also were all his angels created.

125. Yet you are to know that every angel hath all the seven spirits in him, but one of the seven is chief or principal.

Now behold!
126. When the king was thus incorporated or compacted together, as one comprehending his whole kingdom, then instantly, the same hour, and in the same moment, when he was incorporated or compacted together, the birth of the Holy Trinity of God, which he had for a propriety in his body, rose up and generated itself without, distinct from the creature, in God.

["Understand, for a propriety in the liberty,
"not essentially, but as the fire shineth forth or gloweth through the iron that is flaming hot,
"and the iron remaineth iron still; or as the "light replenisheth or filleth the darkness, the "dark source or quality being changed into light,
"and so becometh joyful, and yet in the centre
"remaineth a darkness, which is understood to "be nature; for a spirit is replenished only with "the Majesty."

127. For in the driving together of the body, presently likewise rose up the birth also in great triumph, as in a new-born king, in God; and all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits shewed themselves very joyful and triumphing.

128. And instantly, in the same moment, the light was generated and rose up out of the seven spirits in the centre of the heart, as a new-born son of the king, which also instantly, in a moment, transfigured the body of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits from the centre of the heart; and externally from without the light of the Son of God transfigured it.

129. For the birth of the new son in the heart of Lucifer also penetrated through the whole body, and was glorified from the Son of God, which was without, distinct from the body, and was in a friendly manner welcomed with the greatest beauty of heaven, according to the beauty of God the Son, and it was to him as a loving heart or propriety, with which the whole Deity qualified or operated.

130. Then instantly the spirit of the new-born son in the heart also went forth from the light of Lucifer through his mouth, and united, qualified or co-operated with the holy Spirit of God, and was with highest joy received and embraced, as a dear little brother.

131. Now here standeth the beauteous bride: what shall I write of her now? was she not a Prince of God, as also the most beautiful, moreover, in God's love also, and as a dear son of the creatures?
Of the horrible, proud, and henceforth doleful lamentable Beginning of Sin. The highest Depth.

Observe here:
132. When king Lucifer was thus fairly, gloriously, beauteously, highly and holily framed or built, he should surely have now begun to praise, honour and magnify his Creator; and should do that which God his Creator doth.

133. Viz. God his Creator qualifieth or operateth very meekly, lovingly and joyfully, and one qualifying or fountain spirit of God always loveth the other, and infecteth itself with the other, and always helpeth the other to image, form and frame all in the heavenly pomp.

134. Whereby in the heavenly pomp such fair beauteous forms, ideas, figures and vegetations always spring up, as also various colours and fruits; and this the qualifying or fountain spirits of God do in God, as a holy play, sport or scene.

135. Seeing then God had incorporated or compacted together out of himself eternal creatures, they should not qualify or operate in the heavenly pomp in such a way and manner as to be like God himself.

136. No, by no means; for they were not thus imaged or framed for that end: For the Creator had for this cause incorporated or compacted the body of an angel together, to be more dry than he [the Creator] is in his body, that he might be and remain to be God; so that the qualities should be harder and tougher, that the tone or sound might be audible.
137. So that when the seven qualities in an angel, in the centre of the heart, do generate the light and the spirit or understanding, that then that same spirit, which in the light of the heart goeth forth at the mouth of the angel, in the divine power, should, as an audible sound in the power of all the qualities in God, sing and ring forth as a melodious music, and in the forming, imaging, framing or qualifying of God, rise up as a pleasant, hearty, loving voice, in God's forming.

138. And when the Holy Ghost formeth the heavenly fruit, then should the tone, which should rise up in the praising of God from the angels, be also together in the forming or imaging of the fruit; and so on the other side again, the fruit should be the food of the angels.

139. Therefore also we pray in Our Father, [Matt vi. 11] saying, GIE uns unser taglich Brodt (GIVE us our daily bread) so that the tone or word, GIE (GIVE), which we thrust forth from our centre of the light, through the animated, animal or soulish [psychical] spirit, out at the mouth forth from us, into the divine power, should, in the divine power, as a fellow-forming [co-forming] or fellow-generating [co-generating], help to image or frame unser taglich, Brodt (our daily bread), which afterwards Der Vater gibet Uns (the Father giveth to us) for food.

140. Then, when our tone is thus incorporated in God's tone, so that the fruit is formed, imaged or framed, it must needs be wholesome or healthful for us, and so we are in God's love, and have that food to make use of, as by the right of nature, being our spirit in God's love did help to image and form the same.

141. Herein standeth the innermost and greatest depth of God. O man, consider thyself!
I will more largely declare it in its due place.

142. Now for such an end hath God created the angels, and they do so too: * for their spirit, which in the centre or heart goeth forth from their light in the power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, that goeth forth at their mouth, as God the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and Son, and helpeth to form, image or frame all in God (that is to say, in the divine nature) through the Mercurius, song and speaking and sport or scene of joy.

* "and they do so too." The translation is literal; the sense is, of course, "and they work it out," that is, they work out the end for which they have been created.

143. For as God worketh in nature to the producing of all manner of forms, ideas, images, vegetations, springings, fruits and colours, so do the angels also, in very great simplicity or sincerity; and though they should scarce touch the least twig,  or scarce rejoice in the beauteous flowers in the heavenly May, and discourse and confer never so little, weakly, meanly or simply thereof; yet nevertheless that very tone or speech riseth up together in the divine Salitter, and helpeth to co-image and frame or form all.

 "touch the least twig," lit., "ride upon a stick" = ride upon a hobby-horse. St M. translates simply, "play as children."

144. Thou hast many examples thereof in this world, that if some creature or man look upon a thing, it perisheth because of the poison or venom in the creature: * On the other side again, some men, as also beasts and other creatures, can with their tone or words change or alter the malignity or evil of a thing, and bring it into a right form.
"that if some creature or man look upon a thing, it perisheth because of the poison or venom in the creature," or, "for many a creature or man cannot look upon a thing without corrupting (verdirbet) the same, because of the poison in that creature or man."

145. That now is the divine power, which all the creatures are subjected to; for all whatsoever it is that liveth and moveth is in God, and God himself is all, and all whatsoever is formed or framed, is formed out of HIM, be it either out of love or out of wrath.

The Head-Spring or Fountain-Vein of Sin.

146. Now Lucifer being so royally imaged or framed, that his spirit in his forming and imaging rose up in him, and was received or embraced of God very excellently and lovingly, and was set or put into glorification, then instantly he should have begun his angelical obedience and course, and should have moved (as God himself did) as a loving son in the house of his Father; and that he did not.

147. But when his light was generated in him in his heart, and that his qualifying spirits were instantly affected or environed with the high light, they then became so highly rejoicing that they elevated themselves in their body against the right of nature, and presently began as it were a higher, statelier, more pompous or active qualifying or operation than God himself exercised.

148. But these spirits elevating themselves thus, and triumphing so eagerly and vehemently one in another, and rising up against the right of nature, by that means they kindled the qualifying or fountain spirits an exceeding deal too much; viz. the astringent quality attracted or compacted the body too hard together, so that the sweet water was dried up.

149. And the powerful and great bright flash, which was risen up in the sweet water in the heat, from whence the bitter quality existeth in the sweet water, that rubbed itself so horribly hard with the astringent quality, as if it would break in pieces for great joy.

150. For the flash was so bright, that it was as it were intolerable to the qualifying or fountain spirits, and therefore the bitter quality or source trembled and rubbed itself so hard in the astringent, that the heat was kindled contrary to the right of nature, and the astringent also dried up the sweet water by its hard attracting together.

151. But now the quality of heat was so severe, furious and eager, that it bereaved the astringent quality or source of its power; for the heat existeth in the fountain or source of the sweet water.

152. But the sweet water being dried up through the astringent attracting together, therefore could not the heat any more rise to a flame or to any light (for the light existeth in the unctuosity or oiliness of the water), but glowed like a red-hot iron, or like iron not quite glowing, but very dimly and darkly; or as if you should put a very hard stone into the fire, and should let it lie there in great heat as long as you please, yet it would not be glowing light, because it hath too little water or oiliness in it.

153. Thus now the heat kindled the dried water, and the light could no more elevate and kindle itself, for the water was dried up, and was quite consumed by the fire or great heat.
154. The meaning is not here, as if the spirit of the water were swallowed up or devoured, which dwelleth in all the seven qualities, but its quality or upper place or predominancy was changed into a dusky hot and sour quality.

155. For here in this place the sour quality hath taken its first original and beginning, which now also is inherited in this world, which is not in heaven in God after such a manner at all, nor in any angel; for it is and signifieth the house of affliction, trouble and misery, and is a forgetfulness of all good.

156. Now when this was done, the qualifying or fountain spirits rubbed themselves one upon another in that manner and way as I have mentioned above, concerning the figure of the sevenfold wheel, for they ever do, and rise up one in another, to taste one another, or to affect one another, from whence life and love exist.

157. Now in all the spirits there was nothing else but a mere hot, fiery, cold and hard corruption, and so one evil quality tasted the others, whereby the whole body grew so very fierce and wrathful; for the heat was against the cold, and the cold against the heat.

158. So the sweet water being dried up, the bitter quality (which existed and was generated by the first flash, when the light kindled itself) rose up in the body through all the spirits, as if it would destroy the body, and so raved and raged like the rankest or worst poison.

159. From thence existed the first poison, wherein we poor men now in this world have enough to chew upon, and thereby the bitter poisonous death is come into the flesh.
160. Now in this raging and tearing the life of Lucifer was generated, that is, his dear little son in the circle or centre of his heart; and what manner of life and dear little son came to be, I offer to any rational soul to consider of.

161. For such as the father was, such was the son also, viz. a dark, astringent, cold, hard, bitter, hot, sour, stinking fountain or source, and the love stood in the bitter quality, in its penetrating taste and relish, and became an enmity against all the qualifying or fountain spirits in the body of the high-minded arrogant king.

162. Thus the tone rose up through the penetrating of the bitter quality through the heat and dried water, and through the astringent hard quality, into the heart, into the little, new, dear son.

163. Here the spirit went forth, and as he was generated in the heart, so he went forth now at the mouth; but how welcome a guest he was before God, and in God, also before the holy angels of the other kingdoms, I leave to thee to consider of.

164. He should now have united with the Son of God, as one heart and one God: Alas for ever! Who can write or express this sufficiently?
THE FOURTEENTH CHAPTER

How Lucifer, who was the most beautiful Angel in Heaven, is become the most horrible Devil.

The House of the murderous Den.

1. HERE, king Lucifer, pull thy hat down over thy eyes, lest thou shouldst see how man will take off thy crown away from thee, thou canst no more rule in heaven; stand still a little while, we must first view thee, and observe what a beauteous fair bride thou art, and whether the filth of thy whoredom may not be cleansed and washed away from thee, that thou mayest be fair again; we will a little describe thy chastity and virtue.

2. Come on ye philosophers, and ye lawyers and advocates, that justify and defend king Lucifer! Come near and bring him to the bar, whilst he hath yet the crown upon him, for here we will hold a court of judgment against malefactors for him; if you can maintain his cause to be right, then he shall be your king; if not, then he shall be turned out and cast down into hell; and another shall get his royal crown, who will govern better than he.

Now observe:

3. When Lucifer had thus horribly spoiled and destroyed himself, all his qualifying or fountain spirits were at enmity against God, for they all qualified or acted much otherwise than God, and so there came to be an eternal enmity between God and Lucifer. But now it might be asked:

Question.
How long did Lucifer stand in the Light of God?
4. When the royal body of Lucifer was incorporated or compacted together, in that very hour the light kindled itself also in Lucifer.

5. For as soon as his qualifying or fountain spirits in the building of the body began to qualify or operate, and to generate themselves according to the right of nature, then rose up the flash of life in the heart in the sweet spring or fountain-water, and so the royal body was ready furnished or complete, and the spirit went forth in the heart from the light through the mouth into the heart of God.

6. And so he was a most exceeding beautiful prince and king, and very dear and acceptable to the divine being, and was received and embraced with great joy.

7. In like manner also the spirit went forth from the heart into all the qualifying or fountain veins of the body, and kindled all the seven spirits, and so the royal body was glorified instantaneously, and there he stood as a king of God, in an unsearchable clarity or brightness, transcendently excelling the whole heavenly host or army.

8. Now in this clear and light flash the seven qualifying or fountain spirits were instantly kindled, as a man kindleth a fire, for they were affrighted at the terrible clarity or brightness of their spirit, and so instantly at the first flash suddenly became highly triumphing, proudly lifted up and joyful to excess, and so moved themselves towards a higher birth.

9. But if they had continued in their seats, and had qualified or operated, as they [the seven spirits of nature of which they were constituted] had done from eternity, then that high light had not hurt them.

10. For they were not new spirits made of any new thing, but they were the old spirits, which had no beginning, which had been in God from eternity, and they knew very well the right of the Deity and the right of nature, and how they [the spirits] should move and stir.

11. Also when God figured or framed the body together, he did not beforehand destroy the qualifying or fountain spirits, but figured or framed the body of king Lucifer together out of the kernel of that which was the best, wherein was the best knowledge of all.

12. Else if the qualities had been dead beforehand, there had been a necessity for a new life, and it would have been in doubt whether the angels could have subsisted eternally.

13. God created angels out of himself, for this reason, that they might be harder and drier incorporated or compacted together than the ideas, figures, shapes or forms, which, through the qualifying or operating of the spirits of God in nature rise up, and which also through the moving of the spirits vanish or pass away again; that the light of the angels, in their hardness, should shine the clearer and brighter, and that the tone of the body should sound the clearer and shriller,* whereby the joyfulness should increase the more in God. This was the cause that God created angels.

*" shriller," lit., " more sonorous." Sparrow has in most cases printed " shrill," where the German is " hell," " clear, distinct, sonorous." He probably intended thereby to emphasize the idea of pitch, over and above the idea of sonority.
14. But it is said, the angel generated a new light, or a new spirit. That is to be understood as followeth:

15. When the qualifying or fountain spirits were incorporated or compacted together, then the light shone much brighter and clearer in the body, and from or out of the body, than it did before, in the Salitter; for there then rose up a much clearer and brighter flash in the body than before, whilst the Salitter was thin and dim.

16. Therefore the qualifying or fountain spirits became stately and proud, and supposed they had a much fairer little son or light than the Son of God was; and therefore they would also the more earnestly and eagerly qualify or operate, and elevate themselves, and so despised the qualifying or acting which is in God their Father; and they despised the birth of the Son of God, as also the exit or going forth of God the Holy Ghost, and supposed they could do it; because they were so gloriously incorporated or compacted together, therefore they would now exalt themselves gloriously and stately, and shew forth themselves, as if they were the most fair and beauteous bride of heaven.

17. They knew very well that they were not the whole or total God, but were only a piece or part thereof; they also knew very well how far their omnipotence reached or extended; and yet they would no more have their old condition, but would be higher than the whole or total God, and supposed thereby that they would have their place, region, quarters or court above the whole or total Deity, above all kingdoms whatsoever.
18. Therefore they elevated or extolled themselves, intending to kindle or inflame the whole God, and to govern or rule the whole God by their power and might. All forms and ideas should rise up in the qualifying and acting of his [Lucifer's] spirit. He would be lord of the Deity, and would not endure any co-rival.*

* "would not endure any co-rival," lit., "no other was to be lord beside him " (neben), alongside, by the side of.

19. Now this is the root of covetousness, envy, pride and wrath [anger]; for in the fierce qualifying or acting and boiling rose up the wrath, and burnt like fire of heat and cold, and was also bitter as gall.

20. For the qualifying or fountain spirits had in themselves no impulse from without, but the impulse to pride elevated itself within the body, in the council of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits; these agreed and united in a compact, that they alone would be God.

21. But because they could not begin it in their old seat, and so bring it to effect, therefore they dissembled or played the hypocrite together, and flattered one with another, and so combined, intending to extol themselves against the birth of God, and would needs qualify or work in the highest depth, and then nothing could be like them, seeing they were together the most mighty prince in God.

22. The astringent quality was the first murderer, flatterer and hypocrite, for when it saw that it generated so fair and bright a light, then it compressed itself together yet harder than God had created it to be, intending to be much more terrible, and to draw together all in its whole region, circuit or circumference, and keep it fast, as a stern severe lord.
23. So then, in a degree, it effected somewhat, from whence earth and stones have their original; which I will write of when I treat concerning the creation of the world.

24. The bitter quality was the second murderer, which, when it rose up in the flash, did tear with breaking and great power in the astringent quality, as if it would break the body in pieces.

25. The astringent quality permitted this tearing, or else it was very well able to have staid and captivated the bitter spirit, and to bathe or steep it in the sweet water, till its high mind had been allayed and gone: But the astringent quality would needs have such a little brother, because such little brother was so serviceable to its turn; else, seeing the bitter spirit taketh its original from the astringent quality, as it were from its father, the astringent quality could well have stopped or hindered that.

26. The heat is the third murderous spirit, which killed its mother, the sweet water; but the astringent spirit is the cause thereof, for by its stern, severe attracting together and hardening, it hath thus vehemently awakened and kindled the fire by the bitter quality: for the fire is the sword of the astringent and bitter quality.

27. But since the fire riseth up in the sweet water, therefore itself hath the whip or scourge in its own power, and might have staid or kept back the astringent quality in the water, but the heat also became a flatterer or hypocrite, and dissembled with the great quality, viz. the astringent, and did help to destroy the sweet water.
28. The tone is the fourth murderer; for it taketh its ringing sound in the fire, in the sweet water, and riseth up very gently and lovely in the whole body.

29. Yet it did not so here, but after it was risen up in the water, in the astringent quality, it also dissembled [or played] with the astringent quality and broke out or burst forth furiously, like a thunder-clap, whereby it would prove and shew forth its new Deity; and so the fire rose up, as when there is a tempest of lightning, intending thereby to be so great as to be above all things in God.

30. And this they * practised so long till they had murdered their mother, the sweet water; and therein the whole body became a dark valley, and there was no more remedy or council in God that could help here: For love was turned into enmity, and the whole body became a black dark Teufel (devil).

* "they," i.e. the tone, and the heat, and the bitter and the astringent qualities.

31. Of the word (Teufel) Teu- hath its original from hard beating, drumming or thumping; * and the word or syllable -fel hath its original from the Falle [fall], and so lord Lucifer is called Teufel (devil), and is no more called a Cherubim or Seraphim.

* "beating, drumming or thumping " (Pochen). See Ch. 10, par. 119.

Here it may be asked:

Question.
Could not God have hindered and prevented the pride of Lucifer, that he might have abstained from his high-mindedness?

_Escape._
32. This is a high question, on which all those lay hold _that justify_ and plead the cause of the devil; but they are all _cited to_ appear at the court of justice held for trial of criminal _malefactors:_ let them have a care _how_ they plead for their master, else the sentence of judgment will be _pronounced_ against him, and he will lose his _crown._

_The wonderful Revelation._
33. Behold, king _Lucifer_ was the head in his whole region, circuit or circumference, also he was a _mighty_ king, and was created out of the _kernel_ or marrow of his whole region and circumference, also he would fain have kindled that whole circumference by his elevating, that so all might have burned and qualified, or operated _as he_ did in his own body.

34. Though indeed the Deity, without or distinct from his body, would have meekly and gently qualified or _acted_ towards him, and would have _enlightened_ and exhorted him to _repentance_, yet now there was no other will in _Lucifer_, but that he would _needs_ rule over the Son of God, and kindle that whole region or circumference, and in such a way he _himself_ would be the _whole_ God, above and over all the angelical hosts or armies.

35. Now when the Heart of God with his _meekness_ and _love_ made haste towards _Lucifer_, he despised it, and thought _himself_ far better than it, and then stormed back again with fire and coldness in _hard_ claps of thunder _against_ the Son of God, supposing the Son of God must be in subjection under him, and that he himself was _lord_; for he _despised_ the light of the Son of God.

Question.
Then thou askest: How? Had he such power?

Answer.
36. Yes, he had; for he was a great part of the Deity, and besides, was from or out of the kernel thereof, for he made an attempt also upon that king and great prince Michael, to spoil and destroy him, who at last fought with Lucifer, and overcame him, since [or because] the power of God in Lucifer's kingdom also fought vehemently against its king, till at last he was thrust down from his kingly seat, as one that was vanquished. [Rev. xii. 7-9]

Objection.
Now thou wilt say, God should have enlightened his heart, that he might have repented.

Answer.
37. No! Lucifer would receive no light other than his own, for he scorned the light of the Son of God, which did shine without, distinct from his body, seeing he had such a glittering light in himself, and so he elevated himself more and more, till his water was quite dried up and burnt, and his light was quite put out; and then all was done with him.

["This water here, is the water of eternal life, generated in the light of the Majesty, but in the centre it is like the sulphur or brimstone spirit, or like unto aquafortis, or the water of separation."]

Concerning the fall of all his angels, one might ask:

Question.
How comes it, that at this time all his angels did also fall?
Answer.
38. As this lord commanded, so his subjects obeyed; when he elevated himself, and would be God, his angels, seeing it, followed their lord, doing as he did, all made a proffer to assault and storm the Deity.

39. For they were all in subjection under Lucifer, and he ruled in all his angels, for he was created out of the pith or kernel of that Salitter, out of which all his angels were created, and he was the heart and lord of all his angels.

40. Therefore they all did as he did, and all would sit in the primacy of the Deity, and would rule powerfully in the whole region, circuit or circumference, over and above the whole divine power: They were all of one will, and would not suffer the same to be taken from them. Now thou wilt ask:

Question.
Did not the whole, total or universal God know this, before the time of the creation of angels, that it would so come to pass?

Answer.
41. No: For if God had known it before the time of the creation of angels, it had then been an eternal predestinate purposed will in God to have it so, and it had been no enmity against God, but God had indeed at the beginning created and made him a devil.

42. But God created and made him a king of light, and when he became disobedient, and would be above the whole or total God, then God spewed him out of his seat, and in the midst or centre of our time created another king out of the same Deity out of which lord Lucifer was created; (understand it aright, out of the Salitter, which was without, distinct from the body of king Lucifer), and set him on the royal throne of Lucifer, and gave him might, authority and power, as Lucifer had before his fall.

43. The same King is called JESUS CHRIST, who is the Son of God and of man.

44. This I will demonstrate clearly and at large in its proper place.

[45. " Note, This is explained in the second " and third books: God knew this very well "according to his wrath, but not according to " his love, according to which God is called " God, into which no fierceness nor imagination " entereth, neither is there any searching in the " love concerning the hellish creature.

46. " This foregoing question is understood or " meant thus: as when I say, God knoweth not " the evil; also, God willeth not the evil, accord- " ing to the tenure of the Scripture; then I " understand or mean that in his love (which " alone is the one only Good, and is alone called " God) there is no glimpse of evil revealed or " manifested; otherwise, if any evil were revealed " or manifested therein, then the love were not " meekness and humility alone.

47. "But in the outspeaking of his Word, " wherein the nature of the spiritual world " existeth, wherein perceptibility or sensibility is " understood to consist, and wherein God calleth " himself an angry, zealous or jealous God, and " a consuming fire, therein, indeed, God hath " known the evil * from eternity, and that in " case he should once move himself therein, " that the source or quality thereof would become " creaturely also, but therein is he not called
"God, but a consuming fire.

"therein, indeed, God hath known the evil," etc., lit.,
"therein, indeed, God hath known from eternity that, should he once move himself in that source or quality, the same would become creaturely also; but therein [in that source] he is not called God," etc;

48. "I understand the abovesaid question
"magically, taking notice how God's love and "wrath differ, and are distinguished, and how
"the knowledge of evil, viz. of the devil and of "the fall, is discerned to differ from his well-
"spring or source, from whence the fall also took "its original.

49. "So also in God's love there is only the "fountain and knowledge of joyfulness, for every "science or root causeth or produceth its like.

50. "For if I should say, God's love had "willed the evil, or that there was a false
"science [text: Scientz] or root in God's love and meekness,
"then I should speak contrary to the Scripture:
"For what God's love knoweth sensibly or "feelingly in itself, that it also willeth, and "nothing else. And what God's wrath knoweth "sensibly in itself, that he also knoweth, and
"nothing else*

* The last clause of this par. does not appear in Sparrow's translation, neither is it in the German edition of 1656, nor in Schiebler's edition. It is in the German editions of 1682, 1715 and 1730.

51. "From hence, in the creation, good and "evil are existed: I exhort the Reader to con"ceive our very deep sense aright, and not "mistake or go astray here, but to read our other "writings, where these things are sufficiently "explained."]
Of the great Sin, and contrary or opposite Will; and of the eternal Enmity against God of King Lucifer, together with his whole Host or Army.

52. This is the right looking-glass of man; before this court of justice for malefactors the spirit inviteth and citeth all men to stand as before a looking-glass, wherein they may see themselves, and what the hidden, secret sin is.

53. This hath remained hidden ever since the world began, and was never so fully and totally revealed in any heart of man: I myself also do wonder much more than the Reader can wonder at this high revelation or manifestation.

54. I do not write this for my own glory; for my glory standeth in my hope of that which is to come: I am a poor sinner as well as other men, and I also ought to come before this glass.

55. But I marvel that God should reveal himself thus fully to such a simple man, and that God thus impelleth him also to set it down in writing; whereas there are many learned writers who could set it forth and express it better, in a more flourishing style, and demonstrate it more exactly and fully than I, who am a scorn and a fool to the world.

56. But I neither can nor will oppose him; for I often stood in great striving against him, that if it were not his impulse or will, that he would be pleased to take it from me; but I find, that with my striving against him I have but merely gathered stones for this building.

57. Now I am climbed up and mounted so very high that I dare not look back, for fear a giddiness should overtake me, and I have now but a short length of ladder to the mark, to which it is the whole desire, longing and delight of my heart to reach fully. When I go upward I have no giddiness at all; but when I look back and would return, then am I giddy, and afraid to fall.

58. Therefore have I put my confidence in the strong God, and will venture, and see what will come of it. I have no more than one body, which nevertheless is mortal and corruptible, I willingly venture that; if the light and knowledge of my God do but remain with me, then I have sufficiently enough for this life and the life to come.

59. Thus I will not be angry with my God, though for his name's sake I should endure shame, ignominy and reproach, which springeth, buddeth and blossometh for me every day, so that I am almost inured to it: I will sing with the prophet David [Psalm lxxiii 26], Though my body and soul should faint and fail, yet thou, O God, art my trust and confidence; also my salvation, and the comfort of my heart.

60. Sin hath seven kinds, forms, species or sorts; among which there are four special wellsprings or sources: And the eighth kind or sort is the house of death.

Now observe:
61. The seven forms are the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of the body; when these are kindled each spirit generateth a special or particular enmity against God.

62. Out of these seven are generated other four new sons, and they together are the new god, which is wholly against the old God, as two professed armies of enemies, which have sworn eternal enmity one against the other.

The first Son is PRIDE.
The second Son is COVETOUSNESS.
The third Son is ENVY.
The fourth Son is WRATH.

63. Now let us view these in the ground from whence all hath its original, and see how it is an enmity against God: and therein you will see what is the beginning and root of sin, and wherefore in God it cannot be suffered or endured.

64. Therefore come on, ye philosophers and lawyers, you that will maintain, and undertake to prove it, that God created the evil also, and that he willeth the same; also that it is his predestinate purpose that the devil fell, and that many men are damned; otherwise God could have altered all, and turned it some other way.

The Citation, or Summons.

65. Here the spirit of our kingdom for the third time citeth you, together with your prince Lucifer, whom you defend and justify, before the final Court of Justice for criminal malefactors; give in your answer there.

66. For as to these seven kinds or forms, and four new sons, the right shall be prosecuted in the heavenly Father's house.

67. If you can prove and maintain that the seven spirits of Lucifer have of right and equity generated these four new sons, so that they of right and equity should govern heaven and the whole Deity, then king Lucifer shall be reenthroned, and set upon his seat, and his kingdom shall be restored to him again.

68. If not, then a hell or hole, burrow or dungeon shall be given to him for an everlasting prison, and there shall he together with his sons be imprisoned for ever: and you should take heed lest a Court of Justice be held, and pass upon you also.

69. Now seeing then you will plead the right of the devil's cause, wherewith shall he requite you, or with what fee shall he reward you? He hath nothing in his power but the hellish abomination;
what will then be your recompense?
Guess, Sir, even the best of all that he hath, the best fruits and apples in his orchard, and the best perfumes and incense of his garden.

Of the First Kind or Form.

70. The first spirit is the astringent or harsh quality, which in God is a gentle attracting or drawing together, a drying and cooling or refreshing, and is made use of in and for the imaging or forming of things; and though in its depth it be somewhat sharp or tart, yet it tempereth itself with the sweet water, so that it is meek, soft, pleasant and full of joy.

71. When the light of the sweet water cometh into it, then it willingly, friendly and freely yieldeth up its birth thereunto, and maketh it [the sweet water] dry and shining bright.

72. When the tone or tune riseth up in the light, then it [the astringent quality] also giveth up its tone, tune and ringing sound very gently and brotherly thereunto.
73. Also it receiveth the love from all the spirits.

74. Also the heat favoureth it, giving way friendly, that it [the heat] may be cooled, and so the astringent quality is a friendly will in and with all the qualities; it readily helpeth also to image or frame the spirit of nature, and to form therein all manner of shapes, figures, fruits and growths or vegetations, according to the will of all the six spirits.

75. It is a very humble father to its children, and loveth them heartily, and playeth with them friendly, for it is the right father of the other six spirits, which are generated in it, and it helps to generate them all.

76. Now when God constituted Lucifer with his host or army, he created them out of this friendly Deity, out of himself, out of the place of heaven and of this world, there was no other matter to make them of, this living Salitter was very gently and softly attracted or drawn together without any killing or slaying it, or without any great stirring or motion.

77. These spirits, thus incorporated or compacted together, had the knowledge, the skill and the eternal, infinite and unbeginning law of God, and knew full well, I. How the Deity had generated them.

78. II. They knew also well, that the Heart of God had the primacy in the whole Deity.

78a. III. They knew well also, that they had no more for their proper own, to deal with and to dispose of, than their own compacted, incorporated body; for they saw very well that the Deity generated itself without, severally, distinct, apart from their body, as it had done from eternity.

79. IV. They knew likewise very well that they were not the whole room or place, but were therein to increase the joy and wonderful proportion, variety and harmony of that same place, and were to accord, qualify and act friendly with that room or place of the Deity, and in a friendly manner affect the qualities that are without, distinct from their bodies.

80. V. They had also all power to dispose of all the ideas, figures and growths or vegetations, as they would; all was a hearty love-play, sport or scene in God; they had not at all moved God their Creator to any contrary will, though they had broken all the heavenly ideas, figures or vegetations and growths, and had made of them all mere horses to ride on; * God had still always caused enough of others to come up instead of them, for it had all been but a play or scene in God.

81. For to that very end also they were created, that they should play and sport with the ideas, figures and growths or vegetations, and dispose of them for their own use as they pleased.

82. For the ideas or figures have in a manner 1 Th»tis, hare framed themselves thus from eternity, and have passed away and altered again [come and gone perpetually] through the qualifying or fountain spirits: For this was the eternal play, sport or scene of God, before the times of the creation of the angels.

83. Thou hast a very good example and instance of this, if thou wilt but see, and wilt not be stark blind here; viz. in the beasts, fowls and all vegetations or growths in this world: All these were created before man was created, who is and signifieth the second host or army, which God created instead of expelled Lucifer, out of the place of Lucifer.

Question.
But now, what did the astringent or harsh quality do in Lucifer?

Answer.
84. When God had thus gently incorporated it, or compacted it together, then it found and felt itself to be mighty and powerful, and saw that it had or possessed a body more beautiful than the figures were, that were without, distinct from it; thereupon it became high minded, and elevated itself in its body, and would be more severe and eager than the Salitter was, which was without, distinct from its body.

85. But seeing it [The astringent or harsh spirit] could not do anything alone, it flattered and played the hypocrite with the other spirits, so that they followed it as their father, and did all that they saw it do, each in its own quality.

86. Now being thus agreed, they generated also such a spirit, which came forth at the mouth, at the eyes, at the ears, and at the nostrils, and affected or mixed itself with the Salitter that was without, distinct from the body.

87. For the intent and purpose of the astringent or harsh quality, seeing it was so glorious, when the kernel was incorporated or compacted together out of the whole kingdom, its intent was, that it also through its spirit, which it did generate by or with the other spirits, would rule powerfully with the sharpness externally, without its own body, in the whole Salitter of God, and that all should stand and be in or under its own power and authority.

88. It would image, frame and form all through its own spirit which it generated, as the whole Deity did; it would have the primacy in the whole Deity: This was its purpose.

89. But seeing it could not effect this in its true natural seat, it thereupon elevated itself, and kindled itself.

90. So by this kindling it kindled its spirit also, which now went forth at the mouth, the ears, the eyes and the nostrils, as a very fierce, furious spirit, and strove against the Salitter in its [the Salitter's] place, as a furious, storming, raging lord, and kindled the Salitter, and attracted or drew all forcibly together.

_Thou must understand it aright._

91. The astringent or harsh quality in the spirit that went forth kindled the astringent or harsh quality which was in the place of its region, or in nature, _viz._ in the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit, and ruled powerfully in the astringent quality in the Salitter; and that, the astringent quality in the Salitter would not have, but strove with the sweet water against this spirit; but all would not help, the storm grew hotter and hotter, the longer the greater, till at length the astringent or harsh quality of the Salitter was kindled.

92. And so when this was done, then the storm grew so hot that the astringent quality drew the Salitter together, so that hard stones proceeded from it; whence the stones in this world have their original: and the water in the Salitter was also attracted or drawn together, so that it became very thick,* as it is now at present in this world.

* "thick." The idea is that of density. The quality in the Salitter, that later became physical water, was "densified," and thus made more grossly manifest. Whence became water, as we have it.

93. But when the astringent quality was kindled in Lucifer, then it became very cold; for the coldness is its own proper spirit, and thereupon now it kindleth with its cold fire also all in the Salitter.

94. Hence the water of this world became so cold, dark and thick; and hence it is that all is become so hard and palpable, which was not so before the times of the angels.

95. This now was a great contrary will in the divine Salitter, a great battle and strife, and an eternal enmity. But now thou wilt say,

Objection.
God should have withstood him, that it might not have come so far.

Answer.
96. O dear blind man! it was not a man nor a beast that stood here before God. But it was God against God; one strong one against another: Besides, how should God withstand him? With the friendly love? That could not avail, for Lucifer did but scorn and despise that, and would himself be God.

97. Should God withstand him then with anger or wrath, (which indeed must be done at length), then God must have kindled himself in his qualities in the Salitter, wherein king Lucifer dwelt, and must in the strong zeal or jealousy strive and fight against him, which he did; and so this striving made this kingdom so dark, waste and evil, that another creation must needs afterwards follow upon it.

98. Ye philosophers and jurists or lawyers of prince Lucifer, here you must first defend the astringent or harsh quality in Lucifer, and answer whether it hath dealt righteously or no, and prove it in nature. I do not accept of your extorted, wrested, bowed, stretched, and farfetched texts of Scripture, brought in by head and shoulders for a proof, but I will have living testimonies.

99. And I will also set before you living testimonies, viz. the created and comprehensible heaven, the stars, the elements, the creatures, the earth, stones, men, and lastly your dark, cold, hot, hard, rough, smoky, wicked prince Lucifer himself; all these are come into this present condition through his elevation.

100. Here bring in your defence, and answer for your spirit; if not, it will be condemned. For this is God's jus, right or law, which law hath no beginning, and is, that the child which is generated of the mother should be humble before the mother, and be obedient to her; for it hath its life and body from the mother who hath generated it.

101. Also the house of the mother, as long as the mother liveth, is not the child's proper own; but the mother keeps the child with her in love, she nourisheth it, and putteth on it the best and finest attire which she hath, and giveth the same to it for its own, that her joy may be increased by the child, and that she may have joy in it.
102. But when the child rebelleth and resisteth against the mother, and takes away all from the mother, and domineers over her, and moreover striketh at her, and forceth her to change into a low condition, contrary to right and equity, then it is but just that the child should be expelled, out of the house, and left to sit behind the hedge * and quite lose its child's portion and inheritance.

* " left to sit"—a literal translation of a form which means, " to be put away," " to be kept out."

103. Thus it was between God and his child Lucifer. The Father put on him the fairest attire, hoping to have joy in him: But when the child got the robe and ornament, he despised the Father, and would domineer over the Father, and would ruin his Father's house; and besides, struck at the Father, and would not be advised or taught to do otherwise.

Of the Second Species, Form, Sort or Spirit of Sin's Beginning in Lucifer.

104. The second spirit is the water: As the astringent or harsh quality is the father of the other six spirits, which attracteth or draweth them together, and so holds them, so the sweet water is the mother in which all spirits are conceived, kept and generated, that softeneth and saturateth them, wherein and whereby they get their life, and then the light and joyfulness riseth up therein.

105. Thus king Lucifer in the same manner did get the sweet water for his corporeal government, and indeed the very kernel and best thereof. For God put on to his little son the best ornament, robe and attire of all, hoping to have great joy in him.
Question.
Now what did this astringent or harsh quality with its mother, the sweet water?

Answer.
106. It flattered with the bitter quality, and with the heat, and persuaded them that they should elevate themselves and be kindled, and so together they would destroy their mother, and turn her into a sour form or property, whereby they would domineer with their spirit very sharply over the whole Deity: All must bow down and incline to them; and they would form, frame, figure and image all with their sharpness.

107. According to this false or wicked conclusion and result they agreed to do one and the same thing, and so dried up the sweet water in Lucifer's body; the heat kindled it, and the astringent dried it, and then it became very sour and sharp.

108. When in this qualifying or acting they had generated the spirit of Lucifer, then the life of the spirit, which riseth up in the water, as also the light, became very sour and sharp.

109. Now this sour spirit also stormed with all its powers against the sweet water, which was without, distinct from the body, in God's Salitter, and thought itself must needs be the prime and chief, and should in its own power form, frame and image everything.

110. This was the second enmity against God, from whence is existed the sour quality in this world, for it was not so from eternity; as you have an example thereof in this, viz. if you set any sweet thing in the warmth, and let it stand therein, it groweth sour of itself; as also water, beer or wine in a vessel will do; but none of the other qualities alter, but only into a stink, which is caued by the quality of water. Now thou wilt ask,

Question.
Why did God suffer Lucifer's evil spirit, which proceeded out of the body of Lucifer, to come into Himself? Could God not hinder it?

Answer.
111. Thou must know, that between God and Lucifer there was no other difference, than there is between parents and their children; nay, there was yet a nearer relation between them: For as parents generate a child out of their body according to their image, and keep it in their house, as a natural heir of their bodies, and cherish it, thus near also is the body of Lucifer to the Deity.

112. For God had generated him out of his body, and therefore also made him the heir of his goods, and gave him for a possession the whole region or extent of the place in which he created him.

The highest Depth.

113. But here you must know what it was with which Lucifer fought against God, and so moved God to anger. For he could not do it with his body; for his body reached no farther than the place where he then stood; he could effect little with that, but it was something else.

Be attentive here.
114. The spirit, which is generated from or out of all the seven qualifying spirits in the centre of the heart, the same doth (whilst it is yet in the body, when it is generated) qualify, mix or act in and with God, as one substance or thing, nor is there any difference.
115. And when that same spirit, which is generated in the body, seeth anything through the eyes, or heareth through the ears, or smelleth through the nostrils, then it is already in that thing, and worketh, laboureth or acteth therein, as in its own propriety.

116. And if the same be pleasing to it, it eateth thereof, and infecteth itself with the thing, and wrestleth therewith, and maketh a mixture or temper together; let the thing be as far off as it will, even so far as the originality of its kingdom in God reacheth, so far can the spirit govern or rule in a moment, and is withheld or hindered by nothing.

117. For it is and comprehendeth the power, as God the Holy Ghost doth; and in this there is no difference at all between God the Holy Ghost and the spirit of the body, but only this, that the Holy Spirit of God is the whole fulness, and the spirit of the body is but a piece or part, which presseth through the whole fulness, and wherever it cometh, there it is mixed or affected with the place, and presently ruleth with God in the same place.

118. For it is of God and in God, and cannot be withheld or hindered, but only by the seven nature-spirits of the body, which generate the animated or soulish spirit; they have the reins in their hand, and generate it as they please.
"God's Spirit hath all the well-springs, but distinguished itself in three Principles, where three sources or qualities arise, the first in the fire according to the first Principle, and the second in the light in the second Principle, and the third in the spirit of this world in the aërial and astral source."
119. When the astringent or harsh quality, as the father, formeth the word or son, or spirit, then it stands captive in the centre of the heart, and is examined or tried by the other spirits, whether it be good or no. Now if it pleaseth the fire, then the fire letteth the flash (in which the bitter spirit standeth) go through the sweet water, wherein it conceiveth the love, and goeth therewith into the astringent quality.

120. Now when the flash returns with the love into the astringent quality again, together with the new-generated spirit or will, then the astringent quality rejoiceth in the new young son, and elevateth itself.

121. Then the tone lays hold thereon, and goeth forth therewith at the mouth, eyes, ears and nostrils, and executeth that which is decreed in the council of the seven spirits: for as the decree of the council is, so also is the spirit; and the council can alter the same as it will.

122. Therefore the original lust sticketh in the circle of the heart, in the council of the seven spirits; and as they generate the spirit, so also it is.

123. So in this manner lord Lucifer brought the Deity into anger and wrath; ["that is, kindled the eternal nature according to the first Principle;"] seeing he, together with all his angels, as a malicious devil, fought or strove against the Deity, intending to bring and subdue the whole circumference, circuit or region under his innate spirits, that they should form, frame, figure and image all, and the whole circumference, region or extent should bow, yield and suffer itself to be ruled and formed by the kindled sharpness of the innate spirits.
124. As this hath a being or substance, form or condition in angels, so it hath also a being, substance, form or condition in man. Therefore bethink and consider yourselves, you that are proud, covetous, thievish, extorting usurers, calumniating, blasphemous, envious, and whorish or lascivious, what manner of little son or spirit you send into God.

["The soul was originally comprehended in "the eternal nature with the Word Fiat, which is "God's nature according to the first Principle "and eternal original of nature; and if it "kindleth itself in the original, then it kindleth "God's wrath in the eternal nature.""]

Objection.

Thou wilt say, We do not send this into God, but only into our neighbour, or into his work which we like and have a mind to, [or meddle with in our minds.]

Answer.

125. Now shew thou me any place, to which thou sendest thy covetous or lustful spirit, where God is not; be it to man, beasts, garments, fields, money or anything whatsoever. From him is all, and he is in all, he himself is all, and he upholdeth and supporteth all.

Objection.

Then thou wilt say, But he is with his wrath in many things which are so hard and evil that they are not suitable to or capable of the Deity.

Answer.

126. Yes, dear man, all this is true: The wrath of God is certainly everywhere all over, in silver, gold, stones, fields, garments, beasts and men, and all whatsoever is comprehensible and palpable; otherwise they would not be so hard and harsh to be felt, as they are.

127. But thou must know that the kernel of love also sticketh in all in the hidden centre, unless it be altogether too evil; and so evil a thing man hath no liking for at all.

"God possesseth all, only as to nature, he is not the essence, he possesseth himself."

Or dost thou think thou dost well, if thou bathest or soakest thyself in God's wrath? Take heed, that it doth not kindle thy body and soul, and so thou wilt burn therein eternally, as befell Lucifer.

128. But when God shall bring forth the hidden things, at the end of this time, then you will discern in what God's love or wrath hath been. Therefore have a care, and take heed, and turn thy eyes from evil, or else thou undoest thyself, and so bringest thyself into perdition.

129. I take heaven and earth to witness, that I have performed here as God hath revealed to me, that it is his will.

130. Thus hath king Lucifer in his body turned the sweet water into a sour sharpness, intending therewith, in his haughty-mindedness, to rule in the whole Deity.

131. He hath brought it so far to pass that, in this world, with that sharpness, he reacheth into the heart of all living creatures, as also into vegetables, leaves and grass, and into all other things, as a king and prince of this world.

132. And if the divine love were not yet in the whole nature of this world, and if we poor men and creatures had not in and about us the Champion in the fight, we should all perish in a moment, in the hellish horrible abominations.

133. Therefore we sing very rightly thus;

Mitten wir im Leben seynd. Mit dem Todt umfangen;
Wo sollen wir dann fliehen hin, dasz wir Gnad erlangen?
Zu dir Herr Christ alleine.
Da ist nun Der Held im Streit, zu dem wir fliehen mussen, Welcher ist unser König,
JESUS CHRISTUS.

In the midst of this our life, death doth us round embrace,
Whither shall we flee away, that we may obtain grace?
To thee Lord Christ alone.

This is the Champion in the fight, to Him 'tis we must flee,
Who is our King,
JESUS CHRIST.

134. He hath the Father's love in him, and fighteth in divine power and might against the kindled hellish abomination. To him we must flee; and he it is that preserveth and retaineth the love of God in all things in this world; else all would be lost and perish.

Nur hoffe, wart, und beit,
Es ist noch eine Kleine Zeit,
Bis Teufels Reich darnieder leit.

Now hope, pray, and wait
But a small time, and then strait
Th' devil's kingdom will be quite down laid.*

* " Now hope, pray," etc., lit., " Only hope, wait and pray, there is but a little time, until the kingdom of the devil is put down."
Ye philosophers and jurists or lawyers, that make God to be as a devil, in saying that he willeth evil, bring in your plea, and answer once more here, and try whether you can maintain your cause to be just; if not, then the sour, sharp, tart spirit in Lucifer shall be also condemned, as a destroyer and as the enemy of God, and of all his heavenly hosts and armies.

THE FIFTEENTH CHAPTER

Of the Third Species, Kind or Form and Manner of Sin's Beginning in Lucifer.

1. THE third spirit in God is the bitter spirit, which existeth in the flash of life: for the flash of life riseth up in the sweet water through the rubbing or fretting of the astringent and hot quality; but the body of the flash abideth in the sweet water, subsisting very meekly as a light or heart, and the flash is very trembling, and by the terror, and fire, and water, and astringent spirit, it becometh bitter through the original of the water, in which it riseth up.

2. And that flash, or raging terror, or bitter spirit, is caught or laid hold on by the astringent quality, and in the clear bright light in the astringent spirit is glorified, and exceeding highly joyful; which now is the mobility, or the root of life, which in the astringent quality imageth, frameth and formeth the word, or maketh it distinct or separable, so that in the body a thought or will doth exist.
3. Now this highly triumphing and joyous spirit is very fitly and excellently, in the divine Salitter, used to the imaging or framing; because it chiefly moveth in the tone or tune, and in the love, and is nearest to the heart of God in the birth, and bound or united therewith in joy, which indeed is itself also the spring and source of joy, or the rising up in the heart of God.

4. And there is no difference here, but only such as is between the body and soul in man; and so the body signifieth or resembleth the seven qualifying spirits of the Father; and the soul signifieth or resembleth the only begotten Son of God the Father.
"The spirit of the soul signifieth or representeth the heart of God; and the soul the eye of God in the first Principle; as is declared in our third book, Concerning the Threefold Life of Man."

5. Now as the body generateth the soul,* so the seven spirits of God generate the Son; and as the soul is a peculiar distinct thing when it is generated, and yet is united with the body, and cannot subsist without the body, so also is the Son of God, when he is generated, a peculiar, several, distinct thing also, and yet cannot subsist without the Father.

* "as the body generateth the soul." Note, by St M.: "In order to avoid misunderstanding of these expressions, let the reader refer to the Preface, and to other passages, which will clearly shew how far the author was from materialistic doctrines."

Now observe,

6. Just in such a kind and manner also was the bitter quality in Lucifer, and [it] had no cause to elevate itself, neither had it any impulse to it from anything, but followed the proud loftiness of the astringent quality, as its father, and supposed also that it would reign in its kind and manner over the whole Deity, and so kindled itself in its elevation.

7. Now when it had half-generated the animated or soulish spirit in the body, that spirit became in this kind and manner a fierce, stinging, raging, kindled and tearing spirit, bitter as gall; and is rightly the quality of hell fire, a very fierce and enemicitious hostile being.

8. Now when this spirit in the animated or soulish spirit, out of or from the heart of Lucifer and his legions, roved (or speculated) into the Deity; ["that is, brought its will thereinto, as "into the genitrix;"] then it was no other than a tearing, breaking, stinging, murdering and poisonous burning: Concerning which Christ said,[John viii. 44] The devil is a liar and murderer from the beginning; and hath not continued in the truth.

9. But Lucifer intended by that means to be above God; none could domineer and rule so terribly as he himself, all must stoop to him; he would with his spirit in the whole Deity rule as a powerful king over all; seeing he was the fairest and most beautiful he would needs also be the most potent.

10. But he saw and knew very well the divine meekness, and humble being in God his Father; moreover he knew also very well, that it stood in such meekness from eternity, and that he also should generate in such meekness, as a loving and obedient son.

11. But now seeing he was so beauteously and gloriously imaged or formed as a king in nature, his beauteous form and feature tickled * him, and so he thought with himself, I am now God, and formed or framed out of God, who can vanquish me? Or who can alter or change me? I myself will be lord, and with my sharpness rule in all things, and my body shall be the image which shall be worshipped; I will prepare and erect for myself a new kingdom: for the whole circumference, extent or region is mine, I alone am God, and none else.

* "tickled" (stack), lit., "stung."

12. And in his pride he struck and smote himself with darkness and blindness, and made himself a devil, and that he must be, and abide so eternally. [" In God he knew only the Majesty, and not " the Word in the centre, which hath the fan or " casting shovel: He blinded himself with the " astringent darkness; for he would needs in- " flame himself, and rule in the fire over the " light, and over the meekness.""]

13. Now when these evil, devilish spirits (understand the centre of the genitrix) moved or boiled in God's Salitter, and made havoc, or spoiled all therein, then there was nothing but stinging, burning, murdering, robbing, and a mere opposite or contrary will.

14. For the heart of God delighted in love and meekness; and Lucifer would needs turn the same by force into a raging tyranny: So there was nothing but enmity, and a contrary or opposite will; for by force he kindled the Salitter of God, which had rested from eternity, and stood in its meekness.

15. Concerning this kindling in this circumference or extent, it is that God calls himself an angry, zealous or jealous God against those that hate him; that is, against those who kindle his wrath and fierceness still more with their diabolical spirits, with swearing, cursing, blaspheming, and all manner of furious fierceness and wrath, which stick in the heart, with pride, covetousness, envy and anger. All that whatsoever is in thee, thou castest into God; ["that is, " *into the genitrix of nature, and therefore that must be proved and tried through the fire, and " the soul's spirit also, and the wickedness or " malice must abide and remain in the fire." ]

Now thou askest, How can that be?

Answer.

16. When thou openest thy eyes, and seest the being of God [which is everywhere], then thou pricest as it were with thorns into the being of God, and movest or stirrest up the wrath and anger of God.

17. When a tone or noise soundeth in thy ears, so that thou receivest or catchest it up from the being of God, then thou infectest it, as if thou didst dart thunderclaps into it.

18. Consider what thou dost with thy nostrils, and with thy mouth, whence thy dear new-born little son rusheth forth with thy speech, as a little son of all the seven spirits; and observe whether it doth not storm and assault in God's Salitter, as Lucifer did. O, there is no difference at all in this!

19. But again, on the other side, God saith, [Exod. XX. 6.] I am a merciful God to those that love me; those I will do good to, and bless them, to a thousand generations.

Here observe:

20. Such are those who, contrary to the kindled wrath-fire, do, with their love, meekness and industrious earnest yearnings and kindlings of love with their prayers, quench the wrath-fire, and press on against the kindled fierceness.

21. Here indeed is many a hard blow or crushing; for the kindled wrath-fire of God falls many times so heavy upon them, and they know not where to bestow themselves; heavy mountains lie upon them, the love-cross presseth sore, and is heavy.

22. But this is their comfort and strong helmet against the fierceness and the kindled fire; according as the kingly prophet David saith [Psalm cxii. 4],
To the honest or the upright the light riseth up in the darkness.

23. In this strife and fight against the wrath of God, and the kindled fierceness of the devils, and of all wicked men, the light riseth up in the heart of the honest and upright; and the friendly love of God embraceth him, that he may not despair in his cross, but strive further still against the wrath and fierceness.

24. If there were not at all times some honest upright men on earth, who quench the wrath of God with their opposing, the hellish fire had kindled itself long ago; and then it would have been well seen where hell is, which men do not now believe.

25. But thus saith the spirit; as soon as the fierceness overcometh the opposition of love in this world, then the fire kindleth itself, and then there is no more time in this world.

26. But that the fierceness doth terribly burn now at present, it needs no proof here, for, by woeful experience, it is known as clear as the day.
Behold, there riseth up yet a little fire, in the opposition against the wrath, out of a singular especial love-restraint of God: When this also growth weak, then is the end of this time. See Signatura Rerum, Ch. 10, par. 11.

27. But whether Lucifer hath done rightly, in that he hath awakened and stirred up the fierceness in the Salitter of God, whence this world is become stinging, venomous, thorny, rocky, envious and evil, false or wicked, let the attorneys, proctors, advocates and defenders of Lucifer answer, and plead and justify it if they can; if not, then this third bitter, stinging, venomous spirit shall be condemned also.

Of the Fourth Kind, Species, Form or Manner of Sin's Beginning in Lucifer.

28. The fourth spirit of God is heat, which is generated between the bitter and the astringent qualities, and is conceived or bred in the sweet water, and is shining and giving light, and is the true fountain of life.

29. For in the sweet water it is very meek, from whence love existeth, and is only a loving warmth, but no fire.

30. Though indeed it be in the hidden kernel of the fire's quality or original, yet that fire is not kindled or burning, for it is generated in the sweet water.

31. Now where the water is there is no burning fire, but a pleasing warmth, and a gentle qualifying or vivifying; but if the water should be dried up, then there would be burning fire there.

32. Thus lord Lucifer thought also, that if he did but kindle his fire, then he might domineer forcibly in the divine power; for he thought it would have burnt eternally, and also have given light; his purpose was not to put out the light, but he would have it burn continually in the fire; he thought he would dry up the water, and then the light would move, stir or shine, in the burning fire.

33. But he knew not, that if he kindled the dried water, that the kernel, that is, the unctuosity, oil or heart of the water would be consumed, and that the light would turn into darkness, and the water turn into a sour stink.

34. For the oil or unctuosity in the water is generated through meekness or well-doing, and that is the unctuosity, oil, unction, marrow or fatness wherein the light becomes shining. But if the unctuosity be burnt up, then the water is turned into a sour stink, and moreover becometh very dark.

35. Thus it befell the pride of Lucifer: he triumphed a little while with his kindled light; but when his light was spent and burnt up, then he became a black devil.

36. But he supposed he would eternally reign thus in his burning light in the whole divine power, as a very terrible god, and so with his fire-spirit he wrestled with the Salitter of God, intending to kindle the whole circumference or extent of his kingdom.

37. And indeed he hath done somewhat, in that he hath set the divine power into a burning, which appeareth even in the sun and stars; also the fire in the Salitter in the elements is often kindled, so that it seemeth as if the deep were of a burning fire; of which I shall speak in another place.

"He stept back out of the meekness into the anxious fire-will, and fell into darkness. The Reader is advertised that he must not understand in any place, as if the devil had kindled "or fired the light of God; no, but the forms of nature only, out of which the light shineth.
"For he hath not comprehended the light, as "little as the fire doth, which cannot lay hold on "the light: But he entered into the fire, and is "expelled into the darkness, and hath neither fire
"nor light, besides, without or distinct from his creature.”
[Or his own creatureliness.]

38. Now in this quality king Lucifer hath prepared for himself the right hellish bath or lake.
He dares not say that God hath framed or erected the hellish quality for him, but he himself hath done it: Moreover, he hath offended the Deity, and turned the powers of God into a hellish bath or lake, for his own eternal habitation.

39. For when he and all his angels had kindled in their bodies the qualifying or fountain spirit of the fire, then the unctuosness, marrow or fatness burnt in the sweet water, and the flash or terror, which riseth up fiercely in the birth of the light, became raging and tearing, burning and stinging, and a being or substance of a mere opposite or contrary will.

40. Here, in this quality, the life was turned into a sting of death; for through heat the bitter quality grew so fierce, stinging, raging and burning, as if the whole body were mere fiery stings; these did tear and rage in the astringent quality, as if one did thrust red-hot bodkins through the body.

41. On the other side, the cold fire of the astringent quality was in a mad furious rage against the heat, and against the bitter venom or poison, like a great uproar or hurliburly; and now, furthermore, in the body of Lucifer there was nothing else but a murdering, rubbing, fretting, burning and stinging, a most horrible hellish fire.
42. This fire-spirit, and right devil's spirit, elevated itself now also in the centre of the heart, and would rule through the animated or soulish spirit, ["Hereby is understood the spirit of the will, out of the centre, which is generated out of the genitrix, viz. out of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, which is the image of God,"] in the whole divine power, and kindle the whole Salitter of God as a new and potent God; and so the formings and heavenly imagings should rise up in a horrible fiery quality, and suffer themselves to be imaged and framed according to this fierceness.

43. Now when I write of the animated soulish spirit, then you must exactly know what it is, or how it is, else thou wilt read this birth or geniture [Or nativity] in vain, and it will happen to thee as it did to the wise Heathen, who climbed up to the very face or countenance of God, but could not see it.

44. The [soulish] spirit of the soul is very much more subtle, and more incomprehensible than the body, or the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, which hold, retain and form the body; for it goeth forth from the seven spirits, as God the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son.

45. The seven qualifying or fountain spirits have their compacted or incorporated body out of nature, that is, out of the seventh nature-spirit in the divine power; which in this book I call the Salitter of God, or the Comprehensibility, wherein the heavenly figures or shapes arise.

46. And that is a spirit, as all the rest of the seven spirits are, only the other six are an incomprehensible being therein; for the divine power generateth itself in the comprehensibility of the seventh nature-spirit, as it were hidden or concealed, and incomprehensible to the creatures.

47. But the animated or soulish spirit generateth itself in the heart, out of or from the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, in that manner as the Son of God is generated, and keepeth its seat in the heart, and goeth forth from that seat in the divine power, as the Holy Ghost from the Father and the Son; for it hath the same subtleness as the Holy Spirit of God, and it uniteth, qualifieth or operateth with God the Holy Ghost.

48. When the animated or soulish spirit goeth forth out of the body, then it is one thing with the hidden Deity, and is together the midst or centre in the imaging or framing of a thing in nature, as God the Holy Ghost himself is.

49. An example whereof you have in this: as when a carpenter will build a curious house or artificial piece of architecture, or when any other artist goeth about the making of some artificial work, the hands, which signify nature, cannot be the first that begin the work: but the seven spirits are the first workmasters about it, and the animated or soulish spirit sheweth to the seven spirits the form, figure or shape of it.

50. Then the seven spirits image or frame it, and make it comprehensible, and then the hands first begin to fall to work, to make the structure according to the image or frame contrived: For a work must be first brought to the sense, before you can make it.

51. For the soul comprehendeth the highest sense, it beholdeth what God its Father acteth or maketh, also it co-operateth in the heavenly imaging or framing: and therefore it maketh a description,* draught, platform or model for the nature-spirits, shewing how a thing should be imaged or framed.

*"it maketh a description," etc., lit., "it draweth [round] a model," etc.

52. According to this delineation or prefiguration of the soul, all things in this world are made;
for the corrupted soul worketh or endeavoureth continually to bring forth or frame heavenly forms, but cannot bring that to effect, for the materials for its work are only the earthly corrupted Salitter, even a half-dead nature, wherein it cannot image or frame heavenly ideas, shapes or figures.

53. By this you may understand what great power the spirits of the expelled angels have had in the heavenly nature; and of what manner of substance this perdition or corruption is; how in their place they have corrupted and spoiled nature in heaven with their horrible kindling, from whence the horrible fierceness which is predominant in this world exists.

54. For the kindled nature burneth still continually until the Last Judgment Day, and this kindled fire, source or quality, is an eternal enmity against God.

55. But yet whether this kindled fire-spirit hath right therein, and whether God himself hath kindled it, from whence the wrath-fire existed, let the Electionists or Predestinarians, or those that dispute so about Election, justify it, and prove it in nature, if they can; if not, then this fire-spirit is to be condemned also.

Of the Fifth Kind, Species, Form or Manner of Sin's Beginning, in Lucifer and his Angels.

56. The fifth qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power, is the gracious, amiable and blessed love, which is the very glance or aspect of meekness and humility, which is also generated in the flash of life.

57. For the flash, as a crack, penetrateth suddenly, whereby joy existeth, and then the stock of the kindled light in the sweet water abideth standing, and presseth gently through the fire after the flash, even into the astringent quality, and mitigateth the fire, and maketh the astringent quality beautifully mild and soft or subtle, which is also a birth or geniture of the water.

58. But when the fire tasteth the mild, sweet and pliant taste, then is it mitigated and formeth itself into a meek warmth, very lovingly, and there riseth up a very friendly life in the fire, and penetrateth the astringent quality with this pleasing, lovely, gentle warmth, and allayeth or stilleth the cold fire, and mollifieth or suppleth the hardness, attenuateth the thick, and maketh the dark to be light.

59. But when the bitter flash, together with the astringent quality and the fire-spirit, tasteth this meekness, there is nothing else then but a mere longing, desiring and replenishing, a very gentle, pleasant tasting, wrestling, kissing and love-birth: For the severe births of all the qualifying or fountain spirits become, in this [inter]penetration very gentle, pleasant, humble and friendly, and the very Deity rightly subsisteth therein.

60. For in the first four qualifying or fountain spirits standeth the divine birth or geniture; therefore they must be very earnest and strong also, though they, too, have among them their meek mother, the sweet water; and in the fifth standeth the gracious, amiable and blessed love; and in the sixth the joy, and in the seventh the framing, imaging or comprehensibility.

61. Now, Lucifer! come on; with thy love; how hast thou behaved thyself? Is thy love also such a well-spring or fountain as this? We will now view that also, and examine what manner of loving angel thou art turned into.

Observe:
62. If Lucifer had not elevated and kindled himself, then his fountain of love would be no other than that in God, for there was no other Salitter in him than there is in God.

63. But when he elevated himself, intending to rule the whole Deity with his animated or soulish spirit, then the stock and heart of light, which is the kernel, marrow or pith of love in the sweet water, became a fierce and hotly pursuing fire, source or quality, from whence in the whole body existed a very trembling, burning government and birth or geniture.

64. Now when the animated or soulish spirit was generated in this severe and astringent fire's birth, then it pressed very furiously forth from the body into nature, or the Salitter of God, and destroyed the gracious, amiable and blessed love in the Salitter; for it pressed very fiercely, furiously and in a fiery manner through all, as a raging tyrant, and supposed that itself alone was God; itself alone would govern with its sharpness.

65. From hence now existeth the great contrary opposite will and eternal enmity between God and Lucifer; for the power of God moveth very softly, meekly, pleasantly and friendly, so that its birth cannot be conceived of or apprehended, and the spirits of Lucifer move and tear very harshly, astringently, in a fiery manner, swiftly and furiously.

66. An example whereof you have in the kindled Salitter of the stars, which because of this kindled fierceness must roll with the vanity, even to the Last Judgment Day: then the fierceness will be separated from them, and be given to king Lucifer for an eternal house.

67. But that this is a great opposite, contrary will in God, needs no proof. But a man may think, in case such a fierce fire, source or quality should rise in his body, what an untowardness and contrary will he would have in him, and how often the whole body would be in a rage and fury.

68. Which indeed befalls those who lodge the devil within them; but so long as he is but a guest, he lieth still like a tame whelp; but when he becometh the host himself, the master of the house, then he stormeth and maketh havock in the house, as he did to the body of God.

69. Therefore it is that the wrath-fire of God is yet in the body of God which is in this world, till the end, and many a creature is swallowed up and devoured in the wrath-fire, of which much is to be written, but it is referred to its proper place.

70. But now, whether God himself hath created and kindled this enmity and fierce fire-source in Lucifer, they are to plead for and justify who dispute for Predestination, Foreseeing, and the Election of Grace, and they are to prove it in nature, if they can; if not, then this corrupted fire-source, which stands in the place or stead of love, shall be condemned also.

Of the Sixth Species, Kind, Form or Manner of Sin's Beginning in Lucifer and his Angels.

71. The sixth qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power is the Mercurius, or tone or tune, wherein the distinction and heavenly joy rise up.

72. This spirit taketh its original in the fireflash, that is, in the bitter quality, and riseth up in the flash through the sweet water, wherein it mitigateth itself, so that it becometh clear and bright, and is caught or held in the astringent quality, and there it toucheth or stirreth all the spirits; and from this touching or stirring riseth up the tone; its rising source or quality standeth in the flash, and its body or root standeth in the sweet water in the love.

73. Now this tone or tune is the divine joyfulness, the triumphing, wherein the divine and meek love-play, sport or scene in God riseth up, as also the formings, imagings and all manner of ideas, shapes and figures.

74. But here thou must know that this quality penetrateth very gently and pleasantly with its touching or stirring, through all the spirits, in such a way and manner as when a pleasant and meek fire of joy riseth up in the heart of a man, in which fire of joy the animated or soulish spirit triumpheth, as if it were in heaven.

75. Now this spirit doth not belong to or concern the imaging or framing of the body, but it belongeth to the distinction, diversifying and mobility, especially to the joy, and to the distinction or difference in the imaging or shaping.
76. When the animated or soulish spirit in the centre of the heart, in the midst or centre of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, is generated, so that the will of the seven spirits is incorporated or compacted together, then the tone bringeth it forth from the body, and is its chariot, on which the spirit rideth, and executeth that which is decreed in the council of the seven spirits.

77. For the tone goeth through the animated or soulish spirit into the nature of God, and into the Salitter of the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power, which is its inceptive or beginning mother, and uniteth, qualifieth or co-operateth with the same in the forming or framing, and also in the distinguishing or diversifying of the imaging or shaping.

78. Therefore when king Lucifer, in the tone, changed or transmuted his high-spirited horse into a fiery restiveness or motion * in all the seven spirits, that was a terrible contrary or opposite will in the Salitter of God.

* "fiery restiveness or motion." St M. has, "une réaction ignée," "a fiery reaction."

79. For when his animated or soulish spirit was generated in his body, then he stung forth from his body into the Salitter of God, as a fiery serpent out of a hole.

80. But when the mouth opened to speak, that is, when the seven spirits had incorporated or compacted the word together in their will, and sent it through the tone into the Salitter of God, then it was no otherwise than if there went a fiery thunderbolt into God's nature; or as a fierce serpent, which tyrannizeth, raveth and rageth as if it would tear and rend nature all to
81. Hence taketh its original that the devil is called [Rev. xii. 9] the old serpent; and also, that there are adders and serpents in this corrupted world, moreover, all manner of vermin or venomous broods of worms, toads, flies, lice and fleas, and all such like things whatsoever; and from hence also tempestuous weather of lightning, thundering, flashing, and hailstones take their original in this world.

Observe:

82. When the tone riseth up in the divine nature, then it riseth up gently from all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits jointly together, and generateth the word or ideas, figures and shapes very gently.

83. That is, when one qualifying or fountain spirit createth a will to the birth or geniture, then it presseth very gently through the other qualifying or fountain spirits, even into the centre of the heart, and there that will is formed and approved by all the spirits.

84. And then the other six spirits speak it forth in the tone, out from God's animated or soulish spirit; understand, out from the Heart of God, out from the Son of God, which abideth standing in the centre as a compacted incorporated Word.

85. And the flash out of that same Word, or the stirring of the Word, which is the tone, goeth forth very finely and gently from the Word, and executeth, affecteth or performeth the will of the Word.

86. And that same forthgoing from the Word is the Holy Ghost, which formeth, frameth and imageth all whatsoever was decreed in the centre of the heart, in the council of the seven spirits of God the Father.

87. In such a gentle way and manner should king Lucifer also have generated, qualified or operated; and according to the right of the Deity, with his animated or soulish spirit in the Salitter, or in the nature of God, he should have helped to image or frame things, as a dear son in nature.

88. Just as a son in the house helps his father to drive or manage his work, according to his father's way and profession, kind and art; so, in the great house of God the Father, according to the manner and way of God, should Lucifer also, with his angels, have helped with his animated or soulish spirit to image all the forms, ideas and vegetations in the Salitter of God.

89. For the whole Salitter should be a house of pleasure and delight for angelical bodies, and all should rise up according to the delight of their spirit, and they should so image themselves that they would never at all have any displeasure in any figure, shape or creature, but their animated or soulish spirit should be co-operative in every imaging; and then the Salitter would have been the creature's proper own.

"The imaging out of the heavenly essences is performed magically, all according to the will and ability or potentiality of nature and the creatures."

90. If they had but continued in their meek birth or geniture, according to the divine right, then all had been their own, and their will would have been always fulfilled eternally, and nothing had been among them and in them but merely the joy of love; to speak after an earthly manner, as it were an eternal laughing, and a perpetual rejoicing in an eternal hearty delight. For God and the creatures had been one heart and one will. ["The image out of or proceeding from the soul's fire, and the love or the divine centre, are in one essence."]

91. But when Lucifer exalted himself, and kindled his qualifying or fountain spirits, then the animated or soulish spirit went forth in the tone out of or from all the bodies of Lucifer's angels into the Salitter of God, as a fiery serpent or dragon, and imaged and framed all manner of fiery and poisonous forms and images, like to wild, cruel and evil beasts.

92. And from hence the wild, fierce and evil beasts in this world have their original. For the host or army of Lucifer had kindled the Salitter of the stars and of the earth, and half killed, spoiled and destroyed it.

93. But when God, after the fall of Lucifer, made or prepared the creation of this world, then all was created out of the same Salitter wherein Lucifer had his seat: So afterwards the creatures also in this world must needs be created out of that same Salitter, which then formed themselves according to the condition or kind of the kindled qualities, evil and good.

94. That beast, which had most of the fire or the bitter or the astringent quality in the Mercurius, became also a bitter, hot and fierce beast, all according as the quality was predominant or chief in the beast.

95. This I set down here only for a manuduction; you will find it demonstrated more at large concerning the creation of this world.
96. Now, whether this fiery tone or dragonspirit in Lucifer and in his angels be right, and whether God hath thus created him, let the advocates of Lucifer, who make God to be as a devil, justify it here by their answer, and prove it in nature, if they can, whether God be such a God as willeth the evil, and hath created the evil.

97. If not, then shall this spirit also be condemned to the eternal prison; and they should give over their lying and blaspheming of God; or else they are worse than the wild Heathen or Pagans, who know nothing of God, who notwithstanding live in God, and shall sooner possess the kingdom of heaven than many of these blasphemers of God shall, which I shall also demonstrate in its proper place.

THE SIXTEENTH CHAPTER

Of the Seventh Species, Kind, Form, or Manner of Sin’s Beginning in Lucifer and his Angels.

1. HERE thou shouldst open thy eyes wide, for thou wilt see the hidden secret things which have been kept hidden from all men since the world began. For thou wilt see the murderous den of the devil, and the horrible sin, enmity and perdition.

2. The devil hath taught man sorcery or witchcraft, thereby to strengthen and fortify his kingdom. But if he had revealed to man the right, true, fundamental ground, which lurked behind or under sorcery, many would have let it alone altogether, and not have meddled with it at all.
3. Come on ye jugglers and sorcerers or witches, you that go a wooing and a whoring after the devil: Come to my school: I will shew you how, with your necromancy or art, you are carried into hell.

4. You rejoice [maliciously] with this; that the devil is in subjection to you, and ye suppose that ye are gods: Here I will describe the original and ground of necromancy, for I am become also a searcher into nature [natural philosopher], but not after your way and manner, but to discover your shame by a divine revelation, for an advertisement to this last world, and for a sentence of condemnation upon their skill and knowledge; for the judgment followeth upon knowledge.

5. Seeing the bow of fierceness is already bent, let every one look to himself, lest he be found within the limit of the mark. For the time is at hand to awake from sleep.

6. Now the seventh form, or the seventh spirit in the divine power, is nature, or the issue or exit from the other six. For the astringent quality attracteth the Salitter together, or the fabric or product of all the six spirits, even as a magnet or loadstone attracteth to itself the Salitter of the iron; and when it is attracted together, then it is a comprehensibility, in which the six spirits of God qualify, act or operate in an incomprehensible way or manner.

7. This seventh spirit hath a colour and condition or kind of its own, as all the other spirits have; for it is the body of all the spirits, wherein they generate themselves as in a body: Also out of this spirit all figures, shapes and forms are imaged or fashioned; moreover, the angels also are created out of it, and all naturality standeth
8. And this spirit is always generated from the six, and subsisteth always continually, and is never missing or wanting, nor doth ever pass away, and it again continually generateth the six; for the other six are in this seventh as in a mother, enclosed or encompassed; and they receive their nourishment, power and strength always in their mother's body or womb.

9. For the seventh spirit is the body, and the other six are the life, and in the middle centre is the heart of light, which the seven spirits continually generate as a light of life; and that light is their son; and the welling out or penetration through all the spirits expandeth itself aloft * in the heart, in the exit or rising up of the light.

* "expandeth itself aloft" — empöret (gebäret) sich. See Ch. 3, par. 67.

10. And this is the spirit of all the seven spirits, that goeth forth out of the heart of God, which there, in the seventh spirit, formeth and frameth all, and wherein the qualifying or fountain spirits, with their love-wrestling, shew themselves endlessly.

11. For the Deity is like a wheel, which with its fellies and spokes, and with all the naves, turneth about, and is fellied together, as seven wheels, so that it can go any way, forward, backward, downward, upward and crossways, without turning back.

12. Whereas yet always the form of all the seven wheels, and the one only nave in the centre of all the wheels, is fully in sight, and so it is not understood how the wheel is made; but the wheel always appears more and more wonderful and marvellous, with its rising up, and yet abideth also in its own place.

13. In such a manner the Deity is continually generated, and never passeth away, or ceaseth or vanisheth out of sight; and in this manner also is the life in angels and men continually generated.

14. According to the moving of the seven spirits of God the figures and creatures of the transitoriness are formed, but not thus generated; though indeed the birth or geniture of all the seven spirits sheweth itself therein, yet their quality standeth only in the seventh nature-spirit, which the other six spirits do form, figure, frame, alter and change, according to their wrestling and rising up.

15. Therefore also the figures, and transitory forms and creatures, are changed according to the condition of the seventh nature-spirit, in which they rise up.

16. The angels are not alone imaged or framed out of the seventh nature-spirit, as the transitory creatures are, but when the Deity moved itself to the creating of angels, then in every circle, wherein each angel was incorporated or compacted together, there the Deity, with its whole substance and being, was incorporated or compacted together, ["Understand, the two eternal Principles, viz. the fire and the light, and yet not the quality or source of the fire, but the essence of it."] and became a body, and yet the Deity continued in its seat, as before.

Understand this well:
17. The angel's body, or the comprehensibility, is from or out of the seventh spirit, and the birth or geniture in that body is the six qualifying or fountain spirits; and the spirit or the heart, which the six spirits generate in the centre of the body, in which the light riseth up, and the animated or soulish spirit out of the light, which also qualifieth, uniteth or operateth with the Deity, without, distinct from the body, that signifieth the heart of God, out of which the Holy Ghost goeth forth.

18. And it was * also from or out of the heart of God, co-united or mixed in the body of the angel in their first compacting or incorporating together; therefore the angel's government in the mind generateth itself as the Deity doth.

* " And it was " = " And the soulish spirit was "; meaning, that there was, through the soulish spirit, an admixture of the heart of God incorporated in the body of the angels in the first compaction.

19. And as in the seventh nature-spirit of God, which existeth out of the other six, there doth not stand the whole perfect knowledge of the other six spirits, for it cannot search or dive into their deep birth or geniture, in that they are its father, and generate it out of themselves.

20. So also the whole, full and perfect knowledge of God doth not stand in the angelical body, but in the spirit, which is generated in the heart, which goeth forth from the light, which qualifieth or operateth also with the heart and spirit of God, wherein the whole, full and perfect knowledge of God standeth. But the body cannot apprehend that animated or soulish spirit; as also the seventh nature-spirit comprehendeth not the deepest birth or geniture of God.

21. For when the seventh nature-spirit is generated, then it is dried by the astringent quality, and is as it were staid and kept by its father, and cannot go back again into the deep, that is, into the centre of the heart, where the son is generated, and from whence the Holy Ghost goeth forth; but must hold still as a generated body, and must give way to the qualifying or fountain veins, that is, to the spirits, to qualify, work and labour therein as they please.

22. For it is the proper house and habitation of the six spirits, which they continually build according to their pleasure, or as a garden of delight into which the master of it soweth all manner of seeds, according to his pleasure, and then enjoyeth the fruit thereof.

23. Thus the other six spirits continually erect this garden of delight and pleasure, and sow their fruits thereinto, and feed upon it to strengthen their might and joy; and this is the garden in which the angels dwell, and walk up and down in, and wherein the heavenly fruit growth.

24. But the wonderful proportion or variety of harmony, which appeareth in the growths or vegetations and figures and forms in this garden, ariseth from the qualification or operation, and from the loving, wrestling or struggling of the other spirits.

25. For that which is predominant or chief in the striving, imageth or formeth the growth and vegetation according to its kind, and the others always help to promote it; now the one, now the other, now the third, and so on.

26. Therefore also there arise so many diverse growths, vegetations and figures as are altogether unsearchable and incomprehensible to the bodily reason of the angels; but to the animated or soulish reason of the angels they are wholly, fully and perfectly comprehensible.

27. This is also wholly hidden as to my body, but not as to my animated or soulish spirit, for so long as my animated or soulish spirit qualifieth or worketh with and in God it comprehendeth the same; but when it falls into sin, then the door is shut against it, which the devil bolteth up fast, and which must, with great labour and industry of the spirit, be set open again.

28. I know very well that the wrath of the devil will mock and scoff in the hearts of many wicked men, at this revelation. For he is mightily ashamed because of this revelation; he hath also given my soul many a pang and crush for it; but I leave it to the direction of God, who will have it so; I cannot resist him, though my earthly body should go to wrack for it, yet my God will glorify me in my knowledge.

29. The glorification of this my knowledge I desire, and no other; for I know that when this my spirit in my new body, which I shall get at the day of my resurrection, out of this my now corrupted body, shall arise, that it will appear like the Deity, as also like the holy angels.

30. For the triumphing joyous light in my spirit sheweth it me sufficiently, in which I have also searched into the depth of the Deity, and described it rightly, according to my gifts and the impulse of the spirit, though in great feebleness and weakness, in that my original and actual sins have often bolted the door against me, and the devil hath danced before it, as a whorish woman, and rejoiced at my captivity and anguish; yet that will bring very little profit to his kingdom.
31. Therefore I must now look for no other than his fierce wrath, but my stay, trust and refuge is the Champion in the Fight, who hath often delivered me from his bands, in this Champion I will fight against him, till my departure out of this life.

32. If all trees were writers or clerks, and all branches were pens, and all hills were books, and all waters were ink, yet they could not sufficiently describe the lamentable misery which Lucifer, together with his angels, hath brought into his place or whole space of that world wherein he was created.

33. For he hath made the house of light to be a house of darkness, and the house of joy to be a house of mourning, lamentation and sadness; that which was the house of pleasure, delight, vivifying and refreshing, he hath made to be a house of thirst and hunger; the house of love to be a house of eternal enmity; and the house of meekness to be a house of knocking, rumbling,* thundering and lightning; the house of peace to be a house of lamenting and eternal howling; the house of laughing to be a house of eternal trembling and horror:

* "knocking, rumbling" (Pochen) See Ch. 10, par. 119.

34. The birth or geniture of light, munificence and well-doing to be an eternal hellish pain and torment; the food of pleasing relish to be an eternal abomination and stink, a loathing of all fruits; and the house of Lebanon and cedars to be a stony and rocky house of fire; the sweet scent or relish to be a stink, and a house of ruin and desolation, an end of all good; the divine body to be a black, cold, hot, eating, corroding, and yet not consuming devil, who is an enmity against God and his angels: And so he hath all the heavenly hosts or armies against him.

Now observe:
35. The learned have had many disputations, questions, conceits and opinions concerning the fierce malignity and evil that is in all the creatures in this world, and even in the very sun and stars; moreover, there are some so very poisonous and venomous beasts, worms and vegetables in this world, that thereupon rational men have justly wondered, and some have concluded peremptorily, That God must needs have willed the evil also, seeing he hath created so much that is evil; and some have laid the blame and fault thereof upon the fall of Adam, and some have imputed it to the work and doings of the devil.

36. But seeing all the creatures and vegetables were created before the time of man, therefore the fault ought not to be laid upon man; for man gat not the bestial body in his creation, but it first came to be so in his fall.

37. Neither hath man brought the malignity, poison and venom into the beasts, birds, worms, and stones, for he had not their body; otherwise if he had brought malignity and fierceness or wrath into all creatures, then he, like the devils, could never obtain God's mercy.

38. Poor man did not fall out of a resolved, purposed will, * but through the poisonous, vonomous infection of the devil, else there had been no remedy for him.
* "out of a resolved, purposed will," or, "on account of" or "in consequence of, an intentional will."

39. Now this true information thou wilt find, described here following, not from a zeal to vilify anybody thereby, but in love, and as a humble information and instruction from the abyss of my spirit, and for an assured comfort to the poor, sick old Adam, who now lieth at the point of his last departure from hence out of this world.

40. For in Christ we are all one body, therefore also this spirit would heartily fain have it so, that its fellow-members might be refreshed with a draught of the precious wine of God before their departure from hence, whereby they might encounter and stand in the great fight with the devil, and obtain the victory, that the victory of the devil in this modern drunken world might be disappointed and destroyed, and the great name of the LORD might be sanctified.

Now behold!
41. When king Lucifer, together with his angels, was so gloriously, beautifully and divinely created, as a Cherubim and king in God, then he suffered his bright, beauteous form to befool him, in that he saw how noble, glorious and fair a spirit rose up in him.

42. Then his seven qualifying or fountain spirits thought they would elevate and kindle themselves, and so they also would be as fair, glorious and mighty as the animated or soulish spirit, and thereby would domineer, by their own power and authority, in the whole court, circumference, dominion or extent as a new god.
43. They saw very well that the animated or soulish spirit qualified, mixed or operated with the heart of God; and thereupon they were resolved they would elevate and kindle themselves, hoping to be as bright, illustrious, deep and almighty as the deepest ground in the centre of the heart of God.

44. For they thought to elevate the natural body, (which was compacted together or incorporated out of the nature-spirit of God), up into the hidden birth or geniture of God, that their seven qualifying or fountain spirits might thus be as high, and as all-comprehensible as the animated or soulish spirit.

45. And the animated or soulish spirit would triumph over the centre of the heart of God, and the heart of God should be subjected under it; and so the seven spirits of God would image, frame and form all, by their animated or soulish spirit.

46. And this high mind and self-will was directly and wholly against the birth or geniture of God; for the body of the angels should abide and remain in its seat, and be nature, and, as a humble mother, hold still and be quiet, and should not have the omniscience, and own self rational comprehensibility of the heart, or of the deepest birth or geniture of the Holy Trinity; but the seven spirits should generate themselves in their natural body, as is done in God.

47. And their comprehensibility should not be in the hidden kernel, or in the innermost birth or geniture of God, but the animated or soulish spirit, which they generate in the centre of their heart, should qualify, mix or operate with the innermost birth or geniture of God, and help to form all figures, shapes and images, according to the pleasure, delight and will of the seven spirits, whereby, in the divine pomp, all might be but one heart and one will.

48. For the birth or geniture of God also is thus; the seventh nature-spirit doth not reach back into its father, which generateth it, but holdeth still and is quiet as a body, and letteth the father's will, which is the other six spirits, to form and image in it how they please.

49. Neither doth any one spirit particularly and severally reach, with its corporeal being, after the heart of God, but includeth, closeth or joineth its will with the others, in the centre, to the birth or geniture of the heart, so that the heart and the seven spirits of God are one will.

50. For this is the law of the comprehensibility, that it doth not elevate itself up into the incomprehensibility; for the power which, in the centre or midst, is compacted together or incorporated out of all the seven spirits is incomprehensible and unsearchable, but not invisible; for it is not the power of one spirit alone, but of all seven.

51. Therefore one spirit in its own body, besides and distinct from its instanding or innate instant birth or geniture, cannot reach into the whole heart of God, and examine, try and search all; for, besides and distinct from its instanding birth or geniture, it comprehends only its own birth or geniture in the heart of God; but all the seven spirits, jointly together, comprehend the whole heart of God.

["So also in man. But understand it as to " the image of God, viz. in the soul's spirit; not " in the fiery essence of the soul, but in the " essence of the light, wherein the image of God " standeth."]

52. But in the instanding or innate birth or geniture of the spirits, where the one still generateth the other, there every spirit generateth all the seven spirits, but yet only in the rising flash of the life.

53. But the heart, when it is generated, is singular or distinct, viz. a peculiar person, and yet not separated from the spirits; but the spirits cannot transmute or change themselves, in their first birth or geniture, one into another.

54. Also the second cannot change itself into the third, which is the exit of the spirit; but every birth or geniture abideth in its seat; and yet all the births or genitures together are but the one only God.

55. But seeing the body of Lucifer, was created out of nature, [which is] the most outward birth or geniture, therefore it was unjustly done that he should elevate himself into the innermost and deepest, which he could not do in the divine right, but must only so elevate and kindle himself that thereby the qualifying or fountain spirits might be set or put into the sharpest penetrating and infecting.

56. I verily suppose, indeed, that thou, fair Necromancer, hast changed thyself to purpose; and mayest well also teach men thy black art, that they perhaps might also become such potent gods as thou art.

57. Ye blind and proud necromancers, jugglers and sorcerers, your art consisteth in your changing the elements of your body by your conjurations and instruments of the qualities or qualifying properties, which you make use of to that purpose, and ye think ye have right so to do; but is it not against the birth or geniture of God? If you think not, make that appear.
58. How can you well suppose that you can change yourselves into another form? Indeed you suffer the devil thus to play the ape with you, and cheat you; and all this while you are but blind in your own skill. Though you have learned your art never so well, yet you do not know the purpose it driveth at; for the pith and heart therein is the changing or altering of the qualifying or fountain spirits, as Lucifer did, when he would needs be God.

Now thou askest, How can that be?

Answer.

59. Behold, when the corporeal, qualifying or fountain spirits set their will into sorcery or witchcraft, then the animated or soulish spirit, which they generate, and which in the astral elementary quality ruleth in the hidden and deepest centre, is clearly already a sorcerer or witch, and hath changed, transformed or metamorphosed itself into sorcery or witchcraft.

60. But the bestial body cannot follow so suddenly and nimbly, but must be charmed to it by characters and conjurations, and by some instruments for that purpose, whereby the animated or soulish spirit maketh the bestial body invisible, and changeth it into such a form as the will of the qualifying or fountain spirits was in, at the beginning of its purpose to a metamorphosis or transmutation.

61. The bestial flesh cannot well change itself, or put itself into another birth or geniture, but is brought into a slender and inferior base form, as of a beast, of wood, or such like thing which hath its body qualifying or boiling in the elements, as in their fountain.

62. But the astral spirits can well clothe themselves in another form or shape, but that continueth so long only as the birth or geniture of nature above their pole or zenith permitteth them.

63. For when it changeth itself with its wheeling and penetrating, so that another qualifying or fountain spirit becomes chief or predominant, then their art lieth down upon the ground, and their Deity in the first qualifying or fountain spirit, in which they had begun their art, hath an end.

64. Now if it be to last any longer, then it must be made again afresh according to the qualifying or fountain spirit then ruling at that present, or the devil with his animated or soulish spirit must be in the astral spirits of the body, which instantly and suddenly changeth it, or else his art is here also at an end.

65. For nature will not suffer itself to be juggled with at all times and hours, as the spirits would have it, but all must be done according to that spirit which then at that present time is lord and chief or predominant.

66. It is not that spirit of God which is lord and chief in nature, which causeth or maketh the juggling, but it is made in the fierceness of the Salitter, which lord Lucifer hath kindled with his elevation, and which is his eternal kingdom.

67. But when the power or might of that spirit is allayed, then the kindled fire can be no more useful to the juggler.

68. For the wrath-fire in nature is not, during this time of the world, the devil's own house of his power; for the love standeth hidden in the centre of the wrath-fire, and Lucifer, together with his angels, lieth imprisoned in the outward wrath-fire, even until the Judgment of God:
Then he will have the wrath-fire separated from the love, for an eternal bath or lake, and he will wash his juggler's head and face withal, doubtless.

69. This I set thee down here for a warning, that thou mayest know what manner of ground sorcery or witchcraft hath, not in such a way as if I would write any heathenish sorcery or witchcraft, neither have I learned any; but the animated or soulish spirit beholdeth their juggling, which in the body I do not understand.

70. But seeing it runneth counter, quite contrary to the love and meekness of the birth or geniture of God, and is a contrary or opposite will in the love of God, so that he is loath to hurt man, unless pressing necessity driveth him to it, therefore will the spirit have the wrathbath or lake of nature set apart to be an eternal parching or drying place for jugglers, perverters or changers of God's ordinance or order: And therein they may practise and shew forth their new deity.

Of the kindling of the Wrath-Fire.

71. Now when king Lucifer, together with all his angels, kindled himself, then the wrath-fire rose up instantly in the body, and the gracious amiable and blessed light was extinguished in the animated or soulish spirit, and became a fierce, furious, devilish spirit, all according to the kindling and will of the qualifying or fountain spirits.

72. Now this animated or soulish spirit was bound or united with the Deity, in nature, and could qualify, mix or operate in and with the same, as if it were one and the same thing; and that now darted forth out of the bodies of the devils into the nature of God, like a thief and a murderer that desired to rob, murder and spoil all, and bring all under its power, and so kindled all the seven spirits in nature. And then there was nothing else but an astringent, bitter, fiery and cracking burning, tearing and raging.

73. Thou must not think that the devil hath thus powerfully and mightily overcome the Deity. No; but he hath kindled the wrath of God, which, indeed, had otherwise rested eternally in secret, and so he hath made the Salitter of God to be a murderous den; for if fire be cast into a heap of straw, and the straw kindled, it will burn. God hath not, on that account become a devil. *

* The last clause of this par. is absent from Sparrow's translation, and it does not appear in the German ed. of 1656, nor in Schiebler's ed. It is in the German eds. of 1682, 1715 and 1730.

74. Moreover, the wrath-fire of God doth not reach in nature into the innermost kernel of the heart, which is the Son of God, much less into the secret glory or holiness of the spirit, but into the birth or geniture of the six qualifying or fountain spirits, in the place where the seventh is generated.

75. For in that place, or in this birth or geniture, is lord Lucifer become a creature, and his dominion did reach no farther or deeper than so; but if he had continued in the love, then his animated or soulish spirit had reached even to the centre of the heart of God, for love presseth or penetrateth through the whole Deity.

76. But when his love was extinguished, then the animated or soulish spirit could no more reach into the heart of God, and so his attempt was in vain; but he raved and raged in nature, that is, in the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit of God.

77. But seeing the power of all the seven spirits stood in this one, therefore also all the seven were kindled in the wrath, but yet only in the outward and comprehensible qualification or constitution.

78. For the devil could not touch the heart, neither could he touch the innermost birth or geniture of the qualifying or fountain spirits; for his glory of the seven spirits was already mortified in the first flash of kindling, and was presently held captive and imprisoned in the first exit of the animated or soulish spirit.

79. In this hour king Lucifer prepared for himself the hell and eternal perdition, which now standeth in the outermost qualifying or fountain spirit of the nature of God, or in the outermost birth or geniture of this world.

80. But when nature kindled itself thus horribly, then the house of joy came to be a house of trouble, affliction and misery. For the astringent quality became kindled in its own house, which is a very hard, cold and dark essence, like a cold, hard frosty winter, which only attracted the Salitter together, and dried it up, so that it became rugged, cold and sharp like stones, wherein the heat was captivated, imprisoned, and also attracted together, and so formed or framed into a hard, cold, dark essence.

81. When this was done the light in nature was extinguished in the outermost birth or geniture also, and all became very dark, perished and spoiled; the water became very cold and thick, and stayed here and there in the clefts.
This is the original of the elementary water on earth.

82. For before the times of the world the water was very thin or rarified, like air, and then the life was generated therein also, which water is now so mortal, corrupted, perished and spoiled, and so rolleth and runneth to and fro.

83. The gracious, amiable and blessed love which rose up in the flash of the life, became a fierce and bitter venom or poison, a very murderous den, a sting of death: The tone or tune became like the hard knocking or loud rumbling of stones, and a house of lamentation.

84. Briefly, all was a mere dark and miserable being in the whole circumference, extent or dominion, in the outermost birth or geniture of the kingdom of Lucifer.

85. But thou must not think that nature was thus corrupted and kindled even to the innermost ground, but only the outermost birth or geniture; but the innermost, in which the seven qualifying or fountain spirits generate themselves, retained its own right to itself, seeing the kindled devil could not reach into it.

86. But now the inner birth or geniture hath the fan or casting-shovel in its hand, and will one day purge its floor, and give the chaff or husks to the kingdom of Lucifer for eternal food.

87. For if the devil could have reached into the innermost birth or geniture, then instantly the whole circumference, court or extent of his kingdom would have been the kindled burning hell.

88. But now he must lie captivated and imprisoned in the outermost birth or geniture, even till the Last Judgment Day, which is at hand, and very near to be expected.

89. But Lucifer hath kindled his qualifying or fountain spirits even in the innermost birth or geniture, and now his qualifying or fountain spirits generate an animated or soulish devil's spirit, which is an eternal enemy of God.

90. For when God was angry in his outermost birth or geniture in nature, then it was not his purposed determinate will to be kindled, neither hath he effected that kindling; but he hath drawn the Salitter together, and thereby hath prepared an eternal lodging for the devil.

91. For the devil cannot be expelled quite out, away, beyond God, into another kingdom of angels; but a place must be reserved to him for a habitation.

92. Neither would God presently give him the kindled Salitter for an eternal habitation, for the internal birth or geniture of the spirits stood yet hidden therein.

93. For God intended to do somewhat else with it, and so king Lucifer would be kept a prisoner till another angelical host or army, out of the same Salitter, should come in his stead, which are men.

94. Now come on, ye advocates [or justifiers] of Lucifer, maintain the cause of your king now, and shew whether he hath done right in kindling of the wrath-fire in nature; if not, then he must bum therein eternally, and your lies against the truth must burn with him.

95. These are the seven kinds, species, forms or manners of sin's beginning, and eternal enmity against God.
Now followeth briefly concerning the four new little sons of Lucifer, which he hath generated in himself in his corporeal regimen, for which he was expelled from his place, and is become the most horrible devil.

Of the First Son, Pride.
Now it may be asked, What moved Lucifer to this, that he would needs be above God?

Answer.
96. Here thou must know, that without, distinct from himself, he had no impulse at all to his pride, but his beauty and brightness deceived him. When he saw that he was the fairest and most beautiful prince in heaven, then he despised the friendly qualifying, mixing, operating and generating of the Deity, and thought with himself that he would rule with his princely power in the whole Deity; all must stoop and bow to him.

97. But when he found that he could not effect it, then he kindled himself, intending to do it some other way; and so then the Son of Light became a Son of Darkness; for he himself consumed the power of his sweet water, and made it to be a sour stink.

Of the Second Son, Covetousness. [Avarice]
98. The second will was covetousness, which grew out of pride, for Lucifer thought with himself that he would reign over all kingdoms, as a sole god; all should bow to him, he would form and frame all with his own power; and besides, also his beauty so deceived him that he thought he would have all in his sole possession.

99. This modern world would do well to speculate on this pride and covetousness, and to consider how it is an enmity against God; and that thereby they go headlong to the devil, and there must have their jaws and throats open eternally to rob and devour, and yet find nothing but hellish abomination.

_of the_ Third Son, Envy. [Spite]

100. This son is the very gout [Podagra] of this world; for it taketh its original in the flash of pride and covetousness, and standeth on the root of life as pricking and bitter gall.

101. This spirit also came at first from pride, for pride thought and said to itself, Surely thou art beautiful, and mighty potent; and covetousness thought and said to itself, All must be thine; and envy thought and said to itself, All which is not obedient unto thee thou must kill with thy stinging; and thus it stung at the other gates of angels. But all was in vain, for its power and might reached no farther than the extent of the place out of which it was created.

_of the_ Fourth Son, Wrath. [anger]

102. This son is the very burning hellish fire, and taketh its original also from pride. For when Lucifer with his antagonistic envy could not fill his pride and covetousness, then he kindled the wrath-fire in himself, and roared therewith into God's nature, as a fierce lion, and from whence then arose the wrath of God and all evil.

103. Of which much were to be written, but [in the present book] you will find it more apprehensibly at the place concerning the creation: For there are to be found living testimonies enough, so that none need doubt whether the things be so or no.

104. Thus king Lucifer is the beginning of sin and the sting of death, and the kindling of God's wrath, and the beginning of all evil, a corruption, perdition and destruction of this world; and whatever evil is done, there he is the first author and causer thereof.

105. Also he is a murderer and father of lies, and a founder of hell, a spoiler and corrupter, and destroyer of all that is good, and an eternal enemy of God, and of all good angels and men; against whom I, and all men that think to be saved, must daily and hourly struggle and fight, as against the worst and arch enemy.

106. But seeing God hath accursed him as an eternal enemy, and condemned him unto eternal imprisonment, where God now seeth his hourglass more and more plainly before his eyes; and seeing his hellish kingdom is revealed to me by the spirit of God; so I, together with and among all holy souls of men, curse him also, and renounce and defy him as an eternal enemy, who hath often spoiled and torn up my vineyard.

107. Moreover, I defy also all his lawyers and helpers, and will, with the divine grace, from henceforth fully reveal his kingdom, and demonstratively prove, that God is a God of love and meekness [Psalm v. 4.], who willeth not the evil, and who hath no pleasure in the perdition of any, [Ezek. xviii. 23] but willeth that all men should be helped or saved. [1 Tim. ii. 4.] Then I will shew and prove also that all evil cometh from the devil, and taketh its original from him.

108. Now when this horrible Lucifer, as a tyrant and raging spoiler of all that is good, shewed himself thus terribly, as if he would kindle and destroy all, and bring all under his jurisdiction, then all the heavenly hosts and armies were against him, and he also against them all; there now the fight began, for all stood most terribly, one party against another.

109. And the great prince Michael [Rev. xii.] with his legions fought against him; and the devil with his legions had not the victory, but was driven from his place, as one vanquished. Now it may be asked, What manner of fight was this? How could they fight one with another without weapons?

Answer.

110. The spirit alone understandeth this hidden secret, which spirit must fight daily and hourly with the devil, the outward flesh cannot comprehend it; also the astral spirits in man cannot understand it, neither is it comprehended by man at all, unless the animated or soulish spirit unite, qualify and operate with the innermost birth or geniture in nature, in the centre, where the light of God is set opposite against the devil's kingdom, that is, in the third birth or geniture, in the nature of this world.

111. When it uniteth,* qualifieth or operateth with God in this seat, then the animated or soulish spirit carrieth it  into the astral; for the astral must in this place fight hourly with the devil.
* "When it uniteth," etc. The word which Sparrow has translated "it" is in the original "er," and may refer either to "man," or to "the animated or soulish spirit." St M. has chosen the former, and prints: "Lorsque dans ce siège, l'homme inqualifié avec Dieu, alors l'esprit animique," etc. "When in this seat, man uniteth . . . then the animated or soulish spirit," etc.

 "carrieth it." Here "it" refers to "the light."

112. For the devil hath power in the outermost birth or geniture of man, for his seat is there. [This seat is] the murderous den of perdition, and the house of misery and woe, wherein the devil whetteth the sting of death, and through his animated or soulish spirit he reacheth in into the heart of man, in man's outermost birth or geniture.

113. But when the astral spirits are enlightened from the animated or soulish spirit, which in the light uniteth with God, then they grow fervent, and very longing and desirous of the light. On the other hand, the animated or soulish spirit of the devil, which ruleth in the outermost birth or geniture of man, is very terrible and angry, and of a very contrary or opposite will.

114. And then there riseth up the striving or fighting fire in man, just as it rose up in heaven with Michael and Lucifer, and so the poor soul comes to be miserably crushed, stretched, tormented and put upon the rack.

115. But if it getteth the victory, then it bringeth with its piercing penetration its light and knowledge into the outermost birth or geniture of man; for it presseth back with force through the seven spirits of nature, which here I call the astral spirits, and governeth in the council [or counsel] of reason.

116. Then man first knoweth what the devil is, how much an enemy he is to him, and how great his power is; also how he must fight with him very secretly every day, hour and moment.

117. Which thing reason, or the outward birth or geniture of man, without the experience of this fight or battle, cannot comprehend. For the third or outermost birth or geniture in man, which is the carnal or fleshly birth, and which man through the first fall in his lust hath raised and prepared for himself, is the devil's castle or fort of prey or robbery and dwelling-house, wherein the devil, as in a bulwark, fighteth with the soul, and giveth it many a hard knock on the head.*

* "knock on the head" (Kopfstoss)—an obsolete word which denotes a blow given from above on the top of some object.

118. Now this birth of the flesh is not the mansion-house of the soul, but in its strife the soul goeth in with its light into the divine power, and fighteth against the murder of the devil.*

* "fighteth against the murder of the devil"="fighteth against the murder that is being committed by the devil."

119. On the other hand, the devil with his poison shooteth and darteth at the seven qualifying or fountain spirits which generate the soul, intending to destroy and to kindle them, that thereby he may get the whole body for his own propriety.

120. Now if the soul would willingly bring its light and knowledge into the human mind, then it must fight and strive hard and stoutly, and yet hath a very narrow passage to enter in at; it will often be knocked down by the devil, but it must stand to it here, like a champion in the battle.
And if it now gets the victory, then it hath conquered the devil; but if the devil prevails and gets the better, then the soul is captivated.

121. But seeing the fleshly birth or geniture is not the soul's own proper house, and that it cannot possess it as an inheritance, as the devil doth, therefore the fight and the battle lasteth as long as the house of flesh lasteth.

122. But if the house of flesh be once destroyed, and that the soul is not yet conquered or vanquished in its house, but is free and unimprisoned, then the fight is ended, and the devil must be gone from this spirit eternally.

123. Therefore this is a very difficult article to be understood; nay, it cannot be understood at all, except by experience in this fight. Though I should write many books thereof, yet thou wouldst understand nothing of it, unless thy spirit stand in such a birth or geniture, and that the knowledge be generated in thyself; otherwise thou canst neither comprehend nor believe it.

124. But if thou comprehendest this, then also thou understandest the strife or the fight which the angels held with the devils. For the angels have not flesh nor bones, no more have the devils.

125. For their bodily or corporeal birth standeth only in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, but the animated or soulish birth in the angels uniteth, mixeth or operateth with God; but it is not so in the devils.

126. Therefore thou must here know, that the angels with their animated or soulish birth, in which they qualify and unite with God, have striven and fought in God's power and spirit against the kindled devils, and turned them out from the light of God, and driven them together into a hole, that is, into a narrow court, quarter or compass, like a prison, which is the place or space in, upon and above the earth, up to the moon, which is a goddess of the earthly birth or geniture.

127. So far reacheth their extent now, till the last day, and then they will get a house in that place where the earth now is and standeth, and this will be called the burning hell. [That is, in the outermost birth in the darkness, wherein they reach not the second Principle and source or fountain of the light.]

128. Lord Lucifer, wait for it, and in the meanwhile take this for an assured prophecy concerning it; for thou wilt get the kindled Salitter in the outermost birth or geniture, (which thou thyself hast so prepared and fitted), to be thy eternal house to dwell in.

129. But not in such a form as [that in which] it now standeth, but all will be separated in the kindled wrath-fire; and the dark, hot, cold, rugged, hard, bitter, stinking refuse, will be left thee for an eternal inn and lodging.

130. Thou wilt be such an eternal, almighty god therein, as a prisoner in a deep prison or dungeon, where thou wilt neither attain nor see the eternal light of God. But the kindled bitter wrath of God will be thy boundaries, out of which thou canst never get.
THE SEVENTEENTH CHAPTER

Of the lamentable and miserable State and Condition of the corrupt perished Nature, and Original of the four Elements, instead of the holy Government of God.

1. ALTHOUGH God be an eternal, almighty regent or governor, whom none can resist, yet nature in its kindling hath now gotten a very monstrous strange government, such as was not before the times of the wrath.

2. For the six qualifying or fountain spirits did generate the seventh nature-spirit before the times of the wrath, in the place of this world, very meekly and pleasantly, as is now done in heaven, and not so much as the least spark of wrath or anger rose up therein.

3. Moreover, all was very bright and light therein, neither was there need of any other light; but the fountain or well-spring of the Heart of God enlightened all, and was a light in all, which did shine everywhere all over incessantly without any obstacle. For nature was very rarified and thin or transparent, and all stood merely in power, and was in a very pleasant lovely temper.

4. But as soon as in nature the fight began with the proud devil, then in the seventh nature-spirit, in the court, region or extent of Lucifer, which is the place of this world, all gat another form and operation.

5. For nature gat a twofold source, and the outermost birth or geniture in nature was kindled in the wrath-fire, which fire now is called the wrath of God, or the burning hell.

Note.
6. Here is required most inward sense or perception to understand this; for the place where the light is generated in the heart alone comprehendeth it, the outward man doth not comprehend it at all.

7. But behold! when Lucifer with his host or army stirred or awakened the wrath-fire in the nature of God, so that God was moved to anger in nature in the place of Lucifer, then the outermost birth or geniture in nature gat another quality, which was very fierce, astringent, cold, hot, bitter and sour.

8. The moving or boiling spirit, which before qualified or operated very meekly in nature, became, in its outermost birth or geniture, very exhalted and terrible, which now, in the outermost birth, is called the wind, or the element of air, in regard of its elevation or expansion.

9. For when the seven spirits kindled themselves in their outermost birth or geniture, then they generated such a violent moving spirit; and so the sweet water, which before the times of the wrath was very rarified and thin and incomprehensible, grew very thick and elevated and swelled, and the astringent quality grew very sharp and cold-fiery or fierce-cold, for it got a strong attracting together, like salt.

10. For the saltwater or salt [or saltpetre], which still to this day is found in the earth, hath its original and descent from the first kindling of the astringent quality; and so the stones also have their beginning and descent from thence, as also the earth.
11. For the astringent quality now attracted the Salitter very strongly together, and dried it, whence the bitter earth is proceeded; but the stones are from the Salitter which at that time stood in the power of the tone or tune.

12. For as nature, with the working, wrestling and rising up of its birth or geniture, stood in the time of the kindling, just such a matter attracted itself together.

Now it may be asked, How then is a comprehensible or palpable son come to be out of an incomprehensible mother?

Answer.

13. Thou hast a similitude of this, in that the earth and stones are proceeded out of the incomprehensibility.

14. For behold, the deep between heaven and earth is also incomprehensible, and yet the elementary qualities sometimes generate living comprehensible flesh therein, as grasshoppers, flies, and worms or creeping things.

15. Which is caused by the strong attracting together of the qualities, in which attracted Salitter the life is suddenly generated. For when the heat kindleth the astringent quality, then the life riseth up, for the bitter quality stirreth itself, which is the original of life.

16. So in like manner the earth and stones have their descent; for when the Salitter kindled itself in nature, then all became very rugged, thick and dark, like a thick dark mist or cloud, which the astringent quality dried up hard with its coldness.
17. But seeing the light in the outermost birth was extinguished, the heat also was captivated in the comprehensibility or palpability, and could no more generate its life. From thence death came into nature, so that nature or the corrupt earth could no more help it, and thereupon another creation of light must needs follow, or else the earth would have been an eternal indissolvable death; but now the earth generateth or bringeth forth fruit in the power and kindling of the created light.

Now one might ask, What is the condition then of this twofold birth or geniture? Is God then extinguished in the kindling of the wrath-fire, in the place of this world, so that nothing else is there but a mere wrath-fire? Or is the one only God become a twofold God?

Answer.
18. Thou canst not better comprehend, apprehend or understand this, than in and by thy own body, which, through the first fall of Adam with all its [the body's] birth or geniture, fitness, faculties and will, is become just such a house as the place of this world is come to be.

19. First, thou hast the bestial flesh, which is come to be so through the lustful longing bite of the apple, for it is the house of corruption. For when Adam was made out of the corrupted Salitter of the earth, that is, out of the seed, or mass, or lump which the Creator extracted out of the corrupted earth, he was not then at first such flesh, else his body had been created mortal, but he had an angelical power-body, in which he should have subsisted eternally, and should have eaten angelical fruit, which did grow for him in Paradise before his fall, before the LORD cursed the earth.
20. But seeing the seed, or mass, or lump, out of which Adam was made, was somewhat infected with the corrupt disease or malady of the devil, Adam therefore longed after his mother, that is, to eat of the fruit of the corrupted earth, which then in its outward comprehensibility was become so evil, and in the wrath-fire was become so hard, palpable and comprehensible.

21. But seeing Adam's spirit longed after that fruit which was of the quality of the corrupted earth, therefore also nature formed or framed such a tree for him as was like the corrupted earth.

22. For Adam was the heart in nature, and therefore his animated or soulish spirit did help to image, fashion or form this tree, of which he would fain eat.

23. But when the devil saw that the lust was in Adam, then he stung confidently at the Salitter in Adam, and infected yet more and more the Salitter out of which Adam was made.

24. Then it was time that the Creator should frame a wife for him, who afterwards set the sin on work, and did eat of the false, evil or corrupt fruit. Else if Adam had eaten of the tree before the woman had been made out of him, then it would have been far worse than it is.

25. But seeing this requireth a high and deep description, as also requireth much room, therefore seek for it concerning the fall of Adam, where you will find it largely described.

So now I return to the forementioned Similitude.

26. Now when Adam did eat of the fruit, which was good and evil, then he suddenly gat such a body also. The fruit was corrupt or perished, and palpable, as to this day all fruits now on earth are; and so such a fleshly and palpable or comprehensible body Adam and Eve gat instantly.

27. But now the flesh is not the whole man; for this flesh cannot comprehend or apprehend the Deity, else the flesh were not mortal and corruptible, or fading and transitory; for Christ saith, [John vi. 63]: It is the spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing. [the spirit is the life]

28. For this flesh cannot inherit the kingdom of heaven, but is only a seed which is sown into the earth, out of which will grow an impalpable or incomprehensible body, such as the first was before the fall. But the spirit is eternal life, which uniteth, qualifieth or mixeth with God, and comprehendeth the internal Deity in nature.

29. Now as man in his outward being is corrupted, and as to his fleshly birth or geniture is in the wrath of God, and is moreover also an enemy of God, and yet is but one man, and not two; and on the other hand, in his spiritual birth or geniture he is a child and heir of God, who ruleth and liveth with God, and qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the innermost birth or geniture of God; thus also is the place of this world come to be.

30. The outward comprehensibility or palpability in the whole nature of this world, and of all things which are therein, standeth all in the wrath-fire of God, for it is become thus through the kindling of nature; and lord Lucifer with his angels hath his dwelling now in the same outward birth or geniture which standeth in the wrath-fire.
31. But now the Deity is not so separated from the outward birth or geniture, as if they were two things in this world; if so, man could have no hope, and then this world did not stand in the power and love of God.

32. But the Deity is in the outward birth, hidden, and hath the fan or casting shovel in its hand, and will one day cast the chaff and the kindled Salitter upon a heap, and will draw away from it its inward birth or geniture, and give them to lord Lucifer and his crew of followers for an eternal house.

33. In the meanwhile lord Lucifer must lie captive and imprisoned in the outermost birth in the nature of this world, in the kindled wrathfire; and therein he hath great power, and can reach into the heart of all creatures with his animated or soulish spirit in the outermost birth or geniture, which standeth in the wrath-fire.

34. Therefore the soul of man must fight and strive continually with the devil, for he still presents before it the crab-apples of Paradise—"That is, the fierce source of malignity, "wherewith the soul is infected."—and invites it also to bite thereof, that he thereby may also bring it into his prison.

35. If that will not succeed to his purpose, then he strikes many a hard blow at the head, and that man must continually lie under the cross, affliction and misery in this world.

36. For he hideth the noble grain of mustardseed, so that man doth not know himself. And then the world supposeth that the man is thus plagued and smitten of God, whereby the devil's kingdom remaineth always hidden and undiscovered.
37. But stay a little; thou hast given me also many a blow, I have experimental knowledge of thee, and here I will open thy door to thee a little, that another also may see what thou art.

THE EIGHTEENTH CHAPTER

Of the Creation of Heaven and Earth; and of the first Day.

1. MOSES writeth in his first book [Genesis] as if he had been present, and had beheld all with his eyes; but without doubt he received it in writing from his forefathers: It may be he,
in the spirit, might well have discerned somewhat more herein than his forefathers did.

2. But because at that time, when God created heaven and earth, there was yet no man who saw it, therefore it may be concluded that Adam before his fall, while he was yet in the deep knowledge of God, knew it in the spirit.

3. But yet when he fell, and was set into the outward birth or geniture, he knew it no more, but kept it in remembrance, only as a dark and veiled story; and this he left to his posterity.

4. For it is manifest, that the first world before the deluge or flood knew as little of the qualities and birth or geniture of God as this last world wherein we now live knoweth: For the external fleshly birth or geniture could never apprehend or understand the Deity, otherwise somewhat more would have been written of it.
5. But seeing through the divine grace in this high article this great mystery hath been somewhat revealed to me, in my spirit, according to the inward man, (which qualifieth, mixeth and uniteth with the Deity), therefore I cannot forbear to describe it according to my gifts. And I would have the Reader faithfully admonished not to be offended at the simplicity of the author.

6. For I do it not out of a desire of boasting and vainglory, but in a humble information to the Reader, (that thereby the works of God might be somewhat better known, and the devil's kingdom revealed and laid open, seeing this present modern world moveth and liveth in all malice, wickedness and devilish vicious blasphemies) and that the world might once see in what kind of power, impulse or driving it liveth, and in what kind of inn it taketh up its lodging.

7. I do it to try whether I may, with the entrusted talent, happily get gain of usury, and not return it to my God and Creator again singly and empty, without improvement, like the lazy servant who had stood idle in the vineyard of the Lord, and would require his wages without having laboured at all.

8. But if the devil should raise mockers and despisers, who would say it doth not become me to climb so high into the Deity, and to dive so deeply thereinto:

9. To all of them I give this for an answer. That I am not climbed up into the Deity, neither is it possible for such a mean man as I am to do it; but the Deity is climbed up into me, and from its love are these things revealed to me, which otherwise I, in my half-dead fleshly birth or geniture, must needs have let alone altogether.
10. But seeing I have such an impulse upon me, I let him act and move in me, he who knoweth and understandeth what it is, and whose pleasure it is that I should do it; I, poor man of earth, dust and ashes, could not do it. But the spirit inviteth * and citeth all such mockers and despisers [to come] before the innermost birth or geniture of God in this world, [and] to desist from their wickedness and malice: If not, then they shall be spewed out as hellish chaff into the outermost birth or geniture in the wrath of God.

* " But the spirit inviteth," etc. St M. renders this clause: " But the spirit inviteth all these mockers and these scorners of the innermost birth," etc. This gives an entirely different meaning, which, though it may be the real sense intended by J. B., hardly seems warranted by the original, " vor die innerste Geburt."

Now observe:
11. When God was now moved to anger in the third birth or geniture, in the court, quarters or region of Lucifer, which was all the space and room or extent of this world, then the light was extinguished in the third birth or geniture, and all became a darkness, and the Salitter in the third birth or geniture was rough, wild, hard, bitter, sour, and in some parts stinking, stagnant and morass-like, all according to the birth or geniture of the qualifying or fountain spirits then at that time working.

12. For in that place wherein the astringent quality was predominant, there the Salitter was attracted together and dried, so that hard dry stones came to be; but in those places where the astringent spirit and the bitter were equally alike predominant, there sharp small gravel and sand came to be, for the raging bitter spirit brake the Salitter all to pieces.
13. But in those places where the tone, together with the astringent spirit, was predominant in the water, there copper, iron, and such like rocky ores of minerals came to be: but where the water was predominant, together with all the spirits jointly and equally, there the wild earth came to be, and the water was here and there like a cloud or vapour held captive in the clefts and veins or spaces of the rocks; for the astringent spirit, as the father of corrupted nature, held it captive with its sharp attracting together.

14. But the bitter spirit is the chief cause of the black earth, for through its fierce bitterness the Salitter became killed in its outermost birth or geniture, from whence existed the wild or barren earth.

15. But the heat in the astringent spirit chiefly helped to make the hardness; but where that [hardness] came to be, there it [the heat] generated the noblest and most precious Salitter in the earth, as gold, silver, and precious stones.

16. For when the shining light, by reason of the hard, dry and rough matter, became extinguished, then it was together dried up and incorporated in the heat, which is the father of the light.

Yet you must understand it thus:

17. Where the hot spirit in the sweet water was predominant in love, there the astringent spirit attracted the matter together, and so thereby the noblest ores of minerals and precious stones were generated.

18. But concerning precious stones, as carbuncles, rubies, diamonds, smaragdines or emeralds, onyxes and the like, which are of the best sort, they have their original where the flash of the light rose up in the love. For that flash becometh generated in the meekness, and is the heart in the centre of the qualifying or fountain spirits; therefore those stones are also meek, full of virtue, delightful, pleasant and lovely.

Now it might be asked, Why in this world is man so in love with gold, silver and precious stones, above all other things, and useth them for a defence or protection, and for the maintenance of his body? [Eccles. vii. 12]

Answer.
19. Herein lieth the pith or kernel; for gold, silver, and precious stones, and all bright ores of minerals, have their original from the light, which shone before the times of wrath in the outermost birth or geniture of nature, that is, in the seventh nature-spirit: So now, seeing every man is as the whole house of this world, therefore all his qualifying or fountain spirits love the kernel, or the best thing that is in the corrupted nature, and that they use for the defence, protection and maintenance [livelhood] of themselves.

20. But the innermost kernel, which is the Deity, that they can nowhere comprehend, for the wrath of the fire lieth before it, as a strong wall, and this wall must be broken down with a very strong storm or assault, if the astral spirits will see into it. But the door standeth open to the animated or soulish spirit, for it [the animated or soulish spirit] is withheld by nothing, but is as God himself is, in his innermost birth or geniture.

Now then it might be asked, How then shall I understand myself in or according to the threefold birth or geniture in nature?
The depth!

21. Behold, the first, innermost and deepest birth or geniture standeth in the centre, and is the heart of the Deity, which is generated by the qualifying or fountain spirits of God; and this birth or geniture is the light, which yet, though it be generated out of the qualifying or fountain spirits, no qualifying or fountain spirit of itself alone can comprehend, but every qualifying or fountain spirit comprehendeth only its own instanding, innate place or seat in the light; but all the seven spirits jointly together comprehend the whole light, for they are the father of the light.

22. Thus also the qualifying or fountain spirits of man do not wholly comprehend the innermost birth or geniture of the Deity, which standeth in the light; but every qualifying or fountain spirit reacheth, with its animated or soulish birth or geniture, into the heart of God, and uniteth, qualifieth or mixeth therewith in that place.

23. And that is the hidden birth or geniture in nature, which no man by his own reason, wit or capacity can comprehend; but the soul of that man alone who standeth in the light of God comprehends it, and no other.

The Second Birth or Geniture in Nature, are the seven Spirits of Nature.

24. This birth or geniture is more intelligible and comprehensible, but yet also only to the children of this Mystery. The ploughman doth not understand it; though he seeth, smelleth, tasteth, heareth and feeleth it, yet he but looks on it, and knoweth not how the being thereof is. ["By this is meant or understood the corrupt reason in its own wit, ingenuity or capacity, without the spirit of God. The doctor, as well "as the ploughman, is here meant, the one is as "blind as the other concerning the Deity; and "sometimes the peasant or ploughman exceeds
"the doctor in knowledge, if the peasant cleaves
"close to God."

25. Now these are the spirits wherein all things stand, both in heaven and in this world, and from these the third and outermost spirit is generated, wherein corruptibility standeth.

26. But this [third] spirit, or this birth hath seven kinds or species, viz. the astringent, the sweet, the bitter, the hot: these four generate the comprehensibility in the third birth or geniture.

27. The fifth spirit is the love, which existeth from the light of the life, which generateth sensibility and reason.

28. The sixth spirit is the tone, which generateth the sound and joy, and is the spring or source rising up through all the spirits.

29. In these six spirits now standeth the spirit of life, and the will or reason and thoughts of all the creatures; and all arts, inventions, formings and imagings of all that which standeth in the spirit in the incomprehensibility.

30. The seventh spirit is nature, in which standeth the corporeal being of all six spirits, for the six spirits generate the seventh. In this spirit standeth the corporeal being of angels, devils, and men, and it is the mother of all the six spirits, in which they generate themselves, and in which they also generate the light, which is the heart of God.
31. Now the third birth or geniture is the comprehensibility or palpability of nature, which (before the time of God's wrath) was rarified and transparent, lovely, pleasant and bright, so that the qualifying or fountain spirits could see through and through all.

32. There was neither stone nor earth therein, neither had it [the third birth or geniture] need of any such created or contracted light as now; but the light generated itself everywhere in the centre, and all stood in the light.

33. But when king Lucifer was created, then he excited or awakened the wrath of God in this third birth or geniture; for the bodies of the angels came to be creatures in this third birth.

34. Now then, seeing the devils kindled their own bodies, intending thereby to domineer over the whole Deity, therefore the creator also, in his wrath, kindled this third spirit, or this third birth or geniture in nature, and imprisoned the devil therein, and made an eternal lodging therein for him, that he might not be higher than the whole God.

["Understand, in the outward sources or qualities; for the outermost of all, is also the innermost of all."]

35. But seeing the devils kindled themselves out of pride, wantonness and wickedness; therefore they were quite thrust out from the birth or geniture of the light; and they can neither lay hold of nor comprehend it eternally.

36. For the light of their heart, which qualified, mixed or united with the heart of God, they themselves have extinguished, and instead thereof have generated a fierce, hot, astringent, bitter, hard and stinking devilish spirit.

37. But now thou must not think that thereupon the whole nature or place of this world is become a mere bitter wrath of God. No; here lieth the point: the wrath doth not comprehend the innermost birth or geniture in nature, for the love of God is yet hidden in the centre, in the whole place of this world; and so the house which lord Lucifer is to be in is not fully separated, but there is still in all things of this world both love and wrath one in the other, and they always wrestle and strive one with the other.

38. But the devils cannot lay hold on the wrestling of the light, but only on the wrestling of the wrath, wherein they are executioners or hangmen, to execute the justice or law, which was pronounced in God's wrath against all wicked men.

39. Neither ought any man to say that he is generated in the wrath-fire of the total corruption or perdition, out of God's predestinate purpose. No; the corrupted earth doth not stand in the total wrath-fire of God, but only in its outward comprehensibility or palpability, wherein it is so hard, dry and bitter.

40. Whereby every one may perceive that this poison and fierceness doth not belong to the love of God, in which there is nothing but meekness.

41. Yet I do not say this, as if every man were holy as he cometh from his mother's womb, but as the tree is, so is its fruit. Yet if a mother beareth or bringeth forth a child of the devil, the fault is not God's, but the parents' wickedness.
42. Yet if a wild twig be planted in a sweet soil, and be engrafted with some other of a better and sweeter kind, then there groweth a mild tree, though the twig were wild. For here all is possible; the evil is as soon changed into good, as the good into evil.

43. For every man is free, and is as a god to himself; in this life man may change and alter himself either into wrath or into light. Such clothes or garments as a man puts on, transfigure him. And what manner of body soever man soweth into the earth, such a body also groweth up from it, though in another form, clarity and brightness, yet all according to the quality of the seed.

44. For if the earth were quite forsaken of God, then it could never bring forth any good fruit, but mere bad and evil fruit. But seeing the earth standeth yet in God's love, therefore his wrath will not burn therein eternally, but the love which hath overcome will spew out the wrath-fire.

45. Then will the burning hell begin, when the love and the wrath shall be separated. In this world the love and the wrath are the one in the other in all creatures, and that which overcometh in the wrestling inheriteth the house by right, whether it be the kingdom of hell, or the kingdom of heaven.

46. I do not speak so, as if the beasts in their birth or geniture were to inherit the kingdom of heaven: No; for they are like the corrupted earth, evil and good; but if they be sown again into their mother the earth, then they are earth.

47. But the Salitter in a good beast will not therefore be left to the devil for a propriety, but will in the separated part, in the nature of God, eternally blossom—
"That is, their figure will stand as a shadow upon the holy ground, in the wonders, viz., in the eternal Magia:"—and bring forth other heavenly figures. But the Salitter of the beast of God's wrath will, in the wrath of God, bear eternal hellish fruits.

48. For if the earth be once kindled, then in the wrath burneth the fire, and in the love the light; and then all will be separated, for the one cannot comprehend the other any more.

49. But in this present time everything hath a twofold source and quality; whatsoever thou buildest and sowest here in the spirit, be it with words, works or thoughts, that will be thy eternal house.

50. Thus thou seest and understandest out of what the earth and stones are come to be. But if that kindled Salitter should have continued to be thus in the whole deep of this world, then the whole place thereof would have been a dark valley; for the light was imprisoned, together with and in the third birth or geniture.

51. Not that the light of the heart of God in its innermost birth is imprisoned: No; but the lustre and the shining thereof, in the third birth or geniture, was incorporated with, and in, the outermost comprehensibility; and therefore it is that men are in love with all those things which stand in that Salitter.

52. But seeing the whole deep, in the third birth or geniture, was very dark in regard of the corrupted Salitter of the earth and stones, therefore the Deity could not endure it so to be, but created and compacted together the earth and stones, as in one lump, or as on a heap. Concerning which, Moses writeth thus:
Am Anfang schuff Gott Himmel unb Erden.
In the beginning created GOD heaven and earth.

53. These words must be considered exactly, what they are. For the word (Am) conceiveth itself in the heart, and goeth forth to the lips, but there is captivated and goeth back again sounding, till it cometh to the place from whence it went forth.

54. This signifieth now, that the sound [voice of God] went forth from the heart of God, and encompassed the whole place or extent of this world; but when it [the place] was found to be evil, then the sound returned again into its own place.

55. The word or syllable (An) thrusteth itself out from the heart, and presseth forth at the mouth, and hath an after-pressure [or murmuring sound]; * but when it is spoken forth, then it closedh itself up in the nidst or centre of its seat with the upper gums [palate], and is half without and half within.

* "after-pressure," that is, a lingering emphasis. St M. aptly renders this, "une longue trace," "a long track or trail."

56. This signifieth that the heart of God had a loathing against the corruption, and so thrust away the corrupted being from himself, but laid hold on it again in the midst or centre at the heart.

57. As the tongue breaketh off or divideth the word or syllable, and keeps it half without and half within, so the heart of God would not wholly reject the kindled Salitter, but the malignity, malice and impulse of the devil; and the other part should be re-edified or built again after this time.
58. The word or syllable (-fang) goeth swiftly from the heart out at the mouth, and is stayed also by the hinder part of the tongue and the gums: and when it is let loose, it maketh another swift pressure from the heart, out at the mouth.

59. This signifieth the sudden rejection at the riddance and thrusting out of the devils, together with the corrupted Salitter; for the strong and swift spirit thrusteth the breath strongly away from it, and retaineth the true tone of the word or expression with it at the hindermost gum, and that is the true spirit of the word or syllable.

60. This signifieth that the corrupted fierceness is thrust out eternally from the light of God, but the inward spirit, which is loaded therewith against its will, shall be set again in its first house.

61. The last after-pressure (-ang) signifieth that the innermost spirits in the corruption are not altogether pure, and therefore they need a sweeping away, purging or consuming of the wrath in the fire, which will be done at the end of this time.

62. The word (Schuff) conceiveth itself above and under the tongue, and shutteth the teeth in the upper and lower gums, and so presseth itself close together, and being held together, and spoken forth again, then it openeth the mouth again swiftly, like a flash.

63. This signifieth the astringent spirit's strong driving together of the corrupted Salitter, as a lump on a heap.

64. For the teeth retain the word, letting the spirit go forth leisurely between the teeth. This signifieth that the astringent quality holdeth the earth and stones firmly and fast together; and yet, for all that, letteth the spirits of the earth spring up, grow and bear blossoms out of the astringent spirit; which signifieth the regeneration or restitution of the spirits of the earth.

65. But that the mouth is swiftly opened again after the word is ended, it signifieth, concerning the deep above the earth, that God the Lord will nevertheless dwell there, and reserve his regimen for himself, and hold the devil as a prisoner in the wrath-fire.

66. The word (Gott) conceiveth itself in the midst or centre, upon the tongue, and is thrust thither out of the heart, and leaveth the mouth open, and stayeth sitting on its royal seat, and soundeth without and within; but when it is spoken forth, then it maketh another pressure between the upper teeth and the tongue.

67. This signifieth that when God created heaven and earth, and all the creatures, he nevertheless remained in his divine, eternal, almighty seat, and never went away from it at all, and that HE alone is ALL. The last pressure signifieth the sharpness of his spirit, whereby in a moment he effecteth all in his whole body.

68. The word (Himmel) conceiveth itself in the heart, and is thrust forth to the lips, there it is shut up, and the syllable (-mel) setteth the lips open again, and is held on the middle of the tongue, and so the spirit goeth forth on both sides of the tongue out of the mouth.

69. This signifieth that the innermost birth is become shut up from the outermost by the horrible sins, and is incomprehensible to the outward corrupted birth or geniture.
70. But seeing it is a word with a twofold syllable, and that the second syllable (-mel) openeth the mouth again, it signifieth that the gates of the Deity have been opened again.

71. But that by the word or syllable (-mel) it is conceived again upon the tongue, and held fast with the upper gums, and that in the meanwhile the spirit goeth out on both sides of the tongue.

72. This signifieth that God would again give to this corrupted kingdom or place in God, a King or great Prince, who would open again the innermost birth or geniture of the clear and bright Deity, and thereby the Holy Ghost would go forth on both sides, that is, out of the innermost depth of the Father and of the Son, and would go forth again into this world, and would new regenerate this world again through the New King.

73. The word (und) conceiveth itself in the heart, and is stayed and compacted, or incorporated by the tongue on the upper gums; but when it is let loose, it maketh another pressure from the heart, out at the mouth.

74. Now this signifieth the difference or distinction between the holy birth or geniture and the earthly. This syllable cometh indeed from the heart, but is stayed by the tongue on the upper gums, so that one cannot yet perceive what kind of word it is; and this signifieth that the earthly and corrupt birth or geniture cannot lay hold on, or apprehend the innermost birth or geniture, but is foolish and silly [a foolish or silly virgin].

75. The last pressure from the heart signifieth that it [the earthly birth] will indeed qualify, mix or unite with the innermost birth or geniture in its sensibility, perception or thoughts, but cannot apprehend it in its reason; therefore this syllable or word alone by itself is dumb, and hath no signification or understanding in itself alone, but is used only for distinction’s sake, with some other word.

76. The word (Erden) is thrust forth from the heart, and is conceived on the hinder part upon the tongue, at the hinder gums, and trembleth; the tongue is used about the first syllable (Er-), yet not steadily, but the tongue recoils [or staggers] inwards at the nether gums, and croucheth as it were before an enemy, trembling.

77. The other syllable (-den) is conceived by the tongue and upper gums, and leaveth the mouth open, and the spirit of formation goeth forth at the nostrils, and will not go forth together in this word out at the mouth; and though it carrieth forth somewhat indeed along with it, yet the true tone or noise of the true spirit goeth forth only through or at the nostrils, or organ of smelling.

This is a great Mystery.

78. The word or syllable (Er-) signifieth the kindled astringent and bitter quality, the earnest severe wrath of God, which trembleth at the hinder part of the gums, before which the tongue is as it were afraid, and croucheth at the nether gums, and flieth as it were from an enemy.

79. The word or syllable (-den) conceiveth itself on the tongue again, and the spirit attracteth the power and virtue out of the word, and therewith goeth forth another way at the nostrils, and so goeth therewith up into or towards the brain before the royal seat. This signifieth that the outermost Salitter of the earth is eternally rejected from God's light and holiness.

80. But that the spirit layeth hold on the power and virtue of the word, and goeth another way through the nostrils into the brain before the throne of the senses or thoughts, signifieth that God will extract the heart of the earth from the wrath of wickedness; and use it to his eternal royal praise.

Observe:
81. He will extract from the earth the kernel, and the best or the good spirit, and will regenerate it anew, to his honour and glory.

82. Here, O man, consider thyself well, and mind what manner of seed thou sowest into the earth, the very same will spring up, and bear blossoms and fruit for ever, either in the love or in the wrath.

83. But when the good shall be separated from the evil, then thou wilt live in that part which thou hast laboured for here, be it either in heaven, or in hell-fire.

84. In whatsoever [whether a good or evil thing] thou endeavourest, labourest and actest here, into that thy soul goeth when thou diest.

85. Or dost thou think that this which I have set down here my spirit hath sucked out of the corrupted earth, or out of an old felt hat?

86. Truly no, for the spirit at this time of my description and setting it down did unite and qualify or mix with the deepest birth or geniture of God. In that I have received my knowledge, and from thence it is sucked; not in great earthly joy, but in the anxious birth or geniture, perplexity and trouble.

87. For what I did hereupon undergo, suffer and endure from the devil and the hellish quality, which as well doth rule in my outward man as in all men whatsoever, this thou canst not apprehend, unless thou also dancest in this round.

88. Had not our philosophers and doctors always played upon the fiddle of pride, but had played on the musical instrument of the prophets and apostles, there would have been far another knowledge and philosophy in the world.

89. Concerning which, in regard of my imbecility, want of literature or learning and study, as also the slowness and dulness of my tongue, I am very insufficient, but not so simple in the knowledge. Only I cannot deliver it in profound language, and in the ornament of eloquence, but I rest contented with my gift I have received, and am a philosopher among the simple.

Concerning the Creation of the Light in this World.

90. Here shut the eyes of thy flesh a little, for here they will profit thee nothing, seeing they are blind and dead, and open the eyes of thy spirit, and then I will rightly shew thee the creation of God.

Observe:

91. When God had driven the corrupted Salitter of earth and stones, (which had generated itself in the outermost birth by the kindling), together on a heap as in a lump, then, for that cause, the third birth or geniture in nature in the deep, above the earth, was not pure and bright, because the wrath of God did yet burn therein.

92. And though the innermost birth or geniture was light and bright, yet the outermost, which stood in the wrath-fire, could not comprehend it, but was altogether dark.

93. For Moses writeth,
Und es war Finster auf der Tieffe.
And it was dark on the deep.

The word (auf) on, signifieth the outermost birth or geniture, and the word (in) signifieth the innermost birth or geniture.

94. But if the innermost birth had been dark, then the wrath of God had rested in this world eternally, and it would never have been light; but the wrath hath not thus touched or reached the heart of God.

95. Therefore he is a sweet, friendly, bounteous, good, meek, pure and merciful God, according to his heart in the innermost birth or geniture in the place of this world, and still continues so to be;
and his meek love presseth forth from his heart into the outermost birth or geniture of the wrath, and quencheth the same, and therefore Sprach Er, He said, Es werde Licht, Let there be light.

Here observe the sense in the highest depth.

96. The word (Sprach) or said, is spoken after the manner of men: Ye philosophers, open your eyes. I will, in my simplicity, teach you the Sprach Gottes, the speech, speaking or language of God, as indeed it must be.*

* "as indeed it must be." St M. has, "as indeed it ought to be."

97. The word (Sprach) conceiveth itself between the teeth, for they bite or join close together, and the spirit hisseth forth through the teeth, and the tongue boweth or bendeth in the middle, and setteth its forepoint, as if it did listen after the hissing, and was afraid.

98. But when the spirit conceiveth the word, that shuts the mouth, and conceiveth it at the hinder gums upon the tongue in the hole or hollowness, in the bitter and astringent quality.

99. There the tongue is terrified, trembleth and crouceth to the nether gums, and then the spirit cometh forth from the heart, and closeth the word, which conceiveth itself at the hinder gums, in the astringent and bitter quality, in the wrath, and goeth forth mightily and strongly through the fierceness, as a king and a prince, and also openeth the mouth, and ruleth with a strong spirit from the heart through the whole mouth within, and also without the mouth, and maketh a mighty and long syllable, as a spirit which hath broken the wrath.

100. Against which the wrath, with its snarling in the astringent and bitter quality, at the hinder gums in the hollow on the tongue, struggleth, and keeps its right to itself, and keepeth its seat in its place, and lets the meek spirit come forth from the heart, through itself [the wrath], and thundereth with its [the wrath's] snarling after the meek spirit, and so helps to form or frame the word, yet with its thundering cannot get away from its seat, but abideth in its hollow hole, as a captive prisoner, and appears terrible.

101. Here observe the sense and meaning; if thou apprehendest it, then thou understandest the Deity aright, if not, then thou art yet blind in the spirit.

102. Judge not, else here thou runnest counter against a strong gate, and wilt be imprisoned; if the wrath-fire catcheth thee, then thou wilt remain eternally therein.

103. Thou child of man, behold now, how great a gate of heaven, of hell, and of the earth, as also of the whole Deity, the spirit openeth to thee.

104. Thou shouldst not think that God at that time did speak in that way as men do, and that it is but a weak, impotent word, like man's word.

105. Indeed man's word conceiveth itself just in such a form, manner, proportion, quality and correspondency; only the half-dead man doth not understand it: This understanding is very noble, dear and precious, for it is generated only in the knowledge of the Holy Ghost.

106. But God's word, which he spake then in power, hath encompassed heaven and earth, and the heaven of heavens; yea, and the whole Deity also.

107. But it frameth and conceiveth itself first between the teeth closed or clapped together, and hisseth, which signifieth that the Holy Ghost at the beginning of the creation went through the firmly closed wall of the third and outermost birth or geniture, which standeth in the wrath-fire in this world.

108. For it is written, And it was dark on the deep, and the spirit of God moved on the water. The deep signifieth the innermost birth or geniture; and the darkness signifieth the outermost corrupt birth or geniture, in which the wrath burned. The water signifieth the allaying or mitigation of the spirit.

109. But that the spirit doth hiss through the teeth signifieth that the spirit is gone forth from the heart of God through the wrath; but that the teeth remain closed together, whilst the spirit hisseth, and do not open themselves, signifieth that the wrath hath not comprehended or reached the Holy Ghost.

110. But that the tongue doth crouch towards the nether gums, and is sharp at the point, and will not be used about the hissing, signifieth that the outward birth or geniture, together with all the creatures which are therein, cannot comprehend or reach to apprehend the Holy Spirit, which goeth forth out of the innermost birth or geniture out from the heart of God, neither can they hinder him by their power.

111. For he goeth and penetrateth through all shut or closed doors, closets and births, and needs no opening of them; as the teeth cannot stay or hinder the spirit or breath from going or passing through them.

112. But that the lips stand open, when it is come hissing through the teeth, signifieth that he [The Holy Ghost] with his going forth out of the heart of God, in the creation of this world, hath opened again the gates of heaven, and is gone through the gates of God's wrath, and hath left the wrath of God strongly shut and bolted up, and hath left the devil his eternal kindled wrath-house close locked up, out of which he cannot come eternally.
113. It further signifieth that the Holy Ghost in like manner hath an open gate in the wrathhouse of this world, where he may drive and perform his work, incomprehensibly as to the gates of hell, and where he gathereth or congregateth a holy seed to his eternal praise, against or without the will of the strong, fast, hellish gates, and altogether incomprehensibly as to them.

114. But in the same way as the spirit effecteth his going forth, and his conceived or intended will, through the teeth, and yet the teeth do not stir, nor can they comprehend the will of the spirit, so the Holy Ghost also, without the apprehension or comprehension, either of the devil or of the wrath of God, buildeth or erecteth continually a holy seed or temple in the house of this world.

115. But that the whole word (Sprach) said, formeth or conceiveth itself at the hinder gums on the tongue in the hollow hole in the centre of the astringent and bitter quality, and snarleth, signifieth that God hath conceived or framed the place of this world at the heart in the midst or centre of it, and hath built to himself again a house to his praise, against all the grumbling, murmuring and snarling of the devil, in which he ruleth with his Holy Ghost.

116. And in the same way as the spirit goeth forth from the heart through the grumbling, murmuring and snarling of the bitter and astringent quality, very strongly and powerfully, and with its going forth ruleth in the astringent and bitter quality, incomprehensibly as to the astringent and bitter quality, as a potent king, so also the spirit of God ruleth in the outermost birth or geniture of this world (in the wrath-house) mightily, and generateth to himself a temple therein, incomprehensibly to the wrath-house.
117. But that the astringent and bitter spirit doth so grumble and murmur, when the spirit from the heart goeth through its house, and ruleth powerfully, signifieth that the wrath of God, together with the devils, are, in the house of this world, set in opposition to the love, so that both these, all the time of this world, must fight and strive one against the other, as two armies in the field; from whence also wars and fightings among men, and among beasts, and all creatures, have their original.

118. But that the astringent and the bitter qualities conceive themselves together with the word, and unite and agree one with the other, and yet the spirit of the heart alone speaketh forth the word at the mouth, signifieth that all creatures, which were produced and put forth by the word alone, viz. the beasts, fowls, fishes, worms, trees, leaves, herbs and grass, were formed from the whole body, being good and evil.

119. And that in all these there would stand both the angry and corrupt quality, and also the love of God; and yet all would be driven on by the spirit of love, though those two would disturb, rub, plague, squeeze and vex each other.

Note.

120. Whereby then, in many a creature the wrath-fire would be so very hard kindled that the body, together with the spirit, will afford and produce an eternal wrath-Salitter in hell.

121. For the spirit, which is generated in the heart, must in its body walk through the midst or centre of the hellish gates, and may very easily be kindled; they are as wood and fire, which will burn, if thou pourest no water in among them.
122. O man, thou wast not, by the Word, created together with and as the beasts, from good and evil; and if thou hadst not eaten of good and evil, then the wrath-fire would not have been in thee; but by that means thou hast also gotten a bestial body: It is done: The love of God take pity, and have mercy in that behalf.

123. But, that after the conceiving and compacting of the word together in the astringent quality at the hinder gums upon the tongue, the mouth openeth itself wide, and the compacted and united spirit goeth forth together at the mouth, which spirit is generated out of the heart and also out of the astringent and bitter quality, signifieth that the creatures would live in great anguish and adversity, and would not be able to generate through one body, but through two.

124. For the astringent and bitter quality receives the power from the spirit out of the heart, and infecteth or affecteth itself therewith: Therefore is nature now become too weak in the spirit of the heart, and is not able to deliver [itself from] its own innermost birth of the heart; and for that cause nature hath brought forth a male and a female.

125. Thus it denoteth also the evil and the good will in the whole or universal nature, and in all the creatures; that there would be a continual wrestling, fighting and destroying; from whence this world is rightly called a valley of misery, full of crosses, persecutions, toils and labours. For when the spirit of creation entered into the midst, and interposed its power, it was fain to make and form the creation in the midst or centre of the kingdom of hell.
126. Now seeing the outermost birth or geniture in nature is twofold, that is, both evil and good, therefore it is that there is a perpetual tormenting, squeezing, lamenting and howling; and the creatures in this life are subject to torments and afflictions, so that this evil world is justly called a murderous den of the devil.

127. But that the astringent and bitter spirit sitteth still in its seat at the hinder gums on the tongue, and thrusteth forth * the word at the mouth, and yet cannot get away from thence, signifieth that the devil and the wrath of God would indeed be domineering in all the creatures, yet would not have full power in them, but must stay in prison; and that there they would belch forth or blow into all the creatures, and plague them, but would not overcome them, unless the creatures themselves are minded to tarry there in that place.

* "thrusteth forth" (bellet), "soundeth forth," or "crieth forth." The literal meaning is, "barketh forth."

128. Just as the meek spirit of the heart goeth through the astringent and bitter quality, and overcometh it; and though it be indeed infected with the astringent and bitter spirit, yet it teareth and breaketh thorough, as a conqueror: But if it should wilfully sit still in the hollow hole * in the astringent and bitter spirit, and suffer itself to be taken captive, and would not fight, then the fault were its own.

* " in the hollow hole." This rendering is correct according to the 1682 ed., but the 1715 and 1730 eds. have, "in der Hölle," " in hell."

129. Thus it is also with those creatures that will continually sow and reap in the hellish fire, especially that man who liveth in a continual desire of pride, covetousness, envy and wrath, and will at no time fight and strive against them with the spirit and fire of love; such a one himself attracteth the wrath of God, and the burning hellish fire, upon his body and soul.

130. But that the tongue doth crouch so much towards the nether gums when the word goeth forth, signifieth and denoteth the animated or soulish spirit of the creatures, especially of man.

131. The word which conceiveth itself at the upper gums, and which qualifieth or uniteth with the astringent and bitter spirit, signifieth the seven spirits of nature, or the astral birth or geniture, in which the devil ruleth, and the Holy Ghost opposeth him therein, and overcometh the devil.

132. But the tongue signifieth the soul, which is generated from the seven spirits of nature, and is the son; and so now when the seven spirits will, then the tongue must stir, and must perform their demands.

133. If the astral spirits would not prove false, and would not woo the devil, to commit adultery with him, then they would hide the animated or soulish spirit, and hold it fast in their bands as a treasure, when they fight with the devil: Just as they hide and cover the tongue as their best jewel, when they wrestle with the astringent and bitter quality.

134. Thus you have a short and real introduction concerning the word which God hath spoken, rightly described in the knowledge of the spirit, faithfully imparted according to my gifts, and the talent I am entrusted with.
Now it may be asked, What then is it that God spake, when he said, Let there be light, and there was light?

The Depth.
135. The light went forth from the innermost birth or geniture, and kindled itself in the outermost. It gave again to the outermost a natural peculiar light of its own.

136. Thou must not think that the light of the sun and of nature is the heart of God, which shineth in secret. No; thou oughtest not to worship the light of nature, it is not the heart of God, but it is a kindled light in nature, whose power and heart stand in the unctuosity or fatness of the sweet water, and of all the other spirits in the third birth or geniture, and is not called God.

137. Though it be generated in God and from God, yet it is but the instrument of his handiwork, which cannot apprehend and reach back again to the clear Deity in the deepest birth or geniture, as the flesh cannot apprehend or reach the soul.

138. But it must not so be understood as if the Deity were separated from nature; no, but they are as body and soul: Nature is the body, and the heart of God is the soul.

Now a man might ask, What kind of light then was it that was kindled? Was it the sun and stars?

Answer.
139. No, the sun and stars were first created but on the fourth day, out of that very light: * There was a light arisen in the seven spirits of nature which had no peculiar distinct seat or place, but did shine everywhere all over, but was not bright like the sun, but like an azure blue and light, according to the kind and manner of the qualifying or fountain spirits; till afterwards the right creation and kindling of the fire in the water, in the astringent spirit, followed, viz. the sun.

* "light" = luminous, transparent, full of light. See Ch. 3, par. 50.

THE NINETEENTH CHAPTER

Concerning the Created Heaven, and the Form of the Earth, and of the Water, as also concerning Light and Darkness.

Concerning Heaven.

1. THE true heaven, which is our own proper human heaven, into which the soul goeth when it parteth from the body, and into which Christ our King is entered, and from whence it was that he came from his Father, and was born, and became man in the body or womb of the Virgin Mary, hath hitherto been close hidden from the children of men, and they have had many opinions about it.

2. Also the learned have scuffled about it with many strange scurrilous writings, falling one upon another in calumnious and disgraceful terms, whereby the holy name of God hath been reproached, his members wounded, his temple destroyed, and the holy heaven profaned with their calumniating and malicious enmity.

3. Men have always been of the opinion that heaven is many hundred, nay, many thousand miles distant from the face of the earth, and that God dwelleth only in that heaven.

4. Some naturalists [scientists] or artists have undertaken to measure that height and distance, and have produced many strange and monstrous devices. Indeed, before this my knowledge and revelation of God, I held that only to be the true heaven, which in a round circumference and sphere, very azure of a light blue colour, extends itself above the stars, supposing that God had therein his peculiar being, and did rule only in the power of his holy spirit in this world.

5. But when this had given me many a hard blow and repulse, doubtless from the [holy] spirit, which had a great longing yearning towards me, at last I fell into a very deep melancholy and heavy sadness, when I beheld and contemplated the great deep of this world, also the sun and stars, the clouds, rain and snow, and considered in my spirit the whole creation of this world.

6. Wherein then I found to be in all things, evil and good, love and anger, in the inanimate creatures, viz. in wood, stones, earth and the elements, as also in men and beasts.

7. Moreover, I considered the little spark of light, man, what he should be esteemed for with God, in comparison with this great work and fabric of heaven and earth.

8. But finding that in all things there was evil and good, as well in the elements as in the creatures, and that it went as well in this world with the wicked as with the virtuous, honest, and Godly; also that the barbarous people had the best countries in their possession, and that they had more prosperity in their ways than the virtuous, honest and Godly had.

9. I was thereupon very melancholy, perplexed and exceedingly troubled, no Scripture could comfort or satisfy me, though I was very well acquainted with it, and versed therein; at which time the devil would by no means stand idle, but was often beating into me many heathenish thoughts, which I will here be silent in.

10. But when in this affliction and trouble I elevated my spirit (for I then understood very little or not at all what it was), I earnestly raised it up into God, as with a great storm or onset, wrapping up my whole heart and mind, as also all my thoughts and whole will and resolution, incessantly to wrestle with the love and mercy of God, and not to give over, until he blessed me, that is, until he enlightened me with his holy spirit, whereby I might understand his will, and be rid of my sadness. And then the spirit did break through.

11. But when, in my resolved zeal, I gave so hard an assault, storm and onset upon God, and upon all the gates of hell, as if I had more reserves of virtue and power ready, with a resolution to hazard my life upon it, (which assuredly were not in my ability without the assistance of the spirit of God), suddenly, after some violent storms made, my spirit did break through the gates of hell, even into the innermost birth or geniture of the Deity, and there I was embraced with love, as a bridegroom embraceth his dearly beloved bride.

12. But the greatness of the triumphant that was in the spirit I cannot express, either in speaking or writing; neither can it be compared to anything, but to that wherein the life is generated in the midst of death, and it is like the resurrection from the dead.

13. In this light my spirit suddenly saw through all, and in and by all the creatures, even in herbs and grass it knew God, who he is, and how he is, and what his will is: And suddenly in that light my will was set on by a mighty impulse, to describe the being of God.

14. But because I could not at once apprehend the deepest births of God in their being, and comprehend them in my reason, there passed almost twelve years, before the exact understanding thereof was given me.

15. It was with me as with a young tree that is planted in the ground, and at first is young and tender, and flourishing to the eye, especially if it comes on lustily in its growing: But [it] doth not bear fruit at once; and though it blossoms, the blossoms fall off; also many a cold wind, frost and snow pass over it, before it comes to any growth and bearing of fruit.

16. So also it went with this spirit: The first fire was but a seed, and not a constant lasting light: Since that time many a cold wind blew upon it; but the will never extinguished.

16a. This tree was also often tempted to try whether it would bear fruit, and shew itself with blossoms; but the blossoms were struck off till this very time, wherein it standeth in its first fruit, in the growth or vegetation.

17. From this light now it is that I have my knowledge, as also my will, impulse and driving, and therefore I will set down this knowledge in writing according to my gift, and let God work his will; and though I should irritate or enrage the whole world, the devil, and all the gates of hell, I will look on and wait what the LORD intendeth with it.

18. For I am much too weak to know his purpose; and though the spirit affordeth in the light to be known some things which are to come, yet according to the outward man I am too weak to comprehend the same.

19. But the animated or soulish spirit, which qualifieth or uniteth with God, that comprehends it well; but the bestial body attains only a glimpse thereof, just as if it lightened: For thus presenteth itself the innermost birth or geniture of the soul, when it teareth through the outermost birth or geniture in the elevation of the Holy Ghost, and so breaketh through the gates of hell;
but the outermost birth presently shuts again;
for the wrath of God bolteth up the firmament, and holds it captive in its power.

20. Then the knowledge of the outward man is gone, and he walketh up and down in an afflicted and anxious birth or geniture, as a woman with child, who is in her travail, and would always fain bring forth her child, but cannot, and is full of throes.

21. Thus it goeth also with the bestial body, when it hath once tasted of the sweetness of God, then it continually hungereth and thirsteth after this sweetness: But the devil in the power of God's wrath opposeth exceedingly, and so a man in such a course must continually stand in an anxious birth or geniture; and so there is nothing but fighting and warring in his births or genitures.

22. I write this not for mine own glory, but for a comfort to the Reader, so that if perhaps he be minded to walk with me upon my narrow bridge, he should not suddenly be discouraged, dismayed and distrustful, when the gates of hell and God's wrath meet him, and present themselves before him.

23. When we shall come together over this narrow bridge of the fleshly birth or geniture, to be in yonder green meadow, to which the wrath of God doth not reach or come, then we shall greatly rejoice at all our damages and hurts which we have sustained; though indeed at present the world doth account us for fools, and we must suffer the devil in the power of God's wrath to domineer, and to rush and roar over us: It should not trouble us, for it will be a more excellent reputation to us in the other life, than if in this life we had worn a royal crown; and there is so very short a time to get thither, that it is not worth the being called a time.

Now observe:
24. If thou fixest thy thoughts concerning heaven, and wouldst fain conceive in the mind what it is, and where it is, and how it is, thou needest not to swing or cast thy thoughts many thousand miles off, for that place, or that heaven, is not thy heaven.

25. And though indeed that is united with thy heaven as one body, and so together is but the one body of God, yet thou art not in that very place which is become a creature, aloft, many hundred thousand miles off; but thou art in the heaven of this world, which containeth also in it a deep, such as is not of any human number (or is not circumscriptive).

26. For the true heaven is everywhere, even in that very place where thou standest and goest, and so when thy spirit apprehendeth the innermost birth or geniture of God, and presseth in through the astral and fleshly geniture, then it is clearly in heaven.

27. But that there is assuredly a pure glorious heaven in all the three births or genitures aloft above the deep of this world, in which God's being, together with that of the holy angels, riseth or springeth up very purely, brightly, beauteously and joyfully, is undeniable, and he is not born of God that denieth it.

But thou must know,

28. That the place of this world with its innermost birth and geniture uniteth or qualifieth with the heaven aloft above us, and so there is one heart, one being, one will, one God, all in all.

29. But that the place of this world is not called heaven, and that there is a firmament or fast enclosure between the upper heaven above us, hath this understanding or meaning, as followeth.

30. The upper heaven compriseth the two kingdoms, that of Michael, and that of Uriel, with all the holy angels that are not fallen with Lucifer, and that heaven continueth as it was from eternity, before the angels were created.

31. The other heaven is this world, in which Lucifer was a king, who kindled the outermost birth or geniture in nature; and that now is the wrath of God, and cannot be called God or heaven, but perdition.

32. Therefore the upper heaven closeth itself so far in its outermost birth or geniture, and reacheth so far as the wrath of God reacheth, and so far as the government or dominion of Lucifer hath reached, for the corrupted or perished birth or geniture cannot comprehend the pure.
33. That is, the outermost birth or geniture of this world cannot comprehend the outermost birth or geniture of heaven aloft above this world, for they are one to the other as the life and the death, or as a man and a stone are one to the other.

34. Therefore there is a strong firmament or enclosure between the outermost birth or geniture of the upper heaven, and that of this world; for the firmament between them is death, which ruleth and reigneth everywhere in the outermost birth in this world, and this world is so bolted up therewith that the outermost birth of the upper heaven cannot come into the outermost birth of this world; there is a great cleft* or gulf between them. Therefore in our outermost birth or geniture we cannot see the angels, neither can the angels dwell with us in the outermost birth of this world; but in the innermost they dwell with us.

* " cleft"—a literal translation of Kluft, gulf or chasm.

[35]. (absent - Sparrow's numbering)

36. And if or as we fight with the devil, they keep off his blows in the innermost birth, and the defence and protection of the holy soul.

37. Therefore we can neither see nor comprehend the holy angels; for the outermost birth of their body is incomprehensible to the outermost birth or geniture of this world.

38. The second birth of this world standeth in the life, for it is the astral birth, out of which is generated the third and holy birth or geniture, and therein love and wrath strive the one with the other.
39. For the second birth standeth in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of this world, and is in all places and in all the creatures, as also in man: But the Holy Ghost also ruleth and reigneth in the second birth, and helpeth to generate the third holy birth or geniture.

40. But this third birth or geniture is the clear and holy heaven, which qualifieth or uniteth with the heart of God without, distinct and above all heavens, as one heart; also they are the one heart, which, as an almighty, incomprehensible God, holdeth and beareth up or sustaineth the place of this world, and holdeth the devil captive in the outermost birth in the anger-fire.

41. And out of this heart JESUS CHRIST, the Son of God, in the womb or body of the Virgin Mary, went into all the three births or genitures, and assumed them really, that he might, through and with his innermost birth or geniture, take the devil, death and hell captive in the outermost birth, and overcome the wrath of God, as a king and victorious prince; and, in the power of his geniture or birth in the flesh, press through all men.

42. And so by this entering of the innermost birth of the heart of the heaven of this world into the astral and outermost, is JESUS CHRIST, the Son of God and of Mary, become the Lord and King of this our heaven and earth, who ruleth and reigneth in all the three births or genitures over sin, the devil, death and hell, and so we with him press through the sinful, corrupted and outermost dead birth or geniture of the flesh, through death and the wrath of God into our heaven.

43. In this heaven now sitteth our King JESUS CHRIST, at the right hand of God, and encompasseth or surroundeth all the three births, as an almighty Son of the Father, who is present in and throughout all the three births in this world, in all corners and places, and comprehendeth, holdeth and beareth up or sustaineth all, as a new-born Son of the Father, in the power, and upon the seat or throne, of the once great, mighty, potent, and now expelled, accursed and damned king Lucifer, the devil.

44. Therefore, thou child of man, be not discouraged, be not so timorous and despondent; for if thou sowest in thy zeal and earnest sincerity the seed of thy tears, thou dost not sow it in earth, but in heaven; for in thy astral birth thou sowest, and in thy animated or soulish birth thou reapest, and in the kingdom of heaven thou possessest and enjoyest it.

45. While thou livest in this struggling or striving birth or geniture thou must buckle to, and suffer the devil to ride upon thee; but so hard as he striketh thee, so hard thou must strike him again, if thou wilt defend thyself. For when thou tightest against him, thou stirrest up his wrath-fire, and destroyest his nest, and this is then as a great combustion, and as a great strong battle maintained against him.

46. And though thy body may suffer pain, yet it is much worse with him when he is vanquished, for then he roareth like a lion that is robbed of her young whelps, for the fierceness and wrath of God tormenteth him; but if thou lettest him lodge within thee, then he groweth fat and wanton, and will vanquish thee in time.

47. Thus thou hast a real description of heaven: And though perhaps thou canst not in thy reason conceive it, yet I can very well conceive it; therefore consider rationally and seriously what God is.*

* "therefore consider rationally and seriously," etc. Sparrow has added "seriously," presumably because the German vernünftig expresses not so much the idea of thinking according to the rational faculty, as thinking " in reasonableness," i.e. in a patient, open and temperate attitude of mind.

48. Thou seest in this world nothing but the deep, and therein the stars, and the birth or geniture of the elements: Now wilt thou say, God is not there? Pray then, what was there in that place before the time of the world? Wilt thou say, There was nothing? Then thou speakest without reason, for thou must needs say that God was there, or else nothing would have come to be there.

49. Now if God was there then, who hath thrust him out from thence or vanquished him, that he should be there no more? But if God is there, then he is indeed in his heaven, and, moreover, in his Trinity.

50. But the devil hath kindled the bath or lake of wrath, whence the earth and the stones, also the elements, are become so fluctuating, as also cold, bitter, and hot. And so he hath destroyed the outermost birth or geniture.

51. Whereupon now this treatise, and my whole purpose therein, is to describe how the outermost birth is come to be living and revived again, and how it regenerateth itself again. From thence [the wrath bath] also in the creatures the bestial flesh is come to be; but sin in the flesh is the wrath of God.

Another question, which is chiefly treated of in this book, is this, viz. Where then shall the wrath of God come to be?
Answer.

52. Here the spirit answereth, that at the end of the time of this corrupted birth or geniture, after the resurrection from the dead, this place or space where the earth now is will be left to the devil for a propriety or possession and house of wrath, yet not through and in all the three births or genitures, but only in the outermost, in which he now standeth: But the innermost will hold him captive in its might and strength, and use him for a footstool, or as the dust under its foot, which innermost birth he will never be able either to comprehend or to touch.

53. For it hath not this understanding or meaning, that the wrath-fire should be extinguished, and be no more; for then the devils also must become holy angels again, and live in the holy heaven; but that not being so, a hole, burrow or dungeon in this world must remain to be their habitation.

54. If man's eyes were but opened, he would see God everywhere in his heaven; for heaven standeth in the innermost birth or geniture everywhere.

55. Moreover, when Stephen saw the heaven opened, and the Lord JESUS at the right hand of God, there his spirit did not first swing itself up aloft into the upper heaven, but it penetrated or pressed into the innermost birth or geniture, wherein heaven is everywhere.

56. Neither must thou think that the Deity is such a kind of being as is only in the upper heaven, nor that the soul, when it departeth from the body, goeth up aloft into the upper heaven many hundred thousand miles off.

57. It needeth not do that, but it is set or put into the innermost birth, and there it is with God, and in God, and with all the holy angels, and can now be above, and now beneath; it is not hindered by anything.

58. For in the innermost birth the upper and nether Deity is one body, and is an open gate: The holy angels converse and walk up and down in the innermost birth of this world by and with our King JESUS CHRIST, as well as in the uppermost world aloft in their quarters, courts or region.

59. And where then would or should the soul of man rather be, than with its King and Redeemer JESUS CHRIST? For near and afar off in God is one thing, one comprehensibility, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, everywhere all over.

60. The gate of the Deity in the upper heaven is no other, also no brighter, than it is in this world: And where can there be greater joy than in that place, where every hour and moment there cometh to Christ beautiful, loving, dear, new-born children and angels, who are pressed or penetrated through death into life?

61. Doubtless they will have to tell of many fights: and where can there be greater joy, than where, in the midst or centre of death, life is generated continually?

62. Doth not every soul bring along with it a new triumph? and so there is nothing else but an exceeding friendly welcoming and salutation there.

63. Consider, when the souls of children come to their parents, who in the body did generate them, whether heaven can choose but be there?
Or dost thou think my writing is too earthly?

64. If thou wert come to this window, thou wouldst not then say that it is earthly: And though I must indeed use the earthly tongue, yet there is a true heavenly understanding couched under it, which in my outermost birth I am not able to express, either in writing or in speaking.

65. I know very well that the word concerning the three births cannot be comprehended or apprehended in every man's heart, especially where the heart is too much steeped, soaked or drowned in the flesh, and bolted or barred up with the outermost birth.

66. But I cannot render it otherwise than as it is, for it is just so; and though I should write mere spirit, as indeed and truth it is no other, yet the heart understandeth only flesh.

Concerning the Constitution and Form of the Earth

67. Many authors have written that heaven and earth were created out of NOTHING. But I wonder that, among so many excellent men, there hath not one been found that could yet describe the true ground; seeing the same God which now is, hath been from eternity.

68. Now, where nothing is, there nothing can come to be: All things must have a root, else can nothing grow: If the seven spirits of nature had not been from eternity, then there would have come to be no angel, no heaven, also no earth.

69. But the earth is come from the corrupted Salitter of the outermost birth or geniture, which thou canst not deny, when thou lookest on earth and stones, for then thou must needs say that death is therein: On the other hand also thou must needs say that there is a life therein, otherwise neither gold nor silver, nor any plant, herb, grass or vegetable, could grow therein.

Now one might ask, Are there also all the three births or genitures therein?

Answer.

70. Yes: the life presseth through death; the outermost birth is the death; the second is the life, which standeth in the wrath-fire and in the love; and the third is the holy life.

An Instruction or Information.

71. The outward earth is a bitter stink, and is dead; and that every man understandeth to be so. But the Salitter is destroyed or killed through the wrath; for thou canst not deny but that God's wrath is in the earth, otherwise the earth would not be so astringent, bitter, sour, venomous and poisonous, neither would it engender such poisonous, venomous, evil worms and creeping things. But if thou shouldst say that God hath created them thus out of his purpose, that is as much as if thou shouldst say that God himself is evil, malice, malignity or wickedness.

72. Pray tell me, Why was the devil expelled or thrust out? Surely thou wilt say, Because of his pride, in that he would needs be above God. But guess, Sir, with what the devil would be so: What power had he to do it? Here tell me, if thou knowest anything of it; if thou knowest nothing, be silent and attentive.

73. Before the times of the creation he sat in the Salitter of the earth, when the Salitter was yet thin or transparent, and stood in a heavenly, holy birth or geniture, and he was in the whole kingdom of this world, therein was neither earth nor stones, but a heavenly seed, which was generated out of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of nature; for in the kingdom of this world sprang up heavenly fruits, forms and ideas, which were a pleasant, delightful food of angels.

74. But when the wrath did burn in the seed, then the seed was killed and destroyed in death: Yet not so to be understood as if it were therefore altogether quite dead; for how can anything in God die totally, that hath had its life from eternity?

75. But I. The outermost birth or geniture was burnt up, frozen, drowned, stupefied, chilled and stark benumbed.

76. But II. The second birth or geniture generateth the life again in the outermost.

77. And III. The third [birth] is generated between the first and the second, that is, between heaven and hell, in the midst or centre of the wrath-fire, and the spirit presseth through the wrath-fire, and generateth the holy life, which standeth in the power of the love.

78. And in this same birth or geniture will those dead arise who have sown a holy seed, and those who have sown in the wrath will arise in the wrath-fire: For the earth will revive and be living again, seeing the Deity in Christ hath regenerated it anew again through his flesh, and exalted it to the right hand of God: But the wrath-fire abideth in its own birth or geniture.

79. But if thou sayest that there is no life in the earth, thou speakest as one that is blind; for thou mayest see plainly that herbs and grass grow out of it.

80. But if thou sayest it hath but one kind of birth or geniture, thou speakest again also like one that is blind; for the herbs and wood which grow out of it are not earth, neither is the fruit, which groweth upon a tree, wood; so also the power and virtue of the fruit is not God either;
but God is in the centre, in the innermost birth in all the three natural births or genitures, hiddenly, but is not known, except in the spirit of man alone; also the outermost birth in the fruit doth not comprehend, conceive or contain him, but he containeth the outermost birth of the fruit, and formeth it.

     Another Question is:
     Why then is the earth so mountainous, hilly, rocky, stony and uneven?

     Answer.
81. The hills came so to be in the driving together or compaction: For the corrupted Salitter was more abounding in one place than in another, according as the wheel of God was, as to its innate standing, or instant qualifying or fountaine spirits.*

* " according as the wheel of God was, as to its innate standing, or instant qualifying or fountaine-spirits," (als nach das Rad Gottes mit seinen instehenden Quellgeistern ist gewesen), "according as the wheel of God was, with its innate [i.e.
involved, impelled and impelling] and instant qualifying fountain-spirits." Sparrow has used "innate standing" and " instant qualifying " to render one word alone in the German,
"instehenden" (which here refers unmistakably to fountainspirits, not to the wheel). Instehend means, literally, "instanding" and " instant-ing," i.e. own, innate, involved, impelled and impelling. The phrase " instehenden Quellgeistern " means, not only that the founatn-spirits stand within the wheel (involved in it, and as it were constituting it and impelling it), but also that they are impelled to act, or qualify, instantly and invariably: where the wheel is, there they must operate. See also Ch. 13, par. 86 et seq.

82. For in those places where the sweet water in the standing wheel of God was chief or predominant, there much earthly, comprehensible or palpable water came to be.

83. But where the astringent quality in the bitterness in Mercurius was chief or predominant, there much earth and stones came to be.

84. But where the heat in the light was chief or predominant, there much silver and gold, as also some fair, clear stones, in the flash of the light, came to be; but especially where the love in the light was chief or predominant, there the most precious stones or jewels, as also the best, purest and finest gold came to be.

85. But when the lump of the earth was pressed and compacted together, then thereby the water came to be squeezed and pressed forth: But where the water was enclosed and pressed in with the astringent quality by hard rocks, there it is yet in the earth still, and hath since that time worn and made some great holes or veins for its passage.

86. In those places where there are great lakes and seas, there the water was chief or predominant over that place in that zenith or elevation of the pole; and there not being much Salitter in that place, there came to be as it were a dale or valley, wherein the water remained standing.
87. For the thin water seeketh for the valley, and is a humility of the life, which did not exalt itself, as the astringent and the bitter qualities, and the fire's quality, have done in those creatures the devils.

88. Therefore it always seeketh the lowest places of the earth; which rightly signifieth or resembleth the spirit of meekness, in which the life is generated; as you may read concerning the creation of man, as also before, concerning the species or condition of water, meekness, and suchlike qualities.

Of Day and Night.

89. The whole Deity with all its powers and operations, together with its innate or instant being, as also its rising up, penetration, changing and alteration, that is to say the whole machine, fabric and work, or the whole generating or production, is all understood in the spirit of the word.

90. For in what proportion or harmony soever, or in what innate or instant generating or production of qualities soever, the spirit comprehendeth, conceiveth and formeth the word, and goeth forth therewith, just such an innate or instant birth, penetrating, rising, wrestling and overcoming it hath also in nature.

91. For when man fell into sin, he was removed out of the innermost birth or geniture, and was set or put into the other two genitures, which presently embraced him, and mixed, qualified or united with him and in him, as in their own propriety; and so man instantly received the spirit, and all generatings or productions of the astral birth, and also of the outermost birth or geniture.
92. Therefore now it expresseth * or speaketh forth all words, according to the innate, instant generating or production of nature; for the spirit of man, which standeth in the astral birth, and qualifieth or uniteth with the total universal nature, and is as it were the whole nature itself, that formeth the word, according to the innate, instant birth or geniture.

* "Therefore now it expresseth," etc. In the German "it" may refer either to "the spirit of the astral birth," or to "man." St M. takes "man" to be the antecedent.

93. "When the spirit of man seeth anything, then it giveth a name to that thing, according to the qualification or condition of the thing; but if it is to do this, then it must form or frame or put itself also into such a form, and generate itself also, with its tone, sound or articulation, just so as the thing to which it will give a name doth generate or compose itself. Herein lieth the kernel of the whole understanding of the Deity.

94. I do not write this, and bring it to light, that others after me should presently fall a writing, and publish the conceits of their own spirit herein, and cry them up for sanctity, or for a holy thing.

95. Hearken, Friend, there belongeth more than so to this; thy animated or soulish spirit must first qualify, operate or unite with the innermost birth or geniture in God, and stand in the light, that it may rightly know and understand the astral birth or geniture, and that it may have a free and open gate into all the births or genitures; otherwise thou wilt not be able to write a holy and true philosophy, but a philosophy full of lice and fleas, as it were, and so thou wilt be found a mocker against God.
96. I conceive already that the devil will get many a one to ride upon his proud prancing nag; and many will make themselves ready for the journey before they be well girt [with the girdle of truth]; but I will not bear the blame for that.

97. For what I here reveal or manifest I must do; for the time of breaking through is at hand: He that will now sleep, the stormy tempest of the fierceness will rouse him.

98. But now, that every one might have a care of his affairs and doings, I would have men faithfully warned, according to the impulse, driving and will of the spirit.

Observe:
99. The writer, Moses, saith, [Gen. i.] God separated the light from the darkness, and called the light day, and the darkness night, so out of evening and morning the first day came to be.

100. But seeing these words, evening and morning, are contrary to the current of philosophy and reason, therefore it may be conceived that Moses was not the sole original author thereof, but that it was derived down to him from his forefathers, who reckoned all the six days of the creation in one continued course, and preserved and kept the memory of the creation from Adam, in an obscure word, and so left it to posterity.

101. For evening and morning were not before the time of the sun and stars, which most certainly and really were first created but on the fourth day, which I shall demonstrate from an assured, certain ground, concerning the creation of the sun and stars.
102. But there was day and night, which I will here declare according to my knowledge: Thou must here once more open wide the eyes of thy spirit, if thou intendest to understand it; if not, then thou wilt remain blind.

103. Though this great work in man hath remained hidden till this very day, yet God be praised, it will now once be day, for the dayspring or morning-redness breaketh forth. The breaker - through, or opener of the innermost birth, sheweth and presenteth itself with its red, green and white flag, in the outermost birth upon the rainbow.

Observe:
Now thou objectest, How then could there be day and night, and not also morning and evening?

Answer.
104. Morning and evening are and reach up from the earth to the moon only, and take their original from the light of the sun, and this maketh evening and morning, as also the outward day, and the outward dark night, as every one knoweth.

105. But there was not a twofold creation of evening and morning at that time; but when evening and morning did once begin, they kept their constant course all along from that time to this.

Of the Day. (Tag)
106. The word (Tag) conceiveth itself at the heart, and goeth forth at the mouth through the way or passage of the astringent and the bitter qualities, and doth not awaken or rouse up the astringent and the bitter qualities, but goeth forth directly through their place, which is at the hinder gums upon the tongue, very softly or gently, and incomprehensibly as to the astringent and the bitter qualities.

107. But when it cometh forth upon the tongue, then the tongue and the upper gums close the mouth; but when the spirit thrusteth at the teeth, and will go forth, then the tongue openeth the mouth at the teeth, and will go forth before the word, and at the mouth doth as it were leap forth for joy.

108. But when the word breaketh through, then the mouth within openeth wide, and the word conceiveth itself once more with its sound behind the astringent and the bitter qualities, and rouseth them up, as if they were lazy sleepers in the darkness, and goeth forth suddenly out at the mouth.

109. Then the astringent quality drayleth [Drail, to trail] after it, as a drowsy man who is awakened from sleep; but the bitter spirit which goeth forth from the fire flash lieth still, and heareth or regardeth not, neither doth it move. These are very great things, and not so slight matters as the countryman supposeth.

110. Now, that the spirit first conceiveth itself at the heart, and breaketh through all watches and guards till it come upon the tongue, unperceived or unobserved, signifieth that the light brake forth out of the heart of God, through the corrupted, outermost, fierce, dead, bitter and astringent birth or geniture in the nature of this world, incomprehensibly both as to death and the devil, together with the wrath of God: as it is written in the Gospel of St John, [John i. 5.] The light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not.

111. But that the tongue and the upper gums close the mouth, when the spirit cometh upon the tongue, signifieth that the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of nature in this world, at the time of the creation, were not mortified and dead through the wrath of God, but were lively, active and vigorous. For the tongue signifieth or denoteth the life of nature, in which standeth the animated, soulish and holy birth or geniture:
For it is a type [prefiguration or resemblance] of the soul.

112. But that the spirit suddenly affecteth the tongue, when the spirit cometh upon it, whereupon it leapeth for joy, and will go before the spirit forth at the mouth, signifieth that the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of nature, (which are called the astral birth), when the light of God, (which is called the day), rose up in them, suddenly gat the divine life and will,
and so highly rejoiced; as the tongue in the mouth here doth.

113. But that the fore gums widen inward, and give room for the spirit to do as it pleaseth, signifieth that the whole astral birth yielded itself very friendly and courteously to the will of the light, and did not awaken the fierceness in it.

114. But that the spirit, when it goeth forth at the mouth, conceiveth itself yet once more behind the astringent quality upon the tongue at the hindermost gums, and awakeneth or rouseth up the astringent quality, being as it were asleep, and then goeth suddenly forth at the mouth:

115. It signifieth, I. That the astringent spirit indeed must hold, preserve and image or frame all in the whole nature, but this is [only] after the spirit of the light hath first formed it, and that then the light first awakeneth the astringent spirit, and giveth all into the hands thereof to hold or preserve it.
116. And that must be, because of the outermost comprehensibility or palpability, which must be held and sustained by the astringent fierceness, else nothing would subsist in its body, neither could the compressed, compacted earth and stones subsist, but would be again a broken, thick, muddy and dark Salitter, such as at first moved in the whole deep.

117. It signifieth also, II. That this Salitter, at last, when the spirit hath done with its creation and work in this world, shall be roused up and revived at the Last Judgment Day.

118. But that the spirit conceiveth itself behind the astringent quality, and not in the astringent quality, and so awakeneth or rouseth it up, signifieth that the astringent nature will not comprehend the light of God in its own proper way, but shall rejoice in the light of the grace, and be awakened or raised up thereby, and perform the will of the light; as the bestial body of man effecteth and performeth the will of the spirit, and yet these are not two severed things.

119. But that the bitter spirit lieth still, and neither heareth nor comprehendeth nor apprehendeth the work of the spirit, signifieth that the bitter wrath-fire, which ariseth in the flash of fire at the time of the birth or geniture of the light, is not awakened by the light, neither comprehendeth it, but lieth captive, imprisoned in the outermost birth or geniture, and must give leave to the spirit of light to do its work in nature, how it pleaseth, and yet can neither see nor hear nor comprehend the work of the light.

120. Therefore no man ought to think that the devil is able to tear the works of the light out of his [man's] heart, for he can neither see nor comprehend them: and though he rageth and raveth in the outermost birth in the flesh, as in his castle of robbery or fort of prey, do not despair; only take heed that thou thyself bring not the works of wrath into the light of thy heart. Then thy soul will be safe enough from the deaf and dumb devil, who is blind in the light.

121. Thou shouldst not suppose that which I write here to be as a doubtful opinion, questionable as to whether it be so or no: For the gates of heaven and of hell stand open to the spirit, and in the light it presseth through them both, and beholdeth them; also proveth or examineth them; for the astral birth or geniture liveth between them both, and must endure to be squeezed.*

* "and must endure to be squeezed"—und muss sich wol quetschen lassen = and must itself be willing to suffer the pain of being squeezed between the doors of heaven and of hell, as between a door and its jamb.

122. And though the devil cannot take the light from me, yet he often hideth or eclipseth it with the outward and fleshly birth or geniture, so that the astral birth or geniture is in anxiety, and in a strait, as if it were captivated or imprisoned.

123. These are only his blows and strokes, whereby the mustard - seed is overwhelmed, covered and obscured: Concerning which also the holy Apostle Paul saith, [Cor. xii. 7-9] that a great thorn was given him in his flesh, and he besought the Lord earnestly to take it from him, whereupon the Lord answered, Let my grace be sufficient for thee.

124. For he also was come to this place, and would fain have had the light without obstruction or hindrance, as his own in the astral birth or geniture. But it could not be; for the wrath resteth in the fleshly birth, and must bear or endure the corruption or putrefaction in the flesh: But if the fierceness should be wholly taken away from the astral birth or geniture, then, in that [birth], man would be like God, and know all things, as God himself doth.

125. Which now [in this life] at present only that soul which qualifieth, operateth or uniteth with the light of God knoweth, though it cannot perfectly bring it back again into the astral birth or geniture; for it is another person.

126. Just as an apple on a tree cannot bring its smell and taste back again into the tree, or into the earth, though it be indeed the son of the tree: So it is in nature also.

127. The holy man Moses was so high and deep in this light, that the light transfigured the astral birth also, whereby the outermost birth of the flesh in his face was transfigured; and he also desired to see the light of God perfectly, in the astral birth or geniture.

128. But that could not be; for the bar or bolt of the wrath lieth before it: For even the whole or universal nature of the astral birth in this world cannot comprehend the light of God, and therefore the heart of God is hidden and concealed, which, however, dwelleth in all places,
and comprehendeth all.

129. Thus thou seest that the day was created before the time of the sun and stars; for when God said, [Gen. i. 3] Let there be light; there the light brake through the darkness, but the darkness did not comprehend it, but remained sitting in its seat.*
130. Thou seest also how the wrath of God lieth hid and resteth in the outermost birth of nature, and cannot be awakened, unless men themselves rouse or awaken it, who with their fleshly birth or geniture qualify, operate or unite with the wrath in the outermost birth of nature.

131. Therefore if any one should be damned into hell, he ought not to say that God hath done it, or that God willeth it to be so; but man awakeneth or stirreth up the wrath-fire in himself, which, if it groweth burning, afterwards qualifyeth, mixeth or uniteth with God's wrath and the hellish fire, as one thing.

132. For when thy light is extinguished, then thou standest in the darkness, and in the darkness the wrath of God is hidden, and so if thou awakenest it, then it burneth in thee.

133. There is fire even in a stone, and if you do not strike upon the stone, the fire remaineth hidden, but if you strike it, then the fire springs forth; and then, if any combustible matter be near it, that matter will take fire and burn, and so it cometh to be a huge fire; and thus it is with man also, when he kindleth the resting wrath-fire, which otherwise is at rest.

Of the Night. (Nacht).
134. The word (Nacht) conceiveth itself first at the heart, and the spirit grunteth with or in the astringent quality, yet not wholly comprehensible to the astringent quality; afterwards it conceiveth itself upon the tongue: But all the while it grunteth at the heart the tongue shuts the mouth, till the spirit cometh and conceiveth itself upon the tongue, and then it openeth the mouth quickly, and lets the spirit go forth.
135. Now that the word conceiveth itself first at the heart, andgrunteth with or in the astringent quality, signifieth that the Holy Ghost conceived itself in the darkness upon the heart of God in the astral birth or geniture of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits: But that it grunteth within or at the astringent quality, signifieth that the darkness was a contrary or opposite will against the Holy Ghost, at or against which the spirit was displeased.

136. But that it goeth likewise through the dark way or passage, signifieth that the spirit goeth forth also through the darkness, which is yet in a quiet rest, and generateth it to be light, if it holdeth still, and doth not kindle the fire.

137. Here is the cause for the judging world, which condemneth man in his mother's body or womb, to see and consider (for it doth not know) whether the wrath-fire of the parents be fully kindled in the fruit or not, since also the spirit of God moveth in the darkness which standeth in quiet rest, and can easily generate the darkness to be light. Towards this, moreover, the hour of man's nativity is very helpful to him; and to many [it is] very harmful.

138. But that the mouth shutteth, when the spirit conceiveth itself upon the heart, and that the astringent quality grunteth against and with or in it, signifieth that the whole court, extent or place of this world was very dark in the astral, and also in the outermost birth or geniture, and by the strong going forth of the spirit became light.

139. But that the bitter spirit is not awakened, whilst the spirit goeth through its place, signifieth that the dark night in the outermost birth or geniture of this world hath never comprehended the light; also never will comprehend it in all eternity.

140. Hence it is that the creatures see the astral light with their eyes alone, else, if the darkness were not yet in the outermost birth or geniture, then the astral spirit could see through wood and stones, as also through the whole earth, and could not be hindered by anything, just as it is in heaven.

141. At the present time the darkness is separated from the light, and abideth in the outermost birth or geniture, wherein the wrath of God resteth till the Last Judgment Day; but then the wrath will be kindled, and the darkness will be the house or habitation of eternal perdition, wherein lord Lucifer, together with all wicked men who have sown into the darkness in the soil of the wrath, will have his eternal dwelling and residence.

142. But the astral birth, in which the natural light now standeth, and wherein the holy birth is generated, will be also kindled at the end of this time, and the wrath and the holy birth will be separated asunder, for the wrath will not comprehend the holy birth or geniture.

143. But the wrath in the astral birth will be given to the house of darkness for a life, and the wrath will be called the hellish fire: And the house of darkness, which is the outermost birth, will be called death: And king Lucifer will be the god therein, and his angels and all damned men will be his ministers, officers and servants.

144. In this devouring abyss will rise up all manner of hellish fruits and forms, all according to the hellish quality and kind; as in heaven there spring up heavenly fruits and forms, according to the heavenly quality and kind.

145. Thus you may understand what the creation of heaven and earth signifieth and is, also what God made on the first day. Though indeed the first three days were not distinguished or severed asunder by evening and morning, but a time is to be reckoned and accounted as of twenty-four hours, as there is on high above the moon such a time and day.

146. Secondly, it is also therefore counted for a human day, because, doubtless, the earth instantly began its revolution and did turn round about once in such a period of time, while God was separating, and so till he had separated, the light from the darkness; and thus it [the earth] performed and finished its course the first time.

THE TWENTIETH CHAPTER

Of the Second Day

1. CONCERNING the second day, it is written thus: [Gen. i 6-8] And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it be a distinction or division between the waters: So there God made the firmament, and divided the waters under the firmament, from the waters above the firmament, and it was so done. And God called the firmament, heaven; and so out of the evening and the morning the second day came to be.

2. This description sheweth once more that the dear man Moses was not the original author thereof; for it is written very obscurely and baldly, though indeed it hath a very excellent understanding and meaning.

3. Without doubt the Holy Ghost would not have it revealed, lest the devil should know all the mysteries in the creation. For the devil doth not know the creation of the light, viz. how heaven is made out of the midst or centre of the water.

4. For he can neither see nor comprehend nor apprehend the light and holy generation or production, which standeth in the water of the heaven, but he can see the generation or production only which standeth in the astringent, bitter, sour and hot quality, from whence existed the outermost birth or geniture, which is his royal fort or castle.

5. The meaning is not that he hath no power in the elementary water, to possess it; for the outermost corrupted birth or geniture in the elementary water belongeth also to the wrath of God, and death is also therein, as well as in the earth.

6. But the spirit in Moses meaneth here quite another sort of water, which the devil can neither understand nor comprehend: But if it should have been declared so long a time ago, then the devil would have learned it from man, and had without doubt strowed his hellish chaff also into it.

7. Therefore the Holy Ghost hath kept it hidden almost till the last hour before the evening, wherein his thousand years are accomplished, and then he must be let loose again for a little season, as is to be read in the Revelation [Rev. xx. 3] ["After that summer cometh the last winter; but " the sun will shine warm yet, before that time."]
8. But seeing he is now loose from the chains of darkness, God causeth lights to be set up everywhere in this world, whereby men might learn to know him, and his feats and wiles, and beware of him.

9. Whether he be loose or no I offer it to every one to consider; but view the world in the clear light, and thou wilt find, that at present the four new sons which the devil generated when he was thrust out of heaven, do govern the world, viz. 1. Pride, 2. Covetousness, 3. Envy, 4. Wrath; these rule the world at present, and are the devil's heart, his animated or soulish spirit.

10. Therefore view the world very well, and then thou wilt find that it fully qualiﬁeth, uniteth and co-worketh with these four new sons of the devil. Therefore men have cause to look circumspectly to themselves. For this is the time of which all the prophets have prophesied; and Christ in the Gospel, [Luke xviii. 8] saying, Thinkest thou that the Son of Man will ﬁnd any faith, when he shall come again to judge the world?

11. The world supposeth that it flourisheth now, and standeth in its flower, because the clear light hath moved over it. But the spirit sheweth to me that it standeth in the midst or centre of hell.

12. For it forsaketh the love, and hangeth on covetousness, extortion and bribery; there is no mercy at all therein: Every one crieth out, If I had but money! Those that are in authority and power suck the very marrow from the bones of men of low degree and rank, and feed upon the sweat of their brows. Briefly, there is nothing else but lying, deception, robbing and murdering, and so [this world] may very justly be called the devil's nest and dwelling-house.
13. The holy light is nowadays accounted a mere history and bare knowledge, and that the spirit will not work therein; and yet they suppose that is faith which they profess with their mouths.

14. O thou blind and foolish world! full of the devil. It is not faith, to know that Christ died for thee, and hath shed his blood for thee, that thou mightest be saved: This in thee is but a mere history and knowledge, the devil also knoweth as much, but it profiteth him nothing; so thou also, thou foolish world, goest no further, but contentest thyself with the bare knowledge, and therefore this thy knowledge will judge thee.

15. But if thou wouldst know what the true faith is, then observe: Thy heart must not qualify or co-operate with the four sons of the devil, in pride, covetousness, envy, wrath, extortion, oppression, lying, deceiving, murder, and tearing the bread out of thy neighbours throat, studying day and night to do mischief, in bringing subtle devices and designs to effect, that thou mayest court and give satisfaction to the fourfold devil of pride, covetousness, envy and wrath, and exercise thyself in worldly pleasures and voluptuousness.

16. For thus saith the spirit in its zeal, or in the jealousy of God’s wrath in this world: While thy spirit and will qualifieth or co-operateth with and in the four vices or sins of the devil, thou art not one spirit with God; and though thou didst every hour offer [the worship or prayer of] thy lips, and bow the knee before me, yet I will accept none of thy labour: Is not my breath, however, continually before me? What shall thy incense be to me in my fierce wrath? Dost thou think I will receive the devil into myself, or exalt hell into heaven?
17. Convert! Convert! and strive against the malice and wickedness of the devil, and incline thine heart towards the LORD thy GOD, and walk in his will. If thy heart will incline to me, saith the spirit, then will I also incline to thee: Or dost thou think that I am false and wicked, as thou art?

18. Therefore I say now, if thy heart doth not qualify, mix or co-operate with God in thy knowledge, out of a true purpose of love, then thou art a dissembler, liar and murderer in the sight of God. For God doth not hear any man's prayer, unless his heart be fully directed and bent in obedience to God.

19. Wouldst thou fight against the wrath of God? Then thou must put on the helmet of obedience and of love, otherwise thou wilt not break through; and if thou dost not break through, then thou fightest in vain, and remainest to be a servant or minister of the devil, in one way as well as in another.

20. What good will thy knowledge do thee, if thou wilt not strive and fight therein? It is just as if one knew of a great treasure, and would not go for it; but, though he knoweth he might have it, would rather starve for hunger in the bare knowing of it.

21. Thus saith the spirit, Many Heathen, who have not thy knowledge, and yet strive or fight against the wrath, will enter into the kingdom of heaven before thee.

22. For who shall judge them, if their heart do qualify, unite or operate with God? For though they do not know him, and yet work and labour in his spirit, in righteousness, and in the purity of their heart, in true love one to another, they testify assuredly that the law of God is in their heart [1 Rom. ii. 15].

23. But seeing thou knowest it, and dost it not, and the others know it not, but yet do it, they, with their doing, judge thy knowledge; and thou art found to be a hypocrite, a dissembler, and an unprofitable servant, who wert put into the vineyard of the Lord, and wilt not work therein.

24. What dost thou suppose the Master of the house will say to thee, when he shall require and demand his talent with which he entrusted thee, thou having buried it in the earth? Will he not say, Thou perverse wicked servant, why didst thou not put my talent out upon use, and then I could have demanded the principal and the interest or profit?

25. And so the sufferings of Christ will be quite taken from thee, and will be given to the Heathen, who had but one talent, and yet yielded to the Master of the house five; and thou wilt have to howl with the dogs.

Now observe:
26. If we rightly consider how God separated the water under the firmament, from the water above the firmament, then great things will be found therein.

27. For the water which resteth on the earth is as corrupt and perished and mortal or dead a being or thing as the earth is, and belongeth also to the outermost birth, which with its comprehensibility, or as to its palpability, standeth in death, even as the earth and stones do.

28. The meaning is not that the water is quite reprobated, rejected or thrust out from God; for the heart therein belongeth yet to the astral birth or geniture, out of which the holy birth becometh generated.

29. But death standeth in the outermost birth, and therefore is the palpable water separated from the impalpable.

Now thou wilt ask, How is that?

Answer.

30. Behold the water in the deep above the earth, which qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the elementary air and fire, that is the water of the astral birth or geniture, wherein standeth the astral life, and wherein especially the Holy Ghost moveth, and through which the third and innermost birth doth generate incomprehensibly as to the wrath of God therein: That water to our eyes seemeth like the air.

31. But that, in the deep above the earth, water, air and fire are one in another, every intelligent man may see and understand.

32. For thou seest that often the whole deep is very clear and pure, and then, in a quarter of an hour, is covered with watery clouds; that is, when the stars from above, and the water upon the earth from beneath, kindle themselves, and so water is suddenly there also generated; which would not be, if the wrath did not also stand in the astral birth or geniture.

33. But seeing all is corrupted, therefore must the upper water in the wrath of God come to help the astringent, bitter and hot quality of the earth, and soften the quality and quench its fire, so that the life may always be generated, and that the holy birth, between death and the wrath of God, may be generated also.
34. But that also the element of fire is, and doth rule in the deep of the air and water, thou seest in tempests of lightning; also thou perceivest how the light of the sun kindleth the element of fire on the earth with its reflection, although many times aloft in the upper region towards the moon it is very cold.

35. But now God separated the palpable water from the impalpable, and placed the palpable on the earth, and the impalpable remained still in the deep, in its own seat, as it had been from eternity.

36. But seeing the wrath also is in that water in the deep above the earth, therefore constantly, through the kindling of the stars, and of the water in the wrath, such palpable water generateth itself, which, with its outermost birth, standeth in death.

37. And which, seeing it qualifieth or uniteth with the innermost birth of the astral birth or geniture, cometh to help the Salitter of the corrupted earth, and quencheth its wrath; whereby, in the astral birth or geniture, all standeth in the life. And so the earth generateth the life through the death.

The Gate of the Mystery.

38. But that there is a firmament between the waters, which firmament is called heaven, hath this understanding or meaning:

39. The whole deep, from the moon to the earth, standeth with its whole working in the wrathful and comprehensible or palpable birth or geniture; for the moon is the goddess of the palpable birth; so the house of the devil, of death, and of hell, is in the circuit, orb or extent between the moon and the earth.

40. Where, therefore, the fierce wrath of God, in the outermost birth or geniture in the deep, becometh daily kindled and blown up by the devils and all wicked men, through the great sins of man, which still qualify, mix, unite or co-operate with the astral birth or geniture in the deep.

41. Therefore God hath made the firmament, which is called heaven, between the outermost and the innermost birth; and that is a partition or division between the outermost and the innermost birth or geniture.

42. For the outermost birth of the water cannot comprehend the innermost birth of the water which is called heaven, and which is made out of the midst or centre of the water. ["Heaven is the firmament, viz. the fire-sea, or sea of fire, out of the seven spirits of nature, out of which the stars, as a quintessence, were concreted, incorporated or created by the Word "FIAT: It hath or containeth both fire and water, and hangeth in itself inwardly on the "first Principle, and will bring its wonders, with or as to the figure of them, into the eternal; but its birth or geniture fadeth or passeth away."]

43. Now the innermost birth of heaven reflects strongly upon the earth, and holdeth the outermost water upon the earth strongly captive, together with the earth also.

44. If that were not, then, with the revolution of the globe of the earth, the water would be divided or dissolved again; also then would the earth crumble, break and moulder away in the deep (and all would be a Chaos again).
45. Therefore that firmament, between the outermost palpable water and the inward, holdeth the earth and the palpable water captive.

But now thou mayest ask, What kind of firmament of heaven then is that which I can neither see nor apprehend?

Answer.
46. It is the firmament between the clear Deity and the corrupt nature, which thou must break through when thou intendest to come to God; and it is that very firmament which doth not quite stand in the wrath, neither is it altogether or perfectly pure; concerning which it is written, [job XV. 15] The very heavens are not pure in the sight of God. But at the Last Judgment Day the wrath will be purged from them. For it is written, [Matt xxiv. 35] Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away, saith Christ. [Mark xiii. 31]

47. Now that impurity in that heaven is the wrath, but the purity is the word of God, which he once spake, saying [Gen.i. 6.]; Let the water under the firmament be separated from the water above the firmament. And that word standeth and is comprised in the firmament of the water, and holdeth captive or fixed the outward water, together with the earth.

The Gate of the Deity.

Observe here the hidden Mystery of God.

48. When thou beholdest the deep above the earth, thou oughtest not to say that it is not the gate of God, where God in his holiness dwelleth: No, no, think not so: for the whole holy Trinity, God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, dwelleth in the centre under the firmament of heaven, though that very firmament cannot comprehend him.

49. Indeed, all is as it were one body, the outermost and the innermost birth, together with the firmament of heaven, as also the astral birth therein, in and with which the wrath of God also qualifieth, mixeth and uniteth; but yet they are one to another as is the government, frame or constitution in man.

50. [Note three sorts of births or genitures in man] The flesh signifieth, 1. The outward birth or geniture, which is the house of death. 2. The second birth or geniture in man is the astral, in which the life standeth, and wherein love and wrath wrestle the one with the other; and thus far man himself knoweth himself; for the astral birth generateth the life in the outermost, that is, in the dead flesh. 3. The third birth is generated between the astral and the outermost, and that is called the animated or soulish birth or geniture, or the soul, and is as large as the whole man.

51. And that birth or geniture the outward man neither knoweth nor comprehendeth; neither doth the astral comprehend it, for every qualifying or fountain spirit comprehendeth only its innate or instant root, which signifieth or resembleth the heaven.

52. And that animated or soulish man must press through the firmament of heaven to God, and live with God, else the whole man cannot come into heaven to God.

53. For every man that desireth to be saved, must, with his innate, instant births or genitures, be as the whole Deity with all the three births in this world is.

54. Man cannot be absolutely or wholly pure, or devoid of wrath and sin, for the births of the depth in this world are not fully pure before the heart of God [Job XV. 15]; love and wrath always wrestle the one with the other, whence God is called [Exod. XX. 5., Deut V. 9.] an angry zealous God.

55. Now as a man is, in the government or order of his nativity, birth or geniture, just so also is the whole body of God in or of this world; but in the water standeth the meek life.

56. As, I. First in the outward body of God, in or of this world, there is the congealed, astringent, bitter and hot death, in which the palpable water is also congealed and dead.

57. Therein now is the darkness, wherein king Lucifer and his angels, as also all fleshly or carnal wicked men, lie captive, even with or in their living bodies, as also the separated spirits of damned men.

58. This birth can neither see, hear, feel, smell nor comprehend the heart of God, but is a foolish virgin [folly], which king Lucifer in his pride hath caused so to be.

59. II. The second birth is the astral, which thou must understand to be the life of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, wherein now the love and the wrath are against each other; therein standeth the upper water, which is a spirit of the life, and therein, or between, is the firmament of heaven, which is made out of the midst or centre of the water.

60. Now this birth or geniture presseth through the outward congealed birth quite through death, and generateth the astral life in the death, that is, in the congealed earth, water and flesh of the beasts and of men, also of the fowls, fishes and worms or creeping things.

61. The devil can reach half into this birth, so far as the wrath comprehendeth or reacheth, but no deeper, and thus far goeth his dwelling, but no deeper. Therefore the devil cannot know how the other part in this birth hath a root; and so far man is come in his knowledge, from the beginning of the world to this time, since his fall. But the other root, called the heaven, the spirit hath kept hidden and concealed from man till this time, lest the devil should have learned it from man, and should have strowed poison into it for man before his eyes.

62. This other part of the astral birth, which standeth in the love in the sweet water, is the firmament of heaven, which holdeth captive the kindled wrath, together with all the devils, for they cannot enter thereinto; and in that heaven dwelleth the Holy Spirit, which goeth forth from the heart of God, and striveth or fighteth against the fierceness, and generateth to himself a temple in the midst, in the fierceness of the wrath of God.

63. And in this heaven dwelleth the man that feareth God, even with and in the living body; for that heaven is as well in man as in the deep above the earth. As is the deep above the earth, so is man also, both in love and wrath, till after the departure of the soul; but when the soul departeth from the body, then it abideth either in the heaven of love only, or only in the heaven of wrath.
64. That part, which here it hath comprehended in its departure, is now its eternal and indissoluble dwelling-house, and from thence it can never get; for there is a great cleft \(^*\) [1 Luke xvi. 26] between them; as Christ speaks of the rich man.

\(^*\) "cleft" (Kluft). See Ch. 19, par. 34.

65. And in this heaven the holy angels dwell amongst us, and the devils in the other part: and in this heaven man liveth between heaven and hell, and must endure and suffer from the fierceness many hard blows, temptations, persecutions, and many times torments and squeezings.

66. The wrath is called the cross, and the love-heaven is called patience, and the spirit that riseth up therein is called hope and faith, which qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with God, and wrestleth with the wrath till it overcometh \([1\) John v. 4\] and getteth the victory.

67. And herein lieth the whole Christian doctrine: He that teacheth otherwise doth not know what he teacheth, for his doctrine hath no foot, ground or foundation, and his heart always tottereth, wavereth and doubteth, and knoweth not what it should do.

68. For his spirit always seeketh for rest, but findeth it not; for it is impatient, and always seeketh after novelties, or some new thing; and when it findeth somewhat, it tickleth itself therewith, as if it had found some new treasure, and yet there is no steadfastness, stability or certainty in him, but he seeketh continually for abstinence or for a diversion."
"or for a diversion." These words are an addition by Sparrow; it is probable, however, that they render the meaning of the original, Abstinentz, better than the English "abstinence." St M. has dropped the latter altogether and uses only the word "diversion." Anyone who knows the meaning of the prefix ab, in German, will understand why J. B. uses this otherwise unsuitable word.

69. O ye theologists! the spirit here openeth a door and gate for you: If you will not now see, and feed your sheep and lambs on a green meadow, but on a dry, seared heath, you must be accountable for it before the severe, earnest and wrathful judgment of God; therefore look to it.

70. I take heaven to witness that I perform here what I must do; for the spirit driveth me to it, so that I am wholly captivated therewith, and cannot be freed from it, whatever may befall me hereafter, or ensue upon it.

_The Holy Gate._

71. III. The third birth or geniture in the body of God, in or of this world, is under the firmament of heaven, hidden or concealed; and the firmament of heaven qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth therewith, but yet not fully bodily, but creaturely, as the angels and the souls of men do.

72. And this third birth or geniture is the almighty and holy heart of God, wherein our King Jesus Christ, with his natural body, sitteth at the right hand of God, as a King and Lord of the whole body or place of this world, who encompasseth, holdeth and preserveth all with his heart.

73. And this firmament of heaven is his throne or footstool, and the qualifying or fountain spirits of his natural body rule in the whole body of this world, and all is tied, bound or united with them, all whatsoever that standeth in the astral birth in the part of love: The other part of this world is tied, bound and united with the devil.

74. Thou must not think, as Johannes Calvus or Calvinus thought, which was, that the body of Christ is not an almighty being [Wesen], and that it comprehendeth or reacheth no farther than the little circumscribed place wherein it is.

75. No; thou child of man, thou errest, and dost not rightly understand the divine power:
Doth not every man in his astral, qualifying or fountain spirits comprehend the whole place or body of this world, and the place comprehendeth man? it is all but one body, only there are distinct members.

76. Why then should not the qualifying or fountain spirits in the natural body of Christ qualify, mix or unite with the qualifying or fountain spirits of nature? Is not his body also out of the qualifying or fountain spirits of nature, and is not his heart animated or become soulish from or out of the third birth or geniture, which is the heart of God, which comprehendeth all angels and the heaven of heavens, even the whole Father?

77. Ye Calvinists, desist from your opinion, and do not torment yourselves with the comprehensible or palpable being; for God is a Spirit;[ John iv. 24.]
and in the comprehensibility or palpability standeth death.

78. The body of Christ is no more the hard comprehensibility or palpability, but the divine comprehensibility or palpability of nature, like the angels.
79. For our bodies also, at the resurrection, will not consist of such hard flesh and bones, but will be like the angels. And though indeed all forms and powers will be therein, and all faculties and members, even to the privy parts, yet these will be in another manner of form, and so also will the entrails and guts; but we shall not have the hard comprehensibility or palpability.

80. For Christ, after his resurrection, saith to Mary Magdalen, at the sepulchre in Joseph's garden, [John xx. 17.] Touch me not, for I am not yet ascended to my God and to your God. As if he would say, I have not now the bestial body any more, although I shew myself to thee in my form or shape which I had, otherwise, thou, in thy bestial body, couldst not see me.

81. And so during the forty days after his resurrection he did not always walk visibly among the disciples, but invisibly, according to his heavenly and angelical property; though when he would speak or talk with his disciples, then he shewed or presented himself in a comprehensible or palpable manner and form, that thereby he might speak natural words with them: for the corruption cannot comprehend or apprehend the divine (words or things).

82. Also it sufficiently appeareth that his body was of an angelical kind, in that he went to his disciples through closed doors [John xx. 19.].

83. Thus now thou must know, that his body qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with all the seven spirits in nature in the astral birth in the part of love, and holdeth sin, death and the devil captive in its wrath part.

84. Thus thou now understandest what God made on the second day, when he separated the water under the firmament from the water above the firmament. Thou seest also, how thou art in this world everywhere in heaven, and also in hell, and dwellest between heaven and hell, in great danger.

85. Thou seest, also, how heaven is in a holy man; and that everywhere, wheresoever thou standest, goest or liest, if thy spirit doth but qualify or co-operate with God, then, as to that part, thou art in heaven, and thy soul is in God.
Therefore also saith Christ, [John x. 28, 29]
My sheep are in my hands, no man can pull them away from me.

86. In like manner thou seest, also, how thou art always in hell among all the devils, as to the wrath; if thy eyes were but open, thou wouldst see wonderful things; but thou standest between heaven and hell, and canst see neither of them, and walkest upon a very narrow bridge.

87. Some men have many times, according to or in the sidereal or astral spirit, entered in thither, and been ravished in an ecstasy, as men call it, and have presently known the gates of heaven and of hell, and have told, shewn and declared how that many men dwell in hell, with or in their living bodies, or with their bodies alive: Such indeed have been scorned, derided or laughed at, but with great ignorance and indiscretion, for it is just so as they declare; which I will also describe more at large in its due place, and shew in what manner and condition it is with them.

88. But the water hath a twofold birth, and I will here prove that also, with or by the language of nature; for that is the root or mother of all the languages which are in this world; and therein standeth the whole perfect knowledge of all things.

89. For when Adam spake at the first, he gave names to all the creatures, according to their qualities and innate, instant operations, virtues or faculties. And it is the very language of the total, universal nature, but is not known to every one. For it is a hidden secret mystery, which is imparted to me by the grace of God from the spirit, which hath a delight and longing towards me.

   Now observe:

90. The word Wasser (Water) is thrust forth from the heart, and closeth together the teeth, and passeth over the astringent and bitter qualities, and toucheth them not, but goeth forth through the teeth, and the tongue contracteth and rouseth up itself, together with the spirit, and helpeth to hiss, and so qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the spirit, and the spirit presseth very forcibly through the teeth. But when the spirit is almost quite gone forth, then the astringent and bitter spirit contracteth and rouseth up itself, and afterwards first qualifieth with the word, but yet sitteth still in its seat,* and afterwards jarreth mightily and strongly in the syllable -fer.

* "sitteth still in its seat." See Ch. 25, par. 82.

91. But now, that the spirit conceiveth itself at the heart, and cometh forth and closeth together the teeth, and hisseth with the tongue through the teeth, signifieth that the heart of God hath moved itself, and with its spirit made a closure round about it, which is the firmament of heaven: Also, as the teeth do shut and close together, and then the spirit goeth through the teeth, so also the spirit goeth forth from the heart into the astral birth or geniture.
92. And as the tongue frameth itself for the hissing, and qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the spirit, and moveth therewith, so the soul of man co-imageth or frameth itself with the Holy Spirit, and qualifieth, operateth or uniteth therewith, and presseth together jointly in the power thereof, through heaven, and ruleth together also therewith in the word of God.

93. But, that afterwards the astringent and bitter qualities awaken behind, and co-image afterwards to the framing of the word, signifieth that indeed all is as it were one body, but the heaven and the Holy Spirit, together with the heart of God, hath its proper seat to itself; and the devil, together with the wrath of God, can comprehend neither the Holy Spirit nor the heaven; but the devil, together with the wrath, hangeth in the outward birth in the word, and the wrath helpeth to image all in the outermost birth in this world, all whatsoever that standeth in the comprehensibility or palpability; just as the astringent and bitter qualities afterwards rouse themselves behind to the framing of the word, and qualify, operate or unite therewith.

94. That the spirit first goeth over the astringent and bitter qualities unperceived, signifieth that the gate of God is everywhere in this world all over, wherein the Holy Ghost ruleth; and that the heaven standeth open everywhere, even in the midst or centre of the earth; and that the devil nowhere can either see or comprehend or apprehend the heaven, but is a grumbling and snarling hell-hound, which afterwards, when the Holy Ghost hath built or raised to himself a Church and Temple, first cometh out from behind and destroyeth it in the wrath, and hangeth behind at the word as an enemy, who will not endure that a Temple of God should be raised or built in his land or country, whereby his kingdom might be lessened or diminished.

THE TWENTY-FIRST CHAPTER

Of the Third Day.

1. ALTHOUGH in the writings of Moses the spirit hath kept the deepest mysteries secret, hidden and concealed in the letter, yet all is so very regularly described that there is no defect at all in the order thereof.

2. For when God through the Word had created heaven and earth, and had separated the light from the darkness, and had given a place to each of them, then each began at once its birth or geniture and qualifying or working.

3. On the first day God drave together (or compacted) the corrupt Salitter, which so came to be in the kindling of his wrath, I say, God then drave it together or created it through the strong spirit; for the word Schuff (created) signifieth here a driving together (or compaction).

4. In this driving together or compaction of the corrupted Wrath-Salitter, was king Lucifer also, as an impotent prince, together with his angels, driven into the hell of the Wrath-Salitter, into that place where the outward half-dead comprehensibility is generated, which is the place or space between the nature-goddess, the moon, and the dead earth.

5. Now when this was done the deep became clear, and with the hidden or concealed heaven the light was separated from the darkness, and the globe of the earth in the great wheel of nature was rolled or turned once about; and accordingly the there passed the time of one revolution, or of one day, which containeth twenty-four hours.

6. In the duration of the second day began the sharp separation, and the incomprehensible cleft * was made between the wrath and the love of the light; and so king Lucifer was firmly, strongly or fast bolted up into the house of darkness, and was reserved to the final Judgment.

* "cleft" (Kluft). See Ch. 19, par. 34.

7. So also the water of life was separated from the water of death, yet in that manner as that, in this time of the world, they hang the one to the other, as body and soul, and yet neither of them comprehendeth the other. The heaven which was made out of the midst or centre of the water is the cleft between them, so that the comprehensible or palpable water is a death, and the incomprehensible or impalpable is the life.

8. Thus now the incomprehensible spirit, which is God, ruleth everywhere in this world, and replenisheth or filleth all, and the comprehensible hangeth or dependeth on him, and dwelleth in the darkness, and can neither see nor hear nor smell nor feel the incomprehensible one, but seeth the works thereof, and is a destroyer of them.

9. Now when God had bound up the devil in the darkness through the closure of the heaven, which heaven is everywhere in all places, then he began again his wonderful birth or geniture in the seventh nature-spirit, and all generated again as it had done from eternity.

10. For Moses writeth thus: [gen. i. 11-13] And God said, Let the earth send forth grass and herbs that yield a seed, and the fruit tree yielding or bearing fruit after its kind, which hath its own seed in itself, upon the earth, and it was so done. And the earth sent forth grass, and the herb that yieldeth seed, each after its kind, and the tree yielding fruit, which hath its seed in itself, every one according to its kind; and God saw that it was good. And so out of evening and morning the third day came to be.

11. This indeed is very rightly and properly described, but the true ground sticketh hidden or concealed in the word, and hath never been understood by man. For man since the fall could never comprehend or apprehend the inward birth or geniture, to perceive how the heavenly birth or geniture is; but his reason lay captivated in the outward comprehensibility or palpability, and could not penetrate and press through heaven, and see the inward birth or geniture of God, which also is in the corrupted earth, and everywhere, in all places.

12. Thou must not here think that God hath made some new thing, which never was before; for if that were so, then there had been another God, which is not possible to be. For without or besides this one only God, nothing is at all, for the gates of hell are not anywhere without, beyond or absent from this one only God; only, there is a partition or distinction between the love in the light, and the kindled wrath in the darkness, so that the one cannot comprehend the other, and yet the one hangeth to the other as one body.

13. The Salitter, out of which the earth is come to be, was from eternity, and stood in the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit, which is the nature-spirit, and the other six have generated the seventh continually, and are encompassed or surrounded therewith, or lie captivated or enclosed therein, as in their mother, and are the power and life of the seventh, just as is the astral birth in the flesh.

14. But when king Lucifer had stirred the wrath in this birth or geniture, and had with his loftiness brought the poison and death into it, then in the wrathful birth, in the fierceness or sting of death, such earth and stones were generated.

15. Upon this now ensued the spewing out thereof; * for the Deity could not endure such a birth or geniture in the love and light of God, but the corrupted Salitter must be driven together into a lump, and lord Lucifer also with it. So then presently the innate light in the corrupted Salitter went out or extinguished, and the closure of the heaven was made between the wrath and the love, that so such Salitter might be generated no more, and that heaven might hold the wrath in the outermost birth or geniture in nature captive in the darkness, and be an eternal partition or separation between them. **

* " the spewing out thereof," *i.e. the spewing out of the wrathful birth.

 " between them," *i.e. between the wrath and the love.

16. This being accomplished in the two days, then on the third day the light rose up in the darkness, and the darkness, together with the prince thereof, could not comprehend it.

17. For out of the earth there sprang up grass and herbs and trees, and now also it standeth written thus: [Gen. i. 12 ] Each according to its kind.
In these words lieth hidden or concealed the kernel of the eternal birth or geniture, and it cannot be comprehended or apprehended by or with flesh and blood, but the Holy Ghost, through the animated or soulish birth, must kindle the astral man, otherwise he is blind herein, and understandeth nothing but concerning earth and stones, also grass, herbs and wooden trees.

18. But now is it written here, God sprach (said),

Let the earth bring forth grass, and herbs, and fruitful trees.

Observe here:

19. The word sprach (said), is an eternal word, and was before the times of the wrath from eternity in this Salitter, when the Salitter still stood in the heavenly form and life, and now also it is not quite dead in its centre, but only in the comprehensibility or palpability.

20. But now when the light rose up again in the outward comprehensibility, or in death, then the eternal word stood in its full birth, and generated the life through and out of death, and the corrupted Salitter brought forth fruit again.

21. But seeing the eternal word must qualify, mix or unite with the corruption in the wrath, thereupon the bodies of the fruits were evil and good. For the outward birth or geniture of the fruits must be out of or from the earth which is in death; and the spirit of life must be out of the astral birth which standeth in love and wrath.

22. For thus stood the birth or geniture of nature in the time of the kindling, and was thus together incorporated in the earth, and must also in such a birth spring up again: For it is written, [Gen. i 12] That the dead earth should let the grass and herbs and trees spring up, each according to its kind, that is, according to the kind and quality that it had been in from eternity, and as it had been in the heavenly quality, kind and form. For that is called its own kind which is received in the mother's body or womb, and is its own by right of nature, as its own peculiar life.

23. Thus the earth brought forth no strange life, except that which had been in it from eternity: As before the time of the wrath it had brought forth heavenly fruits, which had a holy, pure heavenly body, and were the food of angels, so now it brought forth fruits according to its comprehensible, palpable, hard, evil, wrathful, poisonous, venomous, half-dead kind; for as the mother was, so were her children.

24. Not that the fruits of the earth are thereupon wholly in the wrath of God; for the one only, incorporated or compacted word, which is immortal and incorruptible, which was from eternity in the Salitter of the earth, sprang up again in the body of death, and brought forth fruit out of the dead body of the earth; but the earth comprehended not the word, though the word comprehended the earth.

25. And now as the whole earth was, together with the word, so was the fruit also; but the word remained in the centre of the heaven, which is also in this place hiddenly; and this birth or geniture caused the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, out of or from the outermost, corrupt and dead birth or geniture, to form the body; and itself, viz. the Word or Heart of God, remained in its heavenly seat, sitting on the throne of majesty, and filled the astral and also the mortal birth or geniture, but to them was the holy life altogether incomprehensible.

26. Thou must not think that thereupon the outermost dead birth or geniture of the earth hath gotten such a life, through the risen word that sprang up, that it is no more a death, and that death no longer is in her fruit: No; that can never be; for that which is once dead in God is really dead, and in its own power can never be living again; but the word, which qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the astral birth in the part of the love, generateth the life through the astral birth or geniture, through the death.

27. For thou seest plainly how all the fruits of the earth, whatsoever it bringeth forth, must putrefy and rot; also that they are a death.

28. But that the fruits get a body other than the earth is, which body is much fuller of virtue, fairer or more beautiful, also of a better taste, relish and smell, is because the astral birth or geniture receiveth power or virtue from the word, and formeth or frameth another body, which standeth half in the death and half in the life, and standeth hidden between the wrath of God and the love.

29. But, that the fruits upon the body are much pleasanter, more lovely, sweeter and milder, and with a good taste and relish, that is [because of] the third birth out of the earth, according to which the earth shall be purged and cleansed at the end of this time, and shall be set or put again into its first place; but the wrath will abide in death.

30. Behold, thus saith the spirit in the word, which is the very heart of the earth, and which riseth or springeth up in his heaven, in the clear flash of the life, wherewith my spirit in its knowledge qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth, and through which I write these words.

31. Man is made out of the seed of the earth, out of an incorporated or compacted mass or lump—
"Understand, out of the matrix of the earth, wherein the eye is twofold, the one in God and the other in this world, out of three Principles."

—-and not out of the wrath, but out of the birth or geniture of the earth, as a king or heart of the earth, and stood in the astral birth or geniture in the part of the love; but wrath hung to him, which he should have put forth from himself, as the fruit putteth forth from itself the bitterness of the tree.

32. But that, he did not, but reached back from the love into the wrath, and lusted after his dead or mortal mother, to eat of her, and to suck her breast, and to stand upon her stock.

33. Now according to his wrestling so also it befell him, and so he brought himself with his outermost birth or geniture into the death or mortality of his mother, and with his life he brought himself out from the love into the part of the wrathful, astral birth or geniture.

34. And there he standeth now, between heaven and hell, in the face of the devil in his kingdom, against whom the devil warreth, fighteth and striveth continually, that he might either banish him out of his country into the earth, or make him a child of wrath in hell. And what is now his hope?

Answer.
35. Behold! thou blind Heathen; behold! thou render, perverter, obscurer and wrester of the Scriptures, open thy eyes wide, and be not ashamed at this simple plainness; for God lieth hid in the centre, and is yet much more simple and plain; but thou seest him not.

36. Behold! thy spirit or thy soul is generated from or out of thy astral birth or geniture, and is the third birth in thee, just as an apple upon a tree is the third birth or geniture of the earth, and hath not its vegetation in, from, or within the earth, but from above the earth; and if it were a spirit, as thy soul is, it would not suffer the earth any more to tie or bind it to corruption.

37. But thou must know, however, that the apple on its stock or branch, with its innermost birth or geniture, qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the word of God, through whose power it is grown out of the earth.

38.* But since the wrath is in the body of the mother of the apple, this same mother cannot get the apple out of the palpable birth, and the apple must remain, as to its body, in the palpability, in death.

* A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow's rendering.

39. But in its power, * in which its life standeth, wherewith it qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the word of God, this apple will, in its mother, in the power of the word at the Last Judgment Day, be set or put again into its heavenly place, and be separated from the wrathful and dead or mortal palpability, and spring up in the heaven of this world, in a heavenly form, and be a fruit for men in the other life.
[" Here understand, the power of the Principle,
" out of which the apple and all things grow, will,
" in the renovation of the world, spring up again
" in paradise with the wonders."]

* " But in its power," etc. " But in its power (the virtue wherein the apple's life consists) wherewith it qualifieth with the Word of God, this apple will, in its mother," etc.

40. But seeing thou art made out of the seed of the earth—
[" Red earth is fire and water, conceived
" with or by the Word Fiat out of the " matrix of the earth: when man imagined " or set his desire into the earth he became " earthly."]
—and hast set or put thy body back again into thy mother, therefore thy body also is become a palpable, dead or mortal body, such as thy mother is.

41. Thy body hath the same hope which thy mother the earth hath, viz. that at the Last Judgment Day, in the power of the word, it will be set or put again into its first place.

42. But seeing thy astral birth standeth here on earth in the wrath, and qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the love in the word, (just as the fruit on the tree doth, for the power of the fruit qualifieth or uniteth with the word), therefore thy hope standeth in God. For the astral birth or geniture standeth in love and wrath, and that, in this time, it cannot boast of, on account of the outermost birth or geniture in the flesh, which standeth in death.

43. For the dead or mortal flesh hath encompassed the astral birth, and man's flesh is a dead carcass, whilst it is yet in the mother's body or womb, and is encompassed with hell and God's wrath.

44. But now the astral birth generateth the animated soulish birth, viz. the third, which standeth in the word, wherein the incorporated or compacted word lieth hidden in its heaven.
[" The Sulphur to the (production of the) soul " is the first Principle in the eternal will-spirit,
" and cometh to life in the third Principle, and
" so liveth between love and wrath, and hangeth
45. Now, since thou hast thy reason, and art not like the apple on the tree, but art created an angel and the similitude or image of God, instead of the expulsed devils, and knowest how thou canst with thy astral birth, in the part of love, qualify or unite with the word of God, therefore thou canst, in the centre of the word, set or put thy animated or soulish birth into heaven, and thou canst with thy soul, even with thy living body in this dead or mortal palpability, rule with God in heaven.

46. For the word is in thy heart [Deut. xxx. 14], [Rom. x. 8], and qualifieth or uniteth with the soul, as if it were one being; and if thy soul standeth in the love, then it also is one being. And, thou mayest say, that according to thy soul thou sittest in heaven, and livest and reignest with God.

["Understand, according to the spirit of the soul, with the image out of the animated or soulish fire."]

47. For the soul, which apprehendeth the word, hath an open gate in heaven, and can be prevented by nothing; neither doth the devil see the soul, because it is not in his country or dominions.

48. But seeing thy astral birth standeth with the one part in the wrath, and that the flesh through the wrath standeth in death, thereupon the devil, in the part of the wrath, seeth continually even into thy heart, and if thou lettest him have any room or place there, then he teareth out from the word that part of the astral birth which standeth in the love.

49. Then thy heart is a dark valley: And if thou dost not labour and work quickly again to the birth of the light, then he kindleth the wrathfire therein, and then shall thy soul be spewed out from the word, and then it qualifieth or uniteth with the wrath of God, and so afterwards thou art a devil, and not an angel, and canst not, with thy animated or soulish birth, reach the gates of heaven.

50. But if thou fightest and strivest with the devil, and keepest the gate of love in thy astral birth, and so departest from hence as to the body, then thy soul remaineth in the word quite hidden from the devil, and reigneth with God, even unto the day of the restitution of that which was lost.

51. But if thou standest with thy astral birth in the wrath, when thou departest from hence as to the body, and thy soul be not comprehended in the word, then thou canst never reach the gates of heaven; but into what part thou hast sown thy seed, that is, thy soul, in that very part will thy body also rise.

The Gate of the Power.

52. That soul and body will come together again at the Day of the Resurrection thou mayest perceive here by the earth. For the Creator said, Let the earth bring forth grass and herbs, and trees bearing fruit, each according to its kind. Then each sprang up according to its kind, and grew. And as before the time of the wrath it had a heavenly body, so it got now an earthly one, answerable to its mother.

53. But it is to be considered how all was comprised in the word at the great tumult and uproar of the devil, so that all sprang up in its own being according to its power, virtue and kind, as if it had never been destroyed, but only altered.

54. Now if it was thus at that time, when there was such murdering and robbing, sure it will be much more so at the Last Judgment Day, when the earth shall be separated in the kindled wrath-fire, and will be living again or revived. Then, surely, it will be comprehended in the word of love, as it hath in the same word here generated its fruit of grass, herbs and trees, as also all manner of mineral ores of silver and gold.

55. But seeing the astral birth of the earth standeth in the love, and the outward standeth in death, therefore will each remain in its seat, and so life and death will sever themselves.

56. Where, now, would the soul of man rather be at the day of regeneration, than in its father, that is, in the body which hath generated it? [Note, Christ's not being ascended to his Father]

57. But seeing the soul, all the while the body had been in death, remained hidden in the word, and seeing the same word also holdeth the earth in the astral birth in the love, therefore it [the soul] qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth through the word, all the time of its hiddenness and secrecy, also with its mother the body, according or as to the astral birth or geniture in the earth, and so body and soul in the word were never separated the one from the other, but live jointly and equally together in God.

58. And though indeed the bestial body must putrefy and rot, yet its power and virtue live, and in the meanwhile there grow out of its power, in its mother, fair, beautiful roses, blossoms and flowers; and though it were quite burnt up and consumed in the fire, yet its power and virtue stand in the four elements in the word, and the soul qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth therewith;
for the soul is in heaven, and the same heaven is everywhere, even in the midst or centre of the earth.

59. O, dear man, view thyself for a while in this looking-glass; thou wilt find it more largely to be read of concerning the creation of man.
This I set down here for this very cause, that thou mightest the better understand the power of creation, and that thou mightest the better conceive and fit thyself for this spirit, and so learn to understand its language.

The open Gate of the Earth.

Now it might be asked, From or out of what matter or power and virtue, then, did the grass, herbs and trees spring forth? What manner of substance or condition or constitution hath this kind of creature?

Answer.

60. The simple saith, God made all things out of nothing. But he knoweth not that God; neither doth he know what God is: for when he beholdeth the earth, together with the deep above the earth, he thinketh, verily all this is not God; or else he thinketh, God is not there.
He always imagineth that God dwelleth only above the azure heaven of the stars, and ruleth, as it were, with some spirit which goeth forth from him into this world; and that his body is not present here upon the earth, nor in the earth.

61. Just such opinions and tenets I also have read in the books and writings of doctors (der Doctoren), and there are also very many opinions, disputations and controversies arisen about this very thing among the learned.

62. But seeing God, in his great love, openeth to me the gate of his being, and remembereth the Covenant which he hath with man, therefore I will, according to my gifts, faithfully and earnestly unlock and set wide open all the gates of God, so far as God will give me leave.

63. It is not so to be understood as that I am sufficient enough in these things, but only so far as I am able to comprehend.

64. For the being of God is like a wheel, wherein many wheels are made one in another, upwards, downwards, crossways, and yet they continually turn, all of them together.

65. Which, indeed, when a man beholdeth the wheel, he highly marvelleth at it, and, in its turning, cannot at once learn to conceive and apprehend it: But the more he beholdeth the wheel, the more he learneth its form or frame; and the more he learneth, the greater longing he hath to the wheel; for he continually seeth somewhat that is more and more wonderful, so that a man can neither behold it, nor learn it enough.

66. Thus I also, what I do not enough describe in one place concerning this great Mystery, that you will find in another place; and what I cannot describe in this book, in regard of the largeness * of the Mystery, and my incapacity, that you will find in the others following.

* " in regard of the largeness of the Mystery," etc. (von wegen der lange), "on account of length." It does not seem that J. B. here emphasises so much " the largeness of the Mystery," as the difficulty of writing at length concerning it, owing to his own incapacity to grasp it, as yet, in its fulness. The sentence containing these words might be rendered as follows: "and what I cannot describe in this book, on account of the length of such description, and on account also of my incapacity to give it, that you will find," etc.
See Cont. of this B., par. 39 et seq., and Ch. 10, par. 41 et seq.

67. For this book is the first sprouting or vegetation of this twig, which springeth or groweth green in its mother, and is as a child that is learning to walk, and is not able to run apace at the first.

68. For though the spirit seeth the wheel, and would fain comprehend its form or frame in every place, yet it cannot do it exactly enough, because of the turning of the wheel: But when the wheel cometh about again, so that the spirit can again see the first apprehended or conceived form, then continually it learneth more and more, and always delighteth in and loveth the wheel, and longeth after it still more and more.

Now observe:

69. The earth hath just such qualities and qualifying or fountain spirits as the deep above the earth or as heaven hath, and all of them together belong to one only body; and the whole or universal God is that one only body. But that thou dost not wholly and fully see and know him, sins are the cause thereof, with and by which thou, in this great divine body, liest shut up in the dead or mortal flesh; and the power or virtue of the Deity is hidden from thee, even as the marrow in the bones is hidden from the flesh.

70. But if thou, in the spirit, breakest through the death of the flesh, then thou seest the hidden God. For as the marrow in the bones penetrateth, presseth or breaketh through and giveth virtue, power and strength to the flesh, and yet the flesh cannot comprehend or apprehend the marrow, but only the power and virtue thereof, so no more canst thou see the hidden Deity in thy flesh, but thou receivest its power, and understandest therein that God dwelleth in thee.

71. For the dead or mortal flesh belongeth not to the birth of life, and therefore cannot receive or conceive the life of the light as a propriety; but the life of the light in God riseth up in the dead or mortal flesh, and generateth to itself, from or out of the dead or mortal flesh, another heavenly and living body, which knoweth and understandeth the light.

72. For this body is but a husk, from which the new body groweth—
"The new body groweth out of the heavenly substantiality in the Word, out of the flesh and blood of Christ, out of the mystery of the old body."
— as it is with a grain of wheat in the earth. The husk or shell will not rise again, no more than it doth in the wheat, but will remain for ever in death and in hell.

73. Therefore man carrieth about with him here upon earth, in his body, the devil's eternal dwelling-house. O thou fair excellent goddess! mayest thou not well prance and trick thyself therein, and in the meanwhile invite the devil into the new birth for a guest, will it not profit thee very much? Take heed that thou dost not generate a new devil, who will remain in his own house.

74. Behold the mystery of the earth: as that generateth or bringeth forth, so must thou generate or bring forth. The earth is not that body which groweth or sprouteth forth, but it is the mother of that body; as also thy flesh is not the spirit, but the flesh is the mother of the spirit.

75. But now in both of them, viz. in the earth and in thy flesh, there is hidden the light of the clear Deity, and it breaketh through, and generateth to itself a body according to the kind of each body; for man according to his body, and for the earth according to its body; for as the mother is, so is the child also.

76. Man's child is the soul, which is generated out of the astral birth from or out of the flesh; and the earth's child is the grass, the herbs, the trees, silver, gold, and all mineral ores.

Now thou askest, How then shall I do, that I may understand somewhat concerning the birth or geniture of the earth?

Answer.
77. Behold! the birth of the earth standeth in its birth or geniture as the whole Deity doth, and there is no difference at all, but only as to the corruption in the wrath, wherein comprehensibility or palpability standeth; that only is the difference or distinction, and is the death between God and the earth.

78. Thou must know that all the seven spirits of God are in the earth, and generate as they do in heaven: For the earth is in God, and God never died; but the outermost birth or geniture is dead, in which the wrath resteth, and is reserved for king Lucifer, to be a house of death and of darkness, and to be an eternal prison or dungeon.

Of the seven Spirits of God, and of their Operation in the Earth.

79. The first is the astringent spirit, and that contracteth or draweth together in the astral birth of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits a mass or lump in the earth, through the kindling of the superior birth or geniture above the earth, and drieth up that with its sharp coldness; just as it contracteth or draweth the water together and maketh ice thereof, so also it contracteth or draweth together the water in the earth, and maketh thereof a dry mass or lump.

80. Then next the bitter spirit, which existeth in the fire-flash, is also in the matter or mass, and that cannot endure to be captivated or imprisoned in the dried exsiccated matter, but rubs itself against the astringent spirit in the dried mass or lump, so long till it kindleth the fire; and so when that is done, then the bitter spirit is terrified, and getteth its life.

81. In the earth thou canst not trace nor find, besides plants and metals, anything but astringency, bitterness, and water: But the water now therein is sweet, opposite to the other two qualities: Also it is thin or transparent, and the other two are hard, rough and bitter, and always the one is against the other. Thereupon there is a perpetual struggling, fighting and wrestling, but in the struggling of these three the life doth not yet stand; but they are a dark valley, and they are three things which can never endure one another, but there is an eternal struggling among them.

[82. is absent according to Sparrow's text]

83. From hence mobility taketh its original; also God's wrath, which resteth in the hidden secrecy, taketh its original from hence; and so also the original of the devil, of death and of hell, ariseth from hence; as you may read thereof concerning the fall of the devil.
The Depth in the Centre of the Birth or Geniture

84. Now when these three, viz. the astringency, the bitterness, and the sweetness, rub themselves one against another; then the astringent quality groweth predominant, for it is the strongest, and forcibly attracteth or draweth the sweetness together, for the sweetness is meek and extensive on account of its suppleness, and must yield to be captivated or imprisoned.

85. So when that is done, then the bitterness is also together captivated or imprisoned in the body of the sweet water, and cometh also together dried up, and then the astringent, the sweet and the bitter are one in another, and struggle so strongly in the dried mass or lump till the mass be quite dry: For the astringent quality always contracteth it together, and drieth it more and more.

86. But when the sweet water can defend itself no longer, then anguish riseth up in it; just as in man, when he is dying, when the spirit is departing from the body, and so the body yieldeth itself captive as a prisoner to death; just so the water also yieldeth itself captive as a prisoner.

87. And in this anxious rising up an anguish-1 humour or ing heat is generated, whereby a sweat [moisture or humour] presseth forth, as it doth in a dying man; and that sweat qualieth, mixeth or uniteth with the astringent and bitter qualities, for it is their son, which they have generated out of the sweet water, and which they had killed and brought to death.

88. Now when that is done, then the astringent and bitter qualities rejoice in their son, understand, in the sweat, and both of them give to it their power, virtue and life, and stuff it like a greedy gormandizing hog, so that it soon comes to grow full and swelled: For the astringent quality, and also the bitter, always draw the sap out of the earth, and stuff it into their young son.

89. But the body, which was first contracted or drawn together out of the sweet water, remaineth dead or mortal, and the sweat [or juice] of the body, which qualifies, mixeth or uniteth with the astringent and bitter qualities, hath the house therein, where it spreadeth itself forth, groweth gross, full [fat] and lusty or wanton.

90. But now the two qualities, viz. the astringent and the bitter, cannot leave their contention and opposition, or contrary will, but wrestle continually one with the other: The astringent is strong, and the bitter is swift.

91. So now, when the astringent grappleth with the bitter, the bitter leaps aside, and taketh the son's sap along with it; and then the astringent everywhere presseth hard after it, and would fain captivate it. Then the bitter rusheth out from the body, and extendeth itself as far as it can.

92. But when the body begins to be too strait or narrow for it, that it can extend or stretch it no more, and that the contention is too great, then the bitter must yield itself captive. Yet, for all that, the astringent cannot kill the bitter, but only holds it captive, and so the strife in them is so great that the bitter breaks out of the body in strings [fibres] like threads, and taketh some of the son's sap or body along with it. And this now is the vegetation or growing, and incorporating or embodying of a root in the earth.
Now thou askest, How can God be in that birth or geniture?

Answer.
93. Behold! that is the birth or geniture of nature; and so, if in these three qualities, viz. the astringent, the bitter and the sweet, the wrath-fire were not kindled, then thou wouldst plainly see where God is.

94. But now the wrath-fire is in all three; for the astringent is much too cold, and contracteth or draweth the body too hard together; and the sweet is much too thick and dark, which the astringent soon catcheth, and holdeth it captive, and drieth it too much; and then the bitter is too stinging, murderous and raging; and so they cannot be reconciled to agree.

95. Else if the astringent were not so much kindled in the cold fire, and the water were not so thick, also the bitter not so swelling, rising and murderous, then they might kindle the fire, from whence the light would exist, and from the light the love; and so out of the fire-flash the tone would exist. Then thou wouldst see plainly whether there would not be a heavenly body there, wherein the light of God would shine.

96. But seeing the astringent is too cold, and drieth the water too much, thereupon it captivateth the hot fire in its coldness, and killeth or destroyeth the body of the sweet water, and so the bitter captivateth it, and drieth it up.*

* "and so the bitter captivateth it, and drieth it up" (aueh so nims sic die Bittere gefangen, und vertrocknet sic mit), "even so [in the same way] it [the astringent] captivateth the bitter, and drieth it up [as well]." But from the construction of the sentence it is impossible to say whether the meaning is that the astringent captivateth the bitter, or the bitter the astringent, and whether or not either singly or both together bring about the drying up. The pronoun is feminine, and may therefore refer to either of these, but cannot refer to "sweet water."
St Martin's French translation shews the same ambiguity.

97. So in this exsiccation or drying up, the unctuosness or fatness in the sweet water is killed or destroyed, in which the fire kindleth itself, and so out of that unctuosity or fatness an astringent and bitter spirit comes to be. For when the unctuosness or fat in the sweet water dieth, then it is turned into an anguishing sweat, in which the astringent and the bitter qualify, mix or unite.

98. The meaning is not that the water dieth quite; no, that cannot be, but the astringent spirit taketh captive in its cold fire the sweetness or the unctuosity and fatness of the water, and qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth therewith, and maketh use thereof for its spirit: Its own spirit being wholly benumbed, and in death, therefore it maketh use of the water for its life, and draweth out the water's unctuosity or fatness to itself, and bereaveth the water of its power.

99. Then the water becometh an anguishing sweat, which standeth between death and life, and so the fire of the heat cannot kindle itself:
For the unctuosity or fatness is captivated in the cold fire, and so the whole body remaineth a dark valley, which standeth in an anguishing birth or geniture, and cannot comprehend or reach the life. For the life which standeth in the light cannot elevate itself in the hard, bitter and astringent body; for it is captivated in the cold fire, but not quite dead.

100. Thou must see that all this is really so.
For example, take a root which is of a hot quality, put it in warm water, or take it into thy mouth, and make it warm and supple or moist; then thou wilt soon perceive its life, and active or operative quality: But so long as it is without or absent from the heat, it is captivated in death, and is cold, as any other root or piece of wood is.

101. Then thou seest that the body upon the root is dead also; for when the virtue is gone out of the root, then the body is but a dead carcass and can operate or effect nothing at all. And that is because the astringent spirit and the bitter have killed or destroyed the body of the water and attracted the fatness or unctuosity thereof to themselves; and thus they have drawn or sucked up the spirit thereof into the dead body.

102. Otherwise, if the sweet water could keep its unctuosity or fatness in its own power, and the astringent spirit and the bitter did rub themselves one with another very gently in the sweet water, then they would kindle the unctuosity or fatness in the sweet water, and then the light would instantly generate itself in the water, and would enlighten the astringent and the bitter quality.

103. Whereupon they would get their true life, and would be satisfied by the light, and rejoice highly therein, and from that living joy love would arise, and then the tone would rise up in the fire-flash, through the rising up of the bitter quality in the astringent. If that were done there would be a heavenly fruit, just as it [the fruit] springeth up in heaven.

104. But thou art to know that the earth hath all the qualifying or fountain spirits. For through the devil's kindling the spirits of life were incorporated or compacted together also in death, and, as it were, captivated, but not quite murdered.

105. The first three, viz. the astringent, the sweet, and the bitter, belong to the imaging or forming of the body; and therein standeth the mobility, and the body or corporeity. And these now have the comprehensibility or palpability, and are the birth of the outermost nature.

106. The other three, viz. the heat, the love, and the tone, stand in the incomprehensibility, and are generated out of the first three; and this now is the inward birth, wherewith the Deity qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth.

107. If the first three were not congealed or benumbed in death they could kindle the heat, and then thou wouldst soon see a bright, shining, heavenly body, and thou wouldst see plainly where God is.

108. But seeing the first three qualities of the earth are congealed or benumbed in death, therefore they remain also a death, and cannot elevate there life into the light, but remain a dark valley, in which there standeth God's wrath, death, and hell, as also the eternal prison and source or torment of the devil.

109. Not that these three qualities of the outermost birth, in which the wrath-fire standeth, are rejected and reprobated of the innermost; no, but only the outward palpable body, and therein the outward hellish source, quality or torment.

110. Here thou seest once more how the kingdom of God and the kingdom of hell hang one to the other, as one body, and yet the one cannot comprehend the other. For the second birth, viz. the heat, light, love, and the sound or tone, is hidden in the outermost, and maketh the outward moveable, so that the outward gathereth itself together, and generateth a body.

111. Though the body standeth in the outward palpableness, yet it is formed according to the kind and manner of the inward birth, for in the inward birth or geniture standeth
the word, and the word is the sound or tone, which riseth up in the light in the fire-flash through the bitter and astringent quality.

112. But seeing the sound of God's word must rise up through the astringent bitter death, and generate a body in the half-dead water, thereupon that body is good, and also evil, dead and also living; for it must instantly attract the sap of fierceness and the body of death, and stand in such a body and power, as doth the earth, its mother.

113. But that the life lieth hid under and in the death of the earth, as also in the children of the earth, I will here demonstrate to you.

114. Behold! man becometh weak, faint and sick, and if no remedy be used, then he soon falls into death. The sickness is caused either by some bitter and astringent herb which groweth out of the earth, or else is caused by an evil, mortiferous deadly water, or by several mixtures of earthly herbs, or by some evil stinking and rank flesh or meat, and surfeit from thence to loathing.

115. Now if a learned physician inquireth of the sick person from what his disease is proceeded, and taketh that which is the cause of the disease, whether it be flesh, water or herbs, and distils or burneth it to powder, according as the matter is, and so burneth away the outward poison thereof, which standeth in death; then, in that distilled water, or burnt powder, the astral birth remaineth in its seat, where life and death wrestle one with the other, and are both capable of being raised up; for the dead body is gone.
116. So now, if thou minglest with this water or powder some good _treacle_ or the like, which holdeth _captive_ the rising up and the power of the wrath in the astral birth, and givest it to the sick _party_ or patient in a little warm drink, be it beer or wine, then operateth the _innermost_ and hidden birth of the thing which, through its outermost dead birth, hath caused the _disease_ in man.

117. For when it is put into warm liquor, then the _life_ in the _thing_ becometh rising, and would fain raise itself, and be kindled in the light; but it cannot, because of the _wrath_, which is opposite to it in the astral birth or geniture.

118. But it can do thus much, _viz._ it can _take away_ the disease from a man; for the astral life riseth up through death, and taketh away the _power_ from the sting of death: And so when that hath gotten the _victory_, then the party becometh sound again.

119. Thus thou seest how the power or _virtue_ of the Word and eternal life in the earth, and in its _children_, lieth hidden in the centre in death, and springeth up through death, incomprehensibly as to the death, and continually travaileth in anguish to the birth of the light, and yet cannot flourish or bud, till the death be severed from it.

120. But it hath its life in its seat, and that _cannot_ be taken from it, but death hangeth to it in the outermost birth or geniture, as also the wrath in death; for the _wrath_ is the life of death and of the devil; and in the wrath standeth also the corporeal being, or the _bodies_ of the devils, but the dead birth or geniture is their _eternal_ dwelling-house.

_The Depth in the Circle of the Birth or Geniture._
Now one might ask, What manner of substance hath it, or what is the condition thereof, that the astral birth of the earth did begin its qualifying, operating and generating one day sooner than the astral in the deep above the earth; seeing the fire in the deep above the earth is much sharper and easier to be kindled, than the fire in the earth; and seeing also that the earth must be kindled by the fire in the deep above the earth, else it can bear no fruit?

Answer.

121. Behold, thou understanding spirit: The spirit speaketh to thee, and not to the dead spirit of the flesh: Open wide the door of thy astral birth, and elevate that one part of the astral birth in the light, and let the other in the wrath stand still, and take heed also that thy animated or soulish spirit do wholly unite with the light.

122. So when thou standest in such a form, then thou art as heaven and earth are, or as the whole Deity is with its births or genitures in this world.

123. But now if thou art not thus, then thou art blind herein, though thou were the Wittiest and wisest doctor that ever could be found in the world.

124. But if thou art thus, then raise up thy spirit and see: through thy astrological art, thy deep sense and thy measuring of circles thou canst not apprehend it; it must be born in THEE, else thou gettest neither grace nor art.

125. If the eyes of thy spirit are to stand open, then thou must generate thus, else thy comprehensibility is a foolish virgin, and it befalls thee, as if a limner* should offer to pourtray the Deity on a table, and tell thee, It is made right, the Deity is just so.
126. Then the believer and the limner are both alike, both of them see nothing but wood and colours only, and the one, blind, leadeth the other: Surely thou art not to fight there with beasts, but with gods.

Now observe:
127. When the whole Deity in this world moved itself to the creation, then, not only the one part did move, and the other rest, but all stood jointly in the mobility, even the whole deep, so far as lord Lucifer was king, and so far as the place of his kingdom reached, and so far as the Salitter in the wrath-fire was kindled.

128. The motion of the three births lasted the length of six days and nights, wherein all the seven spirits of God stood in a full moving birth or geniture, as also the heart of the spirits; and the Salitter of the earth turned about in that while six times in the great wheel; which wheel is the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of God. At each turning about or diurnal revolution there was generated a several special work or production, according to the innate, instant qualifying or fountain spirits.

129. For the first qualifying or fountain spirit is the astringent, cold, sharp and hard birth or geniture, and that belongeth to the first day; in the astral birth or geniture the astrologers call it the Saturnine, which was performed on the first day. For therein the hard, dry, sharp earth and stones came to be, and were incorporated or compacted together; moreover, then also was generated the strong firmament of heaven, and the heart of the seven spirits of God stood hidden in the hard sharpness.

* "limner" (Mahler [Maler]), a painter.
130. Astrologers appropriate or attribute the second day to Sol or the sun, but it belongeth to Jupiter, to speak astrologically; for on the second day the light brake forth out of the heart of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, through the hard quality of heaven, and caused a mitigation, or an allaying in the hard water of the heaven, and the light became shining in that meekness and allaying.

131. Then the meekness and the hard water separated themselves asunder, and the hardness remained in its hard place, as a hard death, and the meekness or softness penetrated through the hardness in the power of the light.

132. And this now is the water of life, which is generated in the light of God out of the hard death. And thus the light of God in the sweet water of heaven brake through the astringent and hard, dark death; and thus the heaven is made out of the midst or centre of the water.

133. The hard firmament is the astringent quality, and the gentle, mild or meek firmament is the water, in which the light of life riseth up, which is the clarity or bright light of the Son of God. In this manner or form also the knowledge, and the light of life, riseth up in man, and the whole light of God in this world standeth in such a form, birth, and rising up.

134. The third day is very rightly attributed to Mars, because Mars is a bitter, and a furious raging and stirring spirit. It [in?] the third revolution of the earth the bitter quality rubbed itself with the astringent.

        Understand this Thing rightly.
135. When the light in the sweet water did penetrate through the astringent spirit, then the fire-flash, terror or crack of the light, when it kindled itself in the water, rose up in the astringent and hard, dead quality, and made all stirring: from thence existed the mobility.

136. Now I speak here not only of the heaven above the earth, but this stirring and birth or geniture was also in the earth, and everywhere.

137. But seeing the heavenly fruits, before the time of the wrath, sprang up only in this stirring of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, and vanished and passed away again by their stirring, and so changed or altered themselves, therefore on the third day of the birth or geniture of the creation they sprang up also through the stirring of the fire-flash in the astringent quality of the earth.

138. Though indeed the whole Deity is in the centre of the earth, hidden, yet the earth could not, for all that, bring forth heavenly fruit, for the astringent quality had shut and barred the hard bolt of death upon it, and so the heart of the Deity, in all the births, remained hidden in its meek and light heaven.

139. For the outermost birth is nature, and that ought not to reach back into the heart of God, neither can it, but it is the body, in which the qualifying or fountain spirits generate themselves, and shew forth and manifest their birth or geniture by their fruits.

140.* Therefore on the third day the earth began to spring, just as the qualifying or fountain spirits stood in the crack of the word or fire-flash.

* This par. does not appear in Sparrow's translation, though it is in all the German editions.
THE TWENTY-SECOND CHAPTER

Of the Birth or Geniture of the Stars, and Creation of the Fourth Day.

1. HERE now is begun the describing of the astral birth. It ought well to be observed what the first title of this book meaneth, which is thus expressed: The Day-Spring or Dawning in the East, or Morning-Redness in the Rising. For here will a very simple man be able to see and comprehend or apprehend the being of God.

2. The Reader should not make himself blind through his unbelief and dull apprehension; for here I bring in the whole or total nature, with all her children, for a witness and a demonstration. If thou art rational, then look round about thee, and view thyself; also consider thyself aright, and then thou wilt soon find from or out of what spirit I write.

3. For my part, I will obediently perform the command of the spirit, only, have thou a care, and suffer not thyself to be shut out by an open door; * for here the gates of knowledge stand open to thee.

* " shut out by an open door." That is, the door is open, do not imagine that it is shut.

4. Though the spirit will indeed go against the current of some astrologers, that is no great matter to me, for I am bound to obey God rather than men; men are blind in or concerning the spirit, and if they will not see, then they may remain blind still.
Now observe:

5. Now when upon the third day the fire-flash rose up out of the light, which was shining in the sweet water, which flash is the bitter quality which generateth itself out of the kindled terror or crack of fire in the water:

6. Then the whole nature of this world became springing, boiling and moving in the earth, as well as above the earth, and everywhere, and began to generate itself again in all things.

7. Out of the earth sprang up grass, herbs and trees; and in the earth, silver, gold, and all manner of ores came to be; and in the deep above the earth sprang up the wonderful forming of power and virtue.

8. But that thou mayest understand what manner of substance and condition all these things and births or genitures have, I will describe all in order one after another, that thou mayest rightly understand the ground of this Mystery.

I will treat,
1. Of the earth.
2. Of the deep above the earth.
3. Of the incorporating or compacting of the bodies of the stars.
4. Of the seven chief qualities of the planets, and of their heart, which is the sun.
5. Of the four elements.
6. Of the outward comprehensible or palpable birth or geniture, which existeth out of this whole regimen or dominion.
7. Of the wonderful proportion and fitness or dexterity of the whole wheel of nature.

9. Before this looking-glass I will now invite all lovers of the holy and highly-to-be-esteemed arts of philosophy, astrology, and theology, wherein I will lay open the root and ground of them.

10. Though I have not studied nor learned their arts, neither do I know how to go about to measure their circles; I take no great care about that. However, they will have so much to learn from hence, that many will not comprehend the ground thereof all the days of their lives.

11. I have no use for their tables, formulae or schemes, rules and ways, for I have not learned from them, but I have another teacher or schoolmaster, which is the whole or total NATURE.

12. From that whole nature, together with its innate, instant birth or geniture, have I studied and learned my philosophy, astrology, and theology, and not from men, or by men.

13. But seeing men are gods, and have the knowledge of God the only Father, from whom they are proceeded or descended, and in whom they live, therefore I despise not the canons, rules and formulae of their philosophy, astrology, and theology: For I find, that for the most part they [the philosophers, etc.] stand upon a right ground, and I will diligently endeavour to go according to their rules and formulae.

14.* For I must needs say that their scheme of formulation is my master; from it I have the first elements of my knowledge, and it is not my purpose to controvert or amend their formulae (for I cannot do it, neither have I learned them), but rather leave them where they are.

* A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow’s rendering.

15. I will not, however, build upon their ground, but as a laborious, careful servant I will dig away the earth from the root, that thereby men may see the whole tree, with its root, stock, branches, twigs and fruits; and they may also see that my writing is no new thing, but that their philosophy and my philosophy are one body, one tree, bearing one and the same sort of fruit.

16. Neither have I any command to bring in complaints against them, to condemn them for anything, except for their wickedness and abominations, as pride, covetousness, envy and wrath, against which the spirit of nature complaineth very exceedingly, and not I: For what can I do, that am poor dust and ashes, also very weak, simple, and altogether unable?

17. Only the spirit sheweth thus much: that to them is delivered and entrusted the weighty talent, and the key; and they are drowned in the pleasures of the flesh, and have buried their weighty talent in the earth, and have lost the key in their proud drunkenness.

18. The spirit hath a long time waited on them, and importuned them that they would once open the door, for the clear day is at hand; yet they walk up and down in their drunkenness, seeking for the key, when they have it about them, though they know it not; and so they go up and down in their proud and covetous drunkenness, always seeking about like the country man for his horse, who all the while he went seeking for him was riding upon the back of that very horse he looked for.

19. Thereupon, saith the spirit of nature, seeing they will not awake from sleep and open the door, I will therefore do it myself.

20. What could I, poor, simple layman, teach or write of their high art, if it were not given to me by the spirit of nature, in whom I live and am? I am in the condition or state of a vulgar or layman, and have no salary, wages or pay for this writing: Should I, then, oppose the spirit, that he should not begin to open where, and in whom, he pleaseth? I am not the door, but an ordinary wooden bolt upon it: Now if the spirit should pluck me out from thence, and fling me into the fire, could I hinder it?

21. But if I should be an unprofitable bolt, which would stubbornly resist to be pulled out, and would bolt up and hinder the spirit in the opening, would not the spirit be angry with me, tear me off, and cast me away, and provide a more profitable and fitter bolt? Then should I lie on the ground and be trampled under foot, whereas formerly I made so fair a show upon the door: What would be the use of the bolt, except as firewood?

22. Behold! I tell thee a Mystery: so soon as the door is set wide open to its angle,* all useless, fastnailed, sticking bolts or bars will be cast away, for the door will never be shut any more at all, but standeth open, and then the four winds will go in and out at it.

* "to its angle," lit., "upon its hinges," i. e. as wide as the hinges will allow.

23. But the sorcerer sitteth in the way, and will make many so blind that they will not see the door; and then they return home and say, There is no door at all, it is a mere fiction. And so they go thither no more.

24. Thus men suffer themselves easily to be turned away, and so live in their drunkenness.
25. Now when this is done, then the spirit which hath opened the gates is angry, because none will go OUT and IN at its doors any more, and then it flings the door-posts into the abyss, and then there is no more time at all. Those that are within, remain within; and those that are without, remain without. AMEN.

Now it may be asked, What are the stars?

Answer.

26. Moses writeth concerning them thus: And God said; Let there be lights in the firmament of heaven, to divide or distinguish the day from the night; and let them give signs and seasons, days and years; and let them be lights in the firmament of heaven to shine or give light upon the earth; and it was so done. And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night; as also the stars. And God set them in the firmament of the heaven, to shine or give light upon the earth; and to rule day and night; also to divide or distinguish the light from the darkness; and God saw that it was good, so out of the evening and the morning the fourth day came to be.

27. This description sheweth sufficiently that the dear man Moses was not the original author thereof; for the first writer did not know either the true God, or the stars, what they were. It is very likely that the creation, before the flood, was not described in writing, but was kept as a dark word in men's memories, and so delivered from one generation to another, till after the flood, and till people began to lead epicurean lives in all voluptuousness.

28. Then the holy patriarchs, when they saw that, described the creation, that it should not be quite forgotten, and that the swinish, epicurean world might have a looking-glass in the creation, wherein they might see that there is a God, and that this being of the world did not so stand from eternity; whereby they might have a glass to look into, and so fear the hidden God.

29.* This was the chief teaching and doctrine of the patriarchs, both before and after the flood, [namely] to direct men [i.e. men's attention] to the creation, which [object] the whole book of Job also driveth at.

* A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow's rendering.

30. After these patriarchs came the wise Heathen, who went somewhat deeper into the knowledge of nature. And I must needs say, according to the ground of the truth, that they, in their philosophy and knowledge, did come even before the face or countenance of God, and yet could neither see nor know him.

31. Man was so altogether dead in death,* and so bolted up in the outermost birth or geniture in the dead palpability; or else they could have thought, that in this palpability there must needs be a divine power hidden in the centre, which had so created this palpability, and moreover preserveth, upholdeth and ruleth the same.

* "Man was so altogether dead in death," etc. The first clause of this par. is really a completion of the foregoing par. That is, "they . . . did come . . . and yet could neither see nor know him, so entirely torpid in death was man, and so bolted up in the outermost . . . else they [the heathen]," etc.

32. Indeed they honoured, prayed to, or worshipped the sun and stars for gods, but knew not how these were created or came to be, nor out of what they came to be: For they might well have thought that that which proceeded from somewhat, and that that which created this, must needs be older and higher or greater than all the stars.

33. Besides, they had the stones and the earth for an example, to shew that these must proceed from somewhat, as also men, and all the creatures upon the earth. For all give testimony that there must needs be in these things a mightier and greater power at hand, which had so created all these things, in that manner as they are.

34. But, indeed, why should I write much of the blindness of the Heathen; are not our doctors, in their crowned ornaments of hoods and cornered caps, as blind as they? Our doctors know indeed that there is a God, who hath created all this, but they know not where that God is, nor how he is.

35. When they would write of God, then they seek for him without, and absent from, this world, above only, in a kind of heaven, as if he were some image that may be likened to somewhat. Indeed they grant that that God ruleth all in this world with a spirit; but his corporeal propriety or habitation they will needs have in a certain heaven aloft, many thousand miles off.

36. Come on ye doctors! if you are in the right, then give answer to the spirit: I will ask you a few questions. 1. What do you think stood in the place of this world before the time of the world? Or, 2. Out of what do you think the earth and stars came to be? Or, 3. What do you think there is in the deep above the earth? Or, 4. From whence did the deep exist? Or, 5. How do you think man is the image of God, wherein God dwelleth? Or, 6. What do you suppose God's wrath to be? Or, 7. What is that in man which displease God so much, that he tormenteth and afflicteth man so, seeing he hath created him? And 8. That he imputeth sin to man, and condemneth him to eternal punishment? 9. Why hath he created that wherein or wherewith man committeth sin? Surely that thing must be far worse. 10. Wherefore, and out of what, is that come to be? Or, 11. What is the cause or beginning, or the birth or geniture of God's fierce wrath, out of or from which hell and the devil are come to be? Or, 12. How comes it that all the creatures in this world do bite, scratch, strike, beat and worry one another, and yet sin is imputed to man alone? Or, 13. Out of what are poisonous and venomous beasts and worms and all manner of vermin come to be? Or, 14. Out of what are the holy angels come to be? And 15. What is the soul of man? And lastly, 16. What is the great God himself?

37. Give your direct and fundamental answer to all this, and demonstrate what you say, and leave off your verbal contentions. Now if you can demonstrate out of all your books and writings, 1. That you know the true and only God; and, 2. How he is in love and wrath: Also, 3. What that God is. And 4. If you can demonstrate that God is not in the stars, elements, earth, men, beasts, worms, leaves, herbs and grass, nor in heaven and earth; also that all this is not God himself, and that my spirit is false and wicked; then I will be the first that will burn my book in the fire, and recall and recant all whatsoever I have written, and will accurse it, and in all obedience willingly submit myself to be instructed by you.

38. I do not say that I cannot err at all. For there are some things which are not sufficiently explained, but are described, as it were, from a glimpse of the great God, when the wheel of nature whirled about too swiftly, so that man, with his half-dead and dull capacity or apprehension, cannot sufficiently comprehend it; though what thou findest not sufficiently explained in one place thou wilt find it done in another; if not in this book, then in the others.

Now thou wilt say, It doth not become me to ask such questions; for the Deity is a Mystery, which no man can search into.

Answer.
39. Hearken: If it doth not become me to ask, then it doth not become thee to judge me. Dost thou boast in the knowledge of the light, and art a leader of the blind, and yet art blind thyself? How wilt thou shew the way to the blind? In your blindness must you not both fall?

But you will say, We are not blind; for we well see the way of the light. Why then do you contend or dispute about the way of the light, if none can see it rightly?

40. You teach others the way, and you are always seeking after it yourselves, and so you groove in the dark, and discern it not. Or do you suppose that it is sin for any man to ask after the way?

41. O ye blind men! leave off your contentions, and shed not innocent blood; also do not lay waste countries and cities, to fulfil the devil’s will; but put on the helmet of peace, gird yourselves with love one to another, and practise meekness: Leave off pride and covetousness, grudge not the different forms of one another, also suffer not the wrath-fire to kindle in you; but live in meekness, chastity, friendliness and purity, and then you are and live ALL in God.
42. For thou needest not to ask, Where is God? [See Ch. 14, par. 127]
Hearken, thou blind man; thou livest in God, and God is in thee; and if thou livest holily, then therein thou thyself art God. For wheresoever thou lookest, there, is God.

43. When thou beholdest the deep between the stars and the earth, canst thou say, That is not God, or, There God is not? O, thou miserable corrupted man! be instructed; for in the deep above the earth, where thou seest and knowest nothing, and sayest there is nothing, yet even there is the light-holy God in his Trinity, and he is generating there, as well as in the high heaven aloft above this world.

44 Or dost thou think that in or at the time of the creation of this world he departed and went away from his seat wherein he did sit from eternity? O no; that cannot be, for though he would himself do so, he cannot do it, for he himself is All: As little as a member of the body can be rent off from itself, so little also can God be divided, rent or separated from being everywhere.

45. But that there are so many formings, figurings or framings in him, is caused by his eternal birth or geniture, which first is threefold, and out of or from that Trinity or Ternary it generateth itself infinitely, immeasurably or inconceiveably.

46. Of these births or genitures I will here write, and shew to the children of the last world what God is; not out of any boasting or pride, thereby to disgrace or reproach anybody! No; the spirit will instruct thee, meekly and friendly, as a father doth his children; for the work is not from my fleshly reason, but the Holy Ghost’s dear revelation, or breaking through in the flesh.

47. In my own faculties or powers I am as blind a man as ever was, and am able to do nothing; but in the spirit of God my innate [regenerated] spirit seeth through ALL, though not always with long stay or continuance; but only when the spirit of God’s love breaketh through my spirit, then is the animated or soulish birth or geniture and the Deity one being, one comprehensibility, and one light.

48. Am I alone only so? No, but all men are so, be they Christians, Jews, Turks, or Heathen. In whomsoever love and meekness is, in them is also the light of God. If thou sayest, No, this is not so; consider:

49. Do not the Turks, Jews, and Heathen live in the same body or corporeity wherein thou livest, and do they not make use of that same power and virtue of body which thou usest; moreover, they have even the same body which thou hast, and the same God which is thy God is their God also?

But thou wilt say, They know him not; also they honour him not.

Answer.
50. Yes, dear man, now boast thyself that thou hast hit it well! Indeed thou, above others, knowest God! Behold, thou blind man, wherever love riseth up in meekness, there the heart of God riseth up. For the heart of God is generated in the meek water of the kindled light, be it in man, or anywhere else without man; it is everywhere generated in the centre, between the outermost and the innermost birth or geniture.
51. whatsoever thou dost but look upon, there, is God, but in this world the comprehensibility standeth in the wrath, which the devil hath kindled; and in the hidden kernel, in the midst or centre of the wrath, the light or heart of God is generated, incomprehensibly as to the wrath; and so each of them remaineth in its seat.

52. Yet, for all that, I do no way approve or excuse the unbelief of the Jews, Turks, and Heathen, nor their stiff-necked stubbornness, nor their fierce wrath, furious malice and hatred against the Christians. No; these things are mere snares of the devil, whereby he allureth men to pride, covetousness, envy and hatred, that he may kindle in them the hellish fire: Neither can I say that these four sons of the devil are not domineering in Christendom, and, indeed, in every man.

Now thou sayest, What then is the difference between Christians, Jews, Turks, and Heathen?

Answer.

53. Here the spirit openeth both door and gate; * if thou wilt not see, then be blind.

* "both door and gate" (Thür und Thor), that is, both small and great avenues of perception. The German Thür describes, principally, an ordinary door, while Thor means nearly always a large entrance, like city gates, etc.

54. I. The first difference, which God hath always held and maintained for all those who know what God is, and how they should serve him, is that they should be able by their knowledge to press through the wrath into God's love, and overcome the devil: But if they do it not, then they are no better than those that know it not.

55. But if he that knoweth not the way presseth through the wrath into the love, then is he like the man who pressed through by his knowledge. But those that persevere in the wrath, and wholly kindle it in themselves, they are all alike, one and other, be they Christians, Jews, Turks, or Heathen.

Or what dost thou suppose it is, wherewith man can serve God?

56. If thou wilt dissemble with God, and adorn or magnify thy birth, then I suppose thee to be a very fine angel indeed! He that hath love in his heart, and leadeth a merciful, meek, and lowlyminded life, and fighteth against malice and hatred, and presseth through the wrath of God into the light, he liveth with God, and is one spirit with God.

57. For God needeth no other service, but that his creature, which is in his body, do not slide back from him, but be holy, as he is.

58. Therefore also God gave the Law to the Jews, that they should diligently study and endeavour after meek holiness and love, that thereby all the world might have them for their looking-glass or mirror. But when the Jews grew proud, and boasted in their birth, instead of entering into love, they turned the law of love into sharpness of wrath; then God removed their candlestick, and went to the Heathen.

59. II. Secondly, There is this difference between the Christians, Jews, Turks, and Heathen: the Christians know the Tree of Life, which is CHRISTUS, CHRIST, who is the Prince of our heaven and of this world, and ruleth in all births or genitures as a King in God his Father, and men are his members.

60. Now Christians know how they can, by the power of this Tree, press out from their death, through his death, to him into his life, and reign and live with him, wherein they also, with their pressing through with their new birth out from this dead body, can be with him in heaven.

61. And though the dead body is in the midst or centre of hell among all the devils, yet, for all that, the new man reigneth with God in heaven, and the Tree of Life is to them a strong gate, through which they do enter into life: But of this thou wilt find more largely in its proper place.

Now observe:
62. Moses writeth, that God said, Let there be lights in the firmament of heaven, which should therein give a light to the earth, and divide or distinguish day and night; also make years and times or seasons.

63. This description sheweth that the first writer did not know what the stars are, though he was capable of understanding the right or law of God, and hath taken hold on the Deity at the heart, and looked upon or had respect to the heart, to consider what the heart and kernel of this creation is; though the spirit kept the astral and outermost dead birth or geniture hidden from him, and did only drive him in faith to the heart of the Deity.

64. Which is also the principal point most necessary for man: For when he layeth hold on true faith, then he presseth through the wrath of God, through death into life, and reigneth with God.

65. But seeing men now, at the end of this time, do listen and long very much after the root of the tree, through which nature sheweth that the time of the discovery of the tree is at hand, therefore the spirit will shew it to them. And the whole Deity will reveal itself, which is the Day-spring, Dawning, or Morning-redness, and the breaking-forth of the great day of God, in which whatsoever is generated from death to the regeneration of life shall be restored and rise again.

66. Behold, when God said, Let there be light, then the light in the powers of nature, or the seven spirits of God, rose up, and the firmament of heaven, which standeth in the Word, in the heart of the water, between the astral and the outermost birth or geniture, was closed or shut up by or with the Word and heart of the water, and the astral birth is the place of the partingmark or limit, which standeth half in heaven and half in the wrath.

67. For from or out of that half part of the wrath the dead birth generateth itself continually, and out of the other half part, which reacheth with its innermost degree even into the innermost heart and light of God, the life generateth itself now continually through death, and yet the astral birth or geniture is not two bodies, but one body.

68. But when, in these two days, the creation of heaven and of earth was completed, and the heaven was made in the heart of the water, for a difference or distinction between the light of God and the wrath of God, then, on the third day, through the terror or crack of the fire-flash, which rose up in the heart of the water, and presseth through death, incomprehensibly as to death, there sprang up all manner of ideas, forms and figures, as was done before the time of the kindled wrath.

69. But seeing the water, which is the spirit of the astral life, stood in the midst or centre of wrath, and also in death, thereupon also every body formed itself as was the birth or geniture to life and mobility.

Of the Earth.

70. But now the earth was the Salitter, which was cast up out of the innermost birth and stood in death: But when the fire-flash, through the word, rose up in the water, then it was a terror or crack, from which existed the mobility in death; and that mobility, in all the seven spirits, is now the astral birth or geniture.

The Depth. Understand this aright.

71. Now when, on the third day, the fire-flash in the water of death had kindled itself, then the life pressed forth quite through the dead body of the water and of the earth.

72. But yet the dead water and earth comprehend no more than the flash or terror or crack of the fire, through which their mobility existeth: But the light that riseth up very softly, gently or meekly in the fire-flash neither the earth nor the dead water can comprehend.

73. But it retaineth its seat in the kernel, which is the unctuosity or fatness, or the water of life, or the heaven; for it is the body of life, which the death cannot comprehend, and yet it riseth up in the death.

74. Neither can the wrath take hold of it or apprehend it, but the wrath remaineth in the terror or crack of the fire-flash, and maketh the mobility in the dead body of the earth and the water.
75. But the light presseth in very gently after, and formeth the birth, which birth, through the terror or crack of the fire-flash, hath gotten its [the birth's] compacted body.

Of the Growths or Vegetables of the Earth.

76. When now the wrathful fire-flash awakened, and roused up the spirits of nature, which stand in death in the earth, and made them moveable by its fierce terror or crack, then the spirits began, according to their peculiar divine right, to generate themselves, as they had done from eternity, and form, figure or frame a body together, according to the innate, instant qualities of that place.

77. Now, that kind of Salitter which, in the time of the kindling of the wrath, did become torpid in death, as it did qualify or operate at that time, in the innate, instant [instanding] life of the seven spirits of God, that also did rise again in the time of the regeneration in the fire-flash, and is not become any new thing, but only another form of the body, which standeth in the comprehensibility or palpability in death.

78. But now the Salitter of the earth and of the water is no more able to change or alter itself in its dead being, and shew forth itself infinitely, as it did in the heavenly place or seat; but when the qualifying or fountain spirits form the body, then it riseth up in the power and virtue of the light.

79. And the life of the light breaketh through the death, and generateth to it another body out of death, which is not conformable to, or of the condition of, the water and the dead earth; also it doth not get their taste and smell; but the power of the light presseth through, and tempereth or mixeth itself with the power of the earth, and taketh from death its sting, and from the wrath its poisonous, venomous power, and presseth forth up together in the midst or centre of the body, in the growth or vegetation, as a heart thereof.

80. And herein sticketh now the kernel of the Deity in the centre in its heaven, which standeth hidden in the water of life, if thou canst now apprehend or lay hold of it.

Of the Metals in the Earth.

81. The metals have the same substance, condition and birth or geniture as the vegetables upon the earth. For the metals or mineral ores, at the time of the kindling of the wrath in the innate, instant wheel of the seventh nature-spirit, stood in the fabric, work or operation of the love, wherein the meek beneficence or well-doing generateth itself behind the fire-flash; wherein the holy heaven standeth, which in this birth or geniture, when the love is predominant, presents or sheweth forth itself in such a gracious, amiable and blessed clarity or brightness, and in such beauteous colours, like gold, silver and precious stones.

82. But silver and gold in the dead palpability or tangibility are but as a dark stone, in comparison with the root of the heavenly generating; but I set it down here * only that thou mayest know from whence it hath its original.

* "I set it down here," i.e. I make mention of the dark stone here.

83. But seeing it hath been the most excellent rising up and generating in the holy heavenly nature, therefore also it is loved by man above all other things in this world. For nature hath indeed written in man's heart that it is better than other stones and earth; but nature could not reveal or manifest to him the ground thereof, from whence it is come or proceeded, whereby now thou mayest observe the Day-spring or Morning-redness.

84. There are many several sorts of mineral ores, according as the Salitter in nature's heaven was predominant at its rising up in the light of love: For every qualifying or radical spirit in the heavenly nature containeth the property or kind of all the qualifying or fountain spirits, for it is ever infected or affected with the other,* from whence the life and the unsearchable birth or geniture of the Deity existeth: But yet it is predominant as to its own power, and that is its own body, from whence it hath the name,

* "for it is ever infected or affected with the other" (inficiret). See Ch. 8, par. 65. A freer rendering, but perfectly accurate as to the meaning, would be, " and each is ever infected with the others."

85. But now every qualifying or fountain spirit hath the property of the whole or total nature, and its fabric or work, at the time of the kindling of the wrath, was together also incorporated in death; and out of every spirit's fabric or work, earth, stones, mineral ores, and water came to be.

86. There also in the earth there are found, according to the quality of each spirit, mineral ores, stones, water and earth; and therefore it is that the earth is of so many various qualities, all as each qualifying or fountain spirit, with its innate, instant birth or geniture, was at the time of the kindling.

87. Nature hath likewise manifested or revealed so much to man, that he knoweth how he may melt away the strange or heterogene matter from every qualifying or fountain spirit's strange infected innate birth or geniture; whereby that qualifying or fountain spirit might remain chief in its own primacy.

88. You have an example of this in gold, and in silver, which you cannot make to be pure or fine gold or silver, unless it be melted seven times in the fire. [Psalm xii. 6.] But when that is done, then it remaineth in the middle or central seat in the heart of nature, which is the water, sitting * in its own quality and colour.

* " remaineth . . . sitting." See Ch. 25, par. 82.

89. I. First, the astringent quality, which holdeth the Salitter captive in the hard death, must be melted away, which is the gross stony dross.

90. II. Then secondly, the astringent death of the water is to be separated, from which proceeds a poisonous venomous water of separation, or aquafortis, which standeth in the rising up of the fire-flash in death, and which is the evil, malignant, even the very worst, source of all in death, even the astringent and bitter death itself; for this is the place where the life, which existeth the in the sweet water, died in death: And that separateth itself now in the second melting.

91. III. Thirdly, the bitter quality, which existeth in the kindling of the water in the fire-flash, is melted away, for that is a rager, raver, tyrant and destroyer. Also no silver nor gold can subsist, if that be not killed or mortified; for it maketh all dry and brittle, and presenteth or sheweth forth itself in several colours; for it rideth through all spirits, assuming the colours of all spirits.
92. IV. Fourthly, the fire-spirit, which standeth in the horrible anguish and pangs of life, must be also melted away, for it is a continued father of the wrath, and out of or from that is generated the hellish woe.

93. Now when the wrath of these four spirits is killed, then the mineral orey Salitter standeth in the water, like a tough matter, and looketh like that spirit which is predominant in the mineral ore; and the light which standeth in the fire coloureth [tinctureth] it according to its own quality, be it silver or gold.

94. And now this matter in the fourth melting looks like silver or gold, but it is not yet fixed [subsistent], nor is it tough or malleable and pure enough; its body indeed is subsistent, but not the spirit.

95. V. Now when it is melted a fifth time, then the love-spirit riseth up in the water through the light, and maketh the dead body living again, so that the matter, which remained in the first four meltings, getteth power or strength again, which was the proper own of that qualifying or fountain spirit which was predominant in this mineral ore.

96. VI. Now when it is melted the sixth time, then it groweth somewhat harder, and then the life, which is risen up in the love, moveth and stirreth itself. From this stirring existeth the tone in the hardness, and the mineral ore gets a clear sound, for the hard and dead beating * or noise of the bitter fiery matter is gone away.

* " hard and dead beating " (Pochen). See Ch. 10, par 119.

97. In this sixth melting I hold to be the greatest danger for [al]chemists about the preparing of their silver and gold. For there belongeth to it, and is required for it, a very subtile fire, and it may soon be burnt or made dead or deaf; and it becometh very dim or blind  if the fire be too cold.

 "very dim or blind." The editions of 1656 and 1730 have, "viel zu blind," "much too blind "; while the editions of 1682 and 1715 have, "viel zu lind," "much too soft." St M. prints, "trop molle," "too soft." Schiebler prints, "viel zu gelind."

98. For it must be a middle or mild fire; to keep the spirit in the heart from rising it must be gently simmering, then it getteth a very sweet and meek ringing sound, and continually rejoiceth, as if it would now be kindled again in the light of God.

99. But if the fire be too hot in the fifth and sixth melttings, then the new life, which hath generated itself in the love in the rising up of the light's power out of the water, is kindled again in the fierceness in the wrath-fire, and the mineral ore becomes a burnt scum and dross, and the alchymist hath dirt instead of gold.

100. VII. Now when it is melted the seventh time, then there belongeth to, and is required for, the process, a yet more subtile fire, for therein the life riseth up and rejoiceth in the love, and will shew forth itself in infinity, as it hath done in heaven before the time of the wrath.

101. And in this motion it growth unctuous or fat, and luscious or luxuriant; it increaseth and spreadeth itself, and the highest depth generateth itself very joyfully out of or from the heart of the spirit, just as if it would begin an angelical triumph, and present or shew forth itself infinitely in divine power and form, according to the right of the Deity: and thereby the body getteth its greatest strength and power, and the body coLOURETH or tinctureth itself with the highest degree, and getteth its true beauty, excellency and virtue.

102. And now, when it is almost made, then it hath its true virtue and colour, and there is nothing wanting except in this, that the spirit cannot elevate itself with its body into the light, but must remain to be a dead stone; and though indeed it be of greater virtue than other stones, yet the body remaineth in death.

103. And this now is the earthly god of blind men, which they love and honour, and leave the living God, who standeth hidden in the centre, sitting in his seat. For the dead flesh comprehendeth only a dead god, and longeth also only after such a dead god. But it is such a god as hath thrown many men headlong into hell.

104. Do not take me for an alchymist, for I write only in the knowledge of the spirit, and not from experience. Though indeed I could here shew something else, viz. in how many days, and in what hours, these things must be prepared; for gold cannot be made in one day, but a whole month is requisite for it.

105. But it is not my purpose to make any trial at all of it, because I know not how to manage the fire; neither do I know the colours or tinctures of the qualifying or fountain spirits in their outermost birth or geniture, which are two great defects; but I know them according to (another or) the regenerate man, which standeth not in the palpability.

106. At the description of the SUN you will find more and deeper things concerning it: My intention is only to describe the whole or total Deity, as far as I am capable in my weakness to apprehend [it], viz. how that is, in love and in wrath, and how it doth generate itself now at present in this world. You will find more concerning jewels and precious stones at the description of the seven planets.

THE TWENTY-THIRD CHAPTER

Of the Deep above the Earth.

1. WHEN man beholdeth the deep above the earth he seeth nothing but stars, and clouds of water, and then he thinketh, Sure there must be another place, where the Deity presenteth or sheweth forth itself, together with the heavenly and angelical government: man will needs have the deep, together with its regimen or dominion, severed from the Deity; for there he seeth nothing but stars; and the regimen or dominion between, is fire, air, and water.

2. Then presently he thinketh, God hath made this thus, out of or from his predestinate purpose, out of nothing: How then can God be in this being? Or, how could that be God himself? He continually imagineth that this is only a house, wherein God dwelleth and ruleth by his spirit. God cannot be such a God, whose being consisteth in the power of this government or dominion.

3. Many will dare to say, What manner of God would that be, whose body, being, and power or virtue, standeth or consisteth in fire, air, water and earth?

4. Behold! thou unapprehensive man, I will shew thee the true ground of the Deity. If this whole or universal being be not God, then thou art not God's image. If he be any other or strange God, then thou hast no part in him: For thou art created out of this God, and livest in this very God, and this very God continually giveth thee power or virtue, and blessing, also meat and drink, out of himself; also all thy knowledge standeth in this God, and when thou diest, then thou art buried in this God.

5. Now, if there be any other or strange God, without and besides this God, who then shall make thee living again out of this God, in whom thou shalt be when thou art departed and turned to dust? How shall that strange God, out of whom thou art not created, and in whom thou didst never live, bring thy body and spirit together again?

6. Now if thou art of any other matter than God himself, how then canst thou be his child? Or how can the man and king Christ be God's bodily or corporeal Son, whom God hath generated or begotten out of his heart?

7. Now, if his Deity be another being, substance or thing than his body, then there must be a twofold Deity in him; his body would be of or from the god of this world, and his heart would be of or from the unknown God.

8. O, thou child of man! open the eyes of thy spirit, for I will here shew thee the right and real proper gate of the Deity, as indeed that very one only God will have it.

9. Behold! that is the true one only God, out of whom thou art created, and in whom thou livest; and when thou beholdest the deep, and the stars, and the earth, then thou beholdest thy God, and in that same thou livest, and also art, or hast thy being therein; and that same God also governeth or ruleth thee, and also out of or from that same God thou hast thy senses, and thou art a creature out of or from him and in him; else thou hadst been nothing, or wouldst never have been.

10. Now perhaps thou wilt say that I write in a heathenish manner. Hearken and behold! observe the distinct understanding, how all this is so; for I write not heathenishly or barbarously, but philosophically; neither am I a Heathen, but I have the deep and true knowledge of the one only great God, who is ALL.

11. When thou beholdest the deep, the stars, the elements, and the earth, then thou comprehendest not with thy eyes the bright and clear Deity, though indeed it is there and in them; but thou seest and comprehendest with thy eyes, first death, and then the wrath of God and the hellish fire.

12. But if thou raisest thy thoughts, and considerest where God is, then thou apprehendest the astral birth or geniture, where love and wrath move one against the other. But when thou drawest up the faith in God, who ruleth in holiness in this government or dominion, then thou breakest through heaven, and apprehendest or layest hold on God at his holy heart.

13. Now when this is done, then thou art as the whole or total God, who himself is heaven, earth, stars, and the elements, and hast also such a regimen or dominion in thee, and art also such a person, as the whole God in the place of this world.

Now thou sayest, How shall I understand this? For the kingdom of God and the kingdom of hell and of the devil are distinct one from the other, and cannot be one body. Also the earth and stones are not God; nor the heaven, stars and elements; much less can a man be God; for if so, he could not be rejected by God. Here I will, by degrees, tell thee the ground of all, one thing after another; therefore keep the question in mind.

Of the astral Birth or Geniture, and of the Birth or Geniture of God.

14. Before the times of the created heavens, the stars, and the elements, and before the creation of angels, there was no such wrath of God, no death, no devil, no earth nor stones, neither were there any stars. But the Deity generated itself very meekly and lovingly, and formed, framed and figured itself in ideas, shapes, and images, which were incorporated according to the qualifying or fountain spirits in their generating, wrestling, and rising up, and passed away again also through their wrestling, and figured or framed themselves into another form or condition, all according to the primacy or predominancy of each qualifying or fountain spirit, as you may read before.

15. But observe here, rightly the earnest and severe birth or geniture, out of which the wrath of God, hell, and death, are come to be, which indeed have been from eternity in God, but not liable to be kindled or to become predominant.

16. For the whole or total God standeth in seven species or kinds, or in a sevenfold form or generating; and if these births or genitures were not, then there would be neither God, nor life, nor angel, nor any creature.

17. And these births or genitures have no beginning, but have so generated themselves from eternity; and as to this depth, God himself knoweth not what he is: For he knoweth no beginning of himself, also he knoweth not anything that is like himself as also he knoweth no end of himself.

18. These seven generatings in all are none of them the first, the second, or the third, or last, but they are all seven, every one of them, both the first, second, third, fourth, and last. Yet I must set them down one after another, according to a creaturely way and manner, otherwise thou couldst not understand it: For the Deity is as a wheel with seven wheels made one in another, wherein a man seeth neither beginning nor end.

Now observe:
19. I. First, there is the astringent quality, which is always generated from the other six spirits, which in itself is hard, cold, sharp like salt, and yet far sharper. For a creature cannot sufficiently apprehend its sharpness, seeing the sharpness is not singly and alone in a creature; but according to the manner and kind of the kindled hellish quality I know how it is: This astringent sharp quality attracteth or draweth together, and in the divine love holdeth or retaineth the forms and images, and so drieth them that they subsist or are fixed.

20. II. The second generating is the sweet water, which is also generated out of all the six spirits; for it is the meekness, which is generated out of the other six, and presseth itself forth in the astringent birth or geniture, and always kindleth again the astringent, and then quencheth and mitigateth it, that it be not too much astringent, as it might be in its own sharpness, if it were not for the water.
21. III. The third generating is the bitterness, which existeth out of the fire in the water; for it rubbeth and vexeth itself in the astringent and sharp coldness, and maketh the coldness moveable, from whence mobility existeth.

22. IV. The fourth generating is the fire, which existeth from the mobility or rubbing in the astringent spirit, and that is now a sharp burning, and the bitter is a stinging and raging. But when the fire-spirit rubbeth itself thus ragerly in the astringent coldness, then there is an anxious horrible quaking, a trembling, and a sharp, opposite, contentious generating.

    Observe here the Depth.

23. I speak here as to the kind and manner of the devil, as if the light of God had not yet kindled itself in these four kinds; and as if the Deity had a beginning; I can no other or nearer way offer it to your judgment, that you may understand it.

24. In this fourth rubbing is a very hard, and most horrible, sharp and fierce coldness, like a refined, melted, and very cold salt-water, which yet is not water, but such a hard kind of power and virtue that is like stones.

25. There is also therein a raging, raving, stinging and burning, and that water is continually as a dying man, when body and soul are parting asunder, a most horrible anxiety, a woeful, painful birth or geniture.

26. O Man! here consider thyself, here thou seest from whence the devil and his fierce, wrathful malice hath its original, as also God's wrath, and the hellish fire, also death and hell, and eternal damnation. Ye philosophers, observe that!
27. Now when these four generatings rub themselves one upon another, then heat gets the primacy and predominancy, and kindleth itself in the sweet water, and then instantly the light riseth up.

28. When the light kindleth itself, then the fire-terror or crack cometh forth first. As when you strike upon a stone the fire-crack is first, and then the light first conceiveth itself from the fire-crack.

29. Now the fire-crack in the water goeth through the astringent quality, and maketh it moveable, but the light generateth itself in the water, and becomes a shining light, and is an impalpable, meek, and most richly loving being, of which neither I nor any other creature can sufficiently write or speak, but I only stammer, like a child which would fain learn to speak.

30. That same light is generated in the midst or centre, out of these four species, out of the unctuosity or fatness of the sweet water, and replenisheth the whole body of this generating. But it is such a meek, pleasing, well-doing, good-smelling and well-tasting relish, that I know no similitude to liken it to, but where life is generated in the midst or centre of death; or as if a man did sit in a huge, scorching, hot, flaming fire, and were suddenly snatched out from thence, and set in such a very exceeding easy place of refreshment, where instantly all the smarting, scalding pains, which he felt afore by the burning of the fire, should suddenly pass away, and he be put into such a pleasing temper and soundness. Just so the generating of the four kinds or species are set or put into such a soft and meek welldoing and refreshment, as soon as the light riseth up in them. Thou must understand me here aright.
31. I write, and mean it, in a creaturely kind and manner, as if a man had been the devil's prisoner, and were suddenly removed out of the hellish fire into the light of God.

32. For the light hath had no beginning in the generating of God, but hath shone or given light from eternity in the generating, and God himself knoweth no beginning therein.

33. Only, the spirit here setteth open for thee the gates of hell, that thou mayest see what is the condition of the devils and of hell, and what is the condition of man, when the divine light extinguished in him, so that he sitteth in the wrath of God and liveth in such a generating, in such an anguish, in such smarting pains, in such woe and misery.

34. Neither can I declare it unto thee in any other manner; for I must write as if the generating or geniture of God had or took a beginning when things came to be thus; but I write here very, really true and precious dear words, which the spirit alone understandeth. Now observe the Gates of God.

35. The light, which generateth itself from the fire and becometh shining in the water, and replenisheth or filleth the whole geniture and enlighteneth it, and mitigates it, that light is the true Heart of God, or Son of God; for he is continually generated out of the Father, and is a Person other than the qualities and geniture of the Father.

36. For the generating or geniture of the Father cannot catch or comprehend the light, and use it to its generating, but the light standeth by itself, and is not comprehended by any geniture, and it replenisheth and enlighteneth the whole geniture, viz. [John i. 14.] the only begotten Son of the Father. This light I call, in the human birth or geniture, the animated or soulish birth—
"Understand, the image which budded forth out of the essences of the soul, according to the similitude of God."
—or the soul's birth or geniture which qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with this animated or soulish birth or geniture of God; and herein is man's soul one heart with God: but that is when it standeth in this light.

37. V. The fifth generating in God is when this light thus very gently, mildly and amiably presseth through the first four births or generatings, and then it bringeth along with it the heart, and most pleasant lovely power and virtue of the sweet water, and so when the sharp births or genitures taste of it, then are they very meek, and richly full of love, and it is as if the life did continually rise up in and from death.

38. There each spirit tasteth of the others, and getteth mere new strength and power, for the astringent quality groweth now very pliable and yielding, because it is mitigated by the power of the light that springeth out of the sweet water, and in the fire the meek love riseth up, for it warmeth the coldness, and the sweet water maketh the sharp taste very pleasant, lovely, and mild.

39. And so in the sharp and fiery births or generatings there is nothing but a mere longing of love, a tasting, friendly affecting, gracious, amiable and blessed generating; there is nothing but mere love, and all wrath and bitterness in the centre are bolted up as in a strong hold. This generating is a very meek, beneficial welldoing, and the bitter spirit is now the living mobility.
40. VI. Now the sixth generating in God is when the spirits, in their birth or geniture, thus taste one of another, for then they become very full of joy: For the fire-flash, or the sharpness out of or from the birth or geniture, riseth up aloft, and moveth as the air in this world doth.

41. For when one power or virtue toucheth another, then they taste one another, and become very full of joy; for the light becometh generated out of all the powers, and presseth again through all the powers; whereby and wherein the rising joy generateth itself, from whence the tone or tune existeth.

42. For from the touching and moving the living spirit generateth itself, and that same spirit presseth through all births or generatings, very inconceivably and incomprehensibly to the birth or geniture, and is a very richly joyful, pleasant, lovely sharpness, like melodious, sweet music.

43. And now when the birth generateth, then it conceiveth or apprehendeth the light, and speaketh or inspireth the light again into the birth or geniture through the moving spirit. This moving spirit is the third Person in the birth or geniture of God, and is called God the Holy Ghost.

44. VII. The seventh generating is, and keepeth its birth or geniture and forming in, the Holy Ghost; and so when that goeth through the sharp births or genitures, then it goeth forth with the tone, and so formeth and imageth all manner of figures, all according to the wrestling of the sharp births or genitures one with another.

45. For they wrestle in the birth or geniture continually one with another, like a loving play or scene, and according as the birth or geniture is with the colours and taste in the rising up, so also are the figures imaged.

46. And this birth or geniture now is called GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost: Not one of them is the first, and not one of them is the last: though I make a distinction, and set the one after the other, yet not one of them is the first or the last, but they have all been from eternity thus seated in the same equality of being.

47. I must write thus by way of distinction, that the Reader may understand it; for I cannot write mere heavenly words, but must write human words. Indeed all is rightly, truly and faithfully described: But the being of God consisteth only in power, and only the spirit comprehendeth it, and not the dead or mortal flesh.

48. Thus thou mayest understand what manner of being the Deity is, and how the three Persons in the Deity are. Thou must not liken the Deity to any image; for the Deity is the birth or geniture of all things. If, in the first four species or kinds, there were not the sharp birth or generating, then there would be no mobility, neither could the light kindle itself and generate the life.

49. But now this sharp birth or geniture is the original of mobility and of life, as also of the light, from whence existeth the living and rational spirit, which distinguisheth, formeth and imageth all in this generating.

50. For the astringent cold birth or geniture is the beginning of all things, which quality is astringent, severe, contracting and retentive, and formeth and contracteth together the birth, and maketh the birth thick or solid, so that out of it nature cometh to be; hence nature and comprehensibility hath its original in the whole body of God.

51. Now this nature is as a dead, unintellectual being, and standeth or consisteth not in the power of the birth or geniture, but is a body, wherein the power generateth.

52. But it is the body of God, and hath all power as the whole geniture hath, and the generating spirits take their strength and power out of or from the body of nature, and continually generate again, and the astringent spirit continually compacteth or draweth together again, and drieth up; and thus the body subsisteth, and the generating spirits also.

53. Now the other birth or geniture is the water, which taketh its original in the body of nature.

Observe:
54. Now when the light shineth through the astringent, contracted body of nature, and mitigateth it, then the mild, beneficent well-doing generateth itself in the body, and then the hard power groweth very mild, and melteth, as ice in the heat of the sun, and is extenuated or rarefied, as water is in the air; and yet the stock of nature, as to the heavenly comprehensibility, remaineth the same.

55. For the astringent and fire-spirit holdeth it fast, and the meek water, which melteth from the body of nature in the kindling of the light, goeth through the severe, earnest, cold and fiery birth or geniture, and is very sweet, pleasant and lovely.

56. Whereby now the earnest and austere birth or geniture is refreshed; and when it tasteth thereof it growtheth capable to be raised up, and rejoiceth, and also is a joyful rising up, wherein the life of meekness generateth itself.

57. For this is the water of life, wherein the love, in God as also in angels and in men, generateth itself: For it is all of one sort of power, virtue and birth or geniture.

58. And now when the births or genitures of the powers taste the water of life, then they quake or tremble for very love-joy, and that trembling or moving, which riseth up in the midst or centre of the birth or geniture, is bitter. For it riseth up swiftly out of the birth, when the water of life cometh into the birth or geniture, like a joyful leaping or springing up of the birth.

59. But seeing it riseth up so swiftly, that the birth elevateth itself so suddenly, before it be fully affected with the water of life, thereupon that terror or crack keepeth its bitterness which it hath out of or from the austere birth; for the beginning or inceptive birth or geniture is very austere, cold, fiery and astringent.

60. Therefore also is the terror or crack now so swelling and trembling; for it moveth the whole birth, and rubbeth itself therein, till it kindleth the fire in the hard fierceness, from whence the light taketh its original. Then the trembling crack becometh enlightened with the meekness of the light, and goeth in the birth or geniture up and down, and crossways, both upwards and downwards, like a wheel made with seven wheels one in another.

61. In this pressing through and turning about existeth the tone, according to the quality of each spirit; and always one power affecteth another, for the powers are as loving brethren in one body; and the meekness riseth up; and the spirit generateth and sheweth itself infinitely.

62. For that power which in the turning about sheweth itself the strongest in the generating, according to that power, manner and colour, the Holy Ghost also imageth, shapeth or frameth the figures in the body of nature.

63. Thus thou seest that none of the powers is the first, also none the second, third, fourth or last; but the last generateth the first, as well as the first the last, and the middlemost taketh its original from the last, as also from the first, as well as from the second, third, or any of the rest.

64. Thou seest also that nature cannot be distinguished from the powers of God, but is all one body.

65. The Deity, that is, the holy power of the heart of God, is generated in nature, and so also the Holy Ghost existeth or goeth forth out of the heart of the light continually, through all the powers of the Father, and figureth all, and imageth or frameth all.

66. This birth or geniture is now in three distinct parts, every part being several and total* and yet not one of them is divided asunder from the others.

* "several and total" (ein sonderlichet und ganzes), "a particular [one] and a whole [in itself]."

The Gate of the Holy Trinity.

67. The whole birth or geniture, which is the heaven of all heavens, as also this world, which is in the body of the whole, as also the place of the earth and of all creatures, and whatever thou canst think on, all that together is God the Father, who hath neither beginning nor end; and wheresoever and upon whatsoever thou thinkest, even in the smallest circle that can be imagined, is the whole birth or geniture of God, perfectly, incessantly and irresistibly.

68. But if in a creature, or in any place, the light be extinguished, then in that place is the austere birth or geniture, which lieth hid in the light in the innermost kernel: And this now is one part.

69. The second part, or the second Person, is the light, which is continually generated from or out of all powers, and enlighteneth again all the powers of the Father, and hath the fountain of all powers; but it is therein distinguished from the Father as a singular Person, in that it cannot comprehend the birth or geniture of the Father, and yet is the Father's Son, which is always generated from or out of the Father: An instance whereof you have in all the kindled fires in this world; do but consider of it.

70. Therefore the Father loveth this his only begotten or innate Son so heartily, because he is the light and the meek beneficent well-doing in his body, through whose power the Father's joy and delight riseth up.

71. Now these are two Persons, and neither of them can apprehend, retain, or comprehend the other, and the one is as great as the other; and if either of them were not, the other could not be.

72. Observe here, ye Jews, Turks, and Heathen, for it concerneth you; to you here are opened the gates of God, harden not yourselves, for now is the acceptable time.

73. You are not forgotten of God at all, but if you convert, then the light and heart of God will rise up in you, as the bright sun at noonday.

74. This I write in the power and perfect knowledge of the great God, and I understand his will herein very well. For I live and am in him, and spring up with this work and labour out of his root and stock; and it must be so: Only, take thou heed, if thou blindest thyself, then there is no remedy more; neither canst thou say thou knewest not of it, therefore arise, for the day breaketh!

75. The third diversity, or the third Person in the being of God, is the moving spirit, which existeth from the rising up in the terror or crack, where life is generated, which now moveth in all powers, and is the spirit of life; and the powers can no more comprehend him, or apprehend him; but he kindleth the powers, and by his moving maketh figures and images, and formeth them according to that kind and manner as the wrestling birth standeth in every place.

76. And if thou art not wilfully blind, thou mayest know that the air is that very spirit; but in the place of this world nature is kindled therein very swelling in the wrath-fire, which lord Lucifer effected, and the Holy Ghost, who is the spirit of meekness, lieth hidden therein in his heaven.

77. Thou needest not to ask where that heaven is. It is in thy heart, do but open thy heart, the key is here shewn to thee.

78. Thus there is one God, and three distinct Persons one in another, and not one of them can comprehend, or withhold, or fathom the original of the others, but the Father generateth the Son, and the Son is the Father's heart, and his love and his light, and is an original of joy, and the beginning of all life.

79. And the Holy Ghost is the spirit of life, and a former, framer and creator of all things, and a performer of the will in God; that hath formed and created out of or from the body, and in the body of the Father, all angels and creatures, and holdeth and formeth all still, daily, and is the sharpness and the living spirit of God: As the Father speaketh or expresseth the Word, out of or from his powers, so the spirit formeth or frameth them.

Of the great Simplicity of God.

80. Come on, brave Sir, upon thy brown nag! thou who ridest from heaven into hell, and from hell into death, and therein the sting of the devil lieth. View thyself here, thou worldlywise man, that art full of base wit, cunning, and subtle policy.

81. Take notice, ye worldly-wise lawyers, if you will not come before this looking-glass, even before the bright and clear face of God, and view yourselves therein, then the spirit presenteth to you the birth or geniture in the innermost astrin gent circle; where wit, cunning and prudence are generated, where the sharpness of the anxious birth or geniture of God is, for there your prudence, cunning and deep-reaching wit are generated.

82. Now if you will be gods, and not devils, then make use of the holy and meek law of God; if not, then you shall for ever eternally generate in the austere and severe birth or geniture of God. Thus saith the spirit, as the word of God, and not of my dead or mortal flesh.

83. Thou must know that I do not suck it out from the dead or mortal reason, but my spirit qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with God, and proveth or searcheth the Deity, how it is in all its births or genitures in its taste and smell: And I find that the Deity is a very simple, pure, meek, loving and quiet being; and that the birth of the Ternary of God generateth itself very meekly, friendly, lovingly and unanimously, and the sharpness of the innermost birth can never elevate or swell itself into the meekness of the Ternary, but remaineth hidden in the deep.

84. And the sharpness in the hidden secrecy is called God's WRATH; and the being of meekness in the Ternary or Trinity is called GOD. Here nothing goeth out of, or forth from, the sharpness which perisheth, or which doth kindle the wrath, but the spirits play very gently one with another, like little children when they rejoice one with another, where every one hath his work, and so they play one with another, and lovingly caress one another.

85. In such a work also the holy angels exercise themselves; and in the Ternary of God there is a very meek, pleasant, and sweet being, where the spirit always elevateth itself in the tone [melody, music]; and one power moveth the other, as if there were a rising up of lovely song, and play upon stringed instruments.

86. And as is the rising up of the spirits in every place, so the tone also formeth itself, but very meekly, and incomprehensibly to the bodies of the angels, but very comprehensibly to the animated or soulish birth or geniture of angels: and as the Deity presenteth itself in each place, so the angels also present themselves: For the angels were created out of this being, and have among them their princes of the qualifying or fountain spirits of God, as these princes are in the birth or geniture of God.

87. Therefore as the being of God presents or sheweth forth itself in the birth or geniture, so do the angels also; and whatsoever be the power which at any time is predominant in the birth of God, and rejoiceth out of the heart of God in the Holy Ghost, the prince of that power in the angels beginneth his hymn of praise before all the others, and jubilateth with his host; now it is one, then the other; for the birth or geniture of God is like a wheel.

88. But when the heart of God sheweth forth itself with its clarity or brightness, then there riseth up the whole host or army of all the three kingdoms of the angels; and in this rising up of the heart of God the Man JESUS CHRIST is King and Chief. He leadeth the royal chorus or choir, with all the holy souls of men, till the Last Judgment Day. And then the holy men are perfect angels, and the wicked, perfect devils, and that in its eternity.

89. Here view thyself, thou witty, subtle world, and consider from whence thy prudence, subtlety and wit proceed.

Now thou wilt say to me:
90. Dost not thou seek after deeper subtlety than we? Thou wilt [wished to] climb into the most hidden secrets of God, which is not fit for any man to go about. We seek only after human prudence and subtlety, but thou wouldst be equal with God, and know all; how God is in every thing, both in heaven and in hell, in devils, angels and men. Therefore, sure it is not unlawful to seek for a cunning, sharp wit, and after crafty designs, which bring honour, power or authority, and riches.

A Reply.
91. If thou climbest up this ladder on which I climb up into the deep of God, as I have done, then thou hast climbed well: I am not come to this meaning, or to this work and knowledge, through my own reason, or through my own will and purpose; neither have I sought this knowledge, nor so much as knew anything concerning it. I sought only for the Heart of God, therein to hide myself from the tempestuous storms of the devil.

92. But when I gat in thither, then this great, weighty and hard labour was laid upon me, which is, to manifest and reveal to the world, and to make known, the great day of the LORD; and, seeing men seek and long so eagerly after the root of the tree, to reveal to them what the whole tree is, thereby to intimate that it [the present time] is the Dawning, or Morning-Redness of the Day, which God hath long ago decreed in his council. AMEN.

93. Thus thou seest what God is, and how his love and wrath have been from eternity, also how his birth or geniture is: And now thou canst not say that thou art not in God, or dost not live in God, or that God is any strange thing which thou canst not come at, but must confess, that where thou art, there is the gate of God.

94. Now if thou art holy, then, as to thy soul, thou art with God in heaven; but if thou art wicked, then, as to thy soul, thou art in hell-fire.

Now observe further:
95. When God created the angels, all of them were created wholly out of this birth or geniture of God; their body was compacted or incorporated out of nature, therein their spirit and light generated themselves, as the Deity generated itself. And, as the qualifying or fountain spirits of God always took their power and strength out of or from the body of nature, so the angels also took their power and strength always out of or from the nature of God.

96. And as the Holy Ghost in nature formeth and imageth or frameth all, so the spirit of the angels also qualified or united with the Holy Ghost, and did help to form, frame and image all, that all might be one heart and will, and a mere delight and joy: For the angels are the children of the great God, whom he hath generated in his body of nature for the multiplying of the divine joy.

97. But here thou must know that the bodies of angels cannot apprehend the birth or geniture of God, neither doth their body understand it, their spirit alone understandeth it, but the body holdeth still, as the nature in God doth, and lets the spirit co-work and labour with God, and play lovingly.

98. For the angels play before and in God, as little children play before their parents, whereby the divine joy is increased.

99. But when the mighty, potent prince and king Lucifer was created, he would not do so, but elevated and swelled himself, and would alone be God, and kindled the wrath-fire in himself, and so did all his angels also.

100. Now when that was done he roared with his kindled fire-spirit abroad into the nature of God, and then the whole body in the nature of God, as far as Lucifer's kingdom and dominion reached, was kindled. But seeing his light was instantly extinguished, he could no more qualify or unite with his spirit in the two births or genitures, viz. of the Son of God, and of the Holy Spirit of God, but remained fixed in the sharp birth or geniture of God.

101. For the light of God, and the spirit of God, cannot comprehend the sharp birth or geniture, and therefore they are two distinct Persons; and so lord Lucifer could no more touch, see, feel or taste the Heart of God and the Holy Spirit of God, with his austere, cold and hard fire-birth, but was spewed out with his fire-spirit into the outermost nature, wherein he had kindled the wrath-fire.

102. This same nature is, indeed, the body of God, wherein the Deity generateth itself; but the devils cannot apprehend the meek birth of God which riseth up in the light For their body is dead to the light, and liveth in the outermost and austere birth or geniture of God, wherein the light never kindleth itself again any more.

103. For their unctuosness or fatness in the sweet water is burnt up, and that water is turned into a sour stink, wherein the light of God can no more kindle itself, and the light of God can no more enter into it.

104. For the qualifying or fountain spirits of the devils are shut up in the hard wrath; their bodies are a hard death, and their spirits are a fierce sting of the wrath of God, and their qualifying or fountain spirits generate themselves continually in the innermost sharpness, according to the sharp law [right or order] of the Deity.

105. For otherwise they cannot generate themselves; neither can they die, nor pass away and vanish, and be no more; but they stand in the most anguishing birth or geniture, and there is nothing in them but mere fierceness, wrath and malice; the kindled fire-source riseth from eternity to eternity, and they can never touch nor see nor apprehend the sweet and light birth or geniture of God any more.

Of the kindled Nature.

106. Now God hath therefore kindled nature so much and so hard, and did so kindle the burning in his wrath therein, that he might thereby build a dwelling-house for the devils, and keep them prisoners therein, in that they were the children of wrath, in whom he ruleth, with his fierce zeal or jealousy, and they rule in the wrath.

THE TWENTY-FOURTH CHAPTER

Of the Incorporating or Compaction of the Stars.

1. NOW when the whole body of nature in the extent, space or circumference of this world was benumbed or deadened, as in the hard death, and yet that the life was hid therein, thereupon God moved the whole body of the nature of this world on the fourth day, and generated the stars from or out of nature, out of the risen light. For the wheel of God's birth or geniture moved itself again, as it had done from eternity.

2. Indeed it had moved on the first day, and had begun the birth or geniture in the body of the corrupt nature; for on the first day the life separated itself from the death, and on the second day a firmament was created between, and on the third day the life brake forth through death. For there the light brake forth through the darkness, and made the dead body of nature to spring, to flourish, and to be stirring and agile.

3. For on the third day the body of nature did travail so hard in anxiety till the love-fire had kindled itself in the death, and till the light of life was broken forth through the congealed body of death, and had sprung up out of death; but on the third day it stood only in the fire-crack, from whence mobility existed.

4. On the fourth day the light rose up, and made its seat in the house of death, and yet death could not, and cannot, comprehend it. As little as the austere birth of God, (which standeth in the innermost kernel from whence life existeth), can apprehend the meekness, and the light of the meekness together with the spirit in the meekness, so little also can the dead darkness of this world comprehend the light of nature: no more can the devils either.

5. But the light shineth through death, and hath made its royal seat in the midst or centre in the house of death and of God's wrath, and generateth to itself a new [divine] body of God out of the house of wrath, which new body subsisteth eternally in the love of God, incomprehensibly to the old kindled body in the outmost birth or geniture.

Now thou wilt ask, How shalt I understand this?

Answer.

6. I cannot at all write it in thy heart, for it is not for every man's capacity, understanding and apprehension, especially where the spirit standeth in the house of wrath, and doth not qualify, operate or unite with the light of God. But I will shew it to thee in an earthly similitude, that thou mightest, if possible, get a little into the deep sense.

7. Behold and consider a tree: On the outside it hath a hard, gross rind or bark, which is dead, benumbed, and without vegetation—yet not quite dead, but in the impotence; and there is a great difference between the bark and the body that groweth next under the rind or bark. The body hath its living power, and breaketh forth through the withered rind, and generateth many fair young bodies or twigs, all which stand in the old body.

8. But the rind is as a death, and cannot comprehend the life of the tree, but only hangeth to it, and is a cover to the tree, in which worms do harbour, which in the end destroy the tree.

9. Thus also is the whole house of this world. The outward darkness is the house of God's wrath, wherein the devils dwell, and it is rightly the house of death, for the holy light of God hath therein died. ["Understand, the light stepped into its Principle, and is the outward substantiality in God, as it were dead in our esteem, whereas it liveth in God, but in another source or quality."]

10. But the body of this great house, which lieth hid under the shell or rind of darkness, incomprehensibly to the darkness, that body is the house of life, wherein love and wrath wrestle the one with the other.

11. Now the love always breaketh through the house of death, and generateth holy, heavenly twigs in the great tree; which twigs stand in the light. For they spring up through the shell or skin of darkness, as the twigs do through the shell or bark of the tree, and are one life with God.

12. And the wrath also springeth up in the house of darkness, and holdeth many a noble twig captive in death, through its infection in the house of fierceness.

13. This now is the sum or the contents of the astral birth or geniture, of which I here intend to write.

Now it may be asked, What are the stars? or out of what are they come to be?

14. They are the power of the seven spirits of God; for when in this world the wrath of God was kindled by the devil, then the whole house of this world in nature, or the outermost birth or geniture, was as it were benumbed or chilled in death; from whence the earth and stones are come to be. But when this hard dross or scum was driven together into a lump or heap, then the deep was cleared. But the deep was very dark, for the light therein was dead in the wrath.

15. Now the body of God, as to this world, could not remain in death, so God moved himself with his seven qualifying or fountain spirits to the birth or geniture.

But thou must understand this high thing rightly.

16. The light of God, which is the Son of God, and also the Holy Ghost, died not; but the light, which hath gone forth from or out of the heart of God from eternity, and hath enlightened nature, ([the nature] which is generated out of the seven spirits), that [light] is departed or gone away from the hard corrupted nature. From whence it is that the nature of this world, with its comprehensibility or palpability, hath remained in death, and cannot apprehend the light of God, but is a dark house of devils.

17. Upon this, on the fourth day of the creation, God regenerated anew the whole house of this world, with the qualities thereof, and hath placed or set the qualifying or fountain spirits in the house of darkness, that he might generate to himself again out of that a new body, to his praise, honour and glory.

18. For his purpose was to create another angelical host or army out of this house, which was to be done thus: He would create an angel, namely Adam, who should generate out of himself creatures like himself, who should possess the house of the new birth; and in the middle of time their king should be generated or born out of a human body, and possess the new-born kingdom as a king of these creatures, in place of the corrupted and expelled Lucifer.

19. Further, at the fulness or accomplishment of this time, God would adorn and trim this house with its qualities, as a royal government, and let those very qualifying or fountain spirits possess the whole house, that they might, in that house of darkness and of death, bring forth creatures and images again, as they had done from eternity, till the accomplishment or fulfilling of the whole host or army of the new created angels, namely men. Then God would bolt and bar up the devil in the house of darkness in a narrow hell, and then kindle the whole house in its own light again, all but the very hole, hell or dungeon of the devils.

Now it may be asked, Why did not God bolt him up instantly, and then he had not done so much mischief.
20. Behold! this was God's purpose, which [purpose] must stand: that he would re-edify out of the corrupted nature of the earth, or build again to himself an angelical host or army: Understand, a new body, which should subsist eternally in God.

21. It was not at all God's intention to let the devil have the whole earth for an eternal dwelling-house, but to let him have only the death and fierceness of the earth, which he had brought into it.

22. For what sin had the Salitter committed against God, that it should stand totally in eternal shame? None: It was only a body, which must remain still, when the devil elevated or swelled himself therein.

23. Now if God should have instantly left it to the devil for an eternal dwelling-house, then out of that place a new body could not have been built. Now what sin had that space, place or room committed against God, that it should stand in eternal shame? None; and therefore that were an injustice.

24. Now the purpose of God was to make a beautiful, excellent, angelical host or army out of the earth, and [also] all manner of ideas, forms or images. For in and upon that [earth] all should spring and generate themselves anew, as we see in mineral ores, stones, trees, herbs and grass, and in all manner of beasts after a heavenly image or form.

25. And though those imagings were transitory, seeing they were not pure before God, yet God would, at the end of this time, extract and draw forth the heart and the kernel out of the new birth or geniture, and separate it from death and wrath; and the new birth should eternally spring up in God, without, distinct from this place, and bear heavenly fruits again.

26. But the death of the earth, and the wrath therein, should be lord Lucifer's eternal house, after the accomplishing of the new birth or geniture. In the meanwhile lord Lucifer should lie captive in the darkness in the deep above the earth; and there he now is, and may very shortly expect his portion.

27. That this new birth or geniture might be accomplished, whether the devil will or no, the Creator hath therefore, in the body of this world, generated himself, as it were creaturely, in his qualifying or fountain spirits; and all the stars are nothing else but God's powers, and the whole body of this world consisteth in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits.

28. But that there are so many stars of so manifold different effects and operations is from the infiniteness, which is in the efficiency [infection or affecting] of the seven spirits of God, in one another, which generate themselves infinitely.

29. But that the birth, or the body of the stars in their seat, doth not change or alter (but do as they did from eternity), signifieth that there shall be a constant, continued birth or geniture, whereby, in one uniform operation, which yet standeth in the infiniteness, the benumbed body of the darkness of the deep above the earth; whereby the new body might continually and constantly be generated out of death, till time should be accomplished, and the whole new-born body [perfected].
Now thou wilt object and say, Then sure the stars are God, and they must be honoured and worshipped as God.

30. The wise Heathen also came to this [conclusion], who, indeed, in their sharp or acute understandings, far exceeded our philosophers; but the right door of knowledge hath yet remained hidden from them.

31. Behold! the stars are plainly incorporated or compacted out of or from God; but thou must understand the difference between the stars and God, for the stars are not the heart and the meek pure Deity, which man is to honour and worship as God; but they are the innermost and sharpest birth or geniture, wherein all things stand in a wrestling and a fighting, wherein the heart of God always generateth itself, and wherein the Holy Ghost continually riseth up from the rising of the life.

32. But the sharp birth or geniture of the stars cannot again apprehend the heart of God, nor the Holy Ghost; but the light of God, which riseth up in the anxiety, together with the moving of the Holy Ghost, remaineth free to itself as the heart, and ruleth in the midst or centre of the closure of the hidden heaven, which is from or out of the water of life.

33. For from the heaven the stars have their first kindling, and are only as an instrument, which God useth to the birth or geniture.

34. It is just such a birth as is in man; the body is even the father of the soul, for the soul is generated out of the power of the body, and when the body standeth in the anguishs birth or geniture of God, as the stars do, and not in the fierce hellish birth, then the soul of man qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the pure Deity, as a member in or of his body.

35. Thus also is the heart or light of God always generated in the body of this world, and that generated heart is one heart with the eternal, unbeginning, infinite heart of God, which is in and above all heavens.

36. It is not generated in and from the stars only, but in the whole body of this world; but the stars always kindle the body of this world, that the birth or geniture may subsist everywhere.

But here thou must well observe this.

37. The light or the heart of God taketh not its original barely from the wild rough stars, where, indeed, love and wrath are in each other, but out of or from the seat where the meek water of life is continually generated.

38. For that water, at or in the kindling of the wrath, was not apprehended by death, but subsisteth from eternity to eternity, and reacheth to all the ends and parts of or in this world, and is the water of life, which breaketh through death, out of which is built the new body of God in this world.

39. And it is in the stars, as well as in all ends, corners and places, but not in any place comprehensible or palpable, and it at once filleteth or replenisheth all alike. It is also in the body of man, and he that thirsteth after this water, and drinketh thereof, in him the light of life kindleth itself, which is the heart of God; and there [in that place] presently springeth forth the Holy Ghost.

Now thou askest, How then do the stars subsist in love and wrath?
Answer.

40. Behold! the stars are risen or proceeded out of the kindled house of God's wrath, as the mobility or stirring of a child in the mother's body or womb in three months. But now they have attained their kindling from the eternal, benumbed, not quite dead, water of life, for in nature that water was never dead.

41. But when God moved himself in the body of this world, then on the third day the anxiety, in the birth of this world, rubbed itself, from whence the fire-flash existed, and the light of the stars kindled itself in the water of life.

42. For till the third day from the time of the kindling of God's wrath in this world, nature, in the anxiety, was a dark valley, and stood in death; but on the third day the life brake through death, and the new birth began.

43. For so long, and not an hour longer, the new-born King and grand Prince of this world, JESUS CHRIST, rested in death, and hath regenerated the first three days of the creation of nature, and that very time [which was] in death, to light again; that this time might again be one time with the eternal time, and that no day of death might be between; and that the eternal love, and the new-born or regenerated love out of the new body of nature, might be one eternal love; and that there might be no difference between the eternal love, and the new-born or regenerated love, but that the new-born love might reach into the being or substance which was from eternity, and itself also be in eternity.

44. Thus the new-born love, which rose out of the water of life in the light in the stars, and in the whole body of this world, is wholly bound and united with the eternal, unbeginning, infinite love, so that they are one heart and one spirit, which supporteth and preserveth all.

45. In this kindling of the light, in the stars and elements, the birth of nature did not thereupon wholly transmute or change itself into the holy meekness, as it was before the time of the wrath, so that the birth of nature be now altogether holy and pure: No, but it standeth in its sharpest, most austere, and most anxious birth, wherein the wrath of God incessantly springeth up like hellish fire.

46. For if, with its sharp birth, nature had fully changed itself into love, according to the heavenly right, law or manner, then were the devils again in the seat of God.

47. And this thou mayest very well perceive and understand, in extreme heat and cold, as also by the poison, bitterness and sourness in this world; all which stand in the birth or geniture of the stars, wherein the devil lieth captive.

48. The stars are only the kindling of the great house; for the whole house is benumbed in death, as the earth is; for the outermost birth or geniture is dead and benumbed, as the rind, shell or bark of a tree. But the astral birth is the body in which the life riseth up.

49. But the astral birth is in its body very sharp; yet the new birth, which riseth up in the water of life, and presseth through death, mitigateth it. But the new birth cannot alter the kernel of the sharp birth, but is generated out of it, and keeps its own holy new life to itself, and presseth through the angry death, and the angry death comprehendeth it not.
50. Now this love and this wrath are indeed one body, but the water of life is the heaven of \textit{partition} between them, so that the love doth not receive or comprehend the wrath, nor the wrath the love, but the love \textit{riseth up} in the water of life, and receiveth into itself, from the first and austere birth, the \textit{power} which is in the light, and which is generated out of the wrath; so that the new body is born out of the old.

51. For the \textit{old} body, which standeth in the \textit{austere} birth, belongeth to the devil for a house, and the \textit{new} belongeth to the kingdom of Christ.

\textit{Now it may be asked}, Are not all the three Persons of the Deity in the birth or geniture of meekness in this world?

\textit{Answer.}

52. \textit{Yes}, they are all three in this world in the \textit{full} birth or geniture of love, meekness, holiness and purity, and they are always generated in such a substance and being, as \textit{was done} from eternity.

53. Behold! God the Father spake to the People of \textit{Israel} on mount \textit{Sinai}, when he gave the Law to them, saying; \textit{I am an angry, [Exod. xx. 5;Deut.9] zealous or jealous God to those that hate me.}

54. Now, of this \textit{one} only Father, who is both angry and also full of love, thou canst not make \textit{two} persons; but he is one only \textit{Father}, who continually generateth his heartily beloved \textit{Son}, and from both these the \textit{Holy Ghost} goeth forth continually.

\textit{Observe the Depth in the Centre.}

55. The \textit{Father} is the one only being, who himself is \textit{ALL}, who from eternity continually generateth his heartily beloved Son; and in both of them the Holy Ghost is continually standing in the flash, wherein the life is generated.

56. But now, from the austere and earnest birth or geniture of the qualifying or fountain spirits of the Father, wherein the zeal or jealousy and the wrath standeth, the body of nature always cometh to be, wherein the light of the Son, viz. of the Father's heart standeth, incomprehensibly as to nature.

57. For the light is in the midst or centre of the birth or geniture, and is the place of life wherein the meek life of God is generated from or out of all the powers of the Father, and in the same place the Holy Ghost goeth forth from the Father and the Son.

58. Now those powers of the Father which stand in the kindling of the light are the holy Father, and the meek Father, and the pure birth or geniture of God; and the spirit which riseth therein is the Holy Spirit. But the sharp birth or geniture is the body, wherein this holy life is continually generated.

59. But when the light of God shineth through this sharp birth or geniture, then it becometh very meek, and is as it were like a man that is asleep, in whom the life still moveth; and the body is in a sweet, quiet rest.

60. In this body of nature the kindling was now made, for out of this body the angels also were created; and if they had not elevated and kindled themselves in their highmindedness, then their body would have stood eternally in a stillness, and in an incomprehensible meekness, as it is in the other principalities of angels that are without, distinct from this world; and their spirit would have generated itself eternally in their body of meekness, as the Holy Trinity doth in the body or corporeity of God; and their inborn or innate spirit would have been one heart, one will, and one love with or in the Holy Trinity: For to that end they were created in the body of God, to be a joy to the Deity.

61. But lord Lucifer would himself be the mighty God, and kindled his body, and excited or stirred up therein the sharp birth of God, and opposed the light or bright heart of God, intending to rule therein with his sharpness, which was a thing impossible to be done.

62. But seeing he elevated and kindled himself against the right of the Deity, thereupon the sharp birth in the body of the Father rose up against him, and took him, as an angry son, prisoner or captive in the sharpest birth, and therein now is his eternal dominion.

63. But now when the Father kindled himself in the body of the sharpness, he did not for all that kindle the holy source, wherein his most loving heart generateth itself, that thereupon his heart should sit in the source of wrath. No! that is impossible; for the sharp birth cannot apprehend the holy and pure birth, but the holy and pure presseth quite through the sharp, and generateth to itself a new body, which standeth again in meekness.

64. And that new body is the water of life, which is generated when the light presseth through the wrath; and the Holy Ghost is the former or framer therein. But heaven is the partition between love and wrath, and is the seat wherein the wrath is transmuted or changed into love.
65. Now when thou beholdest the sun and stars, thou must not think that they are the holy and pure God, and thou must not offer to pray to them, or ask anything of them, for they are not the holy God, but are the kindled, austere birth or geniture of his body, wherein love and wrath wrestle the one with the other.

66. But the holy God is hidden in the centre of all these things in his heaven, and thou canst neither see nor comprehend him; but the soul comprehendeth him, and the astral birth comprehendeth but half; for the heaven is the partition between love and wrath. That heaven is everywhere, even in thyself.

67. Now when thou worshippest or prayest to the holy God in his heaven, then thou worshippest or prayest to him in that heaven which is in thee, and that same God breaketh through in thy heart with his light; and in his light the Holy Ghost breaketh through, and generateth thy soul to be a new body of God [or new divine body] which ruleth and reigneth with God in his heaven.

68. For the earthly body which thou bearest is one body with the whole kindled body of this world, and thy body qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the whole body of this world; and there is no difference between the stars and the deep, as also between the earth and thy body; it is all one body. This is the only difference, thy body is a son of the whole, and is in itself as the whole being itself is.

69. Now as the new body of this world generateth itself in its heaven, so the new man also generateth himself in his heaven; for it is all but one heaven, wherein God dwelleth, and therein thy new man dwelleth, and they cannot be divided asunder.

70. But if thou art wicked, then thy birth or geniture is not capable of heaven, but of the wrath, and remaineth in the other part of the astral birth or geniture, wherein the earnest and austere fire-source riseth up, and bolts it up into death, so long till thou breakest through heaven, and livest with God.

71. For instead of thy heaven thou hast the wrath-devil sitting there; but if thou breakest through, then he must get him gone, and the Holy Ghost ruleth and reigneth in that seat; and in the other part, viz. the fierceness, the devil tempteth thee, for it is his nest; and the Holy Ghost opposeth him, and the new man lieth in his own heaven, hidden under the protection of the Holy Ghost, and the devil knoweth not the new man, for he is not in the devil's house, but in heaven, in the firmament of God.

72. This I write as a word which is generated in its heaven, where the holy Deity always generateth itself, and where the moving spirit riseth up in the flash of life; even there this word and this knowledge is generated, and risen up in the love-fire through the zealous spirit of God.

73. I know very well what the devil intendeth; for that part of the earnest and austere birth or geniture, wherein love and wrath are set opposite the one to the other, seeth into his very heart. For when he cometh with his fierce and hellish temptation, like a fawning dog, then he setteth upon us with his wrath, in that part wherein the austere birth and geniture standeth, and therein the heaven is set in opposition to him, and there the fair bride is known.
74. For he stingeth through the old man, with an intent to spoil or destroy the new; but when the new riseth against him, then the hell-hound retireth, and then the new man feeleth very well what advice or counsel the hell-hound hath darted or spit into the astral birth, and then is it time for a clean sweep.

75. But I find that the most cunning devil is set against me; he will raise scorers and mockers, who will say that I intend by mine own conceit to grope, dig deep, and search out the Deity. Yes, Mr Scornor, thou art an obedient son to the devil, thou hast great cause to mock God's children. As if I were able, in mine own power, to fathom the depth of the Deity! No! but the Deity searcheth the ground in me: Or, dost thou think that I am strong enough to stand against it?

76. Indeed, thou proud man, the Deity is a very meek, simple and quiet still being, and gropeth not in the bottom of hell and death, but in his heaven,* where there is nothing but a unanimous meekness; therefore it is not meet for me to stand against it.

* " the Deity . . . gropeth not in the bottom of hell and death, but in his heaven." Gropeth (grübelt), "rake into, rummage, hypercritically search into," and also " brood." A free though not inadequate rendering of this clause would be, " the Deity . . . doth not grope or bestir himself anxiously in the bottom of hell and death, but broodeth in his heaven."

77. But behold! it is not I that have made way for this, but thy desire and highly raised lofty lust hath moved the Deity to reveal to thee the desire of thy heart, in the highest simplicity in the greatest depth, that it may be a witness against thee, and a denunciation of the earnest severe day of God.
78. This I speak to thee as a word of the earnest severity of God, which is generated or born in the flash of life.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH CHAPTER

Of the whole Body of the Stars and of their Birth or Geniture; that is, the whole Astrology, or the whole Body of this World.

1. THE learned and highly experienced masters of astrology, or the starry art, are come so high and deep in their understanding, that they know the course and effects of the stars, what their conjunction, influence, and breaking through of their powers and virtues denoteth and produceth; and how thereby wind, rain, snow, and heat are caused; * also good and evil, prosperity and adversity, life and death, and all the drivings and agitations in this world.

* "are caused"—empöret (gebäret). See Ch. 3, par. 67.

2. Indeed it hath a true foundation, which, in the spirit, I know to be so; but their knowledge standeth only in the house of death, in the outward comprehensibility or palpability, and in the beholding with the eyes of the body; but the root of this tree hath hitherto remained hidden from them.

3. Neither is it my purpose to write of the branches of the tree, and to invert or disprove their knowledge; neither do I build upon their ground, but I leave their knowledge to sit in its own seat, seeing I have not studied it. But, in the spirit of my knowledge, I write concerning the root, stock, branches and fruits of the tree, as an industrious and laborious servant to his master, in discovering the whole tree of this world.

4. Not with an intent to set on foot any new thing, for I have no command to do so; but my knowledge standeth in this birth or geniture of the stars, in the midst or centre, where the life is generated, and breaketh through death, and where the moving spirit existeth and breaketh through; and in the impulse or moving thereof I also write.

5. Also I know very well that the children of the flesh will scorn and mock at me, and say I should look to my own calling, and not trouble my head about these things; but rather be diligent to bring in food for my family and myself, and let those meddle with philosophy that have studied it, and are called and appointed to it.

6. With such an attempt the devil hath given me so many assaults, and hath so wearied me, that I have often resolved to let it alone; but my former purpose was too hard for me. For when I took care for the belly, and to get my living, and resolved to give over this business in hand, then the gate of heaven in my knowledge was bolted up.

7. Then my soul was so afflicted in anxiety, as if it were captivated by the devil, whereby reason gat so many checks and assaults, as if the body were presently to be destroyed or ruined, and the [my] spirit would not give over, till it brake through again, through the dead or mortal reason, and so hath burst open the door of darkness, and hath gotten its seat again in the stead thereof, whereby it gat new life and power again.

8. Whereby I understand that the spirit must be tried through the cross and affliction, and I have not failed of bodily temptation, but was fain always to stand ready for an encounter, so much hath the devil set himself against this. *

* " against this." The word " this " refers to the last clause of the preceding par., " whereby it [my spirit] gat new life," etc.

9.  But since I perceive that my eternal salvation hangeth upon this [i.e. the getting of new life and power] and that through my negligence [in case I were negligent], the gates of the light would be closed against me, which [light] is yet the firmament of my heaven wherein my soul hideth from the stormings of the devil, and which [light and heaven] also I won with great toil and hard assaults, through the love of God and by the breaking-through of my Redeemer and King, Jesus Christ, therefore am I willing to let God have his way and take captive my fleshy reason.

 A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow's rendering.

10. And I have chosen the gate of knowledge of the light, and will follow after the impulse and knowledge of the spirit, though my bestial body should be brought to beggary, or be destroyed or ruined. I regard none of these things, but will say with the royal prophet David, [Psalm lxxiii. 26] Though my body and soul should faint and fail, yet thou, O God, art my salvation, my comfort, and the refuge of my heart.

11. In thy name I will venture it, and will not strive against thy spirit; though it may hurt the flesh, yet faith in the knowledge of the light must move and soar above reason.

12. I know also very well, that it is not fit for the disciple to fight against his Master. And I know that the high experienced masters of astrology do far exceed me in their way. But I labour in my calling, and they in theirs, lest I should be found a lazy idle servant to my Lord, at his coming, when he will demand the talent he hath entrusted me withal; but that I may present it to him with usury or profit and gain.

13. Therefore I will not bury his talent in the earth, but lend it out upon usury or interest, lest he should say to me at that time of his requiring it of me, Thou wicked, slothful servant, why hast thou hid my talent in the darkness, and didst not put it out upon use, and so now I might have received it with usury, gain, and profit? For then he would take it quite away from me, and give it to another, who hath gained many talents with his one. Therefore I will sow, let him water it, I leave the care to him.

Now observe:

14. The whole house of this world, which standeth in a visible and comprehensible or palpable being, is the old house of God, or the old body, which stood before the time of wrath in a heavenly clarity and brightness. But when the devil stirred up the wrath therein, then it became a house of darkness and of death.

15. Therefore then also the holy birth or geniture of God, as a special body of itself, separated itself from the wrath, and made the firmament of heaven, between the love and the wrath, so that the birth or geniture of the stars standeth in the middle. Understand it thus; viz. with its outward comprehensibility and visibility it standeth in the wrath of death; and with the new birth rising up therein, which standeth in the middle or central seat, where the closure of heaven is, it standeth in the meekness of the life.

16. For meekness moveth against the wrath, and the wrath against the meekness, and so both are distinct kingdoms in the one only body of this world.

17. But seeing the love and meekness of God would not leave the body or place of this kindled wrath - world sticking in eternal wrath and ignominy, therefore he generated the whole old body of this world again into a rectified reformed body, wherein life did rule in a divine manner and way; though it be in the kindled wrath, yet it must subsist according to the right [law, order] of the Deity, so that out of it a new body might be generated, which should subsist in holiness and purity in eternity.

18. For which cause there is appointed in God a day of separation, on which love and wrath shall be separated asunder.

19. Now when thou beholdest the stars, and the deep, together with the earth, then thou seest with thy bodily eyes nothing else but the old body in the wrathful death; thou canst not see heaven with thy bodily eyes, for the blue or azure sphere which thou seest above is not the heaven, but is only the old body, which may be justly called the corrupted nature.

20. There seemeth to be a blue or azure sphere above the stars, whereby the place of this world is closed and shut out from the holy heaven, as men have thought hitherto; yet it is not so, but it is the superior water of nature, which is much brighter than the water below the moon. And now when the sun shineth through the deep, then it is as it were of a light-blue or azure colour.

21. But how deep or how large the place of this world is, no man knoweth, though some physicists or astrologers have undertaken to measure the deep with their measures of circles; their measuring is but conjectural, or a measuring of somewhat that is comprehensible or palpable;
as if a man would grasp the wind in his fist.

22. But the true heaven is everywhere all over, to this very time, and till the Last Judgment Day; and the wrath-house of hell and of death is also in this world everywhere, even to the Last Judgment Day.

23. But the dwelling of the devils is now from the moon to the earth, and in the earth, in the deep caves and holes thereof; especially in wilderesses and desert places, and where the earth is full of stones and bitterness.

24. But their kingly regimen or government is in the deep, in the four coasts or quarters of the equinoctial line or circle, of which I will write in another place.

25. But here I will shew thee: 1. How the body of this world came to be; and 2. How it is at present; and then, 3. How the regimen or government therein is.

26. The whole body of this world is as a man's body, for it is surrounded in its utmost circle with the stars and risen powers of nature; and in that body the seven spirits of nature govern, and the heart of nature standeth in the midst or centre.

27. But the stars in general are, and signify, the wonderful proportion or changing variety of God. For when God created the stars, he created them out of the rising up of the infinity, out of the old body of God then further * kindled.

* "then further" (nunmehr), "henceforth."
28. For as the seven spirits of God had, before the time of the wrath, generated themselves infinitely by their rising up and by their influences, (whence rose up so many several varieties of figures and heavenly ideas or vegetations), so also the holy God figured his old body of this corrupted nature into as many and various powers as ever stood in the birth or geniture in the holiness.

Understand this high Thing rightly.
29. Every star hath a several peculiar property, which thou mayest perceive by the curious ornament of the budding, blossoming earth. And the Creator hath therefore rebuilt and revived again the old kindled body into so many and various powers, that through this old life, in the wrath, such a new life might generate itself therein, through the closure of heaven, that that new life might have all the powers and operations that ever the old had before the times of wrath, that it might qualify, mix or unite with the pure Deity, distinct from this world, and that it might be one holy God, together with the Deity without, distinct from this world.

30. Also the new birth blossomed in the time of the creation, when man had not spoiled or corrupted it; but by him nature was still more corrupted; and so God cursed the ground. But seeing man took hold of the fruit of the old body, thereupon the fruit of the new body was hidden in its heaven, and man must now behold it with the new body, and cannot partake of it with the natural body.

31. Of which I have a great longing to eat, but I cannot reach to it, for heaven is the closure or firmament between the old body and the new. And therefore I must let it alone, till I come into the other life, and must give my bestial Concerning the Kindling of the Heart or Life of this World.

32. When, in two days, God had brought the body of this world into a right form, and had made the heaven for a partition between the love and the wrath, then, on the third day, the love pressed through the heaven and through the wrath, and instantly the old body in death stirred and moved itself to the birth or geniture.

33. For the love is hot, and that kindled the fire-source or quality, and that rubbed itself in the astringent and cold quality of the benumbed death, till the astringent quality was heated on the third day, whereby the mobility or the astringent earth became moveable.

34. For all stood in the fire-crack till the fourth day, and then the light of the sun kindled itself; for the whole body stood in anguish or pain in the birth, as a woman in travail.

35. The astringent quality was the encompasser or encloser of the life; therein * was the heat now anxious, which was kindled through the love of God, and did drive out the astringent quality as a dead body; but the heat retained its seat in the midst or centre of the body, and so pressed through.

* " therein " — in the astringent quality.

36. But when the light of the sun kindled itself, then the next circle or orb above the sun stood in the fire-crack, (for the sun or the light was shining in the water), and the bitterness ascended also in the fire-crack out of the water. But the light made very great haste after it, and laid hold on the fire-crack; and there it remained as a captive, and became corporeal.

37. In this revolution the planet Mars came to be, whose power standeth in the bitter firecrack, for Mars is a tyrant, rager, raver and stormer, like a fire-crack; moreover it is hot, and a poisonous, venomous enemy of nature; through whose rising up and birth or geniture in the earth all manner of poisonous, venomous, evil worms and vermin are come to be.

38. But seeing the heat in the middle point or centre of the body was so mighty great, thereupon it extended itself so very largely, and opened the chamber of death so wide before its kindling of the light, that it (the SUN) is the greatest star.

39. But as soon as the light kindled itself in the heat, so instantly was that hot place caught in the light, and then the body of the sun could grow no bigger. For the light mitigated the heat, and so the body of the sun remained there in the midst or centre as a heart; for the light is the heart of nature, not the heat.

But here thou must observe exactly,

40. As far as the middle point or centre hath kindled itself, just so big is the sun; for the sun is nothing else but a kindled point in the body of nature.

41. Thou must not think that there is any other power or virtue in it, or belonging to it, than there is in the whole deep of the body everywhere, all over.

42. For should the love of God, through its heaven, kindle the whole body of this world through the heat, it would be everywhere all over as light as it now is in the sun.
43. Now if the great heat were taken away from the sun, then it would be one light with God; but seeing in this time that cannot be, therefore it remaineth a king and regent in the old corrupted and kindled body of nature; and the clear Deity remaineth hidden in the meek heaven.

44. But the light of the meekness of the sun qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the pure Deity; but the heat cannot comprehend the light, and therefore also the place of the sun remaineth in the body of God's wrath, and thou must not worship, nor pray to nor honour the sun as God, for its place or body cannot apprehend the water of life, because of the fierceness in the sun.

The highest Ground of the SUN, and of ALL the PLANETS.

45. Here I shall have adversaries enough who will be ready to censure me, for they will not have regard to consider the spirit, but will mind their old rules, and say, Astrologers, who have written of such matters, understand it better; and my adversaries will look on the great open gate as a cow looks on a new barn door.

46. Dear Reader, I understand the astrologers' meanings and sayings full well, and I have perused their writings also, and taken notice how they describe the course of the sun and stars, neither do I despise it, but, for the most part, hold that to be good and right.

47. But that in some things I write otherwise than they, I do it not out of self-will or conceit and supposition, doubting whether it be so or no. I dare not make any doubt herein, neither can any man instruct me herein.

48. I have not my knowledge by study; indeed I have read the order and position of the seven planets in the books of astrologers, and find them to be very right; but the root, how the planets came to be, and from what they are proceeded, I cannot learn from any man; for they know it not, neither was I present when God created the planets.

* " find them," i.e. find the order and position of the seven planets.

49. But seeing the doors of the deep, and the gates of wrath, and the chambers of death also, are, through the love of God, set open in my spirit, therefore the spirit must needs look through them.

50. Accordingly I find, that the birth or geniture of nature standeth to this day, and generateth itself, just so as it did when it first took its beginning; and whatsoever riseth up in this world, whether men, beasts, trees, herbs, grass, mineral ores, or be it what it will, all riseth up in such a quality, manner and form as it first did; also every life, be it good or bad, taketh its original thus [as it did from the beginning].

51. For this is the right or law of the Deity: that every life in the body of God should generate itself in one manner or uniform way; though it be done through many various imagings, yet the life hath one uniform way and original in all.

52. I see not this knowledge with my fleshly eyes, but with those eyes wherein life generateth itself in me; in that seat the gates of heaven and hell stand open to me, and the new man speculateth * into the midst or centre of the astral birth or geniture, and to him the inner and outermost gate standeth open.

* "speculateth " (speculiret). See Ch. 10, par. 33.

53. While he yet sticketh in the old man of wrath and death, and sitteth also in his heaven, he seeth through both; in such a manner also he seeth the stars and elements. For in God there is no place of hindrance; for the eye of the LORD beholdeth all.

54. Now if my spirit did not see through his spirit, then I were but a blind stock; but seeing I see the gates of God in my spirit, and have the impulse to do it, I will therefore write directly according as I have seen it, and will not regard any man's authority.

55. Thou must not conceive it so, as if my old man were a living saint or angel. No, Friend, he sitteth with all men in the house of wrath and of death, and is a constant enemy to God, and sticketh in his sins, wickedness and malice, as all men do, and is full of faults, defects and infirmities.

56. But thou must know this, that he sticketh in a continual, anxious birth or geniture, but would fain be rid of the wrath and wickedness, and yet cannot. For he is as the whole house of this world, wherein love and wrath always wrestle the one with the other, and the new body always generateth itself in the midst or centre of the anguish. For so it must be, if thou wilt be born anew, otherwise no man can reach the regeneration.

57. In this world man is always seeking for soft days of ease for the flesh, and after riches, beauty and bravery, and knoweth not that he sitteth therewith in the chamber of death, where the sting of wrath darteth into him.

58. Behold! I tell this to thee, as a word of life, which I receive in the knowledge of the spirit, in the midst or centre in the birth or geniture of the new body of this world, over which the Man JESUS CHRIST is Ruler and King, together with his eternal Father.

59. Also, I receive it from before the seat of his throne, where all holy souls of men stand before him, and rejoice before him; [and I tell thee] that the desire of the flesh in soft pleasingness, to be rich, to be handsome, beautiful and fair, or to be mighty or potent, is a very bath or lake of hellish wrath, into which thou crowdest and runnest, as if thou wert drawn in with cartropes; for there is very great danger therein.

60. But if thou wouldst know how it is, behold, I will tell thee in a parable or similitude: When thou art pressed, according to the desire of thy heart, into riches and power, then it is with thee as if thou stoodst in a deep water, where the water always standeth up to thy very mouth, and thou feelest no ground under thy feet, but thou swimmest with thy hands and strugglest to protect or save thyself; now thou art in deep water, now above water again, yet always in a great terror and danger, expecting to sink down to the bottom, the water often coming into thy mouth, and always expecting death.

61. Just in this manner, and no other, thou sittest, when thou art in the pleasures of the flesh; if thou wilt not fight, thou canst not look for any victory, but thou wilt be murdered in thy soft bed of down. For man hath a continual host or army before him, which fight with him continually; if he will not defend himself, then he is taken captive and slain.

62. But how can he that swimmeth in a deep water defend himself? He hath enough to do to protect himself from the water; and yet nevertheless he is assaulted by the devils.

63. O danger upon danger! as our King Christ also saith; [Matth. xix. 24] It is very hard for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven. A camel will easier go through the eye of a needle, than a rich man enter into the kingdom of heaven.

64. But if any will be new born again, he must not yield himself to be a servant to covetousness, pride, state and self-power, to take delight in the will or desires of his flesh; but he must struggle and fight against himself, against the devil, and against all the lusts of the flesh; and he must think and consider that he is but a servant and pilgrim on earth, who must wander through many miserable seas of danger into another world; and there he will be a lord, and his dominion will consist in power, and in perfect delight, beauty and brightness; this I tell as the word of the spirit.

Now observe:

65. The SUN hath its own royal place to itself, and doth not go away from that place where it came to be at the first. Some suppose that it runneth round about the globe of the earth in a day and a night; and some of the astrologers also write so; and some have undertaken to measure how far its orb and circumference of its supposed motion is.

66. This opinion or supposition is not right, but the earth rolleth itself about; and runneth with the other planets, as in a wheel, round about the sun. The earth doth not remain staying in one place, but in a year runneth round once about the sun, as the other planets next the sun, but Saturn and Jupiter, as also Mars, by reason of their great orb, circumference, and great height, cannot do it [in a year], because they stand so high above, and far distant from the SUN.

Now it may be asked, What is the SUN, and what are the other PLANETS? Or how are they come to be?

67. Behold! the other planets are peculiar bodies of their own, which have a corporeal propriety of themselves, and are not bound to any settled or fixed place, but only to their circle, orb or sphere wherein they run their course. But the SUN is not such a body, but is only a place or locality kindled by the light of God.

Understand it aright.
68. The place where the SUN is, is such a place as you may choose or suppose anywhere above the earth; and if God should kindle the light by the heat, then the whole world would be such a mere SUN; for that same power wherein the sun standeth is everywhere all over; and before the time of wrath it was everywhere all over in the place of this world as light as the sun now is, but not so intolerable.

69. For that heat was not so great as in the sun, and therefore the light was also very meek; and thus, in respect of the horrible fierceness of the sun, the sun is differenced or distinguished from the meekness of God. So that man should not dare to say that the sun is an open gate of the light of God; but it is as the light in a mans eye, whereas also the place of the eye belongeth to the body, but the light is different or distinct from the body.
70. Though indeed the light existeth by the heat in the water of the body, yet it is a peculiar, distinct thing, which the body cannot comprehend; and such a distinct difference there is also between God the Father and God the Son.

71. Thus on the fourth day, in the anxious birth or geniture of this world, in the middle point or centre of this world, the SUN is sprung up, and standeth still* in its eternal, corporeal place; for it cannot rise up in one place, and set in another.

* "standeth still" (stehet . . . stille). St M. has, "reste fixe," "remaineth fixed."

72. For it is the only and sole natural light of this world, and besides it there is no more any true light in the house of death; and though it seemeth as if the other stars did shine bright and give light also, yet it is not so, but they take all their lustre and shining light from the sun; as hereafter presently followeth.

The true Birth or Geniture and Descent of the Sun and Planets is just thus, as followeth.

73. Now when the heaven was made for a distinction or partition between the light of God and the kindled corruption of the body of this world, then was the body of this world a dark valley, and had no light besides the heaven that could shine forth in the outward body; all powers stood as it were captivated in death, and were in great anguish, till they had heated themselves in the midst or centre of the body.

74. But when this was done, so that the anxious birth or geniture stood so severely in the heat, then the love in the light of God brake through the heaven of the partition, and kindled the heat.

75. And there rose up the shining light in the heat in the water, or in the fat or oiliness of the water, and the heart of the water kindled itself, and this was done in the twinkling of an eye.

76. For as soon as the light had rightly laid hold on the body, the body was captivated in the light; and the heat was captivated, and was changed into a moderate, tolerable or suitable meekness, and could stand or extend no longer in such anguish.

77. But seeing the heat was so terrified by the light, thereupon its horrible fire-source was allayed, and so could kindle itself no further; and so also the breaking through of the love in the light of God through the heaven at this time, with its breaking through, extended or stretched itself no further out of, or from God's predestinated purpose; therefore also the SUN came to be no bigger.

Of the Planet Mars.

78. But when the sun was kindled, then the horrible fire-crack went forth upwards from the place of the sun, beyond the place of the sun, as a horrible tempestuous flash, and in its corporeal being took along with it the fierceness of the fire, whereby the water became very bitter, and the water is the kernel or stock of the crack.

79. Now the astrologers write, that the planet Mars standeth aloft about 15,750 miles off from the sun; which I contradict not, because I meddle not with the measuring of circles. And so far the swift fire-crack went forth [travelled] from its own place till the light also laid hold on it, and then it also was captivated by the light, and stayed and took possession of that place.

80. But that the light could not lay hold of it sooner, was caused by the earnest fierceness and sudden flash, for it was not taken hold of by the light before the light had wholly or thoroughly affected or possessed it.

81. And there it is now, as a tyrant, rager and stirrer of the whole body of this world; for that is its very office, that with its revolution in the wheel of nature it moveth and stirreth all, from whence every life taketh its original.

Of the Planet Jupiter.

82. Now when the bitter fire-crack was captivated by the light, then the light in its own power pressed yet higher in the deep, till it reached into the hard and cold seat of nature. And there the power of the first going forth or rising up from the sun could not get higher, but sitting, stayed there corporeally,* and took possession of that place for a habitation.

* "but sitting, stayed there corporeally" (und blieb alda corporlich sitzen). An idiomatic construction which implies no "sitting" at all, but staying behind, standing still, stopping short. Lit., "remained there corporeally."

But thou must understand this Thing aright.

83. It was the power of the light which stayed in this place, and which is a very meek, friendly, gracious, amiable, blessed and sweet being. The astrologers write, that this planet is distant aloft above Mars about 7875 miles. But it is the mitigator of the destroying, furious, raging, raving Mars, and an original of the meekness in every life; an original also of the water, from which the life generateth itself, as I shall mention hereafter.

84. Thus far the power of the life reached forth from the sun, and not higher; but the lustre or shining thereof, which hath its power also, reacheth even to the stars, and through the whole body of this world.

But thou must understand this exactly, from whence these two Planets are come to be.

85. When the power of the heart of God pressed forth out of the eternal inexhaustible fountain of the water of life, through the heaven of the partition, and kindled the water in the place of the sun, then the flash, understand the fire-flash, did shoot forth or went forth out of the water, which was very terrible and bitter, and out of which Mars came to be.

86. After this flash the power of the light shot nimbly after it, like a meek elevated life, and overtook the fire-crack, and mitigated it, so that it became somewhat weaker, and could break no farther through the deep, but stayed trembling.

87. But the power that was gone forth in the light had more strength than the fire-crack, and so it rose up higher than the fire-crack, Mars, till it came very deep into nature's austereness, and there it became feeble also, and stayed there.

88. From or out of this power the planet Jupiter came to be, and not out of or from that place where he is, but it [Jupiter] always kindleth that very place with its power; but it is as one of the household servants in that place, who must always walk about in the place of its office and service. But the sun hath a house of its own; but no other planet hath any house of its own.
89. If we would rightly search into the original of the birth and geniture of the stars, or into their beginning, then we must exactly know the birth or geniture of the life, viz. how the life generateth itself in a body; for all these are one kind of birth or geniture.

90. He that doth not know nor understand this, he doth not at all know the birth of the stars, for all, concreted together, is one body. When once life is generated in any creature, the creature's life standeth or subsisteth afterwards in the creature's own body, as the birth or geniture of the natural body of this world standeth or subsisteth in its own body; for every life must be generated according to the right, law or ordinance of the Deity, as the Deity* generateth itself continually.

* "as the Deity " = in the same way that the Deity.

91. If this be rightly considered, which, indeed, cannot be done without a special illumination of the holy God, then, before he finds anything else, a man findeth the astringent, cold and austere birth or geniture, which is the cause of the corporeal nature, or of the imaging, fashioning or framing of a thing.

92. Now if it were not for this severe, and cold sharp contracting, compacting power, there would be no natural or corporeal being, neither could the birth or geniture of God subsist, and all would be unsearchable.

93. But in this hard, severe and cold power standeth [i.e. consisteth] the corporeal essence or the body, wherein the spirit of life generateth itself; and out of that same spirit the light and the understanding [generate themselves]; and then through these the senses and the trial or testing of all powers ariseth.

94. For when the light is generated, it is generated in the midst or centre of the body, as a heart or spirit out of all powers; and there it standeth and remaineth in the place where it had its beginning, and goeth forth through all the powers.

95. For as it is generated out of all powers, and hath the fountain of all powers, so with its shining lustre it also bringeth the fountain of all powers into each power; from whence then existeth the taste and smell, also seeing, feeling and hearing; as also reason and understanding.

96. Now, as the original and beginning of the life is, in a creature, so is the first regeneration of the nature of the new life in the corrupted body of this world. He that denieth it hath not the true understanding, nor any knowledge of nature; and so his knowledge is not generated in God, but he is a mocker of God.

97. I. For behold! thou canst not deny that the life in a creature existeth in the heat of the heart; and in that life also standeth the light of the animated or soulish birth or geniture.

98. Now the heart signifieth the sun, which is the beginning of life in the outward body of this world. Now, whilst the body standeth in the mobility or life, thou canst not say that the animated or soulish birth goeth away or departeth from the heart.

99. No more doth the sun go away or depart from its seat, but retains and keeps its own place to itself, as a heart; and shineth forth as a light, or as a spirit of the whole body of this world, in all powers of the body.
100. For its birth also hath a beginning out of all powers, and therefore with its light and heat it is again one spirit and heart in the whole body of this world.

101. II. Further, thou canst not deny, either, that the gall in a creature is not existed from the heart, and yet it is the mobility or stirring of the heart, by a vein that goeth from the gall to the heart; from whence the heat existeth. But it hath its first original from the flash of life, and so when the life generateth itself in the heart, and the light riseth up in the water, then the fire-crack goeth before, which riseth up out of the anxiety of the water in the heat.

102. For when the heat is so anxious in the cold in the astringent quality, that the light kindleth itself through the hidden heaven of the heart in the corporeity, then the anxious death in the wrath of God is terrified, and departeth as a crack or flash from the light, and climbeth upwards very terribly, trembling, and timorously; and the light of the heart hasteneth after it, and affecteth or possesseth it, and then it remaineth at a standstill.

103. This is, and signifieth, the planet Mars, for thus is [or hath] Mars com into being; and its own quality is nothing else but a poisonous, venomous, bitter fire-crack, which is risen up from the place of the sun.

104. But now it is always a kindler of the sun, just as the gall is a kindler of the heart; whence the heat, both in the sun and in the heart, existeth, and whence the life taketh its original in all things.

105. III. Thirdly, thou canst not deny that the brain in the head in a creature is the power of the heart; for from the heart all powers rise up into the brain, from whence, in the brain, the senses of the heart exist. The brain in the head taketh its original from the power of the heart.

Now observe:

106. After the fire-crack of the gall, or Mars, was departed from the light of life, then the power pressed out of the heart after it, through the light of life, even into the head, into the austere quality; and when the power can rise up no higher, then it is stayed or captivated by the austere birth, and is dried up by the cold.

107. Now here it stayeth, and qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the spirit of life in the heart, and is a royal seat of the spirit of the heart; for thus far the spirit of the heart's power presseth forth, and there is it approved.

108. For the brain sitteth in the severe birth or geniture, and in its own body it is the meek power of the heart, and signifieth the new birth, which is new regenerated in the midst or centre of the austereness of death and wrath, in its heaven, and presseth forth through death into life.

109. For there the spirit or the thoughts become a whole creaturely person again, through the affecting or proving of all powers, which in man I call the animated or soulish birth.

110. For when the new spirit in the brain is well settled, then it goeth to its mother again, into the heart; and then it standeth as a perfect spirit or will, or as a new-born person, which, in man, is called the soul.

111. Now behold! as the brain in man is a being and product, so also is the planet Jupiter a being and product; for it hath its original from the rising up of life, from the power which is risen up out of the water of life, out of the place of the sun, through the light.

112. And that power is risen up so high, that it is caught or captivated again in or by the austere, hard and cold power; and there it remaineth at a stand; and by the first revolution or going forth is become corporeal, and became exsiccated or dried by the austere and cold power.

113. And it is rightly the brain in the corporeal government of this world, from whence the senses and the reason are generated, also all meekness and wisdom in natural things; but the right and holy spirit in man is generated in the hidden heaven in the water of life.

114. The outward Jupiter is only the meekness and understanding in the outward comprehensibility or palpable things; but the holy fountain or well-spring is incomprehensible and unsearchable or unfathomable to outward reason. For the astral birth or geniture stands only as to its root in the holy heavens, and as to its corporeity [ it standeth ] in the wrath.
THE TWENTY-SIXTH CHAPTER

Of the Planet Saturnus

1. SATURN, that cold, sharp, austere and astringent regent, taketh its beginning and original not from the sun; for Saturn hath in its power the chamber of death, and is a drier up of all powers, from whence corporeity existeth.

2. For as the sun is the heart of the life, and an original of all spirits in the body of this world, so Saturn is a beginner of all corporeity and comprehensibility or palpability. In the power of these two planets standeth the whole body of this world; and there can not be any creature, nor any imaging, in the natural body of this world, nor any mobility, without the power of these two.

3. But Saturn's original is the earnest, astringent and austere anxiety of the whole body of this world; for as, in the time of the kindling of the wrath, the light in the outermost birth or geniture of this world was extinct, (which birth or geniture is the nature or comprehensibility, or the rising up of the birth of all qualifying or fountain spirits), so also the astringent quality stood in its sharpness and severest birth or geniture, and attracted or contracted most strongly and eagerlyly the whole work or effect* of the qualifying or fountain spirits.

* "work or effect" (Gewirke), "web, or texture." The word implies not so much what is effected or done as that which is in process of being done.

4. From whence the earth and stones then came to be, and were very rightly the house of death, or the enclosing or shutting up of the life, wherein king Lucifer was captivated.

5. But when, on the first day, the light somewhat brake forth again, through the Word or Heart of God in the root of the nature of the body of this world, as a choosing or appropriating of the day, or as a beginning of the mobility of life, then the severe and astringent birth or geniture again obtained a glimpse or rising up of the life in the birth or geniture.

6. From that time the astringent birth stood as it were in an anxious death, till after the third day, when the love of God pressed through the heaven of the partition, and kindled the light of the sun.

7. But seeing the heart or power of the sun could not open the anxious birth or quality of fierceness and wrath, and temper the same, especially as it could not do so aloft in that height above Jupiter, thereupon that whole circumference or sphere stood in a horrible anxiety, just as a woman in travail; and yet could not awaken or raise the heat, because of the horrible coldness and astringency.

8. But, nevertheless, seeing the mobility was risen up through the power of the hidden heaven, therefore nature could not rest, but was in anguish to the birth, and generated out of or from the spirit of sharpness an astringent, cold and austere sun or star, which is Saturn.

9. For the spirit of heat whence the light ariseth (and out of the light, through the water, the love and meekness), could not kindle itself; but there was a birth or geniture of an austere, cold and severe fierceness, which is a drier, a spoiler and an enemy of meekness, and which in the creatures generateth the hard bones.
10. But Saturn was not bound to its place, as the sun is, for it is not a corporeal place or space in the room of the deep; but Saturn is a son which is born or generated out of the chamber of death, out of the kindled, hard and cold anxiety, and is only one of the household or family in that space or room in which it hath its course and revolution. For it hath its corporeal propriety to itself, as a child, when the child is born or generated from the mother. ["Saturn, indeed, was created together with the "wheel, when the FIAT created the wheel; but "it doth not go forth or proceed from Sol."]

11. But why it did rise up thus from God out of the austere birth, and what its office is, I will mention hereafter, concerning the driving about, or revolution, of the planets.

12. But its height or distance cannot be exactly known. But I am fully persuaded that it is in the midst, in the deep between Jupiter and the general sphere of the fixed stars or constellations, for it is the heart of the corporeity in nature.

13. For as the sun is the heart of life, and a cause of the spirits of nature, so Saturn is the heart and the cause of all bodies and imagings, formings and framings in the earth, and upon the earth, as also in the whole body of this world.

14. And as in man the skull is a container or encloser of the brain, wherein the thoughts are generated, so the Saturnine power is an environer, drier and container of all corporeity and comprehensibility or palpability.

15. And as the planet Jupiter, which is an unlocker and generator of meekness, is between the fierce Mars and the austere Saturn, and generateth the meekness and wisdom in the creatures, so the life and the senses of all creatures are generated between these two qualities; especially the new body of this world, as also the new man; of which thou wilt find more concerning the description of man.

Of the Planet Venus.

16. Venus, that gracious, amiable and blessed planet, or the kindler of love in nature, hath also its original and descent or proceeding from the springing up of the sun; but its condition, quality, being and proceeding or descent is thus:

Here observe this rightly and exactly.

17. When the love of God kindled the place of the sun, or the SUN, then, out of the anxiety, out of the place of the sun, out of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of nature, there sprang up, first, the terrible, fierce, bitter firecrack, whose birth and principal or first original is the kindled bitter wrath of God, in the astringent quality, through the water.

18. That sprang up first, in the kindling of the sun out of the chamber of death, and was an awakener or rouser of death, and a beginner of life, and climbed up aloft very fiercely, and trembling, till the light of the sun laid hold on it, and affected or possessed it; and there it was caught or captivated by the meekness of the light, and stayed; from which the planet Mars came to be.

19. After that fire-crack had taken place the power of the light, which at the beginning had generated itself out of the unctuosity or fatness of the water behind the fire-crack, instantly shot forth after it, like a mighty potency or power, and took the fierce fire-crack captive, and highly elevated itself aloft beyond it, as a prince and subduer of the fierceness, from whence now arose the sensibility of nature, or the planet Jupiter.

The Gate of Love.

20. But when the two spirits, the spirit of the mobility and the spirit of the life, were risen up out of the place of the sun, through the kindling of the water, then the meekness, as a seed of the water, pressed downward in the chamber of death, with the power of light, with a very gentle and friendly affection or influence; from whence existed the love of life, or the planet Venus.

But thou must here understand this high Thing.

21. The birth, or the rising or springing up of the seven planets, and of all the stars, is no otherwise than as the life, and wonderful proportion, variety and harmony of the Deity, hath generated itself from eternity.

22. For when king Lucifer had caused this place of the world to be appointed as a house of wrath for himself, and supposed thus fiercely and powerfully to rule therein, then instantly the light in nature went out, wherein he supposed to be lord; and the whole nature was benumbed and congealed as a body of death, wherein was no mobility; and he must remain there in darkness, as an eternal, captive prisoner.

23. But now the holy God would not let this place of his body (understand the space or room of this world) stand in eternal darkness and ignominy, and leave it to the devils for their proper own, but generated a new regimen or dominion of light, and of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of the Deity; which the devil could neither apprehend, nor lay hold on, nor touch; neither was it useful or profitable to him at all.

24. But he can no more see in the light of the sun, for he can see in the darkness alone; for he is not become a creature in this light, and therefore it is not profitable or useful to him.

25. But seeing there must be a new government or dominion, it must needs be such a one as the devil could not touch nor lay hold on, nor make use of as his corporeal proper own.

Now that Government or Dominion is thus constituted.

26. The Love, or Word, or Heart, that is, the innate or only begotten Son of the Father, who is the light and meekness, and the love and joy of the Deity (as he himself said, when he had assumed the humanity, I am the light of the [John viii. 12] world), he himself took the place of this world by the heart, and sat in the midst or centre of this space or room, in that place where the mighty prince and king Lucifer did sit before his fall, and there the only begotten Son was new born to be a creature.

27. And so out of this kindled place of the sun there existed and were chiefly generated six sorts of qualities, all according to the right, law or order of the divine birth or geniture.*

* "And out of this kindled place of the sun six distinct (sonderlich sechserley) qualities arose and were generated, all according to the law of the divine birth." St M. has, "six kinds of distinct (particulières) qualities." The two German words, "sonderlich sechserley" (very quaint, and pure Böhmesse), mean that the qualities are six, that they are separate, and that each has its own peculiar character.
28. I. First, there arose the fire-crack, or the mobility in the heat; and that is the beginning of life in the chamber of death.

II. After this, secondly, the light in the unctuosity or fatness of the water became shining in the heat; and that is now the sun.

III. Thirdly, when now the light of the sun had affected or possessed the whole body of the sun, then the power of life, which rose up out of the first affecting or possessing, ascended, as when wood is kindled, or when fire is struck out of a stone.

29. Then first is discerned the glance or splendour, and out of the splendour the firecrack, and after the fire-crack the power of the kindled body; and the light, with the power of the body, elevateth itself instantly above the crack, and ruleth or reigneth much higher, deeper and more powerfully than the fire-crack.

30. Also the power of the kindled body, in the outgone power without and beyond the fire, qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth gently, pleasantly, and very sensibly; and herein rightly is understood the divine being.

31. In the same manner also is the existency of the sun, and of the two planets, Mars and Jupiter.

32. But since the place of the sun (that is, the sun) had in itself (as also had all other places) all qualities according to the right of the Deity, thereupon instantly, in the first kindling, all the qualities went upwards and downwards, and generated themselves according to the eternal, beginningless, infinite law and right.

33. For the power of the light, which did mitigate the astringent and bitter quality in the place of the sun, and made it thin like water, or like the love of life, that power lowered itself, according to the nature of humility.

34. Out of this the planet Venus existed; * for in the house of death Venus is an opener of meekness, or a kindler of the water, and a soft penetrator into the hardness, a kindler of the love, in which [Venus] the upper regimen or dominion, viz., the bitter heat, is desirous or longing after Mars, and the hearty sensibility is desirous or longing after Jupiter.

* " Out of this the planet Venus existed " = out of this descent of the power of the light the planet Venus has arisen, or, has come into being (lit., " is become ").

35. From whence the affections or insinuations exist; for the power of Venus maketh fierce Mars or the fire-crack mild, and mitigateth it, and maketh Jupiter humble, else the power of Jupiter would break through the hard chamber, Saturn; and in men and beasts would break through the skull or brain-pan; and so the sensibility would transmute itself into high-mindedness above the birth-right, or right, law or order of the geniture of the Deity, in the manner and way of the proud devil.

Of the Planet Mercurius.

36. If we would exactly and fundamentally know how, in the deep of this world, the birth or beginning is of the planets and stars, and of the essence of all beings, we must accurately consider the instant or innate birth, or the beginning of life, in man.

37. For that life taketh such a beginning and rising, and standeth also in such an order, as doth the birth or geniture of the essence of all beings in the body of this world.

38. For the instant or innate wheel of the stars and planets is no otherwise than as the birth of the seventh spirit of nature, before the time of the world rose up, wherein were formed images and figures, forms, shapes or ideas, as also heavenly fruits, according to the eternal right, law or order of the Deity.

39. Thus, because man is created according to the qualifying or fountain spirits of God, and also out of the divine essence, therefore hath man's life such a beginning and rising up as that of the planets and stars hath been.

40. For the beginning, instant or innate state and being of the planets and stars is not otherwise than as the beginning and impulse or government and dominion in man.

41. Now in the same way that the human life riseth up, so also in that way hath the birth of the seven planets and stars risen and sprung up; and therein there is no difference at all.

The Centre or Circle of the Birth of Life.

The great Depth.

42. The spirit citeth the physicians to come before this looking-glass; especially anatomists and dissectors of men, who by their anatomy would learn the birth and rising or springing up of man's life, and who have murdered many innocent men, against the right and law of God and of nature, hoping thereby to find out the wonderful proportion, harmony and form of nature, that they might thereby be useful in restoring the health of others.
43. But seeing in nature they are found to be murderers, and malefactors against the law and right of God and nature, therefore the spirit, which qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with God, doth not justify them in their murderous way.

44. They might have had a nearer and surer way to learn the wonderful birth or geniture of nature, if their lofty high-mindedness, and devilish, murderous curiosity had given them leave, but these have perverted their true divine senses or understandings.

45. Their intent was only to fight with men, and not with gods, therefore it is just they should receive such a reward of their error.

46. Come on, ye crowned ornaments of caps and hoods, etc. Let us see whether a simple layman may be able, in the knowledge of God, to search into the birth or geniture of man's life. If it be amiss, then reject it; if it be right, then let it stand.

47. I here set down this description of the birth or geniture of man's life, to the end that the original of the stars and planets may be the better conceived. In the description of the creation of man thou wilt find all, more fundamentally and deeply, what the beginning of man is.

Now observe:

48. The seed of man is generated in such a manner as the wonderful proportion, harmony or form of nature in its wrestling and rising up is generated, from eternity.

49. For the human flesh is and resembleth nature in the body of God, which is generated from the other six qualifying or fountain spirits, wherein the qualifying or fountain spirits generate themselves again, and shew forth themselves \textit{infinitely}, wherein forms and images rise up, and wherein the heart of God, or the holy clear Deity in the middle or central \textit{seat}, generateth itself \textit{above} nature, in that centre wherein the light of life riseth up.

50. But now in man's \textit{body}, in the government or dominion of the birth or geniture, there are three several things, each of them being \textit{distinct}, and yet they are not divided \textit{asunder} one from another; but all three together are one only man, after the kind and manner of the \textit{Ternary} or Trinity in the divine being [or essence].

51. The \textit{flesh} is not the life, but is a dead, inanimate being, which, when the government or dominion of the spirit \textit{ceaseth} to qualify or operate therein, soon becometh a dead \textit{carcass}, and putrefieth and turneth to dust or ashes.

52. But now no \textit{spirit} can subsist in its perfection without a body, for as soon as it departeth from the body it loseth its government or \textit{dominion}. For the body is the mother of the spirit, in which the spirit is generated, and in which it \textit{receiveth} its strength and power. The spirit is and remaineth a spirit when it is separated and departed from the body, but it loseth its \textit{rule}, dominion or government.

53. These three dominions or regimens are the whole man, together with flesh and spirit; and they have severally, for their beginning and dominion or government, a \textit{sevenfold} form, after the kind and manner of the seven spirits of God, or of the seven planets.
54. Now as the dominion or government of God's eternal, beginningless, infinite birth or geniture is, so also is the beginning and rising or springing up of the seven planets and the stars; and just so also is the rising or springing up of mans life.

Now observe:
55. When thou mindest, thinkest and considerest what there is in this world, and what there is without, besides or distinct from this world, or what the essence of all beings is, then thou speculatest, contemplatest, meditathest in the whole body of God, who is the essence of all beings; and that is a beginningless, infinite being.

56. But it hath in its own seat no mobility, rationality or comprehensibility, but is a dark deep, which hath neither beginning nor end. In the dark deep is neither thick nor thin, opaque nor transparent, but it is a dark chamber of death, where nothing is perceived, neither cold nor warmth, for it is the end of all things.

57. This, now, is the body of the deep, or the very real chamber of death.

58. But in this dark valley there are the seven spirits of God, which have neither beginning nor end, and the one is neither the first, second, third or last.

59. In these seven dominions or regimens the regimen divideth itself into three distinct beings, where the one is not without the other, nor can they be divided the one from the other. But those seven spirits do each of them generate one another, from eternity to eternity.
60. The first dominion or regimen standeth or consisteth in the body of all things, that is, in the whole deep, or the being or essence of all beings or essences, which hath, in all corners and places thereof, in itself the seven spirits in possession, or in propriety indivisibly, or irresistibly, for its proper own.

61. Now if these seven spirits in any one place wrestle not triumphingly, then in that place there is no mobility, but a deep darkness; and although the spirits are perfect in that place, yet that place is a dark house; as you may perceive and understand by a dark cave or room close shut up, in which the kindled spirits of the planets and stars cannot kindle the elements.

62. But now the root of the seven spirits is everywhere all over, but when there is no wrestling, then it standeth still and quiet, and no mobility is perceived.

63. And such a house is the whole deep without, within, and above all heavens; which house is called the Eternity. And such a house also is the house of flesh in man, and in all creatures.

64. And this being, together,* comprehendeth the eternity, which is not called God, but the unalmighty body of nature, wherein, indeed, the Deity is immortal or not dead, but standing hidden in the kernel of the seven spirits; and yet not comprehended or understood.

* "And this being, together." "Together" is a literal rendering of the German. St M. has used, "entier," "in its wholeness."
 " and yet not comprehended or understood." The idea is that the "kernel of the seven spirits" does not comprehend the being, in its wholeness.

65. And such a house also the whole space or extent of this world came to be, when the Deity, in the seven spirits, had hidden itself from the horrible devils.

66. And the whole space had so continued, if the seven planets and stars had not risen or sprung up from God's spirits, which seven planets opened again and kindled the chambers of death in the dark house of this world, in all places everywhere; from whence existeth the regimen or dominion of the elements.

67. Moreover, thou art to know also, that the regimen or dominion of the seven spirits of God in the house of this world is not on that account exsiccated or dried up in death, that all must needs receive its life and beginning from the planets and stars.

68. No! for the clear Deity standeth everywhere hidden in the circle in the heart of the whole deep; and the seven spirits stand in the body of the deep in anxiety and great longing, and are still kindled by the planets and stars; from whence existeth the mobility, and the birth or geniture in the whole deep.

69. But as long as the heart of the Deity, which [heart] is the corporeity, hideth itself in the body of this world in the outermost birth, the corporeity is a dark house; all standeth in great anguish and needeth a light, which is the sun, to shine in the chamber of darkness, until the heart of God doth move itself again in the seven spirits of God in the house of this world, and kindle the seven spirits.

70. Then the sun and stars will return again to their first place, and will pass away in such a form or manner; for the Heart and Light of God will give light and shine again in the corporeity, that is, in the body of this world, and replenish or fill all.

71. Then the anxiety ceaseth; for when the anxiety in the dominion of the geniture or birthregimen tasteth of the sweetness of the light of God, so that the heart of God triumpheth together in the birth-regimen, then all is richly full of joy, and the whole body triumpheth.

72. Which at present in this time, in the house of this world, cannot be, because of the fierce, captive devil, who keepeth house in the outermost birth or geniture in the body of this world, till the judgment of God.

73. Now here thou mayest understand how the heart of God hath the fan or casting-shovel in its hand, and will one day cleanse his floor: which I herewith earnestly declare to you as in the knowledge in the light of life, where the heart, in the light of life, breaketh through, and proclaimeth the bright, clear day.

Of Man and the Stars.

74. Now, as the deep, or the house of this world, is a dark house, where the whole corporeity generateth itself, and is very thick, dark, anxious and half dead, and taketh its moving from the planets and stars which kindle the body in the outermost birth or geniture, from whence existeth the mobility of the elements, as also the figured and creaturely being, so also the human house of flesh is a dark valley, wherein is indeed the anxiety to the birth of life, and it always highly endeavoureth, intending to elevate itself into the light, from whence the life might kindle itself.
75. But seeing the heart of God did hide itself in the centre or kernel, therefore it [this elevation] cannot be; and thereupon [on that account] the anxiety generateth no more but ONE seed. The house of the flesh generateth a seed of its likeness to the propagating of a man again; and the house of the spirit, in the instant or innate state of the seven spirits, generateth in the seed another spirit after its likeness, to the propagating of the spirit of man again.

76. And the house of the hidden heart generateth also such a spirit as standeth hidden, in the body, to the spirit of the house of flesh, as also to the spirit of the astral birth or geniture; just as the heart of God in the seven spirits of God standeth hidden in the spirits in the deep of this world, and doth not kindle them, till after this enumeration or account of time is out.

77. This third spirit is the soul in man, and qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the heart of God, as a son or little god in the great, immense or immeasurable God.

78. Now these three distinct dominions or regimens are generated in the seed, which taketh its original in the flesh, as I have mentioned before, within three leaves from this.

Now observe this hidden secret hidden Mystery.
Ye Naturalists*, observe. The Gate of the great Mystery.

* Natural Philosophers, Physicists

79. Out of the anguishing chamber in the body of this world, out of the seven spirits of God, are risen or sprung forth the stars, which kindle the body of this world; and out of or from the body the fruit or seed generateth itself, which is the water, fire, air and earth.

80. The earth is the fruit of the seventh spirit of God, which is nature or corporeity, wherein the other six spirits generate themselves again, and figure or frame the Salitter of the seventh spirit into infinite sorts of forms or shapes; so that the earth also generateth its seed, which is the fruit of vegetation, as is apparent to the eye.

81. Now man's house of flesh is also such a house as the dark deep of this world is, wherein the seven spirits of God generate themselves.

82. But seeing man's body is its proper own, and is a son of the whole body of God, therefore it generateth also a proper seed of its own, according to the government or dominion of his corporeal, qualifying or fountain spirits.*

* "his corporeal . . . spirits." Presumably "man's corporeal . . . spirits." St M. has, "the corporeal fountainspirits."

83. The body taketh its food from the seed of the seven spirits of God in the body of the great deep, which [body] is fire, air, water and earth.

84. Of or from the earth it taketh the birth of the earth, or the fruit, for it is much more noble than the earth. It is an extracted mass out of the Salitter, out of the seventh nature spirit.

85. For when the body of nature was kindled by the devil, then the word or the heart of God drew together the mass [for man's body], before the corrupted Salitter was pressed together, which now is called the earth, because of the hard fierceness or corruption.

86. But when the earth was pressed together, then the mass stood in the dark deep in the created heaven, between the anxious birth or geniture and the love of the Heart of God, till the sixth day; and then the Heart of God breathed the light of life out of or from his Heart into the innermost or third birth or geniture in the mass.

87. Now when this was done, then in the mass the seven spirits of the qualities began to qualify or operate; and in the mass the seed of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits generated itself, as fire, air and water, as it did in the body of the deep.

88. Thus MAN became a living soul, in that kind and manner as the sun is risen or sprung forth, and out of that the seven planets.

89. The light in man, which the Heart of God had breathed in, signifieth or resembleth the sun which shineth in the whole deep; concerning which you will find more clearly about the creation of man.

90. Now behold! As in the deep of this world, through the kindling of the stars, a seed is generated out of the body of the dark deep, like the creaturely body, so also in like manner, in man's house of flesh there is generated a seed, according to the eternal birth-right of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits.

91. And in the seed there are three distinct things, whereof the one cannot fathom the others, and yet the others are in that one only seed, and they all qualify, mix or unite one with another, as one being; and they are also one being, and yet also three distinct things, according to the kind and manner of the Ternary or Trinity in the Deity.

92. First there is the whole body of man, which is a dark house, and hath no mobility besides, or \textit{without}, or distinct from the qualifying or operation of the seven spirits, but is a dark valley, as the body of the deep of this world is.

93. Now in the dark body of man there is also such a regimen or dominion, as to the \textit{seven} spirits, as there is in the body of the deep. And when the seven spirits qualify or operate according to the \textit{birth-right} of the Deity, then, out of the \textit{wrestling} of the seven spirits, a \textit{seed} generateth itself, according to \textit{their} likeness.

94. Now that seed hath first a \textit{mother}, which is the dark \textit{chamber} of the house of flesh. Secondly, it hath a mother, which is the \textit{wheel} of the seven spirits, according to the kind and manner of the seven planets. Thirdly, it hath a mother that is generated in the circle of the seven spirits in the centre, which mother is the \textit{heart} of the seven spirits.

95. And this now is the \textit{mother of the soul}, which shineth through the seven spirits, and maketh them living; and in their stead the seed qualifieth, mixeth or \textit{uniteth} with the Heart of God. But the seed which so qualifieth is \textit{that seed} alone in which the light is kindled: in that in which the wrath-fire burneth, there this third mother remaineth \textit{captive} in the dark chamber.

96. And though indeed it is the \textit{third} mother,* yet it remaineth but a foolish virgin, if the light be not kindled in it. Just as the deep of this world is a foolish virgin before the Heart of God, in which deep of this world the wheel of the seven spirits standeth in such anxiety, in so much \textit{corruption} and \textit{redemption}, in heat and in cold, as is apparent.
* "And though indeed it is the third mother"—in the sense of, "In spite of being the third mother."

97. But when the third mother is kindled in the light, then it standeth in the created heaven of the holy life, and shineth through the second mother, the seven spirits, whereby the seven spirits get a friendly, courteous will, which is the love of the life, as you may read in the eighth chapter of this book, concerning the lovebirth or geniture of God.

98. But through the third mother they cannot constantly or permanently shine, for the third mother standeth in the house of darkness; but they often cast a glimpse upon the third mother, even as if it lightened, whereby the third mother many times becometh very longing, and rejoiceth highly, but is soon bolted up again by the fierceness of God's wrath.

99. The devil also danceth at this gate, for it is the prison wherein the new man lieth hid, and wherein the devil lieth captive.

100. I mean, in the house of the deep of this world. Though indeed [in] the house of flesh and the deep all [things or parts] qualify with one another as one body, and are one body, only [with] distinct parts or members.

The Deep in the Centre.

101. Now behold! When the seed is generated, it standeth in the centre or midst of the body in the heart; for there the mother catcheth the Ternary or Trinity.

102. First, the astringent spirit catcheth hold, and that draweth together a mass or lump out of the sweet water, that is, out of or from the unctuosity or fatness of the blood of the heart, or from the sap or oil of the heart.

103. Now that oil hath clearly the root of the Ternary or Trinity in it, viz. the whole man; for it is just as when kindled tinder is cast into straw.

Now it may be asked, How comes this to pass?

104. Here now is the true ground of man; observe it exactly, for it is the looking-glass of the great Mystery, the deep secret of the humanity, about which all the learned, since the beginning of the world, have danced, and have sought after this door, but they have not found it.

105. But I must once mention, that now is the Dawning or Morning Redness of the Day, as the Door-keeper will have me do.

Now observe:
106. Just as was the first mass, out of which Adam became a living man, so also in like manner is every mass or seed of the Ternary or Trinity in every man.

Observe:
107. When the Salitter or fabric * of the six qualifying or fountain spirits (which Salitter is the seventh nature-spirit in the space or room of this world) was kindled, then the Word or Heart of God stood everywhere in the centre or midst of the circle of the seven spirits, as a heart, which [heart] at once replenished all, viz. the whole space or room of this world.

* " fabric " (Gewirke). See Ch. 26, par. 3.
108. But seeing the deep, that is, the whole space of this world, was the body of the Father, (understand the Father of the Heart of God), understand the Father's body, and the Heart in the whole body did shine forth, viz. the Father's lustre or brightness, then the corrupted Salitter was affected or possessed everywhere with the light; and the Heart of God could not fly out from it, but did hide its lustre and shining light in the body of the whole deep, from the horrid kindled spirits of devils.

109. When this was done, then the qualifying or fountain spirits became very fierce and vehemently struggling, and the astringent spirit, as the strongest, drew very terribly together in the seventh nature-spirit the fabric and effects* of the other five; from whence the bitter earth and stones came to be, but [they] were not yet driven together, but moved in the whole deep.

* " fabric and effects " (Gewirke). See Ch. 26, par. 3.

110. In this hour the mass was drawn together; for when the Heart of God did hide itself in the Salitter, then it cast a glance again on the whole space or body, and thought how it might be remedied again, whereby another angelical kingdom might be in the deep of this world.

111. But the glance was the love-spirit in the Heart of God, which in that place of the glance affected or possessed the oil of the water, where previously the light was risen up.

112. Here consider Saint Peter's glance, that was cast upon him in the house of Caiphas: it is the very same. [Luke xxii. 61]
113. * And the spirit of the man, (understand the root of the love which, in the rising up of the life out of the water, riseth up through the fire), and also the spirit of the woman, both catch one another in that oil of the heart, where presently a mass, seed, or driving will or desire to the propagating of a man again arises in the mass.

* A new translation of this par. has been substituted for Sparrow's rendering.

114. Just in such a way and manner the first mass also came to be, for the love-spirit in the Heart of God cast a glance, in the body of the kindled wrathful Father, on the water of life, whereby, and out of which, the love in the fireflash arose or sprang up before the time of the wrath.

115. In this casting of the glance the one spirit caught the other; the unctuous oil or water in the wrath conceived from the love-spirit in the Heart of God, and qualified, mixed or united with the same, and the astringent spirit drew the mass together; and there was clearly a birth, or a will or desire to the producing of a whole creature; just as the seed in man is.

116. But now the firmament of heaven, that is between the Heart of God and the kindled, hard chamber of death, was closed or shut up; else the life in the mass had suddenly kindled itself.

117. For the firmament was within in the mass, as well as without, distinct from the mass, which is the parting mark or limit of separation between the Heart of God and the fierce devils.

118. Therefore the Word or Heart of God must blow up the moving spirit in the mass, which was first done but on the sixth day, for very assured causes.

119. For if heaven had not, as a firmament, been shut up in the mass, between the Heart of God and the corporeal, qualifying or fountain spirits of the mass, then the mass might have kindled the soul from or by its own power; as it happened with the holy angels.

120. But it was to be feared that it would come to pass as it did with that fair little son Lucifer, seeing the corporeal, qualifying or fountain spirits in the mass were kindled in the wrath-fire.

121. Therefore heaven must be a firmament between the sparkle which had conceived from the Heart of God in the first glance; that though the body might happen to perish, yet the holy seed might remain, which is the soul, which qualifieth, mixeth or uniteth with the Heart of God, out of which a new body might come to be, when the whole God should kindle again the deep of this world in the light of the Heart of God; and just so it is come to be with the body. The love of God have mercy, and take pity on it!

122. The dear man Moses writeth, That God made man out of a clod of earth, as the learned have rendered it. But Moses was not present when it was done.

123. But this I must needs say, that Moses hath written very rightly, though the true understanding or meaning, out of what the earth proceeded, remained hidden to Moses, and to them that have come after him in the letter, for the spirit hath kept it hidden to this very time.

124. It was also hidden from Adam, while he was yet in Paradise; but now it will be fully revealed. For the Heart of God hath set upon or assaulted the chamber of death, and will shortly break quite through.

125. And therefore, in these our present times, some beams of the day will more and more break through in the hearts of some men, and make known the day.

126. But when the Dawning or Morning Redness shall shine from the east to the west, or from the rising to the setting, then, assuredly, time will be no more; but the SUN of the Heart of God riseth or springeth forth, and, RA. RA. R. P. will be pressed in the winepress without the city, and therewith to R. P. [see Epistles of Jacob Behmen (1649), Ep. 23, v. 12.]

* "and therewith to R. P.," lit., "and therewith AM. R. P."

127. These are hidden, mystical words, and are understood only in the language of nature.

128. Moses writeth very rightly, that man was created out of the earth; but at that time, when the mass was held by the Word, then the mass was not earth. But if it had not been held or kept by the Word, then at that very hour it had become black earth, but the cold wrath-fire was in it already.

129. For at the very hour when Lucifer elevated himself the Father was moved to wrath in the qualifying or fountain spirits against the legions of Lucifer; and the Heart of God hid itself in the firmament of heaven, where the Salitter, effect, product or fabric * of the corporeity was burning already; for without or distinct from the light is the dark chamber of death.
130. But the mass was held or kept in the firmament of heaven that it might not be congealed; for when the Heart of God glanced on the mass with its hot love, then the unctuosity or oil in the mass, which rose up out of the water through the fire, out of which the light riseth up, and out of which the love-spirit riseth up, caught hold of the Heart of God, and was impregnated with a young son.

131. And that was the seed of love; for one love embraced the other; the love of the mass embraced and conceived from the love out of the glance of the Heart of God, and was thereby impregnated; and this is the birth or geniture of the soul; and as to this son, man is the image of God.

132. But the qualifying or fountain spirits in the mass could not presently be kindled thereby from the soul; for the soul stood only in the seed in the mass, hidden with the Heart of God in its heaven, till the Creator breathed upon the mass; and then the qualifying or fountain spirits kindled the soul also, and then both body and soul lived equally together.

133. Indeed the soul had its life before the body, but it stood in the Heart of God, hidden in the mass in heaven, and was a kind of holy seed, qualifying, mixing or uniting with God, which seed is eternal, incorruptible and indestructible; for it was a new and pure seed for an angel and image of God.

134. But the fabric, effect or product * of the whole mass was an extract or attraction of the Word of God, out of the fabric or effect of the qualifying or fountain spirits, or of the Salitter, out of which the earth came to be.
135. This extract was not yet become earth, though it was the Salitter of the earth, but was held or kept by the Word.

136. For when the love-spirit out of the Heart of God glanced on the Salitter of the mass, then the Salitter did catch hold of it and conceived from it, and was impregnated in the centre of the soul, and the Word stood in the mass in the sound; but the light abode in the centre of the mass, in the firmament of heaven, remaining hidden in the unctuous oil of the heart, and did not move itself forth out of the firmament of heaven, in the birth of the qualifying or fountain spirits.

137. Else, if the light had kindled itself in the birth or geniture of the soul, then all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, according to the eternal birthright of the Deity, had triumphed and qualified, mixed or united in and with the light, and had been a living angel; but seeing the wrath had clearly already infected the Salitter, therefore that danger was to be feared that befell Lucifer.

Now it may be asked:

138. Why were not many masses created at this time, out of which, instantly at once, there might have been a whole angelical host or army, instead of fallen Lucifer?

139. Why should there be so long a time of staying in the wrath?

140. And why should the whole host or army be generated out of that one mass, in so very long a time?

141. Or did not the Creator at this time see and know of the fall of man?
Answer.

142. This now is the very door of the hidden, secret Mystery of the Deity. Concerning which the Reader is to conceive, that it is not in the power or capacity of any man to discern or to know it, if the Dawning or Morning-Redness doth not break forth in the centre in the soul.

143. For these things are divine Mysteries, which no man can search into by his own Reason. I also esteem myself most unworthy of such a gift; and besides, I shall have many scorners and mockers against me; for the corrupted nature is horribly ashamed before the light.

144. But for all that, I cannot forbear; for when the divine light breaketh forth in the circle or birth of life, then the qualifying or fountain spirits rejoice, and in the circle of the life reflect or look back into their mother, into the eternity; and they also look forwards into the eternity.

145. It [the breaking forth of the light] is not, however, a permanent essence, nor a constant illumination of the qualifying or fountain spirits, much less of the bestial body; but it is the ray of the breaking through of the light of God with a fiery impulse, which riseth up through the meek water of life in the love, and remaineth, abiding in its heaven.

146. Therefore I can bring it no further than from the heart into the brain, before the princely throne of the senses, and there it is shut up in the firmament of heaven; and it goeth not back again through the qualifying or fountain spirits into the mother of the heart, that it might come on to the tongue, for if that were done I would tell it with my mouth, and make it known to the world.

147. But for that cause I will let it stand in its heaven, and write according to my gifts, and with wonder and admiration expect what will become of it. For in the qualifying or fountain spirits I cannot sufficiently comprehend or apprehend it, because they stand in the anxious chamber.

148. With or through the soul, I see it very well; but the firmament of the heaven is between, in which the soul hideth itself, and there receiveth its rays from the light of God; and in that respect it goeth through the firmament of heaven as a tempest of lightning, but very gently, in a most amiable and pleasant delight and joy.

149. So that I cannot, in the comprehensibility, in my innate, instant or present qualifying or fountain spirits, or in the circle of life, discern or know it otherwise, for the day breaketh forth apace.

150. For that cause I will write according to this knowledge, though the devil should offer to assault and storm the world; which, however, he cannot do. But his hour-glass is shewn to him, and set before him.

151. Now come on, you Electionists, and contenders about the Election of Grace, you that suppose you alone are in the right, and esteem a simple faith to be but a foolish thing; you have danced long enough before this door, and have made your boast of the Scriptures, that they maintain that God hath of grace chosen some men in their mother's womb to the kingdom of heaven, and reprobated or rejected others.

152. Here make to yourselves many masses, out of which there may proceed other manner of men of other qualities, and then you may be in the right. But out of the one only mass you can make no more than one only love of God, which presseth forth through the first man, and so presseth through and upon all. If God should have permitted Peter or Paul to have written otherwise, then look to the ground, to the heart.

153. If you lay hold on the Heart of God, then you have ground enough.

154. If God give me life a little while longer, I will shew you Saint Paul's Election of Grace.

THE TWENTY-SEVENTH CHAPTER

Note. *

"I advertise the Reader who loveth God, that this book, the Aurora or Morning-Redness, was not finished. [See Epistles of Jacob Behmen (1649), Ep. 3, v. 30.] For the devil intended to put a stop to it, and suppress it, when he perceived that the Day would break forth therein. And the Day hath clearly made haste after the Morning-Redness, so that it is become very light. There wants yet about thirty sheets to the end of it. But seeing the storm hath broken them off, therefore it was not finished; and in the meanwhile it is come to be Day, so that the Morning-Redness is passed away, and since that time the work hath gone on by Day. And it shall so stand, for an eternal remembrance, seeing the defect herein is supplied in the other books."

[ Three Principles; Threefold Life; 40 Questions.]

Jacob Behme, 1620.
The Dawning or Morning-Redness riseth up from the infancy and childhood, and sheweth or demonstrated the creation of all beings, but very mystically, and not sufficiently clear, though full of magical understanding, for there are some Mysteries therein which are yet to come to pass.

Note.
This is the deep, hidden, magical book, which the author at that time might not make clearer, but may now do it through the grace of God. 1621.

Note.
This book is written in a magical sense or understanding, for the author himself alone, who knew of no other Readers; he supposed he made this work only for himself, but God hath disposed it otherwise.

Note.
The author expressed the first syllable MER, in the word MERCURIUS, with an A, as MAR, MARCURIUS, not without a special mystical cause, with the first vowel, A. But because the self-conceited wise in reason dislike it, accounting it but a country, vulgar expression, therefore the transcriber of the High Dutch copy, from whence this was translated, wrote it according to the commonly received word, MERCURIUS

The corn groweth against the will of the enemy. [See Epistle 3] For that which is sown by God, no man can prevent or hinder the growing thereof.

* The above five Notes are in the 1656 German ed., with the exception of the words in the last one, "therefore the transcriber of the High Dutch copy," etc. The fifth Note, literally translated, reads: "It is not without a certain mystical purpose that the author pronounced [and wrote] the word Mercurius as if spelt with an A, i.e. Marcurius; though self-wise reason would consider it as mere boorish simplicity." The later German eds. have the first Note only.

NOTE

IT is necessary for the Reader to peruse the book of The Three Principles, and the book of The Threefold Life of Man, also with this; and then he will be able to conceive aright of the ground in this book, Aurora. For since the time of the writing of this book, Aurora, Day-spring or Morning Redness, the lovely bright day hath appeared unto the author. And all that which is too obscure here, is held forth most clearly in them; which is truly a great WONDER, as the Reader who loveth God will find. Although the author indeed had written this book only for himself, according to the gift of God's spirit, but he knew not then the counsel or will of God concerning it.

Begun the 27 of January, in the year 1612, on the Friday after the conversion of Paul.
